AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

GREAT CANVASSERS

Napoleon, and George Washington and Many More Great Men Were Successful Books Agents In Their Youth.

Books — Well-known firm of London publishers require the services of country gentlemen to act as agents. Liberal commission. Districts apportioned. Hunting and shooting men preferred. Members of good families, younger sons who have been at the Varsities or public schools, will find this a first-class opening. Apply, etc.

When the above appeared in the advertisement columns of the English papers recently, no doubt many people who read it would ask themselves what things were coming to.

Country gentlemen taking to book-canvassing!

Certainly it reads revolutionary, even in these days of trading "nobility and gentry."

But greater men than country squires have, before now, been engaged in canvassing books.

Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French, the world's greatest military genius, was once a book-canvasser.

The future conqueror, while yet a lieutenant, and with nothing to live on but his scanty pay, undertook to "push" for Messrs. Boulanger and Co., the Paris publishers, a work called "The History of the (French) Revolution." And apparently he liked the work — with its emoluments — for after a short trial he applied to be given the sole agency for the Department of La Vendée. He had, however, to be content with a restricted district in suburban Paris. With what zeal he "worked" this may be seen to-day at the Louvre, where there is exhibited his canvasser's outfit, together with the long list of subscribers' names which his industry secured.

Almost at the same time, in a different part of the world, another future ruler was partly earning his bread as a book agent. This was none other than George Washington, "Father" of the United States. The particular book that Washington canvassed bore the somewhat lengthy title of "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, American Savage; How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization."

To "get off" such a mouthful as this would surely require more than average ability and persuasiveness, and if, as he recorded, Washington's sales were eminently satisfactory, small wonder that in later life he accomplished so much greater things.

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, clever manager of Joe Jeanette, claims the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVey, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeannette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVey.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE.

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father; and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

Wife — John, I gave Fido one of those crullers I made, and he went and buried it.

THE CHINAMAN

What a Late Chaplain to the Forces at Hong-Kong Thinks of the Chinese.

Napoleon said that when China was moved the face of Europe would be changed. Yet, as the Chinese are naturally peaceful, we think that the Yellow Peril is a commercial one. The peril is that China will manufacture things cheaper than Europeans can and dismiss us from the trade of the Far East. How can we, with our high standard of comfort, clothes, and interest generally, compete with the Chinese, combining, as they do, the active industry of the most civilized people with the passive patience of the North American Indian? Far more than we do the Chinese believe in the power of character and intellect. With this, rather than with armies and navies, they will conquer.

A Chinese is nearly always a person of resource. A young man was accused of knocking out his father's teeth, and was in danger of being put to death. A friend visited him and whispered in his ear, "It's a bad case."

Suddenly seizing the ear between his teeth, he gave it a severe bite.

"What do you mean?" asked the young man, raising his fist.

"I mean," was the answer, "that you are saved; you have only to show the marks of my teeth and say that they were made by your father, whose teeth, being shaky, dropped out."

Business Before Sentiment.

Two small things impress foreigners with the skill of the Chinese. One is the way they carve ivory balls, one within the other, to the number of seven or eight; and the other the inscription of minute characters inside agate or crysta snuff-bottles.

A Chinaman always appears to be looking round the corners of his eyes at you, and to have a meaning that you cannot get at. He gives you the impression that somebody, when he was born, sat on his nose, and that he has been lamenting the calamity ever since. And yet, though he never lays aside this expression of resigned wretchedness, the average Chinese is not at all more miserable than the average Britisher.

Speaking of Britishers, we may say that they and Chinamen have much in common. Both have a great capacity for making and enjoying money. Both have business aptitude and integrity, do their work well, and appreciate a good dinner. Equally with Englishmen, Celestials have common sense and respect for law, and do not allow sentiment to interfere with business. The Chinese are the British of the Far East, and the Japanese are the French.

Fond of Sport.

The Chinese are not less conservative than the English. They dread any change that may cause trouble or disorder, and this is why they have put up so long with their wretched government. "Better be a dog in peace," they say, "than a man in anarchy." The "dog in peace" has now risen to war; let us hope that the splendid empire of China will not remain in anarchy.

Like the British, also, the Chinese are fond of sports, though their idea of sport is peculiar. They have quails, thrushes, and even fish to fight, and they bet on these, and on almost every other event.

The Chinese contrivances for the management and capture of beast, bird, and fish are as ingenious as they are simple. If, for instance, a donkey disturbs by braying in the night, a big stone is tied to his tail, and this humiliates him into silence.

When a Chinaman wishes to catch wild ducks he mixes an intoxicating spirit made of rice with corn and leaves the mixture for the birds. They become intoxicated, and are taken in their cups, so to speak. Another way is to put a gourd on his head and swim gently among the ducks. They are not frightened, because they only see the gourd and are accustomed to that, and the artful John pulls one duck after another by the legs into a bag attached to him. Everyone knows that John Chinaman trains cormorants to catch fish, not for themselves, but for him.

After cold water, there is nothing the Chinese so much fear as ridicule and disgrace, or the "loss of face." A magistrate who was to be beheaded asked that, as a special favour, he might wear his robes of office in order to save his face!

The Chinese are great at organizing. The trade guilds which are established in every town are quite as powerful as our trade unions. Even beggars and thieves have guilds. Every morning the king of the beggars sends a detachment of his sackcloth-clad or nearly unclad subjects to collect poor-rates in the districts assigned to them. Owners of property pay so much a year to "the honourable guild of thieves" in order not to be robbed.

SHAM BATTLE SHAMS

The military manoeuvres were in a muddle. The "Purples" were supposed to be invading the territory of the "Greens," but why they were or what they were they didn't exactly know.

A large detachment of the 'Purples' began to cross the river by a wooden bridge to attack a small detachment of 'Greens.'

"Hi!" roared the 'Greens.' "Hi! You mustn't cross here! Can't you see the notice? This bridge is supposed to be destroyed."

"H'm! Is it?" responded the captain of the 'Purples,' grimly. "Well, then, we're supposed to be swimming across."

Costly Panama Hats

Even in modern times there have been men's hats which cost far more than anything worn by the ladies. That, for instance, presented to General Grant when he was in Mexico cost $1500, and justly claims to be the finest sombrero ever made. The admirers of Mr. Steward, a member of President Lincoln's Cabinet, too, paid $1000 for the Panama with which they presented him. 40

FAMILY POISONS

Some Astonishing Facts About the Poisons We Are Always Eating In Our Foods. Even Salt Will Kill You.

When the doctor told me he was prescribing prussic acid for the pain in my stomach, I said I would rather keep the pain than take such a poison.

"You need not have the slightest fear," he assured me. "Why, you eat poisons every day. When the Chinese want to commit suicide, one of their favourite plans is to take half a cup of salt."

"Common salt?"

"Yes. In large quantities common salt is a violent irritant. It sets up severe inflammation of the stomach, and kills as surely as arsenic.

"Saltpetre, that colours bacon and corned beef an attractive red, is a powerful poison. One ounce has killed a person in three hours. Many people have been poisoned by this salt.

"You must know that your pudding and the icing of your wedding-cake are incomplete unless flavoured with bitter almonds. I am not sure how many bitter almonds it takes to kill a man, but they contain a good deal of this prussic acid that you object to.

"Oxalic acid, with which foolish people so often commit suicide, is the [illegible] which gives rhubarb and sorrel their pleasant flavour. It is a powerful irritant and dreadfully painful poison.

"Need I tell you that coffee, the unembarrassing principle of coffee, is a poison?

"In nearly all our condiments we eat poison. The oils of nutmeg, cloves, black pepper, cinnamon, peppermint, caraway, horse radish, [illegible], etc. are all poisonous in large doses.

ENOUGH SAID

A noted lawyer had a case in which among other things, he wished to prove that his client had no money, and to that end he cross-questioned one of the opponent's witnesses as follows:—

"You asked my client for money, did you not?"

"Well—yes sir."

"Answer promptly, sir! Let us have no hesitation. You asked him for money. Now, what was his answer?"

"I don't know as I can tell."

"But surely you remember?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then out with it! What was his answer?"

"I'd rather not tell."

"Ho, ho! You are on that tack, are you? You won't tell?"

"I would rather not, sir."

"But you must; and if you do not answer my question promptly and truthfully I shall call upon the Court to commit you for contempt."

"Well, sir, if I must tell tales out of school, here you have it. I asked him yesterday if he could lend me half a dollar, and he told me he couldn't."

"And you believed him, did you fool?"

"Yes, sir, for he owed you [illegible] money, and if he didn't get out o' [illegible] little ones would soon come to—"

"That will do, sir. You can stand down."

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Cousins Who Marry Is Told by Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a co-worker with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew, or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of a resemblance. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view to endeavouring to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, success, temper, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this—that the general resemblance between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the undesirability [illegible] within certain degrees is founded on the closeness of [illegible]," Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marriage of [illegible] with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins."

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to be deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues Miss Elderton, "if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

EVIDENTLY A MISTAKE

'Twas at the skating rink, and the young man was but a beginner. Wherefore he lost his balance!

He made a wild effort to grab anything in the way of support. And, as it happened, the nearest thing was a fashionably-dressed lady, also on skates. She promptly turned on him.

"You contemptible cur!" she shrieked. "Do you think I am a lamp post, or a piece of furniture, or what? You ought not to be allowed in here, you clumsy lout! What right have you to tear other people's clothes to rags, and claw them in that mad way? You are not fit——"

But the young man had now recovered his composure.

"Pardon me, madam," he remarked, "but haven't you made a mistake?"

"A mistake?" gasped the lady. "What do you mean?"

"Simply this, madam," came the calm retort, "I am not your husband!"

"Accused of begging!" exclaimed a magistrate. "Why, you are the very man who was begging at my door yesterday!"

"Yes," assented the vagrant, with a sneer, "and you didn't give me anything."

"Well, I'll give you something now. Fourteen days!"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHEN WOMEN LED

The Fair Sex Has Been Well to the Fore in the Past, But Where Real Fighting Was to Be Done.

In the French Revolution women often led the bands of peasants who rose against the aristocrats. At Troyes a similar sight was seen during the champagne riots which convulsed the Aube Department of France.

At the head of the detachment which one district sent to join the "Iron Battalion" marched a splendid-looking young woman, wearing a white-knitted cap, with the Revolutionary red ribbon twined around it. Her starting-point forty miles from Troyes, this girl tramped every step of the distance between dawn and dark. She was cheered by the crowds when she arrived in Troyes.

It was a girl, too, who headed the great no-rent strike in New York, three years ago.

Nearly all the big tenements in the Bowery, the most crowded section of darkest New York, are let to agents, who sub-let them in rooms or small flats to the poor. The rents are awful. A man will have to pay twenty-five dollars a month for three small rooms on a fifth floor.

It will be remembered that at the end of 1907 Eastern America suffered from the worst times which had been known in the States for very many years, and the result was that evictions for non-payment of rent became more and more frequent.

A REDUCTION IN RENTS

It was Cecelie Arkin, a nineteen-year-old girl, who devised the plan of campaign, and banded together no fewer than thirty thousand families, who all vowed to pay no more rent unless a general reduction of twenty per cent. was granted. Each family pledged itself to shelter as many as possible of the evicted ones.

The struggle was a long and bitter one. Hundreds of families were turned out, but in the end Cecilie Arkin won a victory; for the agents compromised, and a general reduction of ten per cent. was the condition on which the strike was settled.

The last Carlist rising in Spain was headed by a woman. This was in 1901, and the insurrection broke out at Berga, in the turbulent province of Cabalonia. The identity of the lady has never leaked out. She was tall, beautifully dressed, and rode magnificently.

It was rumoured at the time that she was Donna Blanca, Duchess of Braganza, and wife of Don Alfonso, brother of Don Carlos. But this surmise was proved to be false, and to this day her identity is a mystery.

There has always been a deal of smuggling along the western end of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico.

The most notorious of all these smugglers was a Mexican woman known as Lalia, Queen of the Smugglers. She was quite young, and extremely good-looking, and by her extraordinary talents rose to be head of a band of [illegible].

A QUEEN BETRAYED

For nearly four years she reigned supreme, and then one day, as her long train of burros (donkeys), bearing contraband goods, was crossing the Rio Grande, she was surprised by a sudden shower of rifle-bullets. She had been betrayed, and a strong force of Mexican "Rurales" had been ambushed among the rocks.

One of her arms was broken by a bullet, but with splendid courage she gathered her men and rode straight of the troops.

A soldier seized her bridle. She cut him down, and for some minutes a furious fight raged. Then numbers prevailed, and she and her surviving companions were pulled down. She died in hospital a few days later.

There is no part of the world and no race which does not produce its fighting women. Quite lately our Crown Colony of Southern Nigeria has been plagued by a lady of colour known as the "Omu."

Among her tribe she is reckoned officially as a man and cannot have a husband.

After causing endless trouble to the authorities she made peace, and then coolly demanded a seat upon the legislative Council. So far this has not been granted, but it is possible we may hear more of this coal-black Suffragette.

PERSIAN WEDDINGS

Tying the matrimonial knot is a very prolonged and serious affair in Persia. In fact, a wedding may extend for a week. On the last day of the wedding the bride, who has been treated as a sort of outcast, is conducted by a near relative to a room, where she undergoes further and more elaborate decoration.

She then returns to the guest-room, and her dowry is laid before her in trays. The dowry often comprises such queer things as cheap and highly-coloured oleographs, gaudy vases, birdcages, and many useful household articles. Having kissed the hearthstone of her home, she is then given bread, salt, and a piece of gold, and thus equipped and closely veiled she is hoisted on to a gaily-adorned donkey and, accompanied by a circus-like procession of friends, goes to her future home, where her husband awaits her.

"Are you a friend to William Biggins? That ne'er-do-well?"

"I should think not, indeed!"

"Then you'll hardly be interested to hear that he has inherited a hundred thousand pounds."

"What? Dear old Bill!"

Asker: "How do you excuse those mother-in-law jokes of yours to your wife?"

Fuminan: "I tell her they refer to her mother-in-law, and she says they are not half bad enough." 42

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

$17,500 Passed Out to Farmers of the District for Horses.

This district has long been famous for the excellence of its horses; they have achieved a fame that has spread far and wide. Intelligent breeding has brought this about; and a person would travel over many a league to find finer specimens of the draught horse than this locality produces.

And the last great West needs just that type of horse. That accounts for the presence throughout the country for the last few weeks of Mr. J. T. Hall, buying up suitable horses.

Yesterday was delivery day, and the C.P.R. yards was a scene of briskness. Four cars were loaded, and started on the way to the world's granary. About 65 horses were shipped, and as close as may be $17,500 was distributed among the farmers.

DEMAND BODY

Toronto, Jan. 13.—Considerable feeling has been aroused in Jewish quarters over the burial of Michael Smith in a Christian cemetery on Saturday. Smith was formerly a railway news agent, but was latterly a C.P.R. brakeman. He was killed at Sudbury while following the latter calling.

The Rabbi of Terauley street Synagogue, explained that Smith, whose real name was Trokentoff, married a Christian girl and afterwards moved to Sudbury.

When the body was brought to Toronto his relatives and friends tried to get the corps buried in a Hebrew cemetery, and according to Jewish rites.

With this aim in view Rabbi Jacobs and Mr. Geltsbeiller, of the Bond street synogogue, called at the home 461 Bathurst street, and demanded that the body be turned over to them. This Mrs. Smith refused to do, declining to allow the Jewish church authorities to cross the threshold.

The funeral took place with Christian rites, and Hebrew friends of deceased are now investigating whether Mrs. Smith has the right to do with her husband's body as she will, and they will probably take legal advice on the question of removing the remains from their present resting place and having them placed in Jewish ground.

NO SURRENDER.

The resolution of E. A. Lancaster, M. P. for Lincoln, against the Ne Temere decree, calls forth some warm support from the trenchent pen of that indomitable fighter, Editor J. R. Robertson, in the Toronto Telegram. Here are some extracts:

A Government of trucklers and an Opposition of bigots and time servers at Ottawa—these stand shivering on the brink of E. A. Lancaster's resolution against the Ne Temere decree.

Canadians could not get a hearing for their objections to the Ne Temere decree last September. Clericalism was a foe that could be faced after Continentalism had been defeated.

The Ne Temere issue is only dangerous if Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden and his advisers try to run away from that issue.

The Borden Government cannot meet the Ne Temere issue by inciting its flatterers to speculate as to the motives of E. A. Lancaster, M.P. It may be that Mr. Lancaster's hatred of the Ne Temere decree has not been modified by the fate that isolated Mr. Lancaster from a portfolio in the Borden Government.

The question of motives may be left out of the discussion.

The motive that inspires E. A. Lancaster to raise the Ne Temere issue is as pure, patriotic and praiseworthy as any motive which may inspire Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden regarding the Ne Temere decree.

The Borden Government should not [illegible] records. Canadians hope and believe that the procedure of the Borden Government may be such as to cause them to forget the truths of history. These truths principally teach that Mr. Borden made up his Cabinet from among public men who are as free as Mr. Borden himself is free from the taint of respect for "Protestant ideals."

Roman Catholics, by the thousand, are utterly out of sympathy with the intricacies of papal jurisprudence. Their Canadian hearts revolt against the decree which ruled that the vocalist Gogorza could marry a Jewess according to the rites of the Roman Catholic Church, and years afterwards secure a papal ruling which divorced him from the wife with whom he had lived, on the pretext that the Jewess, being an unbaptized person, her marriage to a Roman Catholic was void, even when the marriage was solemnized by the Roman Catholic Church.

The subtleties of ecclesiasticism are making a divorce court out of a church which once gloried in its power as a witness for the truth that "Those whom God has joined together let no man put asunder."

The Ne Temere decree operates in the province of Quebec as a shelter for the most damnable crimes against helpless women. To quote the words of an observer who has studied the infamies that follow the workings of the Ne Temere decree, even as the night follows the day:

"I am familiar with the work of a society for the protection of old country girls arriving in our province. We have had heart-rending cases of scoundrels who, profess the Roman Catholic religion, and practice no religion, getting married to these girls under license and before a Protestant minister. They may live together as man and wife, but as soon as the relationship becomes burdensome the husband explains that he married contrary to the laws of his church, and that these laws are supreme in Canada. Consequently a marriage solemnized by a minister under the authority of a license granted in the name of the King is no marriage at all. The man is free from all obligations to the woman he swore to love and cherish: the wife is an outcast, and the children are illegitimate."

E. A. Lancaster, M.P., will be guilty of bad patriotism and worse partyism if he allows himself to be bullied or wheedled or coaxed into helping the Borden Government to escape an opportunity to face the great question bravely, and settle that question right. Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden minimizes his own size and magnifies the size of the difficulty that confronts him. Mr. Borden is bigger than the Ne Temere question if Mr. Borden faces the issue. The Ne Temere question is bigger than Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden if Mr. Borden runs away from the issue. Is Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden going to fight, or is he going to run?

Sault Ste Marie, Jan. 23.—Without any warning Guiseppe Nardone, shot and killed Mike Pappa, in the bedroom of a west end boarding house. Seven or eight Italians were sitting together listening to music. Suddenly Nardone rose from the bed on which he was sitting and walking over to Pappa, fired one shot into his abdomen after which he coolly walked to the door and out into the night. He has not since been seen.

No motive is ascribed for the crime for the other Italians say the two had only just met. Pappa was rushed to the hospital and died at 9 o'clock this morning. He was 26 years of age and was respectable. His murderer was only twenty years of age.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

THOMAS GRIGG
Qu'Appelle

For nineteen years Thomas Grigg has farmed near Qu'Appelle, meeting set-backs, but prospering. Although a Canadian, he and his wife came to the Springbrook district from South Dakota. Generally speaking, wheat-growing has been the mainstay. Horse-raising, also, has received attention to an extent sufficient to lead Mr. Grigg to pass opinion that a man can make as much money on a half section of rough land raising colts as he can on a real good quarter of wheat-growing. Pigs, also, are kept, and on different occasions have helped him "out of a tight place." He finds that, as a rule, there is enough feed around to fatten a bunch. The farm comprises 640 acres of which about one-quarter is summerfallowed annually. Wheat is grown for two years, and then oats or barley. Recently, Mr. Grigg has rented his farm for a year in order that he and his good wife may spend the winter in California and take a well-earned rest.

HON. HUGH J. MACDONALD
Police Magistrate
Winnipeg

Mr. Hugh Macdonald who was lately appointed Police magistrate of the Gateway city was formerly premier of Manitoba. Probably the importance of his magistracy lies principally in the fact that the man he succeeded was the famous late T. Mayne Daly, and though Mr. Macdonald is not in his famous father's rank he is big hearted enough to make the attempt to fill a big man's shoes. Nothing attempted, nothing done is certainly not in his make up.

Squire Macdonald is a son of the late John A. Macdonald, and might have been premier of Canada today, if he had remained in Dominion politics, and followed closely in the footsteps of his dad. But he chose the nearer honors offered by a provincial premiership and got out of the running for the post of prime minister of Canada.

Such a one is Dr. A. Beverley Welford of Woodstock Ont. who is one of the pioneers of the Canadian Club movement in his district, though the doctor's energies are not confined to this laudable work. He is practically connected with every movement that has for its object—the raising of the standard of life.

NELLIE L. McCLUNG
Canadian writer

Mrs. McClung has lived in Manitoba for the last thirty years, having come from Owen Sound with her parents in the very early days of this province. However, she is always very careful to explain that she was only a "mere child" at that time, and yet her stories of some of the happenings of the long journey by ox-train from Winnipeg to the point on the Souris river where her parents located, are so vividly told that we are forced to believe that she must have been a very bright child for her years.

Mrs. McClung, who before her marriage was Nellie L. Mooney, received her education at a country school and afterwards at the Central Collegiate in Winnipeg. She taught school for five years and then married Mr. R. W. McClung, who was engaged in the drug business in Manitoba. Man They lived in Manitou until last summer, when they removed to Winnipeg, and have taken up their residence on Chestnut street. Mrs. McClung was elected president of the local branch of the Canadian Woman's Press club, for this year.

Mrs. McClung has written two books, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and "The Second Chance;" also many short stories. Last year she gave a series of recitals, from her own books, in Manitoba, and also in Ontario.

At the present time she is engaged in writing another book.

Mrs. McClung chooses for her characters the plain people of every day life, when we all know. The keen fidelity of her writing makes a strong appeal to the discriminating reader.

Toronto, Jan. 23.—The cause of the conflagration at the factories of the Allen Manufacturing Company, and the R. D. Fairbairn Company, on Friday evening, remains a mystery, Mr. Fairbairn cannot account for it, after making full enquiries.

Three watchmen were supposed to be looking after the building, but Fire Chief Thompson says his men did not see any of them.

The Allen loss estimated at $100,000, is covered by $100,000 insurance. The Fairbairn loss is placed at $60,000 to $100,000 with $156,000 insurance.

BIG GUN DUEL

During Crimean War to Test Merits of Big Guns a Duel Was Decided Upon Between British and Russian Gunners.

Even war, with all its grim horrors, has now and then a bit of fun, and enemies, pitted against each other in deadly struggle, can relax into friendly controversy. A general relates a curious incident of the Crimean War. While the British Army lay before Sebastopol much speculation went on in regard to the relative merits of certain Russian and certain British guns.

One day, during an armistice, a Russian officer of artillery came to the British lines and asked to see the commander of the British artillery.

"Your sixty-eight pounder that your people call 'Jenny' is a beautiful gun," said the Russian; "but we have one as good in the embrasure, and we should like a fair duel with her."

Arrangements were made that at twelve the next day all other firing should cease, and that the two guns should be put to the test.

At the appointed time a large number of officers were assembled to see the contest. The British sailors of the gun detachment took off their caps and saluted the Russians, who returned the compliment. The British gun, as the senior, was allowed to fire first. It struck the side of the Russian embrasure. Then the Russians returned a good shot.

The third shot from "Jenny" went clear through the enemy's embrasure. The blue jackets, thinking the victory was theirs, jumped upon the parapets and cheered. But they were mistaken. In a minute out came the Russian gun again and delivered several accurate shots. "Jenny" got a bad thump on her side, but it did no material harm.

At the seventh shot from the British side the Russian gun was knocked clean over. The British fellows cheered vociferously, and the Russians mounted the parapet and took off their hats in acknowledgement of defeat. This ended the great gun duel, and more serious hostilities were resumed.

BRITAIN'S BRICK

Of the many relics of Nelson, few appear so interesting as a humble little object in an obscure English town. At the Paston Grammar School, in Norfolk, Lord Nelson was numbered amongst the pupils, and one summer evening he spent some time in carving the initials H. N. on the wall that surrounds the school.

Years afterwards, when he became the people's idol, visitors made a point of viewing his handiwork on the wall, and precautions were taken to prevent zealous admirers of the famous Admiral. But in 1841 a great storm blew down a section which in its fall partly demolished the ancient masonry. On the following morning, Mr. Beloe (Reverend canon and prebendary), who was visiting the head master, spent some time in assisting to find the missing bricks, and it was reserved for the celebrated novelist to discover the identical brick required.

He handed it over to the principal of the school, and to-day the brick rests enclosed in a shield bearing a suitable inscription, in the most prominent position in the school. Small wonder, therefore, that when a Norfolk scholar was asked the question, "Who was Nelson?" he replied, "He was a brick."

NO DUCKS FOR HER

"Why is it, that in the spring a young woman's fancy is so apt to turn to clucking hens? Last year one of my best friends abandoned the footlights and sought the actor's oft-dreamed-of paradise, a little home in the country.

"As a recreation she decided to start a poultry farm, which she did with a barn-yard hen and thirteen eggs from the village store. Not having even the most elementary knowledge of poultry, she inquired of a neighbor how long eggs generally took to hatch. She received the reply:

"'Three weeks for chickens and four for ducks.'

"The neighbor met her some time afterward, and, on being asked how the poultry farming was going on, she replied, with a lowering countenance:

"'Oh, I've finished with it. At the end of three weeks there were no chickens, so I took the hen off, as I don't want ducks.'"

CALGARY FOOTBALL

The energy of Calgary is becoming almost phenomenal. The desire of their football team to play for the Dominion honors seems quite natural although a little late to be perfectly seasonable. But the activity in professional baseball circles is remarkable, considering that spring is so far away. It is reported that the manager of the Calgary Bronchos is signing up players right and left, one of the finds being a youth of nineteen named Brymner, who, says a Calgary writer, "has all the curves of a veteran."

BASEBALL IN CHINA

They have a baseball season in China as well as a revolution, and the ball-players finished their [illegible] first. The teams were recruited in Shanghai and last season the league consisted of four clubs. Next year, it is to be doubled in size. According to reports from Shanghai, baseball is making great headway in China — and why should it not, where there are so many fans?

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, clever manager of Joe Jeanette, claim the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVoy, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeanette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVoy.

The many friends of John Foster will be glad to learn that he has returned from the Toronto General Hospital, and will resume business shortly.

Mrs. Wm. Stuart, of 269 Lansdowne street left on an extended visit to England.

An Exciting Drive.

A bunch of travellers had an exciting drive yesterday morning, when going to the early C.P.R. train. While crossing the road near Charlotte street the bus slewed, with the result that the rear runner collapsed. The tram was nearly due to start, and the load of passengers on board were unable to make the train on foot, so the driver whipped up the horses and sailed down to the station at a 2.40 clip, the rear end of the vehicle dragging. It was a most exciting trip for the occupants, but as the station was reached in time, everybody was happy.

You May Have Catarrh And Not Know it

HEAD AND THROAT BECOME DISEASED WITH CATARRH FROM NEGLECTING COLDS AND COUGHS.

Catarrh Is Treacherous—When Fully Developed is a Horror—Note Its Symptoms.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone" a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's taint ed by catarrhal germs.

There can be no failure with Catarrhozone—for years it has successfully cured cases that resisted other remedies. "No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of Bronchial Catarrh ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

Get Catarrhozone, use it, and you are sure of cure—beware of imitations and substitutes. Large size Catarrhozone, with hard rubber inhaler lasts two months, and is guaranteed. Price $1.00, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y. and Kingston, Ont.

Election of Officers.

The appointment of superintendent and super-superintendent was left to a special committee composed of Rev Mr. Pogue and Messrs. Madill, Fiske, Logan and Keyes. The following officers were then elected:

Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. H. O. Fiske.

Asst. Sec'y-Treas.—Mr. Ellin.

Librarian—Mr. J. C. Connal.

A committee composed of the superintendent, assistant superintendent, Mr. Ellin, Miss Dickson and Miss Roberts were appointed to investicate the "graded lesson" plan which is being adopted throughout the American continent.

At the conclusion of the business meeting those present were entertained by the Misses Dickson to dainty refreshments.

The "No Surrender" side won.

I have my hat in the air for that old friend of mine, Lancaster, of Lincoln.

Instead of handing out congratulations to the members of the fire brigade, I'm handing out congratulations to the city.

Just my luck! The thermometer went up seven points yesterday, and I didn't have a single dollar on it.

One thing's certain from my observation. The priests are getting into politics faster than the politicians are getting into the churches.

When I become the Oldest Inhabitant this weather will be great to look back upon.

J. B. Sneed, of Fort Worth, whose wife eloped to Winnipeg with A. G. Boyce, has got even by killing Boyces father. As he's very rich, the only question is whether he'll be acquitted on the ground of his insanity or the insanity of the jury.

As if it wasn't bad enough, now comes the report that the banana crop in Jamaica has been injured by coolth.

A Club for the Lonely has been formed in a Toronto church. Pretty safe bet it will turn into something like a matrimonial agency.

'Fraid it's coming again! Still Chirrup! The opalescent days of itchy underwear are only 14 weeks thitherward.

Respectfully referred to the talented lecturer at Collegiate Hall: Are politics and astronomy related? Note President Sun of China, and the new Dr. Solar, head of Paraguay.

The man who gave John D. his first start is reported to have just been frozen to death. He evidently never got used to being frozen out.

A quart of bee's honey is said to represent 48,000 miles of flight on the part of Miss Bee. Those that spend their time flitting around candidate's bonnets can't have much to show.

What's the use of showering congratulations on Big Bill Taft for his broad policies? Every one knows that he's Big Built Aft.

Toronto papers refer to it as "subzero" weather. The name's even worse than the thing.

More power to those "Gideons." There's something real, something tangible, in religion when you can get a commercial traveler to lay aside all thoughts of "keeping everlastingly at it" to help the other fellow. I know one fellow who was helped.

VOL XXVIII - 22 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 25 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

KING AND QUEEN ARE WELCOMED AT MALTA

GREAT CROWDS OF TOURIST AT MALTA—THEIR MAJESTIES WILL REMAIN THERE FOR THREE DAYS.

French Vessels Joined the Mediterranean Fleet, and the Welcome of the Populace Was Very Enthusiastic.

Malta, Jan. 24.—King George and Queen Mary landed here to-day, and were given an enthusiastic welcome. The picturesque harbor of La Valletta, formerly held by the Knights of St. John as the most easterly bulwark of christendom in the Mediterranean, was gaily decorated, and the British fleet thundered a royal salute.

The King and Queen were received in state by General Sir Ian S. Hamilton, commander-in chief of the Mediterranean department; Chief Justice Sir J. Carbone; members of the Legislative Council and a crowd of nobles. A drive through the troop-lined streets to Government House, was followed by a reception at which most of the Maltese officials and noblemen were presented to the King and Queen.

Although many of the Maltese are closely related to the Italians, they hate their neighbors and much prefer self-government under British rule. Therefore, the reception accorded their Majesties was one of the most enthusiastic they have received since they left England.

Beside the British Mediterranean fleet which was present in virtually full strength, a squadron of French warships under the command of Admiral Boue de Lapeyrere joined in the greeting, thus making the existing friendship between Great Britain and France. The city of Valletta is thronged with British and French visitors, who have come especially to participate in the festivities.

The King and Queen intend to remain here until Jan. 27.

DEMANDS RICHESON'S DEATH

Letter Signed "Justice" Threatens Life of Governor if Murderer Escapes the Electric Chair

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—A letter threatening the Governor and his Council with violence if the Rev. C. V. T. Richeson is pardoned, is in the hands of the police here to-day. It was mailed to Lieut-Gov. Robert Luce, president of the Governor's Council which acts in an advisory capacity in connection with pardons. The letter, which is signed "Justice" also demands the pardoning of Silas Phelps, the Mumo Bridge Murderer, to whom Governor Foss recently refused clemency. The letter says in part: "Phelps must be saved and Richeson must die. If Phelps is killed, one man will be shot. If Richeson is saved from the electric chair two men will be shot. Beware of the "Black Hand."

JESUITS ADMIT OATH QUOTED, BUT SAYS IT IS OBSOLETE

COLLEGE AUTHORITIES SENT REV. C. O. JOHNSTON COPY PRESENT OATH.

An Action for Libel is Probable—Clergyman Doesn't Apologise—He May be Prosecuted.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—There is a possibility of the College of Jesuits suing Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Toronto far his utterances in regard to their oath.

It was announced by the College authorities this morning that Mr. Johnston was using a copy of an obsolete Jesuit oath in his arguments and that a copy of the oath used to-day had been sent him, and his error pointed out.

If Mr. Johnston does not apologize it was stated, action for libel may be instituted against him.

BIG FIRES IN MONTREAL

Total Loss of $215,000 From Fire in One Night—Two Hotels Suffered.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—The Richelieu Hotel, the Traders Publishing Company building, the Hotel Riendian, and the prtmises of C. D. Alcantara and Hector L. Dery, seed dealers, were damaged by fire last night, which broke out in the first named establishment. Fifty rooms in the Richelieu were destroyed, while the Carter Club suffered from smoke and water. The loss to the Richelieu was $50,000 covered by insurance, and the Riendian, $75,000, with $10,000 insurance. There were eighty-five persons in the Riendian at the time and they made their escape without disorder, taking their possessions with them.

While this fire was in progress another broke out in the Hobbs Manufacturing Company, from an overheated stove. The loss was $30,000.

Damage by smoke and water was done to the P. McCrory Cola Company, the Canada Cold Storage Company, and the Household Washing Machine Company, on either side of the Hobbs warehouse. The total damage will not exceed $60,000.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents

THE QUESTION OF PURE ICE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope the Board of Health or City Council or whoever has to do with the matter, will see that no further supply of ice is taken from the Little Lake for domestic use. Our Medical Health Officer will hardly say that the ice is pure, unless he is also ready to assume that the water of the Lake is fit to drink.

It is the duty of the Board of Health and Council to protect the people from danger in this respect.

Medical Man.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I was pleased to see that we are likely to have another coal company which is likely to burst the present combine. I am told in many places similarly situated to Peterborough, as regards shipping facilities, charge much less for coal than we have to pay in Peterborough.

I believe in being fair to the coal dealer, as he has to live the same as the rest of us, but if the margin of profit is greater than it should be, the public should know it.

Householder.

MR. BURNHAM DID RIGHT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see a writer in the Examiner attacks Mr. Burnham for supporting Premier Borden's action in regard to the marriage laws, which he chooses to head "Mr. Burnham's Contortions." Any one who can read and is at all fair-minded must know that our member did the right thing in supporting Mr. Borden's motion to get the Privy Council's authority first of all. If the answer comes back that our Parliament has the power to legislate in regard to marriages, then we can go ahead and pass a marriage law that will forever set aside the attitude of the Romish Church.

I fear that the writer, who signs himself "Protestant," is a poor sample of what that name stands for.

Another Protestant.

TWENTY MILLIONS OF PEOPLE ARE STARVING IN RUSSIA

Incredible State of Affairs Which are Due to Failure of Crops in That Country

St. Petrsburg, Jan. 24.—Incredible though it seems, there is not the slightest doubt that twenty million people in Russia are starving this winter. Some months ago the alarm was sounded in the Russian Press, but official recognition of the famine, belated as usual, took place only recently, when, in reply to Opposition questions in the Duma, the Premier admitted a total failure of the crops in the eight Eastern provinces, and a partial failure in twelve others. Taken altogether, the deficiency in all these stricken provinces amounted to the average crop.

Official house to house investigations conducted by the government that wished to put an end to sensational rumors circulated in Germany ended the Russian Prime Minister to announce that "only" eight million people were actually in danger of starving to death in November, but since then the number has steadily increased until it has now reached the formidable number above mentioned.

Face Death by Hunger.

It should be remembered that only five years ago, in 1906, the same provinces on either side of the Ural range passed through a similar experience. The people lost most of their horses and cattle, used up all their stocks and savings, and incurred a large debt to the State, which the surpluses of the intervening years have had to repay. Thus these wretched millions have now to face death by hunger practically without reserves, or resources to fall back upon. Hay and fodder have failed, as well as the grain crops throughout this large region. Thus, even from the statistics of the optimistic bureaucracy, the awful extent of the calamity may be imagined.

But the actual facts speak still more eloquently of the suffering in the villages. Having sold their cattle and household wealth at ruinous prices, averaging less than one-tenth of their value, the villagers have been compelled to satisfy the pangs of hunger with acorns, bran, field weeds and the bark of trees. The usual famine diseases, typhus and dysentery, of course, have followed. [illegible] snow began to fall and [illegible] ground, the children [illegible] out and [illegible] they must [illegible] the household [illegible] husks could not be found, the "acorn bread" [illegible] ness and hunger.

Write Pitiful Letters.

School teachers write pitiful letters from the villages to the newspapers, describing how the children are pining away before their eyes while they are powerless to help. Similar appeals come from the doctors, whose healing art has no remedy for famine. The village priests send out their cry "All who have God in their hearts, help us!" Help in any and every way. We are followed and besieged by starving crowds, and are without power to respond."

The priests of two villages in the Turay territory have applied to their superiors for instructions, as the whole populace is dying off and demanded the Last Sacrament before they died of starvation. Whole communities are selling their allotments at what they will fetch. The economic ruin of an agricultural country could not go farther than this. Already the famine is being called in Russia "our economic Tsushima."

WILL RUSH STATED CASE ON MARRIAGE BILL DIRECT TO THE HIGHEST COURTS

HELLMUTH AND CASGRAIN TO ARGUE THE CASE—D. MACMASTER MAY BE ENGLISH COUNSEL.

Minister of Justice Thinks It May Reach Privy Council in June, but He's Optimistic.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 24.—It is the intention of the Minister of Justice to press the reference of the constitutional reference on the marriage law as rapidly as possible, and he has hopes that the case may be got ready early enough to be heard at the February term of the Supreme Court.

Hon. Mr. Doherty believes that it is possible to hear the arguments and secure the decision of the Supreme Court in time to have an appeal to the Privy Council heard in July next. But the Minister of Justice is an optimist. He has not had much experience with the justices of the Supreme Court. They like to take their time in their deliberations, and if they follow their usual practice would hardly give judgment before the May term at the earliest. This would compel the postponement of the Privy Council hearing until the autumn or the spring of next year.

But it can be asserted with confidence that the case will be pressed with all the speed which the Department of Justice can secure, and a decision secured as early as possible.

No selection of counsel has yet been made, but I. F. Hellmuth, K.C. of Toronto, is a good bet for chief counsel, with a leading member of the Quebec bar, probably T. Chase Casgrain as his associate.

MACMASTER TO BE TAKEN ON.

One interesting feature of the appeal will be whether the present Government will continue the former Government's legal agents in England, the firm with which Hon. Chas. Russell is associated, and also whether Hamar Greenwood will be continued to be used by the Dominion. The probabilities point to Donald MacMaster, formerly of Montreal and now a British M.P., being selected as chief counsel for the Dominion in Privy Council cases.

ORDERS ISSUED CAUSED WRECK

Verdict in Inquest of Wreck in which Fireman William Hudson Was Killed.

Parry Sound, Jan. 24.—The inquest on the body of Wm. Hudson, the fireman of train No. 1, running north of the C.N.O. last Saturday, and who was killed in a head-on collision with an auxiliary train running south was concluded about midnight. The verdict of the jury declared that the "auxiliary crew was confused in the orders issued them, which the jurors consider were not explicit enough."

Coroner Davis, in accepting the verdict, dissented to the latter part of the jury's finding.

It is not yet known whether the Crown will take any further proceedings. All the parties were represented by counsel.

THE WEATHER.

Fair and cold.

THE IRISH AGITATORS.

The chief objection to Home Rule, says the Toronto News, is that it would hand over to ministerial clerical domination the sturdy Protestant population of the South, which has long been a strong bulwark of the British Empire. To the people of Ulster their religious rights and are unintimidated voice British affairs are their dearest possessions. These they will not readily relinquish to please a group of politicians who would shortly [illegible] then [illegible] if a prosperous Ireland were allowed to proceed on its way rejoicing. Much of the old bitterness has gone, and the last vestige of it would disappear if the agitators would keep quiet.

TRENT CANAL TO BE COMPLETED

In the Lindsay Post of January the 23rd, there is quoted a despatch from Kingston, in which it is stated that a Minister of the Crown has intimated that the Government will not spend any money on the Georgian or Trent Valley Canal, but that the Welland Canal will be pushed with all speed.

If the Lindsay Post would look at the estimates brought down and voted by Parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1913, it would find that there is voted for the Trent Canal for construction $1,200,000, to pay damages by flooding $20,000.00, for a bridge across the Trent [illegible] improvements to the Canal $41,500.00, maintenance and repairs $140,000.00. This is the largest amount of money ever voted by Parliament to the Trent Canal. While there are twelve members representing constituencies adjacent to and touching the Trent Canal they have all been looking after the interests of the constituencies faithfully, and there is no Minister has dealt more liberally, and taken more interest in pushing the Trent Canal to completion than the Honourable Frank Cochrane, and why papers try to put articles like the Lindsay Post claims they copied from somebody in Kingston, which is an injury to the Canal in order to make some political capital out of the statements which are not facts, we have confidence that the Honourable Frank Cochrane will continue to take an interest, and finish the Canal, and continue his liberality towards us as he has shown this year, his first year in office.

AUDIENCE DOUBLY STUNG

New York, Jan. 24.—A despatch to The Tribune from Hopkinsville, Ky., says:

SIXTY-FIVE WORKMEN ARE DISCHARGED AT QUEBEC

Fifteen Were Overhauling Ships and Others Were Employed in the Shops.

Quebec, Jan. 24.—Since Saturday last some sixty-five workmen employed by the local agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department have been given their discharge.

About fifteen of this number were employed in the work of overhauling Government vessels in winter quarters in the basin. The balance were employed in the different shops on the King's wharf.

These dismissals, or at any rate, some of them, are believed to be the outcome of an enquiry conducted into the local agency by L. O. Beaubein on Saturday last. It is said that further dismissals are likely to take place.

FOREIGN VESSELS $1.50 A TON FOR USE OF PANAMA CANAL

EXTRA CHARGE FOR CARRYING PASSENGERS TO BE $1.50 PER PASSENGER.

That is the Proposal of Senator Bradley, Whose Bill Would Let American Ships Go Through Free.

Washington, Jan. 24.—American ships would use the Panama Canal free of cost, while foreign vessels would pay a charge not exceeding $1.25 a ton under the terms of a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Bradley of Kentucky. If an American ship, however, is owned by a railroad company, and is operated to offset the expected reduction in cost of freight transportation, it will pay double the foreign rate.

Senator Bradley's bill provides that all laws and executive orders now in force in Panama should continue until amended or repealed, and that the President should operate the canal through the chief of engineers of the army. The charge for carrying passengers through the canal would not exceed $1.50 per passenger.

CLAIM BACON WROTE KING JAMES' BIBLE

Baconians Maintain That He Rewrote the Bible as it Was Translated.

New York, Jan. 24.—The latest sensation in literary circles here and in London is the claim which has been suddenly brought forward by English Baconians that Bacon rewrote the Bible as it was translated for King James, and that the King James version, as it now is, is now understood is largely the work of Bacon.

According to T. W. Smedley, of the Bacon Society, the final revision of the authorized version was handed to King James in 1609 and returned by him completed in 1610. During that time a stylist had been at work, and it was not King James. In Mr. Smedley's opinion there was only one stylist in England at that time.

OPERATION ON APPENDIX EASY

Operation for Appendicitis a Very Simple Matter Now—Patients out in 24 Hours.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 24.—Operations for appendicitis thought to have been perfected several years ago, when one and one-half inch incisions were found to be adequate, have been still further simplified, according to announcement made to surgeons of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. This sets forth that an incision of but three-fourths of an inch is necessary, permitting the patient to leave the bed in 24 hours after the operation.

Description of the operation is given in the Cleveland Journal of Medicine just issued. Briefly it reads:

"A short incision is made over the appendix. No muscle or fibre are cut. These are instead separated just enough to admit the introduction of the index finger, with which a careful examination is made of all the structures within reach.

After examination has verified the diagnosis the appendix is brought to the surface with the hooked index finger. After the appendix is delivered the rest of the operation is easy."

IMPRISONED IN MEXICO.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—After having spent two years in jail in Mexico city while awaiting a hearing of the charges against him an investigation is at last to be made through the British intercession into the case of George I. Hamm, a Canadian, formerly of Napanee, Ont. An ultimatum has been delivered through the British Minister at Washington, demanding instant justice. Mr. Hamm, after winding up a wholesale business in Napanee and there started the United States Banking Company, which failed in 1909, owing the Bank of Montreal three millions. Mr. Hamm was arrested and put in prison. No trial was granted his legal representatives.

NO SURRENDER!

The people of Canada found their feet last night when they said that it was State over Church. The fact that the Ne Temere bill was referred to the Privy Council does not mean that it is outside of Canadian politics—that it is being shelved. It means that the Canadian Parliament has said that the Ne Temere decree is iniquitous; and it merely asks the rest of the British Empire to verify it.

And the rest of the British Empire will.

CLEVER INVALIDS

Tom Hood — One of the Greatest Humorous Writers Wrote Most of His Best Verses While in Torture.

By the death of W. Clark Russell we lose one of the finest writers of sea-stories that this century ever possessed. His romances throb with such vitality that it is hard to realize that for many year their author had been virtually a cripple. Yet such was the case, and his latest works were dictated to his son while he himself was stretched on a couch of pain.

What wondrous results can be effected by strength of will the life of Herbert Spencer pre-eminently shows. Of delicate constitution, he set himself to accomplish a task the magnitude whereof would have appalled the most robust, and wrestling manfully with the demon of ill-health, which sometimes for months together totally incapacitated him from work, never wavered in his stern resolve until, in 1896, he brought his stupendous "System of Synthetic Philosophy" to a triumphant conclusion.

His fellow-worker in the field of evolution, Charles Darwin, for over forty years knew not the joy of a day without pain. Dyspepsia, allied maybe to gout, held him in thraldom, so that his life was one long and continuous struggle against illness. Yet he bore his unenviable lot with cheery patience, and, though the poor health at times compelled him to cease from his work, the work that he left accomplished is proof sufficient that no physical ills could subdue the indomitable energy of his mind.

In pain and torture, too, lay Tom Hood when he penned some of his most humorous verses. Even in boyhood his health was delicate, and with increasing years his weakness became more alarmingly apparent. Yet he gallantly struggled on until, in the winter of 1844, he finally broke down and took to his bed. Even there his fertile brain refused to rest, and not till death took him in the following spring did the world cease to enjoy the dying poet's witty words.

Over Keats, the while he was composing those poetic gems that have given him place among the immortals, was poised the hand of death. A victim to consumption and consequent haemorrhage from the lungs, he resolved, "as a soldier marches against a battery," to try the effect of a winter in Italy. Thither he went, and lingered on in Rome, where, on February 23rd, 1821, his brief life of twenty-six years came to a peaceful end.

NATURES WARDROBE

Dame Nature Allows Her Children a Complete Change of Clothes At Least Once a Year

Dame Nature allows her children a complete change of clothes at least once a year. In some instances she is more liberal. This change of raiment does not always meet with man's approval, and, because of the petty annoyances it may cause, the fact that the whole matter is not without points of interest is generally overlooked.

During the autumn the canary has a most irritating way of casting its feathers, and causing what the housewife calls a "litter" near the room for their tiny yellow feathers get blown about, and they are extremely difficult to pick up. The sweeping which is no good at all for the purpose, every feather must be taken up separately, and really, considering that they are from one little bird, their number is extraordinary. "Drat that canary!" remarks the lady of the broom and duster.

The poultry yard is dreadful. Feathers lie everywhere, giving the whole place a desolate, uncared-for look, which is quite in keeping with the miserable appearance of its inmates.

But it is not only the feathered family which cause trouble by leaving their discarded clothes tossing about. Never drive behind a white horse in the spring unless you have a mind above being disturbed by horse hairs. In the pre-taxi days the point was worth remembering, for a white horse between the shafts of the hansom at certain times could make the "fare's" black coat unsightly. A horse sheds his coat—but not his tail or mane—in the spring, and grows a short, glossy, summer coat, which is the delight of the groom. As the winter approaches the animal's appearance undergoes a change. His coat grows long, and is extremely dense, so that if he is out in the fields he can stand severe weather.

It is worth while examining the coat of the house cat in the summer and then in the winter. The animal's appearance may have undergone no change, yet the increase of hair is there all the same. The long-haired cat cannot make her toilet so unobtrusively, and the owner must be very blind who does not know when puss is "moulting" and when she is "in coat."

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

CANADIAN CLUBS' MEN

The Canadian Clubs afford an invaluable machinery for educational work among the Canadian people upon the topics of social and economic importance. The spread of the Juvenile Court idea is largely due to the facilities they have presented. The Conservation Commission is now co-operating with the new Association of Canadian Clubs with a view to a great educational Campaign for the suppression of forest fires, excessive destruction of game and fish, and many other evils which threaten to eat up the national resources. Nearly all of the delegates to the Imperial Press Conference of last year made known the results of their trip to the Canadian Clubs, and the influence thus extended was perhaps the largest part of the fruits of the Conference. The clubs have enabled the men of the extreme East to talk face to face with the men of the extreme West, and have contributed immensely to the better understanding between the different parts of Canada.

WILLIAM GODFREY
Vancouver
Canadian Club

The chief limitation that now faces the Canadian Clubs in this day of their great prosperity is the difficulty of getting good speakers for the smaller clubs in the more out-of-the-way cities. It is easy to get distinguished men to address the big clubs, for there is no better way of reaching the people of Canada as a whole, and moreover the honor of addressing a club like that of Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Halifax, St Johns, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Vancouver, London or Victoria more than compensates for any trouble involved. But distinguished visitors to Canada do not always stop over in the smaller cities, and "men with a mission" are apt to think that when they have spoken in Toronto and Montreal and been pretty fully reported they have done about all they need do. To remedy this is one of the chief aims of the new Association, of which Mayor Sanford Evans is president and Mr. R. Wilson Reford of Montreal vice-president, and of which Mr. William Godfrey of the Vancouver and Major Griesbach of Edmonton Clubs are active supporters. The plan is to "book" speakers whenever possible for a series of addresses including not only the big cities but a proportion of the little ones.

MAJOR GRIESBACH
Edmonton
Canadian Club

J. A. MACDONALD
Calgary

J. A. Macdonald, the well known architect of Calgary, is an old westerner. A brief history of Mr. Macdonald's career since he came to the west would not be out of place, so we herewith give it.

Coming from Eastern Canada to Winnipeg in 1872, he remained there for ten years. From there he removed to the United States, practicing his profession in the cities of Chicago, Ill., and Minneapolis, Minn. He then came back to Canada for a

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

She had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, delicious, kissable dimple.

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will stay there until next pay day.

BIG REMOVALS

In These Days of Progress Many Large Buildings are Moved Bodily to Other Cities for Different Reasons.

A remarkable moving feat was successfully carried through just over a year ago at Bischott, a little town in Belgium. It was found necessary to enlarge the church, and to do this it meant moving the church tower. New foundations were prepared about 30 ft. away, and along the machinery constructed for its transport the tower, which dates from the fourteenth century, was slowly moved. It wasn't a "moonlight flit" either, for it took the best part of a week to move it the necessary 30 ft. Not only had the engineers to face the possibility of the tower toppling in the move, but they had the task of lifting 1,700 tons.

Moving a Glasgow Church

Whole towns have been moved bodily. Some years ago the town of Platte, in South Dakota, was declared to be insanitary. It was decided to move to a more convenient spot, some miles away. The first building moved was the Platte Hotel. One great obstacle that had to be overcome was a broad creek. This was successfully managed, however, with the help of 120 horses. The town church followed, and then the rest of the buildings, shops, houses, everything, lock, stock, and barrel.

This is certainly one of the most extraordinary moves that have ever taken place. Shifting houses in America is not thought half so much of as in England, where it is rarely done.

In 1899, however, Glasgow people witnessed the removal of St. Bride's Episcopal Church from its old site in the Beaconsfield Road to a new one about half a mile away. It was found to be considerably cheaper to shift the church as it stood than to pull it to pieces and re-erect it. The church was moved on a Saturday, and on the Sunday services were held in it as though nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

BIG FISH HATCHES

The World's Largest Salmon Nursery Is In Canada. — Fish-Hatching Is An Extraordinary Business.

From the Fisheries Department of the Canadian Government, whose duty it is to replenish the Canadian rivers with the commercial varieties of fish, come some interesting facts concerning fish-hatching. The work is carried out by a series of hatcheries established throughout the country at points both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the Great Lakes.

The largest of these — indeed, it is said to be the largest of its kind in the world — is the hatchery at Harrison Lake, drained by the Fraser River, which deals exclusively with the hatching of salmon. There are always 10,000,000 fish in the building — 7,000,000 sockeye salmon eggs and fry (the fish principally used for canning purposes), and 3,000,000 spring salmon.

The building contains 160 hatching troughs, each averaging 40,000 fish. During September and October the eggs of the female are expressed into a pan and the fertilizing "milt" of the male thoroughly mixed with them. The eggs are then carried to the hatchery and placed in troughs set in flowing water.

When ready to be liberated the fish are placed in a specially-constructed semi-submerged boat. This is towed to a chosen spot, and when in proper position is allowed to sink below the water.

Pigs From All Quarters

Old prints, old books, and anything, postcards or paintings, are all fit subjects to form a collection. But one of the most curious, and one of the most interesting collections is a museum of pigs.

Not live pigs, mind you, but model ones. For some years now the wife of mine host of the Green Man Hotel, at Blackheath, London, has been gathering together a wondrous assortment of model pigs. There are pigs in pewter, china, and ivory, earthenware, silver, and sun-metal, pigs that stand a foot high, and pigs that measure less than half an inch over all; pigs in fancy-dress, and pigs in clover, as paper-knives, inkstands, or ash-trays. In every form and shape there are pigs.

They have come from all over the world, and practically every country is represented. People have stayed at the hotel, admired the collection, and later from some far-away spot has come a pig.

How many there are it would be difficult to say. Many a time has their owner begun to number them, but lost count.

ARABI PASHA.

When the late Arabi Pasha received his pardon ten years ago, and was permitted to return to Egypt, he was very grateful. He expressed a hope that he would be able to come to England to pay his respects to the King, and thank those who had helped him, but that hope was never realised. It is understood that it was on the recommendation of Lord Cromer that the exiled rebel was allowed to return to his native land, and the liberty accorded him does not appear in any way to have been abused. Arabi had sixteen children in exile with him in Ceylon, and the £800 allowance per month which he received from the Egyptian government was used to say was scarcely sufficient to provide for his large family.

How Garibaldi Died.

A book recently published thus describes the death of Garibaldi: "The end came in his white house at Caprera, on a June evening in 1882. The old sailor, farmer and fighter was propped up on the pillows to watch for the last time the sunlight gilding the waves and the granite rocks, while his life was slowly ebbing out. Two little birds whom he had taught not to fear him fluttered in from the moor, and sat chirping on the window-sill. The attendants were about to drive them away lest they should disturb him, when that voice was heard once more by men, bidding them let the little birds come in, and always feed them after he was gone. And then the old warrior turned his face to the wall and quietly passed away."

McNAMARA DEFENCE FUND

Federation of Labor Fights Shy of Resolution.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA — Labor leaders are trying to prevent the introduction into the convention of the American Federation of Labor now in session here of a resolution framed by the California delegation appropriating $50,000 for the defence of the McNamara brothers.

A large sum has been raised already for this purpose by private subscriptions and the leaders contend, it is said, that whatever money is needed for the McNamara defence can be obtained in this manner without drawing on the funds in the none too well stocked treasury of the federation.

Two brief sessions were held by the convention today, but practically no business was transacted

WARSHIPS AT TANGIER

French Vessels Exchange Salutes With Spanish Cruiser.

TANGIER. — The warships Leon Gambetta and Edgar Quinet, which were ordered here a short time ago after a Spanish vessel had arrived, came into the harbor. Salutes were exchanged with the Spanish cruiser Catalunia.

The natives here are restless and sickness and misery are prevailing.

Toronto papers refer to it as "subzero" weather. The name's even worse than the thing.

J. R. Snead, of Fort Worth, whose wife eloped to Winnipeg with A. G. Boyce, has got even by killing Boyce's father. As he's very rich, the only question is whether he'll be acquitted on the ground of his insanity or the insanity of the jury.

TELEGRAPH MARVELS

1700 Miles Per Minute is the Rate at Which a Wire Travelled Around the World Though this is Not the Record.

With a view to finding out how quickly a message could be sent round the world, the editor of the 'New York Times' recently carried out an ingenious test. He wrote a message of nine words addressed to the paper, and dispatched it eastwards. The message completely girdled the northern hemisphere, traveling through Honolulu to Manila, thence to Hongkong, Singapore, and Bombay, from which point it sped onwards to Suez, thence to Gibraltar, towards Fayal, and finally re-arrived at New York, a distance of 28,613 miles.

No attempt was made to clear the line for its transmission in the hope of establishing a record, but the messages was sent under ordinary commercial conditions. The message passed through sixteen relay stations, and sixteen and a half minutes after it left New York it re-entered that city, thus travelling at an average speed of 1,700 miles per minute.

This, however, is not a record. The quickest time in which a message has been dispatched round the world was in celebration of the opening of the Pacific cable, when the globe was telegraphically encircled in nine and a half minutes. In that case, however, the line was cleared specially for the passage of the message.

NEW CHURCH GOERS

In a Remote Part of India During a Service at a Mission a Tiger Once Put in an Appearance. But Turned Tail.

It is the commonest of common sights in the Highlands of Scotland, and in some of the remoter churches of the English Lake district, to see dogs at church. Their sheep-dogs are such inseparable companions of the shepherds that they would both look upon it as an unforgivable insult if one went anywhere without the other. So, when the shepherd goes to church, his dog goes with him, and so well trained are they that it is most unusual for any of them to stir during the service. They lie under the seats and generally go to sleep — a practice in which they are not imitated by their masters, for the Scottish shepherd is not accustomed to sleep under the longest sermon.

Bullocks in the Baptistry.

At the present moment a bull may be seen in a London church, for certain felonious and mischievous persons [illegible] taking the building for a [illegible] by night. So the authorities have added to the staff a verger-dog, whose duty it is to keep his eye on the money-boxes. Whether he stays during the service hours we do not know, but it is very unlikely that he does. He is probably only a night watch-man — or watch-dog — and goes home to supper and bed when other people are thinking about breakfast and the day's work.

Many people consider that the presence of a dog in church is a profanation of the sacred edifice, but surely a pig is much more so. Yet a pig might have been seen quite lately in a crate at the base of the pulpit during the harvest thanksgiving services at the Grimsby Fishermen's Church. It transpired that the minister had solicited a contribution from a local farmer, who said, "What would you like?" to which the minister replied, "Oh, anything from the farm." Well, the farmer might have sent potatoes, or eggs, or butter, or cheese, or even bacon, but he elected to send a pig — not in a poke, but in a crate. His contribution to the harvest thanksgiving services was thankfully received, and after the services were over was sold for a good price for the benefit of the church funds. The animal behaved splendidly in its unusual surroundings.

Too Much for the Tiger!

On one occasion at a mission church in a remote village of India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much frightened as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

In the north-west of Canada a bear once strolled into a church. There was an immediate panic among the women, and some men sprang towards the shaggy beast, intending to slay him. Bruin, however, took all these things very coolly, sat up, and looked so amiable and unaggressive that, instead of killing him, the men laughed at him. Indeed, it was almost immediately seen that the bear was the identical animal which had formerly been the pet of the village, and which had run from the settlements into the woods about six months before. He had only returned to pay his respects to his old friends, and finding them all at church had evidently thought he might as well go too.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer: —

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE

The Story of the Founding of the Famous British League. — The Primrose Was Beaconsfield's Favourite Flower.

It was really a chance remark which led to the founding of the Primrose League — that remarkable political organization which to-day has over 1,500,000 members.

When, on April 19th, 1883 — the second anniversary of Lord Beaconsfield's death — his statue was unveiled in Parliament Square, Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, arriving at the Commons late in the afternoon, was given a primrose by Mr. Cove, superintendent of the members' cloakroom. When Sir Henry entered the chamber he found the whole Conservative party similarly decorated with Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower. The fact impressed him so much that as he walked home with Lord Randolph Churchill he remarked: "What a show of primrose! This should be turned to account. Why not start a Primrose League?"

Lord Randolph was instantly interested. "Draw up a plan," he said, "to carry out your idea, and we will see what can be done."

Ultimately Lord Randolph and Sir Henry were joined by Sir John Gorst and Sir Alfred Shade and in due course these four gentlemen founded the League, and constituted themselves the ruling council.

It was originally intended to admit men only, banded in companies of not a hundred, to act as missionaries of the League. Ultimately, however, it was decided to admit ladies, with the result that the membership rose from 957 in 1884 to 237,283 in 1885. Not long ago it was reported that the total membership had touched 1,700,000.

It has, of course, been said that the primrose was not Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower, and that when Queen Victoria sent a wreath of primroses to Lord Beaconsfield's funeral and wrote on it, 'His favourite flower," the allusion was to the Prince Consort — not to the dead statesman. Mr. Reginald Lucas, however, in "Lord Glenesk and the Morning Post," says that one who knew Lord Beaconsfield well declares that he habitually wore a single primrose in his button hole when he was at Hughenden in the early spring; while another more intimate friend can speak of having seen an abundance of primrose in Beaconsfield's [illegible] in Curzon Street that had been gathered on the slopes of Windsor Castle.

[illegible] about [illegible] old son of the soil, who nursed a pint of ale in a chair by the fire, "you should ha' known old Ruby what used to keep a farm out Goswell way.

"Twenty years ago, it is that his son went out with a tin bucket to milk a cow. Somehow or other, both the lad and the bucket disappeared mysteriously.

"No more was heard of him till he wandered back home ten years after, as rich as a millionaire, and loaded the old man up with gold and diamond pins and new clothes, and gave him five thousand dollars as a birthday present.

"And d'ye think old Ruby was grateful? No'er a bit!

"'George,' says he 'wot 'ave ye done with the bucket?'

"And George left home again, wondering whether his dad was the meanest man in the world or whether that distinction was still held by the fellow who used a wart on the back of his neck for a collar-stud."

PURE ENGLISH

"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully," said a stickler for pure English to his wife. "You say that 'Henry Jones came to this town from Sunderland.' Don't you see that it would be better to say that he 'came from Sunderland to this town'?"

"I don't see any difference in the two expressions," rejoined the lady.

"But there is a difference in the two expressions — a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make use of such awkward expressions. By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

"Oh, dear, is my father in your pocket?" inquired the wife. "You mean that you have in your pocket a letter from my father."

"There you go with your little quibbles! You take a delight in harassing me; you are always taking up a thread and representing it as a rope."

"Representing it to be a rope, you mean, dear?"

And then he grinned a sickly grin and wished he had never started the discussion.

RUN DOWN

The council employé had formally applied, in writing, for a holiday — with salary, of course — on the grounds that he was "run down."

"I'm a bit suspicious of this rundownitis," remarked the chairman. "It's been very prevalent among the council's employés of late. I propose the applicant be sent for."

"I beg to second that."

The proposition being carried, a messenger went in search of the applicant. Presently there was a scuffling at the door of the council chamber.

"Order there!" commanded the chairman. "Officer, why do you allow that person to try and force his way into the room? Remove him instantly!"

"Beg pardon, sir," said the officer, with a smile, the breadth of which not even his own capacious palm could conceal, "it's the man you sent for — the road foreman wot's run down."

"Oh, well, let him enter, then."

"Beg pardon, sir, 'e can't 'E's too fat for the door!"

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

HAIR POWDER

The first English ladies who had the courage to wear powdered hair were as much pointed at for their singularity as the wearer of a crinoline would be to-day. It was in the beginning of the reign of George the First that the pioneers ventured to make themselves so conspicuous, and at the time when the next King was crowned there were only two hairdressers in London; but in the year 765 it was calculated that there were in Great Britain no less than fifty thousand hair-dressers! A writer with a turn for statistics reckoned up the probable amount of flour these fifty thousand would use in a year, and arrived at the conclusion that it was equal to what would make 5,314,280 quartern loaves.

Apart from the question whether the flour might not have been better employed, it must be owned that there is more excuse for the artificial production of grey hair [illegible] there is for the dyeing of it [illegible] when nature decides that it is time for it to be grey.

Simple Hospitality

[illegible] settles down into [illegible] domestic [illegible] Honestly [illegible] that until her husband's purse there is no other course for her to pursue. The very fact that [illegible] people cannot afford elaborate entertainments does not imply that they cannot enjoy simple ones. Surely is the charm of life, as variety is its spice, and very often the guests who come from luxurious homes are the most easily pleased. The young wife who, through fear of criticism, refuses to invite her richer or more experienced friend to her home is depriving herself of much pleasure.

SMART WINTER COSTUME

An apron front edged with knitted silk fringe is the feature of a street costume of velutina.

This walking suit is of black, old blue satin being the contrasting note in the revers upon the three-quarter-length jacket. The revers, too, are edged with fringe and are embroidered with soutache braid of the blue tone.

The coat is trimmed with Hercules braid. A touch of white is given this walking costume with marabout. This delicate feather outlines the collar and cuffs.

The lines of the skirt show a slight tendency to fullness and in length it just escapes the floor.

The model would be pretty in corduroy or cloth.

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. "Only prudish, silly people, with nasty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says, "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

COUSIN MARRIAGES

Something of the Seriousness of the Risk Run by First Cousins Who Marry Is Told by Miss Ethel Elderton.

The seriousness of the risk run by first cousins who marry is emphasized by Miss Ethel Elderton, a colleague with Professor Karl Pearson at the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics, London University. Marriages between near kin, such as uncle and niece, aunt and nephew or grandparent and grandchild, are forbidden mainly on the principle of resemblance. Miss Elderton therefore determined to see whether cousins are as much alike as any of these pairs of relatives. She studied the cases of no fewer than 6,000 pairs of cousins, with a view to endeavouring to measure the degree of resemblance in health, intelligence, success, temper, and temperament.

The conclusion she came to was this that the general resemblance between cousins is about half that between brother and sister, and practically the same as that shown by statistics of uncles and nieces and of aunts and nephews.

"If the undesirability of [illegible] within certain degrees is founded on the closeness of [illegible] Miss Elderton, "the law which forbids the marriage of uncle with niece and nephew should also restrict the marriage of first cousins.

The offspring of cousin marriages appear to be particularly liable to deaf mutes. "There seems little doubt," continues Miss Elderton, "if there is any deaf-mutism in a stock, a cousin marriage, even when both parties are free from the disease, is most dangerous to the offspring."

Back Full of Aches Headaches and Depression

MUCH OF WOMEN'S SUFFERING IS NEEDLESS AND CAN BE PREVENTED BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

That Stab-like Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez writes as follows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse, my limbs became bloated and shaky, I was sallow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys, and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I felt sure they would help me. Such blessings of health and comfort I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. Supercedes Massage As Wrinkle Remover

(The Woman Beautiful)

Many women regularly visit the beauty specialist to have their wrinkles ironed out with the help of hot applications, cold creams and massage. Most of us realize that there comes a time when no amount of persuasion of this sort will avail. This process of "wrinkle removing" is wrong in principle. Both the hot water and the massaging tend to expand and loosen the skin, besides softening the muscular foundation.

The very opposite result should be aimed at. The tissue should be strengthened, the skin tightened, so there'll be no room for wrinkles. The best known preparation for the purpose can be made at home by dissolving 1 oz. saxolite in ½ pint witch-hazel. Use as a wash lotion. The effect is really marvelous. Tell the druggist you want the powdered saxolite, which dissolves immediately.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Some Great Gastronomic Feats Performed at Different Times by Gluttons for Wagers. and Then Some.

Not lon gago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Elec, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Viel Castel, who to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr 40 min: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb of bread and butter, 10 lb of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarane, ate 24 lb of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

ENGLISHMEN AND OLYMPIC GAMES.

To win the Olympic games seems to be the ruling passion of a large number of Englishmen, just now. The wave of patriotism is sweeping in England. The cry for Olympic material has reached national proportions.

Englishmen have always been wonderful distance runners. They have been weak at the sprints and in some of the field events.

The effort now being made is to find men capable of holding the old country on the field and in the sprints in the hope that the distance runners

LACROSSE ON SKATES

A new game is being introduced in Regina this winter, lacrosse on skates. It has been tried and accepted by the sportsmen in Eastern Ontario, and will be given a trial. It is played by seven-men teams, who line up as they would on a lacrosse green. A soft ball is used and players are not allowed to raise their sticks above the shoulders. An offender against this is sent to the penalty box. This rule makes underhand passing and shooting imperative.

The Rough Riders as instituting this game intend to challenge to meet any team in town that would like to take a whirl at it. They organized at a meeting held in the Palmer House, when the following officers were elected:

Honorary president, A. W. McIvor; president, Geo. Harper; vice-president, C. N. Galvin; secretary, Chas. Wood; treasurer, A. A. Fisher; manager, Wm. Dogan.

The following players will be in the line-up: L. Agnold, A. Urquhart, F. Harper, H. Hall, W. Dogan, J. Staples Barlow, D. Hopp and Jimmie McLaughlin.

VARIETY OF HOLES IN GOLF

The up-to-date golf architects generally agree nowadays that in the arrangement of courses that must be something there should be a complete variety of holes not only as to length, but in their character, the way in which they are bunkered, the kind of tee shot that is required at them, and last, but not least, the kind of approach. In every case the putting greens should be thoroughly well guarded.

It has also been claimed that the shorter the hole the smaller should be the green and the more closely it should be guarded, so that on this principle when in good play a long shot can reach the green which should be fairly large and open in order to give the player encouragement to which he is entitled.

In this subject, however, there must ever be difference of opinion. There are those who argue that it is wrong to say that a fairly long course is a sufficient test to select the best golfer out of a field of any fifty or one hundred competitors. In other words, no course can be a thorough test of the skill and nerve of the player which has not so closely guarded greens that on occasions there is but one, and that a most skillful shot, by which the long approach can get home.

FOOTBALL

How sports, once only followed in the British Empire, have become popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by on means confined to the white race. Some of the native teams in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussern Hegazi as centre forward on Saturday, against Stockport. He is an Egyptian, who showed capital form against English teams at Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he shaped very well for a first appearance in an important game.

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds" because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I came to look upon all doctors as little better than quacks. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much, and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW MADISON TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

BOILED SNAKE-ONE.

Reptiles, Though Repugnant to Europeans, Are Considered a Delicacy in Many Parts.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "treat" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled Snake—One."

A peculiarly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs, in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk, and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat markets of Senusar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcases hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in Siam, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

It was just ten years ago that Argonauts defeated Ottawa and won the Ontario championship. The Argo team that day was as follows: Full-back, Irving Ardagh; right half-back Hardisty; centre half, Percy Darling; left half, Henderson; quarter, Russell Britton; scrummage, Phil Boyd (right), Joe Wright (centre), Banty Russell (left); wings, Langton (inside right), Bill Brant (left), Leslie Wilson (middle right), Pud Kent (captain, left), Chummy Hill (outside right), Chadwick (left); flying wing, Carmenter. Banty Russell and Pud Kent are the only two who have played in this season's games.

The Down-Trodden.

A certain battalion — the Terrors" — possessed but a very small band. The commanding officer's feet — he was a burly farmer — were — well, very large. One day the battalion was to march out, but the music was not forthcoming.

"Where on earth is the band?" queried the adjutant.

For some time there was no reply; but when the question was repeated, a gruff voice was heard from the rear rank:—

"I do believe, sir, the colonel trod on it by accident."

You Look On While the Figures Make You Rich by Extracting Potash From the Waves.

Many people have some forward [illegible] for getting rich from [illegible] but have failed [illegible] gold has been from the pockets of investors' pockets. Recently, however, an Austrian chemist brought forward a new idea for extracting money from the waves which holds out a little more hope of success.

It is alleged that in every 3,000 lb. of sea-water there is 11b. of potash. Now potash is a fairly valuable commercial substance. Its present price is $6.50 a ton, and over $20,000,000 worth is exported to the United States every year. It is reckoned that potash can be extracted from sea-water at a cost of about $2.50 a ton, leaving an ample margin for profit.

The system of extraction is simple. There is a ton of potash in about three-quarters of a million gallons of sea-water. A large tank is constructed, on the bottom of which is placed a common ground furnace slag which has been treated with a weak iron sulphate solution. Sea-water is forced up through this, leaving behind a deposit of the valuable potash. Pumps supply the necessary water at the rate of 600,000 gallons an hour, a ton of potash being deposited every eighty-five minutes. The total cost of the necessary engines to run the pumping machinery is nearly $250,000. Not only will the tanks be used for extracting potash, but for getting the gold out of sea-weather as well. It only requires a strong solution of iron sulphate instead of a weak one; $15 worth of gold can be extracted every five hours, at a cost of $2.50 an ounce. Gold is worth $40 an ounce. The cost of running the machinery works out at about $300 a day. The amount of gold extracted will be worth about $3,500, leaving a clear daily profit of over $3,000.

BRIGHT AS AN ORATOR

John Bright was the greatest orator England saw during the nineteenth century, an age and a country where oratory reached the heights. To hold such place he must out-toup Gladstone, the great; Disraeli, the brilliant; Palmerston, the witty; Cobden, the wise; Parnell even, with whom he is closely associated. His speeches are still read, and readable today, by those who rejoice in the lovely phrasing which keeps them literature where they were speech.

Augustine Birrel calls his address at the unveiling of the statue to Richard Cobden, "one of the greatest pieces of English speech," and again, the after breakfast speech in welcome to Lloyd Garrison in 1867, "perhaps the most beautiful speech ever made in the English tongue on a public occasion."

His habit was ever to stand at the edge of the platform where the audience could "get at him" and he at them. As he criticized a friend who sheltered behind the reading desk, "no man can move an audience that does not see his body." He must have been a splendid looking figure, this John Bright, as he thundered like Amos, and lamented the Jeremiah, and loved like Saint John. His was a splendid face, redeeming mankind from a counterfeit presentment of godhood. And it is not so stern or set a face as might have been expected from his prejudices. Was it of him one wonders that Sydney Smith asked of the portrait painter, "Couldn't you manage to throw into the portrait a little more antagonism to the Established Church?"

Lead Affidavits

"What is that noise?" asked the presiding judge when a witness's voice was nearly drowned by a rasping uproar outside the court.

"My lord," said the counsel for the defendant, "I think it is the plaintiff filing affidavits."

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney, bladder trouble, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 307 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Pain in passing water or scalding of urine.
4—Brick dust deposits in the bladder.
5—Frequent headache.
6—Pain or pains in the stomach.
7—General debility, weak stomach, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib, extending to any part of the body.
9—Inflammation of liver or bile.
10—Pain in the left side.
11—Inflammation or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the small of the back.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.

COL. STEELE, C.B., M.V.O. Winnipeg.

The recent publication by Col. Steele of the military history of the prairie province, brings to mind the leading part the colonel himself played in its history, though he took too great care that he did not figure in the article, so that the reading of it was like "Hamlet" with the principal character left out.

Col. Samuel Benfield Steele was born in County Simcoe in the year 1849 and educated at Orillia School and the British American Commercial School, Toronto. He was granted his first commission in 1866 in the Militia and on the return of the Red River Expedition in which he served gallantly, in 1870 joined the Canadian Permanent Artillery. Mr. Steele joined the N. W. Mounted Police in 1873 rising to superintendence in 1885. For the next four years Col Steele commanded the Police in most of their expeditions against the Indians and to restore order in the new districts. He was chosen to command the "Strathcona" Horse in the South African War. Col. Steele is now commanding military district No. 11.

As a sportsman Col. Steele is well known as one who takes a keen interest in every exercise that will strengthen a man bodily and mentally.

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

The Wrong Bit.

An Irish Jarvie was driving an English tourist round Dublin, and on stopping for refreshment the tourist remarked to Pat how lean his horse was.

Going up to the horse's head, the tourist examined its mouth, and turning round with the air of a man who knew something, he said:—

"I am afraid that the want of flesh in your horse is due to the large bit you have in its mouth."

Pat looked at him sorrowfully as he replied:—

"Shure, yer honour, I won't argue wid ye, but I'm after thinking it's the small bit that he has in his stomach that's a-troublin' the poor baste!"

CALABASH PIPES

How the Favourite of the Smoker Can Be Made to Grow in Your Back-Garden, or Window.

The fruits are allowed to remain on the vine, which is a relative of the gourds, till the outer parts are quite hard, for if gathered before they are thoroughly ripe, difficulty is experienced in seasoning. On the other hand, they must not be allowed to remain long enough to be subjected to frost, for a severe frost is likely to cause injury. Dry, sunny weather is more favourable to the development of fruit than wet weather, for though the plants will take plenty of water, more satisfactory results are obtained from watering by hand than from the plants being subjected to an excessive amount of rain. The past summer, with its long-continued heat, has been ideal for the successful cultivation of these Gourds, in England, providing they were well watered at frequent interval. Seeds sown early on a slight hot-bed and the plants allowed to grow till they had filled a frame, which could be lifted off about mid-June, would probably give the most satisfactory results. If grown throughout the whole of their career in a frame or greenhouse, however, arrangements ought to be made for a free circulation of air at all times. Apart from the utility of the fruits of this plant, it is quite ornamental enough to receive attention from a decorative standpoint, either indoors or out.

THE MAIN THING

The Poets Way Sing, but the Heart's the Thing and Scientists the Brain But It's the Stomach That Counts.

Troubles "to burn" we have, in turn, and blessings befall us, too; and we know our pluck and we have our luck in whatever we have to do; but all of our pluck and most of our luck will come from our real might, and that will depend in the usual end upon whether the stomach is right! There'll be bills galore and we'll walk the floor, if we're not in the best of trim; there'll be notes mature and we'll fail for sure, if we're lacking at all in vim; we may want to roam from the things at home and consider it all a blight, but there's nothing to plunk it can make us flunk, if only the stomach is right! The poets may sing that the heart's the thing, and the scientists talk of brain, and these may not shirk in their daily work, but it's little that they ordain; they're organs fine but their chief design as registers of mood, and the one that guides and their way decides is the one that handles food! And its function great and its high estate are the marvels we should admire, and cherish it and to keep it fit should be our chief desire; if it's sound as a bell we can do things well, and do them with all our might; we can laugh at fate and can celebrate if only the stomach is right!

Sceptical

Mr. Jones, a certain Northern [illegible] the other day, we came [illegible] the bones of William Shott,

"[illegible] landlord of the Roaring Pot; who warmly welcomed travellers sore, but now his smile is seen no more."

"Requiescat in pace," we murmured. "One of the good old sort." Then our eyes wandered further down the list "memento mori," and discovered that some sceptic with a sharp nail had added:

"Rest not; his welcome down below was more than warm—'twas hot, I trow."

Then, alas! we, too, grew sceptical; so fertile are the seeds of doubt and suspicion. Alas! alas!

Kisses For Sale.

Miss Rose Bud: "Now, Mr. Compton, what are you going to buy at my table? We have home-made cakes, grass-cloths, tatties, and aprons. I am sure you want some of each."

Mr. Compton: "Oh, thanks, awfully; have you any kisses for sales?"

Miss Rose Bud: "Certainly, $5 each. How many will you have?"

Mr. Compton (handing out the money): "I'll take two; good measure, please."

Miss Rose Bud (with a seraphic smile): "Oh, yes, we are particular about that. Miss Autumn Leaf, will you deliver two kisses to Mr. Compton?" (Miss Leaf is forty in the shade and paralyzingly masculine.)

Mr. Compton: "You are more than kind. Dobson" (turning to his man, who is carrying his parcels), "just take this purchase from Miss Autumn Leaf."

The present-day young man rarely gets left, even at a church bazaar.

A Tall Yarn.

A big-game hunter and his brother recently spent a year in and about the Rocky Mountains. They had two rifles, one bullet, and one keg of powder. With these they say they killed on an average twenty-seven head of buffaloes a day. The fact that they did all this with one bullet led to the following cross-questioning:—

"How did you kill all these buffaloes with only one bullet?"

"Well, we shot a buffalo: I stood on one side and my brother on the other. Brother fired, and the ball passed into the barrel of my rifle. We kept up the hunt for twelve months, killing nearly 200 buffaloes a week, and yet brought home the same ball we started with!"

Not Meant for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the club house porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

A GOOD HAND

A young fellow had popped a question, and anxiously awaited the answer that was to decide his fate.

"Do you ever gamble at cards?" the fair one asked.

"No," he answered; "but if I do now would be the time."

"Why?" she inquired.

"Because," he answered, "with a deep sigh, "I hold such a heavenly hand."

THE GOLD SHIP

THE GOLD SHIP
The Way Treasure is Transported From One Country to Another and the Precautions Taken To Protect It.

Of the many romantic happenings which relieve the drabness of modern life, few appeal more strongly to the imagination than the conveyance, to and fro, of the great quantities of gold — whether bullion or specie — which, week in, week out, form an ever-flowing golden stream round the civilized world.

Perhaps the largest quantities of the precious metal are those conveyed weekly from South Africa, the output of the mines, which in bars, not unlike exaggerated cakes of yellow soap in appearance, find their way to the Bank of England and the other great banks. The value of these weekly cargoes frequently runs into millions.

Then, too, every mail steamer which leaves the docks carries its quantum of gold. Gold in bars, gold in sovereigns, gold in the coinage of every nation.

The casual passer-by who wanders through the long corridors of the Bank of England may happen on a little stone-paved courtyard, completely shut in by several sets of iron gates. Here he may see gold "bricks" being thrown into very ordinary-looking vans by sturdy porters, who handle the precious metal as if it were mere clay.

A Big Responsibility.

The van being full, a couple of individuals, also very ordinary-looking, climb in and seat themselves on its gold-paved floor, and off it goes to the docks or the railway-station.

Arrived at the docks, the gold, whether in bars or coin — which latter is packed in bags containing 1,000 sovereigns or their equivalent, which in turn are enclosed in iron-bound boxes, sealed with an official seal at the Bank of England on every joint — goes straight on board the ship it is to voyage in.

The bars, or boxes, are received by one of the ship's officers, and, with the assistance of a couple of quartermasters, are carefully checked and tallied. The officer — usually the second officer — signs a receipt for them, and they are placed in a special hold, to which access is obtained by only one entrance, and that is locked and sealed.

From the moment that he has signed the receipt the officer is personally responsible for the bullion and specie and its safe custody and delivery, and access to the treasure-hold can only be had — legitimately — by means of the key, which remains in his possession.

When Silence Is Golden.

As to the exact precautions taken to guard the bullion-hold and its contents, and its precise situation, representatives of the various companies have a complete, and very wise, reticence, and even sailors and officers on the actual vessel seldom know where the gold is kept during its transit, as well as the utmost is kept.

Probably not more than three or four people in the ship are in possession of the information. The truth is that, surprising as the statement may sound to the uninitiated, there are in existence very highly organised gangs of international thieves, whose special work is the theft, or attempted theft, of gold while in the charge of the steamer companies.

BENEFICIAL WARS

Some People Argue That Wars and Industrial Calamities Benefit Mankind in the Long Run.

Few calamities in the world's history have been unattended by some advantage to humanity. The late Lord Palmerston is credited with having stated that even a great war had its benefits for the English people inasmuch as it induced them to study geography. There are people who go much further, and seriously argue that the horrors of war are afterwards compensated by reforms and discoveries which mankind at large would never have enjoyed but for the drastic chastisement which war inflicts. Among the arguments of this kind deduced from history is the statement that all the wealth and luxury the world has enjoyed from the industry of brass-working would probably have been lost but for the sacking and burning of the city of Corinth in the year 146 B. C. In Corinth there were immense quantities of gold, silver, and copper, and it is said that the violence of the conflagration was so great that these precious metals were melted and ran together, and thus the famous Corinthian brass was first manufactured.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despotier of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a well-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no; that couldn't be true: I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

SPORTING COLUMN.

LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMPION IN THE SOUTH

Near Champion as Result of Friends' "Josking".

Many persons, including Ray Bronson, Grover Hayes and Abe Attell, boxers, claim credit for bringing out Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who looms up as a dangerous opponent to Champion Wolgast. Mandot says Johnny Lynch, of Boston is responsible for him.

Two and a half years ago, Mandot, pushing a delivery wagon about New Orleans for his father's bakery, was induced to enter an amateur tournament. He did not know who his first opponent would be until the night of the fight. Imagine his surprise to find himself matched against a boy larger than himself, who had been the neighborhood bully for years. Mandot's heart almost failed, and although he knocked out his opponent he took a hard lacing.

Joe had enough then and there, but friends "talked" him into another match. The Latin countryman didn't know anything about the game, but among the spectators was Johnny Lynch, training for a fight with Freddy Andrews, of Milwaukee. Lynch heard Mandot's friends making fun of him and asked the boy to train with him.

JOE MANDOT

Joe learned rapidly and Lynch secured a preliminary engagement for him and he won handily.

After this Mandot learned from every top-notched who landed in New Orleans. He made friends for him among the boxers and they helped him along.

Mandot's rise has been little short of phenomenal. Since he joined with Blackey Raggio, a Memphis Sportsman, he has defeated all comers.

Had it not been for the "kidding" of his friends, Mandot would not be a near champion. His determination to silence the "josking" and his natural ability made him a star, although he never fails to credit Lynch as the man who really gave him the first encouragement.

PEDESTRIANISM

A good performance was accomplished by C. Harris when beating Pat White for the 10 miles Irish professional running championship recently. The event was decided at Dublin, and as rain fell in torrents during the race, the track was very heavy. In spite of this handicap, Harris covered the journey in 53 mins. 53 secs., winning by 500 yards, a very smart bit of running on the part of the ex-amateur.

The times accomplished in the series of sprint races between A. B. Postle and J. Donaldson, at Melbourne, make interesting reading. The course was grass, but a good turf track is quite as fast as cinders. Postle's 7 4-5 secs. for 80 yards, and Donaldson's 9 3-5 secs. for 100 yards, are both splendid, but Donaldson's 10 4-5 secs. for 100 yards does not strike one as remarkable. On the 100 yards' time, Donaldson ought to have shown 10 1-2 secs. at least, though possibly Postle failed to push him. There can be little doubt that the winner is a wonderful sprinter, and the writer can testify from personal experience that Donaldson is very modest about his great ability.

QUEBEC HOCKEY CLUB

The Quebec Hockey Club have concluded arrangements with the Quebec Skating Club, and it has been decided to erect a new gallery at the far end of the rink. This will give increased accommodation. The architects are now busy upon the preparation, and the work will be rushed through for the opening match. Three new exits will be installed.

The line-up of the Quebec team is expected to be one of the strongest it has had for a long time. Outside clubs are still dickering for some of last year's players, but nothing definite has yet been done.

The locals expected to get to work tonight, but owing to the mild spell the ice was not in condition.

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

TO HELP THE EXPORT TRADE

Well Known Business Man of Montreal Urges Canadian Manufacturers To Wake Up and Get After Foreign Trade

Mr. George F. Johnston, the well-known financier is urging the manufacturers and traders of Canada to consolidate and form an association through which authentic information of the wants of other countries—particularly South America—could be secured for the benefit of Canada. Mr. Johnston's appeal, in part, is:—

Has not the time arrived when we should put forth some concerted action whereby we would render valuable aid to our Canadian exporters. This might be accomplished by following the example of our neighbors to the south of us by the formation of a Canadian Export Association. Our export trade is growing at a remarkably rapid rate and the work of such an association would be to educate our expanding manufacturers and traders who may be anxious to participate in profitable over-seas business. It would be the purpose of the suggested association to establish an intelligence department and through the agency of accredited correspondents who would supply ruling prices, point out new markets and fresh sources for the purchase of our raw material.

It may be news to many Canadians to know that there is scarcely a country in the world where Canadian merchandise does not find a ready market, both in the countries of the Old and New World. We have now a direct steamship service to Australia, New Zealand and the Far East and we have lately turned our attention to the development of trade to Latin South America and with most promising results.

From January 1st to September 30th, of last year, the exports and imports between Canada and Argentine aggregated $5,051,467, which is $1,000,000 more than the previous year. During the nine months above mentioned, Canada sent to Argentine $2,869,913 worth of goods and bought from that republic $2,181,554.

In looking over all the countries' trade with each of the Republics of South America, I personally believe that our trade of 1910 with the Argentine might be duplicated in each one of the other Republics, if we put the proper trade machinery into operation. Canada in the last few years, has been developing her export trade at a very rapid rate.

I would like to see our government assist in establishing a direct line of steamships with South America. This would facilitate the work of an energetic and patriotic Canadian Export Association. In many ways South America presents a very attractive field for Canadian business men and I believe, as one personally acquainted with South America and its business, that there is no doubt a large trade could be worked up, if proper attention were paid to cultivating the republics of South America. As everyone knows, South Americans for the most part, are not competitors of Canada. They buy what we have to sell and sell us commodities which we require. The only exception to this statement is the Argentine Republic and even with this republic our export trade last year was over $8,000,000. Canada should have, next to Great Britain, the first claim upon South American trade, because of the fact that the chief commercial houses of South America are English and would naturally give a preference to Canada. There is invested in South American enterprises at the present time, over two billions dollars of British money and as a result of this large amount of British capital invested, Canada, as a part of the British Empire, would receive a cordial welcome should she energetically seek closer trade relations with South American countries.

As a Canadian much interested in Canadian enterprises, I would like to see a system of organized effort to extend and enlarge our export trade and for that purpose, I would suggest the formation of a powerful league, known as the Canadian Export Association, which league ought to secure diplomatic influence for the successful exploitation of Canadian commerce. In order to secure a remunerative business for a direct steamship line, the government might grant a subsidy, which subsidy would not be required after a more extensive trade had been developed, as it would soon be apparent that Canadian steamships would soon have a paying cargo each way.

It might be pointed out that the greater part of manufactured goods used in South America are imported and that there is hardly an article manufactured in Canada which would not find a ready and profitable sale in the south. Implements are used there in enormous quantities. Cement is used in millions of tons. Leather goods, including saddles, boots and belting are everywhere in great demand owing to the agricultural nature of the country. The bulk of this trade is now going to Americans, Germans and the Belgians. We in turn need their asphalt, nuts, mutton, hides, mahogany, rice, rubber, wool, etc. Our Canadian government has neglected putting a live, energetic Canadian representative in each one of the Republics of South America and I think the time has arrived for either the government or such an association as I have indicated to take immediate steps towards the development of our Canadian trade in the south.

Mr. Johnston invites correspondence from manufacturers and traders of the Dominion on the subject and if there is sufficient interest manifested, necessary steps will be taken to organize an export association and to develop and extend our export trade.

MILITARY BALL A SUCCESS

Armouries Last Night Thronged With Youth and Beauty.

DELIGHTFUL was the dance given last Tuesday in the Armouries under the auspices of the officers of the 57th Regiment. The spacious drill hall was transformed into a literal paradise of beauty, by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, whose taste in this direction is known far and wide. Excellent music was furnished by the Grand Opera House orchestra, under the capable leadership of Mr. Devey.

The ball was given by the officers of the local Regiment, the guests of honor being the ex-officers of the Regiment, and the officers and ex-officers of the 24th Field Battery, and the 3rd Dragoons.

About 60 couples were present, the officers, of course, appearing in uniform. The scene was exceedingly exhilirating and enchanting, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who were present. At one o'clock dainty refreshments were served in the splendid dining hall of the Armouries, after which dancing was resumed until the "wee sma' hours."

More power to those "Gideons." There's something real, something tangible, in religion when you can get a commercial traveler to lay aside all thoughts of "keeping everlastingly at it" to help the other fellow. I know one fellow who was helped.

Just my luck! The thermometer went up seven points yesterday, and I didn't have a single dollar on it.

One thing's certain from my observation. The priests are getting into politics faster than the politicians are getting into the churches.

DETROIT FOR CHEAPER FARES

Should All Lines be Brought Under the Terms of New Line Franchise? —Women Voters Are Busy.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 23.—Street railway fares and tentative municipal ownership of the traction lines were voted on here to-day. At present five cent fares prevail on many of the city lines, with eight tickets for a quarter during the day on the newer lines. The question at issue to-day was whether all the lines should be brought under the terms of the franchise of the newer lines. In opposition to this it has been urged that with the older franchises expired and expiring, the city should compel lower fares on all the lines without extending any franchises. The proposed agreement runs until 1924, and provides that the city may purchase the lines any time on six months' notice. There has been a heavy registration of women voters.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

New York, Jan. 23.—With 108 unset precious stones, valued at nearly five thousand dollars, in his possession, an unidentified man was found early to-day lying unconscious in the gutter in front of an apartment house on Twenty-Seventh street. The police believe that the man was given a stupefying drug and collapsed while struggling with his assailants. Apparently the latter were frightened away before they could accomplish their intended robbery.

MR. BURNHAM'S SPEECH ON NE TEMERE DECREE

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., spoke as follows in the House of Commons this morning, when the ne temere decree was up for debate:

I have listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks of the honorable members of the opposition on this bill. They took great care in the early stages of this trouble, to avoid knowing anything about it arce in a very remarkable manner, until it has become coincident. The most absolute silence for my part I know that I am too young a member to make any mistake, when I apologize most humbly for venturing any remarks in this debate, but I cannot help pointing out that we have two statements before the House and two courses proposed.

The Hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Lancaster) has given us a concrete proposition embodied in his bill. I would say, let that go, send it to fountain head so that we may see whether it is ultra or intra vires, but must say that I have been most profoundly impressed by the statesman-like and candid utterance of the Right Honorable, the Leader of the Government. He has laid down the broad general principle that underlie the supremacy of the State. He has shown that the Church cannot override the State. To my mind that is broad enough to repel any ecclesiastical decree enactment, or laws of any description about whatever. He has also said, as I understood him, that the civil law alone validates marriage and that no church can be recogized as supreme on that question. What could be more explicit, what more likely to quiet the agitation in this country than this doctrine laid down by the great statesman at the head of this Government. There is no uncertain sound about it; why then, should we not fall in with that view and endorse the proposition to send a case to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for the determination of the federal authorities. To reject the proposition of the Right Honorable, the Leader of the Government, would be to cast aside the greatest opportunity we have ever had of settling for all time the differences between Church and State. Of that I am convinced. It seems to me that never has there arisen such a magnificent opportunity for the settlement of this great question. How can it be settled except either by an infinite multitude of enactments or by a statement of a general and conclusive character which will finally establish the general principles. It can not be settled in any other way, but in order that we may exhaust all the remedies under our control, I would suggest that the bill of the hon member for Lincoln (Mr. Lancaster) also be sent and submitted to the Privy Council, because you can never tell when lawyer get into what confusion and uncertainty will result. Therefore, for my part, I am prepared to endorse both positions

PETERBORO 17, TRENTON 2

At Brock St. rink Tuesday night before a record crowd, the Peterboro intermediates defeated Trenton by a score of 17—2 in a well contested game. The ice was in excellent condition and the weather ideal, not being as cold as for former contests and the large crowd thoroughly enjoyed the sport.

A number of slight accidents occurred during the game, Kelly receiving a cut over the eye; Giroux was struck on the head, but was able to continue. Reynolds of Trenton was laid out for a minute in the second half, when he collided with Giroux. The game was clean all through only three penalties being inflicted by Referee Sproule, all for tripping.

Armstrong, at centre for Trenton, was easily the best man on the team and played a fine game. Pringle in goal stopped many shots, and it is due to his fine work the score was not larger. The home team all played well and to pick any one man, would be unfair. It is safe to say that if the Pets continue to play the game as they have in all their contests so far this season, they will take a lot of beating and will just about bring home the bacon in the championship finals.

The game was called about 8.30 and a minute after Parks scored the first goal on a pass from Coughlin.

The teams checked close and hard and the play was very even. Giroux notched the second tally in 10 minutes and Kelly repeated a few minutes later. Coughlin scored for Peterborough in about 2 minutes and repeated shortly after on a pass from Bond, after carrying the rubber the length of the ice. Trenton pressed hard at this juncture and McGorman beat Desrocher on a shot from left wing. Trenton notched another shortly after from a scrimmage in front of the Pets goal. Kelly scored another for the Pets before the half ended, making the score at half time 6—2.

The home team had much the better of the play in the second half, although Trenton played hard and put in some good combination at times, but were unable to score in this session. Parks got the first score in this half, 30 seconds after play commenced and repeated a few minutes later on a pass from Coughlin. The homesters repeated again in two minutes from a scrimmage. Coughlin got the next tally on Kelly's pass after a brilliant rush from his own territory. Kelly scored on a shot from left wing a few minutes later. Parks got the next one from a scrimmage in front of Trenton's goal in three minutes. Kelly notched another in a half a minute. Parks again scored on a pass from Giroux and repeated shortly after on a pass from Kelly. Kelly at this point took a hand in the scoring and notched one after a lone rush. Parks secured the last tally about three minutes before time was called. Trenton tried hard at this period but could not get past the Pets' defence, and the game ended 17—2 in favor of the home team.

Municipal Ownership Expensive.

Those of our readers who are in favor of municipal ownership should learn that while it has its rosy hue, it also has a dark side. As a proof of this it may be noted that an echo of a fatal accident in Gravenhurst about a year ago, when a lad named Young was electrocuted by coming in contact with a fallen wire, will be heard during the coming session of the Provincial Legislature, when the town will seek permission to issue debentures for $8,000 to meet a judgment given in favor of the boy's father. The town of Gravenhurst owned its plant.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

Special Meetings in Many Churches to Take Place on Sunday Next.

According to advices received from the Dominion Alliance, Toronto, a great deal of interest is being awakened in the Field Day which is to be observed in Peterboro County on Sunday next.

On Monday afternoon and evening live issues will be discussed at the Convention in this city. The Liquor License Act is by no means a perfect piece of legislation and needed improvements in it will be dealt with. It is almost certain that the government will be again approached with a view to securing some amendments which experience has shown to be urgently required. Law enforcement is a subject which is also looming up large and it will receive considerable attention. As 460 municipalities will be free from bar-rooms after 1st of May next, the Provincial situation is becoming one of very great interest, and an exposition of this will be passed under review. The time is drawing near when another Local Option contest can be held in the City of Peterboro and the Convention will probably decide whether any action should be taken now.

Throat Becomes Diseased from Neglecting Colds

THEN CATARRH SETS IN, MUCOUS DROPS INTO THE STOMACH, COUGHING, HEADACHES AND DEBILITY FOLLOW.

That the best method of curing catarrhal disease consists in using Catarrhozone is now freely admitted. Catarrhozone is infinitely superior to cough medicines, tablets, sprays and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough remedies contain opium, morphine and cocaine. With Catarrhozone you take no drugs—you employ Nature's way—just inhale Catarrhozone's soothing healing vapor and relief and cure follows promptly.

Weak Throat, Rachlag Cough Cured.

"For five years I suffered from a severe bronchitis. A harsh, dry, racking cough kept my throat in a raw condition from one year's end to another. Before going to sleep at night I always had a bad attack, and in the morning before each breakfast I suffered greatly. My voice was harsh and raspy, and sometimes I found it difficult to make myself understood. Catarrhozone seemed to soothe and heal from the first day. It cured me, and now I wouldn't think of being without a Catarrhozone Inhaler—it means life to me."

The above experience is related by Mr. Alexander P. Savary of Hamilton, Pa., and proves the effectiveness of Catarrhozone, which will cure every cough, cold, bronchial or catarrhal attack. The dollar size of Catarrhozone contains two months' treatment and is guaranteed. Smaller size 50c, sample size 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston Canada.

NEW BRUNSWICK HEARD FROM AGAIN

ANOTHER SPLENDID CURE BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Mr. Ben Gauvang Had Backache So Bad He Had to Quit Work—Dodd's Kidney Pills Fixed Him Up.

Puellering Settlement, Kent Co., N. B., Jan. 24.—(Special)—Every corner of New Brunswick tells of cures made by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this settlement can contribute its share. Mr. Ben. Gauvang is one man who without hesitation states that he owes his good health to the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly did me a world of good. I was taking them my back ached so that I had to give up work and I also had to be careful how I walked and moved about. I took nine boxes, all told, and they fixed me up. They are the best medicine for all diseases of the kidneys."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They only cure the kidneys. But they always cure the kidneys and with cured kidneys you can't have backache, rheumatism, Bright's disease, diabetes or dropsy.

COSTLY SPITE.

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $875,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by advertising. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment of Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the royals of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A collar-stud, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince. And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of Hesse.

Face Peeling Easy—Blonde or Brunette

"The blonde's complexion fades early, because her skin is extraordinarily thin and fine," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, perhaps the most famous living beauty. "The brunette's, as a rule, is the reverse. The skin is thicker and has a tendency to an oily appearance."

For either the faded blonde's skin or the brunette's oily or sallow complexion, the best remedy is ordinary mercolized wax. Used daily, this will give one an entirely new complexion within about a week's time. The wax gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin, with all its defects, a little each day, without affecting the delicate underskin in the least. The latter will have the exquisitely beautiful glow of youth—indeed, one may readily lose ten or fifteen years from her age, so far as appearance goes, by a course of this simple treatment. Mercolized wax, securable at any drug store, is applied like cold cream.

VOL XXVIII 23 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 26 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

A 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL WAS MARRIED TO BOY OF 16

Now They Are Seeking Divorce—He Was Jealous of the Child.

Greenwich, Conn., Jan. 26.—Filing of papers in a suit for divorce here by Attorneys for Mrs. Edna Millis Adams, against her husband, Warren Adams, disclosed a marriage in New Rochelle, N.Y., in 1901 of a 13-year-old girl to a 16-year-old boy. According to the papers in the suit, Adams before his marriage, was extremely jealous of his 13-year-old fiancee, and for this reason, the girl's mother suggested that the two marry, but live apart for two years. With the girl dressed in long skirts to make her appear older than she really was, the pair went to New Rochelle, and the marriage was performed. They did not live together until 1909. They separated in 1906.

PUNCHED A REPORTER WHO WAS CHASING HIM

WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN DROWNED IN ST. LAWRENCE RIVER—USED TWO OTHER NAMES.

Captain Barton Cruikshank Returned to New York To-day, and Had a Lively Time.

New York, Jan. 25.—Running at top speed through the streets of Brooklyn in an effort to dodge a score of reporters who met him at the steamer, Captain Barton Cruikshank, the former editor and National Guard officer, who disappeared from his home in Potsdam, N.Y., and for a time was believed to be dead, finally took refuge in his lawyer's office in lower Manhattan to-day. In his exciting foot race through the streets he had a personal encounter with one reporter, appealed to the police to protect him from the news gatherers, only to be laughed at, and finally got revenge by throwing three reporters bodily out of the law office after they had followed him there.

Cruikshank came back from Porto Rico to-day on the liner Caracas. He was booked as "G. W. Fuller," having dropped the name Donald Douglas which he adopted following his arrival in New York city, after he had led his wife and friends to Upper New York to believe that he had been drowned while canoeing on the St. Lawrence River. His personal attorney L. E. Ginn and the reporters met him at the pier to greet him but none of his former friends nor members of the family appeared. Ginn did not get to Cruikshank at the pier, as, when the former Captain descended the gang plank, he was overwhelmed by the waiting reporters.

Cruikshank left here for Porto Rico recently after bidding good-bye to Miss Edith Robert, a Brooklyn girl whom he wooed in the guise of a single man.

OUTLINE HIS HOME RULE PROPOSALS IN BELFAST

London, Jan. 25.—The determination of Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, not to change his decision to hold the meeting in favor of Home Rule at which he and John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, are to speak in Belfast on Thursday, has caused the deepest apprehension among moderate Unionists regarding the consequences of the Ulster men's decision to prevent it at all costs.

The English Unionist press are urging Mr. Churchill to cancel his visit, pointing out that a fight between the two parties on the day of the demonstration in Belfast will not put an end to the trouble.

FEAR THE FIGHT WILL LAST.

Fears are expressed in some quarters that hostilities will be carried on for weeks and perhaps months, not only in Belfast but throughout Ulster.

The prospects of a fight are prompting many adherents of the Nationalists as well as of the Unionist cause to visit Belfast, and should riots occur there the police will be utterly inadequate to cope with them. Even the troops who have been ordered to the city will find it difficult to restore order.

WANTS TO OUTLINE PROPOSALS

The meeting was originally arranged by the Master of Elibank, Alexander W. C. O. Murray, Liberal member of Parliament for Midlothian, Scotland, and Secretary to the Treasurer. With him alone will rest any change of the program. He justifies the calling of the meeting in Belfast on the ground that Winston Spencer Churchill intends to outline the Home Rule proposals for Ireland which the Government intends to introduce into Parliament. Ireland he considers is the proper place for that to be done.

It is just possible that the Home Rule meeting may eventually be held in Queen's Hall, which is situated in the Nationalist district of Belfast. Even then, however, the Unionists may invade that quarter in order to endeavor to prevent the demonstration.

Boy Scouts Notice!

The 1st and 3rd Troops of Boy Scouts will not meet to-night. But a full attendance is requested next Friday night. All stamps and reports must be handed in on the 2nd of February. Final arrangements for the banquet will be made. Examinations will soon start for Patrol Leader, Corporal and Adjutant positions. Attendance marks are counted. The delaying of the banquet till February 8th will give the new boys a chance to attend. The 1st Troop from now on will be under full command of Scout Master S. Taylor. William J. Miller, District Commissioner.

Encouraging Reports Presented at Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Church

The members and adherents of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held their annual meeting on Wednesday night. Rev. Mr. Pogue, pastor of the church conducted devotional exercises, after which Mr. J. Crane was elected chairman.

Tribute to the Pastor.

After the reading of the minutes and the report of the Managers, Sheriff Hall, in a happy manner, moved the following resolution:

"The congregation of St. Paul's church at this their fourth annual meeting, since the induction of their Pastor, the Rev. Robt. Pogue, desire to place on record their cordial and hearty appreciation of his services during these years of faithful and efficient ministry.

They rejoice in the renewed activities manifested in all the departments of Christian work, and especially in the forward movement on the part of the congregation in connection with the mission work of the church, which they feel is, in large measure, due to the earnest and devoted efforts of their pastor.

Many Reports Followed.

Reports were read from Sabbath School, Board of Managers, Ladies' Aid and several other societies of the church. They all indicated prosperity in their various branches of activity.

The following managers were elected: Messrs. J. Crane, T. H. Gillespie, R. Irwin and W. Scott of the old Board, and J. S. Keys, to fill the vacancy made by D. H. Moore's resignation.

Messrs. W. H. Hill and P. S. McLean were re-elected auditors.

After the pastor has expressed his appreciation regarding the services rendered him by the congregation, as a whole, the meeting was dismissed by the Doxology and prayer.

SAVED SEVEN GIRLS DIED HERO'S DEATH

Guelph, Jan. 25.—Word has been received here that by fighting a pack of timber wolves single-handed all night long Harry E. Feanell, lately of Denver, Colo., but up to six years ago residing in Guelph, saved the lives of seven girls and the other men who were in the party and died as the result of exposure he was forced to endure in Hudson Bay District.

THE ORANGE SENTINEL ON THE NE TEMERE DECREE

The Orange Sentinel, in discussing the Ne Temere decree, says:

"Parliament dealt with the marriage question on Monday last by voting down Mr. Lancaster's Bill and deciding to send a stated case to the Privy Council.

"The Sentinel would have preferred the adoption of the Bill to a reference to the courts. If Parliament had taken that course it would have been tantamount to a declaration of the supremacy of the civil power in Canada, something that is very much needed at the present moment.

"While that is the view of The Sentinel, it must be admitted that the arguments in favor of the course adopted at the request of the Premier have a good deal of weight. He proposes, first, to ascertain exactly what are the powers of the Federal Parliament. Having done so, it follows that he must introduce a bill upon the lines of the judgment that the Privy Council will give.

"This is the policy decided upon by the Evangelical Alliance, upon the advice of some of the ablest lawyers in Ontario, who are also undoubted Protestants. Indeed, petitions are now being signed and sent to the secretary of the Alliance praying Sir James Whitney to do this very thing—to submit a stated case that may go to the Privy Council.

"Under these circumstances it is hard to find fault with Mr. Borden. He is proceeding along the lines laid down by a joint conference of Protestant bodies held in Toronto toward the close of last year. This is the more cautious, careful way to proceed. Nor is it at all clear that any time will be lost in reaching a finality by this method.

"If Mr. Lancaster's bill had been passed, it would, in all probability, have been taken before the Privy Council. It might have been set aside upon a technicality. To reach such an issue after two or three years time would be much worse than to await the decision of the highest court, and upon that solid foundation frame an enactment that will stand.

"We assume that it is Mr. Borden's intention to introduce a bill as soon as it is determined by the Privy

ROMAN CHURCH HAVE COUNSEL WATCH CASE

But It is Almost Impossible for Marriage Case to be Stated to Supreme Court for Hearing Before May—Time Expires on Tuesday

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—There does not seem much chance of Hon. C. J. Doherty being able to get his reference on the marriage case to the Supreme Court at the February sitting of the court.

The times for the inscription of the cases expires on Tuesday next, and the law provides that the Minister of Justice must first send to the Supreme Court the Order-in-Council ordering the reference and then make formal application for the hearing thereof. Then considerable time is required for the preparation and the printing of the factums, so that there is little likelihood of the case being heard before May.

Then there comes another difficulty as to the Privy Council appeal. All appeals for the July sitting of the Judicial Committee have to be filed early in May, and there is no likelihood at all that a case of this magnitude can be disposed of by that time. This will throw the hearing of the appeal before the Privy Council over to the November sitting and probably to the February sitting of 1913, so that it is not likely that a final decision can be reached for over a year at the earliest.

It is understood that the Quebec Government will intimate its desire to be represented by counsel, and it is also likely that the Roman Catholic Church may select counsel to watch its interests.

BRITISH SHIPPERS FEAR THE LOSS OF S. AMERICAN TRADE

GERMANS AND AMERICANS WILL CONTROL THE BULK OF THE BUSINESS.

Through Panama Canal and Along the Western Coast Unless Improvements are Speedily Made.

London, Jan. 25.—The news that Herr Ballin, the German shipping magnate, is on the way to Panama has caused a new flurry among British shipping men, who are already somewhat perturbed by the prospect of the new conditions which will follow the opening of the canal.

The Pall Mall Gazette gives prominence to a letter from a correspondent who has just returned from Panama, and who says:

"If some improvement is not speedily made in the British mail service to South America and along the western coast we may expect to find when the canal is opened that both the Germans and the Americans will get ahead of us and capture the lion's share of the increased traffic.

"Already passengers are avoiding the English boats, and taking passage either by the German or the American "fruit" line in preference, even from and to our West Indian Islands.

NEED OF HEAVY RATES.

"When I was in Panama all the talk was of preferential rates for American shipping or penalties for foreigners. It comes to the same thing. The canal cannot possibly pay unless very heavy rates are charged, and these American ship owners will not stand if they are levied on their ships. The Americans undoubtedly can make the opening of the canal the opportunity for a great effort to re-establish their mercantile marine."

After expressing the opinion that the canal cannot pay as a commercial undertaking, but that if American ships receive a heavy preference a national advantage will be gained, the correspondent continued.

WILLIAM WARD DEAD, ISLAND LIFE-SAVER

Toronto, Jan. 25.—With a record such as few men can boast of, Captain William Ward passed away last night at his home, 68 Brunswick avenue, at the age of 65 years. Death was caused by cancer of the stomach.

Captain Ward was born in a little cottage on Toronto Island near where the south end of the Eastern Gap is now situated, his father having settled there in 1838. This cottage, however, was washed away in 1846, water now covering the spot where it stood. Another home was built about 300 feet further north, which is now known as Ward's Island. The captain was an expert swimmer, and during his life-time rescued 164 persons from a watery grave. In recognition of his bravery he was appointed captain of the Dominion Life Saving crew in 1881.

Captain Ward was also an oarsman of wide renown, being at one time single skiff champion of America. When he was only 11 years of age, he was coxswain of the first four-oared shell in Canada. During one contest at Oswego, when all the other shells were swamped, he managed to keep his shell afloat by bailing while he held the steering ropes with his teeth.

Captain Ward was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, and in politics a Conservative. Fraternally he was a member of McKinley L.O.L., 275.

ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY

Comyany Puts Forward Its Side of the Case

Ottawa, Jan. 25 THE Montreal Witness says that denial of any refusal of the Electric Power Limited, which controls most of the power development on the Trent River, to sell out to the Hydro-Electric Commission, was given this morning by A. B. Colville, of Campbellford, vice-president of the Electric Power Company, who is in town.

"The Electric Power Limited," he says, "has at the present time 16,500 horse power developed on the Trent river which has all been sold and is being delivered in the various cities, towns and villages in the district extending from Napanee on the east to Oshawa on the west. Their lines also extend into the mining district of North Hastings, and they supply Peterborough, Lindsay, and Millbrook in the north. They have over 200 miles of 44,000 volt transmission line and 24 sub-stations. The powers are either held in fee simple or under lease from the Crown. The Trent being a Dominion river, leases were granted by the Department of Railways and Canals. They have now under construction two additional power houses of 5,000 horse power and 11,000 horse power capacity, the first to be finished by July 1, and the second by January, 1913. Thirty years franchises have been obtained in practically every town of importance in the district, and the rates are under the control of the Dominion Railway Board.

"The Hydro-Electric Commission, which in 1906 had an offer for a supply of power from the company which however, it did not take, now declares to extend its policy of government owned power and transmission lines to control Ontario," said Mr. Colville, "and the Electric Power Company, while perfectly satisfied with its business, has no desire to stand in its way. It has offered to sell to the Hydro-Electric Commission the whole of its undertakings, including power houses, transmission lines, sub stations, electric and gas plants, street railways, etc., at a price to be fixed by arbitration."

When asked regarding the Hon. ... department had granted leases of dams No. 4 and No. 8, which were claimed by the Electric Company, to the Hydro-Electric Commission, Mr. Colville said his company had not been notified of any such order in council.

MURRAY STREET CHURCH

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers for Year

The annual meeting of Murray street church took place on Wednesday night. The attendance was the largest on record.

Reports from fifteen organizations of the church were presented and adopted. In every case the report showed a splendid year's work and in the matter of finance a considerable increase over former years. One gratifying fact called forth the hearty applause of the meeting. When the figures were placed on the blackboard it was seen that this year had passed former years by a considerable sum in gifts to missions.

Murray street church has always been conspicuous for its generous gifts for missionary purposes and it was indeed a satisfaction to note that the building enterprise had not hindered the onward progress of that department.

The report of the treasurer, Mr. T. F. Matthews, also indicated an improvement on other years.

The chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. D. Thompson was re-elected and complimented on his splendid year of service.

Rev. J. R. Webb has completed his fifth year of his pastorate and cannot but be encouraged by the hearty and unanimous way in which this church has followed his leadership and is coming to its own in this rapid growing city.

AN ITALIAN WARSHIP HAS INFLAMED AUSTRIA

Stopping of Austrian Liner Gives Fresh Impetus to Campaign in Vienna—Press Making Protests.

Vienna, Jan. 25.—The action of an Italian warship in stopping the Austrian Lloyd Liner Bregenz has given fresh impetus to the anti-Italian campaign here. The press continues to make emphatic protests regarding the incident, although the owners of the Bregenz have stated that they consider the matter of no importance.

The suggestion is made here that Italy cede her East African possessions to Turkey as compensation for the loss in Tripoli. Some significance is attached to the fact that this suggestion is forthcoming just at the time of the visit to Rome of Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German Foreign Secretary.

SEA SERPENT A 100 FEET LONG SEEN IN ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

Quebec, Jan 25 Another man claims to have seen the "Sea Serpent." This time the witness is a reliable official of the Marine Department, Mr. Fafard, lighthouse keeper at Pointe Des Monts, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Mr. Fafard informed his superiors that he saw a "sea serpent" twice this winter. The monster was a hundred feet long.

ENGINEERS ASK FOR BIG WAGE INCREASE

Their Demand Involves All Lines Out of Chicago—To Standardise the Wage Scale—Railways Not Willing.

New York, Jan. 25.—Locomotive engineers on all railroads in the eastern territory have made demands for a general increase in wages ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. The demands involve all railroads outside of Chicago and north of the line of the Norfolk and Western Railway and the Ohio River.

Letters from Brotherhood officials to the presidents of these railroads demand increased wages in varying scales, the object being to standardize the wage scale on all lines in this territory, as was done by the trainmen and conductors in 1910.

The railroads will probably not grant the demands.

Massing of Imperial Troops at the Chinese Capital Continues—Shanghai Expects Throne to Yield by Monday.

London, Jan. 25.—The concentration of troops in Peking is proceeding very rapidly. A considerable number of Imperial Manchu soldiers have arrived from the suburb of Feng-Tai, a station on the railroad, just outside of Peking, and also from Tung-Chow, a small town to the east of the capital, according to a news agency despatch received here from Tien-Tsin.

The British military authorities have decided to reinforce the guard of British soldiers stationed on the railroad at Feng-Tai.

ABDICATION IN FOUR DAYS.

Shanghai, Jan. 25.—It is expected here in Republican circles that an Imperial edict, announcing the abdication of the throne, will be issued before the armistice between the Imperialists and Republicans expires which, as now arranged, will be on January 29th at eight o'clock in the morning. Shortly after that date it is believed that a meeting will be arranged between President Sun Yat Sen and Yuan Shi Kai at which details will be drafted for the establishment of a kind of coalition government controlling the north and the south.

Tang-shao-Yi, who is still acting as Yuan Shi Kai's representative here, and Dr. Wu Ting Fang, the Republican Minister of Justice, expressed themselves this afternoon as extremely hopeful. It is understood that the leaders who were endeavoring to bring about an understanding between Peking and Nanking have succeeded in clearing the atmosphere of the "misunderstandings" which have hitherto existed. Whether an eventual agreement between the two parties will be reached cannot yet be foreseen.

President Sun Yat Sen to-day sent a despatch to Premier Yuan Shi Kai at Peking through Tang-Shao-Yi. The telegram was couched in the most friendly terms and it is said to have expressed a willingness of the Republican leaders to place the fullest confidence in Premier Yuan Shi Kai's pledges.

WOULD RECOGNIZE REPUBLIC.

Tokio, Jan. 25.—The members of the National party are showing great activity in urging the Japanese Government to recognize the Republican Government of China.

MISSIONARIES ARRIVE IN SHANGHAI.

Shanghai, Jan. 25.—The exodus of Christian missionaries from interior China to the seaport towns is continuing. The Methodist mission rooms have just received the following cable from Shanghai:

"Mrs. O. L. Kilburn and son, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Billinger and children have arrived here safely and well from Cheng-Tu."

Cheng-Tu is the interior post from which all the Methodist missionaries have been recalled because of the disturbances. The cable would seem to indicate that the trouble is not nearly over yet, but may break out with increasing vigor any minute.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with whooping Cough. One of them was in bed had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Mis. For sale by all dealers.

Municipal Ownership Expensive.

Those of our readers who are in favor of municipal ownership should learn that while it has its rosy hue, it also has a dark side. As a proof of this it may be noted that an echo of a fatal accident in Gravenhurst about a year ago, when a lad named Young was electrocuted by coming in contact with a fallen wire, will be heard during the coming session of the Provincial Legislature when the town will seek permission to issue debentures for $8,000 to meet a judgment given in favor of the boy's father. THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilized nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognized when the average smoker tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, siddings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know All — Who Heard That Years Ago — Can Be Taken Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything under the sun.

When next you run across him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this morsel, ask him which city is the father east — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he emigrated, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier; "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf!"

GENERAL MILES PRAISES CHINESE

War Always Unpopular with the Chinese but they are a Brave People but Nothing Can Stop Revolution.

(Special Cable Service.)

In some respects, China was to me the most interesting country I have ever had the pleasure of visiting. In their ancient civilization we find much that we could adopt with benefit, and still more that has been obsolete for centuries.

Ages ago China passed through some of the experiences that now interest or agitate our people. The controversies between capital and labor and the unequal distribution of wealth were problems in which they were concerned thousands of years ago. As a race they have encouraged industry, art, science and literature compared with some other people their integrity has been proverbial.

It was my good fortune, in 1902, to have the opportunity of seeing the different sections of China, as well as visiting the principal cities of Hong Kong, Canton, Talensin, Pekin and other important places. A marked contrast is noticeable between that and our country.

During my sojourn in that country nine years ago I found the leading men greatly exercised concerning the threatened dismemberment of their country. Ostensibly for the purpose of obtaining spheres of commercial influence, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Japan had all acquired control of certain portions of Chinese territory, and it seemed only a question of time when their nation would disappear from the map of the world.

China owes her existence today partly to the fact that two of the aggressive powers became involved in war over a certain portion of her territory.

To realize how far the absorption of that country had extended, one needed only to visit Hong Kong and see the formidable fortification defending the entrance to the harbor—the powerful fleet of battleships, the palace of the governor general and 5,000 trained, disciplined, veteran British troops, all under a foreign [illegible] observed in other parts of the empire.

For hundreds of years war and the military profession has been unpopular with the Chinese people. They abhor the first and if possible would always avoid the latter. Their army now consists of approximately 400,000 men, and the government has recently been endeavoring to increase this number to 350,000.

That great empire of 430,000,000 people is now quaking like the tremors of the earth. From the center to the remotest quarter of that vast territory a political convulsion and revolution is affecting all its conditions and attracting the attention of the world. What will be the result — how far reaching will be its influence, or to what extent it will affect the 400,000,000 of the human race in other countries of the orient, it is impossible now to determine.

GERMANY AGAIN AFTER TERRITORY

PARIS. — It is learned from an authoritative source that Germany is negotiating with Spain for the acquisition of territory in Rio Muni, or Spanish Guinea, where it is proposed to establish warehouses and factories. Rio Muni is in Western Equatorial Africa, between Kamerun and the Muni river. A German commission will be sent to Rio Muni shortly to engage in topographical work.

MADRID — Prime Minister Canalejas denies the statement that Spain was about to sell her Guinea colony to Germany or any other power. He added that Spain was willing to use great moderation in her negotiations with France about Spanish vested rights and interests in Morocco.

CANADA FOR MANUFACTURERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Hon. J. I. Henderson, commissioner of industries of Hamilton, Ont., declared "Annexation sentiment in Canada is absolutely nil," while addressing the American Hardware Manufacturers Association convention on the subject, "Canada, the manufacturers' opportunity."

"As a budding nation our loyalty is intense and practical, and our position as one of the leaders of the empire compels us to maintain our tariff wall," he asserted.

The speaker stated that Canada is a firm believer in the home market and that there was no possibility in the very near future of any reduction in duties levied on articles manufactured this side of the line.

NO SURRENDER!

The people of Canada found their feet last night when they said that it was State over Church. The fact that the Ne Temere bill was referred to the Privy Council does not mean that it is outside of Canadian politics—that it is being shelved. It has said that the Ne Temere decree means that the Canadian Parliament is iniquitous; and it merely asks the rest of the British Empire to verify it.

And the rest of the British Empire will.

ENGLISHMEN AND OLYMPIC GAMES.

To win the Olympic games seems to be the ruling passion of a large number of Englishmen, just now. The wave of patriotism is sweeping in England. The cry for Olympic material has reached national proportions.

Englishmen have always been wonderful distance runners. They have been weak at the sprints and in some of the field events.

The effort now being made is to find men capable of holding the old country on the field and in the sprints in the hope that the distance runners will "bring home the bacon."

Two of the best amateurs in England are Harry Green, a marathon runner of ability and W. Scott, England's 10-mile champion.

LACROSSE ON SKATES

A new game is being introduced in Regina this winter, lacrosse on skates. It has been tried and accepted by the sportsmen in Eastern Ontario, and will be given a trial. It is played by seven-men teams, who line up as they would on a lacrosse green. A soft ball is used and players are not allowed to raise their sticks above the shoulders. An offender against this is sent to the penalty box. This rule makes underhand passing and shooting imperative.

The Rough Riders, as instituting the game in Regina, and are ready to meet any team in town that would like to take a whirl at it. They organized, at a meeting held in the Albert House, when the following officers were elected:

Honorary president, A. W. McIvor; president, Geo. Harper; vice-president, C. N. Galvin; secretary, Chas. Wood; treasurer, A. A. Fisher; manager, Wm. Dogan.

The following players will be in the line-up: L. Arnold, A. Urquhart, F. Harper, H. Hall, W. Degan, J. Staples Barlow, D. Hopp and Jimmie McLaughlin.

VARIETY OF HOLES IN GOLF

The up-to-date golf architects generally agree nowadays that in the arrangement of courses that more than something there should be a complete variety of holes not only as to length, but in their character, the way in which they are bunkered, the kind of tee shot that is required at them, and last, but not least, the kind of approach. In every case the putting greens should be thoroughly well guarded.

It has also been claimed that the shorter the hole the smaller should be the green and the more closely it should be guarded, so that on this principle when in good play a long shot can reach the green which should be fairly large and open in order to give the player encouragement to which he is entitled.

In this subject, however, there must ever be difference of opinion. There are those who argue that it is wrong to say that a fairly long course is a sufficient test to select the best golfer out of a field of any fifty or one hundred competitors. In other words, no course can be a thorough test of the skill and nerve of the player which has not so closely guarded greens that on occasions there is but one, and that a most skilful shot, by which the long approach can get home.

FOOTBALL

How sports, once only followed in the British Empire, have become popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by on means confined to the white race. Some of the native teams in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussein Hegazi as centre forward on Saturday, against Stockport. He is an Egyptian, who showed capital form against English teams at Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he shaped very well for a first appearance in an important game.

TELEGRAPH MARVELS.

1700 Miles Per Minute is the Rate at Which a Wire Travelled Around the World Though this is Not the Record.

With a view to finding out how quickly a message could be sent round the world, the editor of the New York Times' recently carried out an ingenious test. He wrote a message of nine words addressed to the paper, and dispatched it eastwards. The message completely girdled the northern hemisphere, travelling through Honolulu to Manila, thence to Hongkong, Singapore, and Bombay, from which point it sped onwards to Suez, thence to Gibraltar, towards Fayal, and finally re-arrived at New York, a distance of 28,613 miles.

No attempt was made to clear the line for its transmission in the hope of establishing a record, but the messages was sent under normal commercial conditions. The message passed through sixteen relay stations, and occupied one and a half minutes after it left New York it re-entered that city, thus travelling, at an average speed of 1,700 miles per minute.

This, however, is not a record. The shortest time in which a message has been despatched round the world was in connection with the opening of the Pacific cable, when the globe was theoretically encircled in nine and a half minutes. In that case, however, the line was cleared specially for the passage of the message.

NEW CHURCH GOERS

In a Remote Part of India During a Service at a Mission a Tiger Once Put in an Appearance. But Turned Tail.

It is the commonest of common sights in the Highlands of Scotland, and in some of the remoter churches of the English Lake district, to see dogs at church. Their sheep-dogs are such inseparable companions of the shepherds that they would both look upon it as an unforgivable insult if one went anywhere without the other. So when the shepherd goes to church, his dog goes with him, and so well trained are they that it is most unusual for any of them to stir during the service. They lie under the seats and generally go to sleep — a practice in which they are not imitated by their masters, for the Scottish shepherd is not accustomed to sleep under the longest sermon.

Bullocks in the Baptistry.

At the present moment a dog may be seen in a Scottish church for certain Sundays in every year, when a bullock is driven to "dribble the font" in the baptistry. Whether he stays during the service hours we do not know, but it is very unlikely that he does. He is probably only a night watch-man — or watch-dog — and goes home to supper and bed when other people are thinking about breakfast and the day's work.

Many people consider that the presence of a dog in church is a profanation of the sacred edifice, but surely a pig is much more so. Yet a pig might have been seen quite lately in a crate at the base of the pulpit during the harvest thanksgiving services at the Grimsby St. Hermen's Church. It transpired that the minister had solicited a contribution from a local farmer, who said, "What would you like?" to which the minister replied, "Oh, anything from the farm." Well, the farmer might have sent potatoes, or eggs, or butter, or cheese, or even bacon, but he elected to send a pig — not in a poke, but in a crate. His contribution to the harvest thanksgiving services was thankfully received, and after the services were over was sold for a good price for the benefit of the church funds. The animal behaved splendidly in its unusual surroundings.

On one occasion at a mission church in a remote village of India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much frightened as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

In the north-west of Canada a bear once strolled into a church. There was an immediate panic among the women, and some men sprang towards the shaggy beast, intending to slay him. Bruin, however, took all these things very coolly, sat up, and looked so amiable and unaggressive that, instead of killing him, the men laughed at him. Indeed, it was almost immediately seen that the bear was the identical animal which had formerly been the pet of the village, and which had run from the settlements into the woods about six months before. He had only returned to pay his respects to his old friends, and finding them all at church had evidently thought he might as well go too.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer: —

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

ABNER KINGMAN

Mr. Kingman of Montreal is by way of business a member of the big group of Canadian gentlemen who handle financial propositions, and is recognised as a successful and reliable business man. To the general public, he is, however, more widely known as one of the pillars of the Young Men's Christian Association, his active interest in which runs to a directorship of the International Organization, formed in 1854 in connection with the Associations of the United States and Canada. To Montreal belongs the honor of having opened the Y.M.C.A. movement in the Dominion. This was in 1851. Men of all faiths, even those with no religious professions whatever, are free to acknowledge the value of the good work being carried out by all departments of the body, and in connection with the effort in Montreal particularly, Mr. Kingman's name stands well to the front. He has been an active member from an early stage, and is looked upon not only as a conscientious worker, but as an able adviser in financial matters in which latter connection, his business capabilities admirably fit in.

ARCH. P. McKISHNIE

Mr. McKishnie, fiction Editor of the Canadian Century, issued from Montreal, is one of Canada's young writers who turns out his stories in a fashion that attracts and holds the interest of his readers from the initial letter to the final word.

If you are by nature a lover of the woods, lakes and the wild things which inhabit them. If you have a good outdoor story or hunting yarn to spin, Archie P. McKishnie is your friend. The well known writer and author of Gaff Linkum and "Love of the Wild" is Canadian in birth and sentiment and comes of that grand old Scotch Ontarian stock about which Ralph Connor has written so many stories. You do not meet the real McKishnie when he is at his office desk or in his study — tho' to be sure his personality impresses you right away with visions of the open and the nature he knows and loves so well — but trail with him thro' the tangle of bush grown uplands in buff shirt and corduroy; paddle with him along placed, mountain hemmed lakes; or lay for drenching chilly hours in the reed blinds, and you will know McKishnie aright. The love of the wild games of the forest and marsh is his to impart to the ready listener, and McKishnie's camp soon receives his initiation into the Grand Lodge of the Open Spaces.

He is a practical man in wood woe: he knows his animals, reptiles, fish and birds at first hand. Nature selected him as one of the few to whom she reveals her secrets.

There is nothing conservative about him. Tho' his first love is the woods and the creatures of the wild, he has an open heart for kindred subjects, and is well informed upon topics other than that of nature. His numerous magazine stories show that he has a grasp on a wide range of subjects, while his next book will be illustrative of spheres far remotes from that of "the wild."

WHEN WOMEN LED

The Fair Sex Has Been Well to the Fore in the Past, But Where Real Fighting Was to Be Done.

In the French Revolution women often led the bands of peasants who rose against the aristocrats. At Troyes a similar sight was seen during the champagne riots which convulsed the Aube Department of France.

At the head of the detachment which one district sent to join the "Iron Battalion" marched a splendid-looking young woman, wearing a white-knitted cap, with the Revolutionary red ribbon twined around it. Her starting-point forty miles from Troyes, this girl tramped every step of the distance between dawn and dark. She was cheered by the crowds when she arrived in Troyes.

It was a girl, too, who headed the great no-rent strike in New York three years ago.

Nearly all the big tenements in the Bowery, the most crowded section of darkest New York, are let to agents, who sub-let them in rooms or small flats to the poor. The rents are awful. A man will have to pay twenty-five dollars a month for three small rooms on a fifth floor.

It will be remembered that at the end of 1907 Eastern America suffered from the worst times which had been known in the States for very many years, and the result was that evictions for non-payment of rent became more and more frequent.

A REDUCTION IN RENTS

It was Cecilie Arkin, a nineteen-year-old girl, who devised the plan of campaign, and banded together no fewer than thirty thousand families, who all vowed to pay no more rent unless a general reduction of twenty per cent. was granted. Each family pledged itself to shelter as many as possible of the evicted ones.

The struggle was a long and bitter one. Hundreds of families were turned out, but in the end Cecilie Arkin won a victory; for the agents compromised, and a general reduction of ten per cent. was the condition on which the strike was settled.

The last Carlist rising in Spain was headed by a woman. This was in 1901 and the insurrection broke out at Berga, in the turbulent province of Catalonia. The identity of the lady has never leaked out. She was tall, beautifully dressed, and rode magnificently.

It was rumoured at the time that she was Donna Blanca, Duchess of [illegible] brother of Don Carlos. But this surmise was proved to be false, and to this day her identity is a mystery.

There has always been a deal of smuggling along the western end of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico.

The most notorious of all these smugglers was a Mexican woman known as Lalia, Queen of the Smugglers. She was quite young, and extremely good-looking, and by her extraordinary talents rose to be head of a band of most daring smugglers.

A QUEEN BETRAYED

For nearly four years she reigned supreme, and then one day, as her long train of "burros" (donkeys), bearing contraband goods, was crossing the Rio Grande, she was surprised by a sudden shower of rifle-bullets. She had been betrayed, and a strong force of Mexican "Rurales" had been ambushed among the rocks.

One of her arms was broken by a bullet, but with splendid courage she gathered her men and rode straight of the troops.

A soldier seized her bridle. She cut him down, and for some minutes a furious fight raged. Then numbers prevailed, and she and her surviving companions were pulled down. She died in hospital a few days later.

There is no part of the world and no race which does not produce its fighting women. Quite lately our Crown Colony of Southern Nigeria has been plagued by a lady of colour known as the "Omu."

Among her tribe she is reckoned officially as a man, and cannot have a husband.

After causing endless trouble to the authorities she made peace, and then coolly demanded a seat upon the legislative Council. So far this has not been granted, but it is possible we may hear more of this coal-black Suffragette.

"Are you a friend to William Bliggins? That ne'er-do-well?"

"I should think not, indeed!"

"Then you'll hardly be interested to hear that he has inherited a hundred thousand pounds."

"What? Dear old Bill!"

Asker: "How do you excuse those mother-in-law jokes of yours to your wife?"

Funniman: "I tell her they refer to her mother-in-law, and she says they are not half bad enough." 42

PERSIAN WEDDINGS

Tying the matrimonial knot is a very prolonged and serious affair in Persia. In fact, a wedding may extend for a week. On the last day of the wedding the bride, who has been treated as a sort of outcast, is conducted by a near relative to a room, where she undergoes further and more elaborate decoration.

She then returns to the guest-room, and her dowry is laid before her in trays. The dowry often comprises such queer things as cheap and highly-coloured oleographs, gandy vases, birdcages, and many useful household articles. Having kissed the hearthstone of her home, she is then given bread, salt, and a piece of gold, and thus equipped and closely veiled she is hoisted on to a gaily-adorned donkey and, accompanied by a circus like procession of friends, goes to her future home, where her husband awaits her.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

HAIR POWDER

The first English ladies who had the courage to wear powdered hair were as much pointed at for their singularity as the wearer of a crinoline would be to-day. It was in the beginning of the reign of George the First that the pioneers ventured to make themselves so conspicuous, and at the time when the next King was crowned there were only two hairdressers in London; but in the year 1795 it was calculated that there were in Great Britain no less than fifty thousand hair-dressers. A writer with a turn for statistics reckoned up the probable amount of flour these fifty thousand would use in a year, and arrived at the conclusion that it was equal to what would make 5,314,280 quartern loaves.

Apart from the question whether the flour might not have been better employed, it must be owned that there was more excuse for the artificial production of grey hair than there is for the dyeing of the hair when nature decides that it is time for it to be grey.

Simple Hospitality

Sometimes a wife settles down into a dreary, domestic routine, honestly believing that until her husband's income improves there is no other course for her to pursue. The very fact that many people cannot afford elaborate entertainments does not imply that they cannot enjoy simple ones. Novelty is the charm of life, as variety is its spice, and very often the guests who come from luxurious homes are the most easily pleased. The young housewife who, through fear of criticism, refuses to invite her richer or more experienced friend to her home is cheating herself of much pleasure.

SMART WINTER COSTUME

An opera front edged with knitted silk fringe is the feature of a street costume of velutina.

This walking suit is of black, old blue satin being the contrasting tone in the revers upon the three-quarters-length jacket. The revers, too, are edged with fringe and are embroidered with soutache braid of the blue tone.

The coat is trimmed with Hercules braid. A touch of white is given this walking costume with marabou. This delicate feather outlines the collar and cuffs.

The lines of the skirt show a slight tendency to fullness and in length it just escapes the floor.

The model would be pretty in corduroy or cloth.

Health for Every Woman No More Headaches

FROM WEAKNESS AND DESPAIR THOUSANDS HAVE BEEN RESTORED TO ROBUST HEALTH BY DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

That sick women are made well by Dr. Hamilton's Pills is proved in the following letter:

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow pallor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance upon them, and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once griped me, yet they established regularity. My appetite grew—my blood red and pure—heavy rings under my eyes disappeared, and to-day my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

The above straightforward letter from Mrs. J. V. Todd, wife of a well-known citizen in Rogersville, is proof sufficient that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other pill but Dr. Hamilton's 25c. per box. All dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

RACE AND CREED IN QUEBEC

The Liberal Government of Quebec Province will shortly go to the constituencies, and according to The Quebec Chronicle it will appeal to racial and religious hatred, says the News. It is said that Hon. Charles Devlin, a member of that Government in the late Federal election campaign, "is Laurier with no English Protestant" as his slogan. Mr. Devlin spoke in the Legislature the other day, and in reporting the utterance, Le Soleil, the Godin Government organ, said:—The Minister of Colonization raised a veritable tempest of applause when he cried out: "It will not be the Orangemen of Toronto who will settle the question this time, but the electors of Quebec. It will be neither the Ne Temere decree nor the nationality of Sir Wilfrid that will be discussed. It is not the voice of Toronto that will speak, but the voice of Quebec."

"To be sure," comments The Chronicle, "when Sir Wilfrid, the great unifier of the races, save the mark! has given the lead, his henchmen must follow. The vicious art of making racial and sectarian appeals is Sir Wilfrid's forte. It was his trump card in 1896, and it sustained him in office for fifteen years. Now he would galvanize it afresh with the mistaken notion that the country, as a whole, will stand for this kind of thing again. Ever since the bitterness of the September election, he has never missed a single opportunity of raising race and creed cries. He pursued that vicious course at the opening of the Parliamentary session by his speech on the question of the Speakership. He continued in the same strain throughout the session, and his conduct at Montreal recently was no exception to the general rule."

The Chronicle continues:—"Was there a single Government member of the Provincial House, from the Premier downwards, who took the hustings but he did not ask the people of Quebec to vote against Borden because he was an English Protestant? Was there one of them that did not try to set Catholics against Orangemen?" While certain Liberal newspapers in this Province accuse the Borden Government of having attained power by class and creed cries, it is well that the Ontario public should understand what the Liberals of Quebec are doing. The people of this Province should know that the Liberal party leaders beyond the Ottawa River hope to retain office by decrying the Orangemen of Ontario and the Protestants of Toronto.

Council that he has the power to enact a general marriage law. Unless he intended to do so, his present action would be discreditable.

"Mr. Lancaster made a strong case for his bill. He has earned the thanks of all those Canadian citizens who appreciate the dangers to our national welfare that are involved in the application of the Ne Temere decree. He has demonstrated to the Government that there is a strength of public sentiment behind his measure which must be heeded by the lawmakers. The following that he had in Parliament, would, he says, have been much greater but for the cracking of the party whip. There is evidence of this in the action of several members who spoke for the Bill and voted for the adjournment of the debate.

"We are not disposed to criticize severely those who did so. There can be no doubt of the faithfulness to Protestant principles of men like Captain Tom Wallace, J. H. Burnham, and Col. Hugh Clark. As we have intimated, the committee of Protestant organizations which met in Toronto last fall under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance arrived at the same conclusion as the leader of the Government. That was before Mr. Borden was elected Premier. The question is admittedly a difficult one to deal with so as to secure the desired result with the least delay. It is perfectly clear, however, to every observant citizen that it is one that cannot be sidetracked for an indefinite period. The agitation will be maintained until a remedy is found, and the longer it takes to reach that end the more dangerous it will be for the administration.

"To show the position taken by the Legislation Committee of the Orange Association and the Evangelical Alliance last fall we quote the following article from The Sentinel of October 12, 1911:

"The movement for a Federal marriage law has been inaugurated under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance of Canada. That body at a meeting in Toronto last week decided to organize for what may be a public campaign, by means of public meetings and petitions, to secure the enactment of such a law.

"It is proposed to petition the Ontario Government to have a stated case sent to the Court of Appeal and then to the Privy Council—to determine exactly the powers of the Dominion Parliament and the Provincial Legislatures. As The Sentinel reads the Confederation Act, it seems perfectly clear that the Federal Government has complete jurisdiction on the question of marriage. But the most eminent counsel advises that a decision should be obtained from the highest court in the Empire before passing an Act.

"There are some strong arguments in favor of such a course. If the new Parliament should legislate on the question, the law might be set aside on a technicality. This would result in a long delay, and greatly discourage those who are pressing for effective legislation. It may appear to be a slower process to have the issue tried on a stated case. In the long run, however, it may facilitate a settlement of the question. At all events, this is the course that is commended to the Legislation Committee, and which they have decided to pursue.

"There is no danger that public interest in the Ne Temere decree will abate. Almost every week fresh cases arise of homes broken up by the application of the decree. These will keep before the citizens of Canada the necessity for the legislation proposed, and, we hope, strengthen the demand that will ultimately be made to Parliament."

BONAR LAW NEW LEADER

Says that the Canadian Elections Were a Declaration for Reciprocal Preference.

(Special Cable Service.)

LONDON.—Andrew Bonar Law, the new Unionist leader in the House of Commons, who succeeded Mr. Balfour, made his first speech at a leader at the annual conference of the Conservative associations of Great Britain at Leeds.

Mr. Law dwelt at length upon the Canadian elections, paying a warm tribute to ex-Premier Laurier as being the first to give preference to Great Britain and thereby setting an example to be followed by the other dominions. His admiration for Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not abated a jot when he rejoiced at the result of the elections. It was an ignorant and impudent claim, he said, that the elections did not bear upon the cause of preference. They were, and are, an emphatic reminder that reciprocal preference is the aim of Great Britain's autonomous dominions.

REQUEST TO STOP CRUELTIES

YOUSOF ZIA PASHA

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Turkish ambassador, Yousof Zia Pasha, recently laid before the state department here a formal request from his government to prevent the alleged barbarities by the Italian troops in Tripoli; this request was made in conjunction with one made in London, though the British authorities determined not to interfere at present.

McNAMARA DEFENCE FUND

Federation of Labor Fights Shy of Resolution.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA. — Labor leaders are trying to prevent the introduction into the convention of the American Federation of Labor now in session here of a resolution framed by the California delegation appropriating $50,000 for the defence of the McNamara brothers.

A large sum has been raised already for this purpose by private subscriptions and the leaders contend, it is said, that whatever money is needed for the McNamara defence can be obtained in this manner without drawing on the funds in the none too well stocked treasury of the federation.

Two brief sessions were held by the convention today, but practically no business was transacted.

WARSHIPS AT TANGIER

French Vessels Exchange Salutes With Spanish Cruiser.

TANGIER. — The warships Leon Gambetta and Edgar Quinet, which were ordered here a short time ago after a Spanish vessel had arrived, came into the harbor. Salutes were exchanged with the Spanish cruiser Cataluna.

The natives here are restless and sickness and misery are prevailing.

The Down-Trodden.

A certain battalion — the Terrors" — possessed but a very small band. The commanding officer's feet — he was a burly farmer — were — well, very large. One day the battalion was to march out, but the music was not forthcoming.

"Where on earth is the band?" queried the adjutant.

For some time there was no reply; but when the question was repeated, a gruff voice was heard from the rear rank:—

"I do believe, sir, the colonel trod on it by accident."

FORTUNE FROM A SHOVEL.

The Shovel Used by Navvies on Canadian Road Making an Invention of a Labourer in England.

The simplest labour saving device has quite possibly earned a fortune. Eighty-nine years ago a number of men were at work on the road-bed of a line of railway in course of construction between Birmingham and Manchester, England. They were cutting through a hill and moving the material by loosening it with picks, shovelling it into barrows, and wheeling it away. The shovels they were using were known as Irish shovels, with a square-cornered blade about 9 in. long. The work progressed slowly, and the sub-contractor in charge rebuked his workmen for not making quicker progress. One of them replied that if he would grind off the corners of the shovels it would be easier to get them into the earth, and consequently they would be able to work more quickly.

The contractor ridiculed the idea, which he considered a piece of impudence on the part of the workman, but the navvy was quite in earnest and not easily discouraged. When the work was completed he discussed the matter with a friend of his at Sheffield, who persuaded an ironmonger he knew to make a dozen or so as an experiment. The tools were offered to a large contractor, who promised to let some of his men use the new shovels and report results. About a week afterwards the contractor returned with the information that his men were fairly quarrelling as to who should use the new tools, some arriving to work a quarter of an hour before time in order to be there first when the tool-box was opened. The navvy's suggestion had proved a good one; a patent was secured, and an agreement made between the navvy, the manufacturer, and the contractor. When the navvy died he left a fortune of over $335,000 the proceeds from royalties on the manufacture of shovels under his patent.

THE GOLD SHIP

THE GOLD SHIP
The Way Treasure Is Transported From One Country to Another and the Precautions Taken To Protect It.

Of the many romantic happenings which relieve the drabness of modern life, few appeal more strongly to the imagination than the conveyance, to and fro, of the great quantities of gold — whether bullion or specie — which, week in, week out, form an ever-flowing golden stream round the civilized world.

Perhaps the largest quantities of the precious metal are those conveyed weekly from South Africa, the output of the mines, which in bars, not unlike exaggerated cakes of yellow soap in appearance, find their way to the Bank of England and the other great banks. The value of these weekly cargoes frequently runs into millions.

Then, too, every mail steamer which leaves the docks carries its quantum of gold. Gold in bars, gold in sovereigns, gold in the coinage of every nation.

The casual passer-by who wanders through the long corridors of the Bank of England may happen on a flagstone-paved courtyard, completely shut in by several sets of iron gates. Here he may see gold "bricks" being thrown into very ordinary-looking vans by sturdy porters, who handle the precious metal as if it were mere clay.

A Big Responsibility.

The van being full, a couple of individuals, also very ordinary-looking, climb in and seat themselves on its odd-paved floor, and off it goes to the docks or the railway-station.

Arrived at the docks, the gold, whether in bars or coin — which latter is packed in bags containing 1,000 sovereigns or their equivalent, which in turn are enclosed in iron-bound boxes, sealed with an official seal at the Bank of England on every point — goes straight on board the ship it is to voyage in.

The bars, or boxes, are received by one of the ship's officers, and, with the assistance of a couple of quartermasters, are carefully checked and tallied. The officer — usually the second officer — signs a receipt for them, and they are placed in a special hold, to which access is obtained by only one entrance, and that is locked and sealed.

From the moment that he has signed the receipt the officer is personally responsible for the bullion and specie and its safe custody and delivery, and access to the treasure-hold can only be had — legitimately — by means of the key, which remains in his possession.

When Silence Is Golden.

As to the exact precautions taken to guard the bullion-hold and its contents, and its precise situation, representatives of the various companies preserve a complete, and very wise, silence, and even sailors and officers on the actual vessel seldom know where the gold is kept during its voyage, as to tell is the secret.

Probably not more than three or four people in the ship are in possession of the information. The truth is that, surprising as the statement may seem to the uninitiated, there exists in existence very highly organised gangs of international thieves, whose special work is the theft, or attempted theft, of gold while in the charge of the steamer companies.

BENEFICIAL WARS

Some People Argue That Wars and Industrial Calamities Benefit Mankind in the Long Run.

Few calamities in the world's history have been unattended by some advantage to humanity. The late Lord Palmerston is credited with having stated that even a great war had its benefits for the English people inasmuch as it induced them to study geography. There are people who go much further, and seriously argue that the horrors of war are afterwards compensated by reforms and discoveries which mankind at large would never have enjoyed but for the drastic chastisement which war inflicts. Among the arguments of this kind deduced from history is the statement that all the wealth and luxury the world has enjoyed from the industry of brass-working would probably have been lost but for the sacking and burning of the city of Corinth in the year 146 B. C. In Corinth there were immense quantities of gold, silver, and copper, and it is said that the violence of the conflagration was so great that these precious metals were melted and ran together, and thus the famous Corinthian brass was first manufactured.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE.

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

Supercedes Massage As Wrinkle Remover

(This Woman Beautiful)

Many women regularly visit the beauty specialist to have their wrinkles ironed out with the help of hot applications, cold creams and massage. Most of us realize that there comes a time when no amount of persuasion of this sort will avail. This process of "wrinkle removing" is wrong in principle. Both the hot water and the massaging tend to expand and loosen the skin, besides softening the muscular foundation.

The very opposite result should be aimed at. The tissue should be strengthened, the skin tightened, so there'll be no room for wrinkles. The best known preparation for the purpose can be made at home by dissolving 1 oz. saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. Use as a wash lotion. The effect is really marvelous. Tell the druggist you want the powdered saxolite, which dissolves immediately.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE

Some Barristers' Curious Customs and Traditions Belonging to the Old Country.

From the day when he eats his first student's dinner to the day when he pockets his last professional fee, the man of wig and gown in England has to observe customs and to obey traditions such as the members of no other learned profession have any knowledge of and which are not even known in Canada amongst the lawyers.

The Temple, where for the most part the would-be Lord Chancellor has his legal nursery, is up orfest part of old-world observances, thinking it with the far-away times when it was the home of Crusading Knights, who feasted, six and more centuries ago, on the very spot on which the young Templar of our day eats the dinners that go some way towards qualifying him for his wig.

Brothers All!

The very grace that heralds his meal and the grace that concludes it are the same, in the Inner Temple, that the Knights of the Cross listened to when the Plantagenet Kings were donning their crowns. Like their martial predecessors, the Benchers file into the Middle Temple Hall preceded by the mace, the substitute for the old-time battle-axe. Their entry is heralded by a loud blow of the mace on the floor, as was that of the senior Knights Templar of old by a similar blow with the butt-end of a lance; and the grace is preceded by three blows with a wooden mallet, the ancient knightly form of invoking the Trinity.

Barristers and students mingle and feast together at the same tables, without any regard to seniority — a survival of the ancient Templar practice of the essential principle of brotherhood. If one of them is dissatisfied with his food, he may send a sample of it to the Treasurer for his verdict, just as the most junior Templar in King John's time would submit any food of which he disapproved to the Senior Knight; and the fragments of the modern Grand Day banquet are given to the servants of the Inn just as the surplus food was always given by the Knights of old to the poor.

The Knights Templar were summoned to the hall of feasting by the blowing of a horn; and to-day the Middle Templar is similarly called to the table by blasts of the very horn which summoned his predecessors in Elizabethan days. These, and the arrangement of messes, the ceremonials of bowing, the circulation of the loving-cup and many another, customs, all serve to link the Templar of to-day with his martial "forefathers" of long-dead centuries.

Briefs and Fees.

And these are but a few of the many quaint customs and regulations which the man of wig and gown must observe, if he does not wish to get himself into trouble with the authorities. When he is qualified to accept briefs and to play the part of a counsel "learned in the law," he must walk very warily to avoid the countless pitfalls of etiquette that mark his path to the Woolsack.

However an empty purse may tempt him, he must not accept a professional [illegible] his clerk, whether he has one or not. Nor must he accept less than the fee, however big it is, that is marked on his brief for all to see.

However much he may yearn for clients, he cannot even see one unless through the introduction of a solicitor; and the solicitor must be present at the interview. Between him and the litigant whose cause he is to plead there is a gulf which only a solicitor can bridge. And when the solicitor appears at his chambers, bearing the coveted brief, it must be handed, not to Mr. "Wig," but to his clerk, and it is the clerk, and not the master, who arranges the delicate matter of fees

No Touting Allowed.

Some professional men may tout for clients; but not so the barrister. It will be an evil day for him when he starts brief-hunting, though he may be starving for lack of golden guineas. If he calls at a friendly solicitor's office for a gossip, or accepts an invitation to a dinner or a dance at his house, he is going perilously near the danger-line. If he is a wise man he will avoid the company of solicitors and pass them by, like the Levite, "on the other side."

On circuit the watchful eyes of Etiquette are always on him. Even for the sake of company, if he be a sociable man, he must not travel there by any class but the first; nor may he reach an Assize town earlier than the day before the list opens.

However much his services are wanted on another circuit than his own he must turn a deaf ear, unless his brief comes to him marked with a special fee of at least fifty guineas, in addition to the fee he would receive on his own circuit. If he is unable to appear in any case for which he is retained, he must provide a substitute; for whose services, however, he may pay what he pleases. The fee he puts into his own pocket.

Even his professional dress is regulated for him to the extent that he must not appear in court in any coat but one of sober black; nor must he show his face in court if he is carrying the blue bag, which may be his familiar companion in the street and train. Unless he is entitled to carry a red bag (and this he may not buy—it must be given to him by some friendly senior), he must be content to make his appearance with his briefs and papers under his arm.

tainly made no mistake in taking Robt. Rogers into his cabinet.

F. D. MONK

Probably one of the strongest men in the new cabinet is the Hon. F. D. Monk who represents our French compatriots though he himself is half English. Elected first in 1896 this single minded patriot has taken his parliamentary responsibilities so seriously that his practice — which was a large one — had to suffer and only his sense of duty to his people held him on. So that Mr. Monk entered the Cabinet a comparatively poor man. Truly a life of self sacrifice and a splendid encouragement to men of culture to serve their country. As Minister of Public Works Mr. Monk is the spending man of the Cabinet.

Generally speaking, wheat growing has been the mainstay Horse-raising, also, has received attention to an extent sufficient to lead Mr. Grigg to pass opinion that a man can make as much money on a half section of rough land raising colts as he can on a real good quarter at wheat-growing. Pigs, also, are kept and on different occasions have helped him "out of a tight place." He finds that, as a rule ,there is enough feed around to fatten a bunch. The farm comprises 640 acres of which about one-quarter is summerfallowed annually Wheat is grown for two years, and then oats or barley. Recently, Mr. Grigg has rented his farm for a year in order that he and his good wife may spend the winter in California and take a well-earned rest.

HON. HUGH J. MACDONALD
Police Magistrate
Winnipeg

Mr. Hugh Macdonald who was lately appointed Police magistrate of the Gateway city was formerly premier of Manitoba. Probably the importance of his magistracy lies principally in the fact that the man he succeeded was the famous late T. Mayne Daly, and though Mr. Macdonald is not in his famous father's rank he is big hearted enough to make the attempt to fill a big man's shoes. Nothing attempted, nothing done is certainly not in his make up.

Squire Macdonald is a son of the late John A. Macdonald, and might have been premier of Canada today, if he had remained in Dominion politics, and followed closely in the footsteps of his dad But he chose the nearer honors offered by a provincial premiership and got out of the running for the post of prime minister of Canada.

Canadian writer

Mrs. McClung has lived in Manitoba for the last thirty years, having come from Owen Sound with her parents in the very early days of this province. However, she is always very careful to explain that she was only a "mere child" at that time, and yet her stories of some of the happenings of the long journey by ox-train from Winnipeg to the point on the Souris river where her parents located, are so vividly told that we are forced to believe that she must have been a very bright child for her years.

Mrs. McClung, who before her marriage was Nellie L. Mooney, received her education at a coutnry school and afterwards at the Central Collegiate in Winnipeg. She taught school for five years and then married Mr R W. McClung, who was engaged in the drug business in Manitoba, Man They lived in Manitou until last summer, when they removed to Winnipeg, and have taken up their residence on Chestnut street. Mrs. McClung was elected president of the local branch of the Canadian Woman's Press club, for this year.

Mrs. McClung has written two books, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and "The Second Chance;" also many short stories. Last year she gave a series of recitals, from her own books, in Manitoba, and also in Ontario.

At the present time she is engaged in writing another book

Mrs. McClung chooses for her characters the plain people of every day life, when we all know. The keen ideality of her writing makes a strong appeal to the discriminating reader.

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

AN EFFECT OF BACK DRAPERY

Quite like the manner of a gown in one of Steven's pictures was one worn by a leader of the Paris modes; its skirt, a bit full, dragged a little, and there was an apron overskirt, heavily fringed, which was pulled in wrinkling folds to the back and disposed of in a large looped bow only a little below the belt line. Narrower fringe edged the fichu corsage and bordered the short, straight sleeves, which opened over little undersleeves of white muslin drawn below the elbow into a narrow, embroidered band. The fichu left a space in the back and front that was covered with an unlined muslin guimpe, its little round collar tied with a knot of cerise ribbon. Black feathers waved from her wide hat of cerise-colored velvet.

A Pretty Sash

A new serge dress for the winter very simple, to be worn with white collars and cuffs, has a black satin ribbon sash tied cleverly, and easy to copy. The ribbon is about six inches wide, and passes straight around the waist, being only tacked in place. Where it meets at the back it is tied in a regular knot, the width of the ribbon being enough to make it one of good size. Then below this are tied two loops, and those droop gracefully on either side, the big knot forming the middle. The whole is one of those simple touches by which the French accomplish a good effect.

A MUCH TRIMMED FUR COAT WITH ADAPTABLE IDEAS

Old clothes may easily be refurbished this season. Many different fabrics may be used in one garment. Coats are much trimmed. A bit of velvet and bands of broad titan braid give a decided air to the simplest coat.

A handsome caracul jacket serves as an example. A band of velvet is set a couple of inches above the bottom, while the flat deep collar and very deep cuffs of velvet are trimmed with titan braid. The collar extends into a panel and through the broad band around the coat and falls far down upon the dress skirt.

A muff and hat of caracul add to the effect.

The Empress Eugenie

The Empress Eugenie spends most of her time in England.

'I am not getting younger,' she says, 'and Farnham is now my home.'

There is a series of rooms in the house at Farnham devoted to momentoes of Napoleon IV. as the Empress still like to call the Prince Imperial, who was killed during the Zulu War. In a locked cabinet are the remains of the Prince's uniform, which his mother brought back from Africa when she made the journey to see the spot where he was slain. But most interesting of all is the sword with which he defended himself, the same that Napoleon I. wore at Arcola, at Austerlitz and at Waterloo.

It was not a sword of state, but a plain fighting sword in a simple sheath. When King Cetewayo was conquered this sword, which had terrified Europe, was found among the spoils in his kraal.

The best product of the prairie is not wheat but men, and the quarter section that produces a thinking man, full fledged in all his powers, may well be held to have performed its mission.

GREAT CROWDS OF TOURIST AT MALTA—THEIR MAJESTIES WILL REMAIN THERE FOR THREE DAYS.

French Vessels Joined the Mediterranean Fleet, and the Welcome of the Populace Was Very Enthusiastic.

Malta, Jan. 24.—King George and Queen Mary landed here to-day, and were given an enthusiastic welcome. The picturesque harbor of La Valletta, formerly held by the Knights of St. John as the most easterly bulwark of christendom in the Mediterranean, was gaily decorated, and the British fleet thundered a royal salute.

The King and Queen were received in state by General Sir Ian S. Hamilton, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean department. Chief Minister Sir J. Carbone; members of the Legislative Council and a crowd of nobles. A drive through the troop-lined streets to Government House, was followed by a reception at which most of the Maltese officials and noblemen were presented to the King and Queen.

Although many of the Maltese are closely related to the Italians, they hate their neighbors, and much prefer self-government under British rule. Therefore, the reception accorded their Majesties was one of the most enthusiastic they have received since they left England.

Beside the British Mediterranean fleet which was present in virtually full strength, a squadron of French warships under the command of Admiral Boue de Lapeyrpre joined in the greeting, thus making the existing friendship between Great Britain and France. The city of Valletta is thronged with British and French visitors, who hope come especially to participate in the festivities.

The King and Queen intend to remain here until Jan. 27.

COLLEGE AUTHORITIES SENT REV. C. O. JOHNSTON COPY PRESENT OATH.

An Action for Libel If Toronto Clergyman Doesn't Apologize—He May be Prosecuted.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—There is a possibility of the College of Jesuits suing Rev. C. O. Johnston of Toronto for his utterances in regard to their oath.

It was announced by the College authorities this morning that Mr. Johnston was using a copy of an obsolete Jesuit oath in his arguments and that a copy of the oath used to-day had been sent him, and his error pointed out.

If Mr. Johnston does not apologize it was stated, action for libel may be instituted against him.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 24.—A letter, threatening the Governor and his Council with violence if the Rev. C. V. T. Richeson is pardoned, is in the hands of the police here to-day. It was mailed to Lieut-Gov. Robert Luce, president of the Governor's Council which acts in an advisory capacity in connection with pardons. The letter, which is signed "Justice" also demands the pardoning of Silas Phelps, the Mauro Bridge Murderer, to whom Governor Foss recently refused clemency. The letter says in part: "Phelps must be saved and Richeson must die. If Phelps is killed, one man will be shot. If Richeson is saved from the electric chair two men will be shot. Beware of the "Black Hand."

TRENT CANAL TO BE COMPLETED

In the Lindsay Post of January the 23rd, there is quoted a despatch from Kingston, in which it is stated that a Minister of the Crown has intimated that the Government will not spend any money on the Georgian or Trent Valley Canal, but that the Welland Canal will be pushed with all speed.

If the Lindsay Post would look at the estimates brought down and voted by Parliament for the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1913, it would find that there is voted for the Trent Canal for construction $1,900,000, to pay damages by flooding $20,000.00, for a bridge across the Trent Canal at Frankford $20,000.00, for improvements to the Canal $41,500.00, maintenance and repairs $140,000.00. This is the largest amount of money ever voted by Parliament to the Trent Canal. While there are twelve members representing constituencies adjacent to and touching the Trent Canal they have all been looking after the interests of the constituencies faithfully, and there is no Minister has dealt more liberally, and taken more interest in pushing the Trent Canal to completion than the Honourable Frank Cochrane, and why papers try to put articles like the Lindsay Post claims they copied from somebody in Kingston, which is an injury to the Canal in order to make some political capital out of the statements which are not facts, we have confidence that the Honourable Frank Cochrane will continue to take an interest, and finish the Canal, and continue his liberality towards us as he has shown this year, his first year in office.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

ENORMOUS EATERS

Some Great Gastronomic Feats Performed at Different Times by Gluttons for Wagers, and Then Beast.

Not long ago a Berlin market porter undertook, for a wager, to put away, at one sitting, six mutton chops, twelve eggs, a goose, a duck, 6 lb. of potatoes, and 22 lb. of hay. Difficulties were anticipated with the last course, and large sums were laid against the accomplishment of the feat. The ingenious porter solved the difficulty by calling for a cigarette after he had finished the duck. He then set light to the hay, pounded the ashes up with the potatoes, and swallowed the lot. After a heated discussion the referee declared him the winner.

A certain Mr. Jerry Eke, of Norfolk, on one festive occasion had a small calf prepared and cooked for his special delectation, and deliberately consumed it, all but the bones, during the space of seven hours; and so little did this interfere with his excellent digestive powers that he joined his boon companions in a hearty repast the same night, and appeared to be none the worse for it.

Perhaps the smartest gastronomic feat on record was that performed by Vicomte de Vial Castel, who, to decide a wager, disposed of the following items in 2 hr. 40 min: Twenty-four dozen of oysters, a soup, a beefsteak, a pheasant stuffed with truffles, a salmis of ortolans, a dish of asparagus, another of peas, a pineapple, a dish of strawberries, five bottles of wine, ending with coffee and liqueurs. The meal was valued $125.

A Siberian soldier, notorious for the insatiable appetite he possessed, once disposed of a meal, in the presence of an English officer, consisting of 10 lb. of bread and butter, 10 lb. of beef, and a bundle of tallow-candles as dessert. A young Russian soldier, seventeen years of age, named Tarare, ate 24 lb. of beef in twenty-four hours, and on another occasion disposed of a repast prepared for fifteen people.

The recent publication by Col. Steele of the military history of the prairie province, brings to mind the leading part the colonel himself played in its history, though he took too great care that he did not figure in the article, so that the reading of it was like "Hamlet" with the principal character left out.

Col. Samuel Benfield Steele was born in County Simcoe in the year 1849 and educated at Orillia School and the British American Commercial School, Toronto. He was granted his first commission in 1866 in the Militia and on the return of the Red River Expedition in which he served gallantly, in 1870 joined the Canadian Permanent Artillery. Mr. Steele joined the N. W. Mounted Police in 1873 rising to superintendence in 1885. For the next four years Col. Steele commanded the Police in most of their expeditions against the Indians and to restore order in the new districts. He was chosen to command the "Strathcona" Horse in the South African War. Col. Steele is now commanding military district No. 11.

As a sportsman Col. Steele is well known as one who takes a keen interest in every exercise that will strengthen a man bodily and many liv-

BOILED SNAKE-ONE

Reptiles Though Repugnant to European Tastes are Considered in Many Climes as Dainty Dishes.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "cut" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled Snake—One."

A peculiarly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk, and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat markets of Senusar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcases hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in S——m, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

Milly: "You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married."

Tilly: "Oh, I don't know, dear! If you really love him you'll let him be loving for a little longer yet."

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper Making.

NEW YORK — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr. Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper making.

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says, "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers; or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

Their guarantee is sufficient and subscribers need not feel anxious although the picture may be delayed for a few weeks. Those who have not yet subscribed to The Family Herald and Weekly Star should do so at once and make sure of having a copy of the picture "Home Again." We learn that the Publishers are contemplating something for next season that will make this picture even more valuable than at present. ATTITUDE OF ELECTRIC CO.

Explanation of the Manager of the Life in Regard to the Matter.

Montreal, Jan. 25. — Speaking of the Canadian Associated Press report of Tuesday, which quoted Mr. T. B. Macaulay, as saying that 'if the Hydro-Electric Commission were looking for a fight it would be accommodated,' Mr. Macaulay stated to the 'Witness' this morning that this expression did not come from him, and added that such a retort was not characteristic of him.

He regretted that confusion should have entered needlessly into these discussions and negotiations between the Electric Company, Limited—of which he is president, and the Hydro-Electric Commission, and stated that the former. He stated his position as follows:

'We are not disposed to quarrel with the Hon. Adam Beck or the Hydro-Electric Commission, and press reports which speak of us as being hostile towards it are mistaken. Our position is simply this: We are willing to accept a reasonable offer for our company which would be arranged and arrived at through the usual form of arbitration. We don't want to force matters in any way.'

Why Sniffle and Sneeze With Catarrhal Cold?

BY BREATHING THE HEALING VAPOR OF CATARRHOZONE YOU GET RELIEF IN TEN MINUTES.

Every second person you meet seems to have a cold and almost nothing in the forenoons and Boniface are they promptly say, in most cases, there is nothing worth while except Catarrhozone. You inhale its pleasant vapor, and feel as if you were among the pine-clad hills. Its delicate healing medicine, right at the part which is troubled straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold, sneezing and catarrh at once ceases, bronchial irritation stops, in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple remedy, free from nostrums and irritants.

That Catarrhozone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Enos, Ont., to Dixon who is best known merchants:

"In the fall of 1906, writes Mr. Enos, about date of Dixon here, was a continual [illegible] which developed into catarrh. At that time I was living in New York State and treated with four different physicians, who advised me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhozone. I bought the usual outfit, and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhozone, and have used it since to check a cold with amazing results. It is the grandest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow-sufferers.

A Busy Place.

Edson, Alberta, the first divisional point on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway West of Edmonton, has become a busy point. Teams are leaving every day for the Grande Prairie country. Up in the Peace River District road houses have been erected, and good accommodation is afforded for travellers, and ample provision for the accommodation of horses is assured. This route is the favorable one to reach the Peace River country at this time, and it is surprising to see the number of people that are going in.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind., "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

An Editor's Impressions.

From Winnipeg West to Edmonton, I travelled over the new line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. To my mind the Grand Trunk Pacific is the last word in the railway world. A finer road bed, more luxuriant trains, or more courteous and efficient employees, I have never seen on railways, either in this country or in the country to the south of us.

It seems to me that a few personal experiences on the Grand Trunk Pacific may not be out of place here. These incidents will explain what I mean when I say that I was delighted with the service.

I left Winnipeg at 6 p.m. I had my seat reserved in Winnipeg, and boarded the car at 5.45. I removed my coat and hat, and was about to follow my usual custom of hanging them up, when the train porter approached and took them from me. I noticed he did the same with all the other passengers. I later made inquiries and learned that the instructions to the porters are that no clothing, parcels, hats or baggage are to be permitted to disfigure the "parlor" car. All that can be removed by the porter he will take charge of. Passengers may retain such as they wish in their seats, but nothing is to be hung up or placed in the aisles.

This may seem a small affair, but you have no idea how handsome a parlor car looks when lighted up if there is nothing to disfigure the beauty of the interior. It was a revelation to me, and I could not but admit that this was a striking example of what attention to small details meant in the operation of a great railway.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has a new system of collecting tickets and fares on the train.

The train conductor has nothing at all to do with the handling of tickets or cash. His business is to manage his train and all the officials who operate the train. His authority is absolute on the train.

The tickets and fares are all collected by an official known as the "train agent."

The whole duty of the "train agent" is to look after tickets and fares, and to keep a close record in this regard. He is an official that was new to me, and I was particularly interested in him. I was more particularly interested in him because of his extreme politeness to, and consideration for, his passengers.

In the West to-day the "train agent" steps up to you and makes a pleasant remark about the weather, or bids you "the time of day," and concludes with "Your ticket, please." He waits patiently till he gets it, and then invariably says, "Thank you."

If you are going far on his train he will tell you about the hour you will get to your journey's end. If the trip is short he will tell you two, three or four stations, as the case may be, and hand you a hat check.

I watched the first "train agent" I travelled with, and he treated every passenger in the car in the same courteous manner. It was pleasing to see it, and I tell you it pleased the travellers a mighty sight better than the old time poke in the ribs.

Later I travelled on a local train between Watrous and Winnipeg, and I determined to watch if all "train agents" on the G.T.P. were as polite as the first one I saw. I was not doomed to disappointment. He was even more courteous and considerate of every passenger.—Yankleek Hill Review.

Too Much for the Tiger!

On one occasion at a [illegible] on church in a remote village of India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much frightened as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

In the north-west of Canada a bear once strolled into a church. There was an immediate panic among the women, and some men sprang towards the shaggy beast, intending to slay him. Brum, however, took all these things very coolly, sat up, and looked so amiable and unaggressive that, instead of killing him, the men laughed at him. Indeed, it was almost immediately seen that the bear was the identical animal which had formerly been the pet of the village, and which had run from the settlements into the woods about six months before. He had only returned to pay his respects to his old friends, and finding them all at church had evidently thought he might as well go too.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer: —

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

FOOTBALL

How sports, once only followed in the British Empire, have become popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by on means confined to the white race. Some of the native teams in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussein Hegazi as centre forward on Saturday, against Stockport. He is an Egyptian, who showed capital form against English teams at Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he shaped very well for a first appearance in an important game.

Face Peeling Easy— Blonde or Brunette

"The blonde's complexion fades early, because her skin is extraordinarily thin and fine," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, perhaps the most famous living beauty. "The brunette's, as a rule, is the reverse. The skin is thicker and has a tendency to an oily appearance."

For either the faded blonde's skin or the brunette's oily or sallow complexion, the best remedy is ordinary mercolized wax. Used daily, this will give one an entirely new complexion within about a week's time. The wax gradually absorbs the worn-out surface skin, with all its defects, a little each day, without affecting the delicate underskin in the least. The latter will have the exquisitely beautiful glow of youth—indeed, one may readily lose ten or fifteen years from her age, so far as appearance goes, by a course of this simple treatment. Mercolized wax, securable at any drug store, is applied like cold cream,

VOL XXVIII NO 24 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 27 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

MANY PROVINCES TO SECEDE TO FRANCE

Italians Find It Does Not Pay to be Italians as Taxes Are Too Heavy—Many Are Threatening to Leave the Sunny Clime.

Rome, Jan. 26.—The Italians of the delightful Riviera di Ponento threaten to desert Italy and secede to France. They object to be Italians almost as much as do Tripoli Berbers, and angry meetings are being held, and fierce threats made that if the French republic does not immediately annex Riviera di Ponento, then Riviera di Ponento will solve the problem by annexing the French republic.

This time the cause of the trouble is business, not sentiment. The Italians find it does not pay to be Italian. Riviera di Ponento is the melodious name of the coast of Italy's westermost province, Maurizio, which includes the pretty winter resorts of Ventimiglia, Bordighera and San Remo. The coast itself is a blossoming garden, and though the hotels are owned by German ex-waiters the Italians profit also Business is good by the sea; but a little way back from the sun-gilt and tourist-gilded coast, on the hills and in the transverse valleys, the inhabitants threaten to die of hunger, and it is this which has brought them to the conclusion that it doesn't pay to be Italian.

Thirty communes have sworn solemnly to pay no more taxes, and to withdraw their representatives from the local parliament of Maurizio. This was followed by a monster meeting at Porto Maurizio, the provincial capital. The prefect, Baron Von Menziger, tried to calm the tumult, but the uproar grew worse. A resolution was passed that the whole province, with the towns of Onegia, San Remo, Bordighera and Ventimiglia should appeal to President Falliéres, and "in accord with the right of national self-disposal" hold a plebiscite and decide by vote for secession to France.

The notable fact is that the people in the prosperous tourist towns on the coast back up the peasants in the interior and also sigh for union with France. The reason here is the severity of the Italian taxation. The government at Rome replies with promises of relief; but it has done nothing practical, so the Rivietians are protesting that they will proclaim independence of Italy before next spring.

Another Movement.

"On the east side of Italy is another "away from Italy" movement. This is among the Slovenian communes of the province of Udine, transferred to Italy in 1866, together with the then Austrian province of Venetia. The Slovenians were included in the cession as a result of the ignorance of the diplomats, who thought a Slovenian was a sort of Italian. They live around Cividale, not ten miles from the Austrian frontier, and when they heard that Italy wants Austrian territory on the ground that it contains Italians they proclaimed that Austria should want them, as all the other Slovenians are Austrian subjects.

The Austrian Slovenians number a million and a half, spread over Carniola, Styria, Carinthia, Goerz, Triest and Istria. The Bishop of Udine, Monsignor Trinkero, heads the Slovenian movement. He induced his flock not to join in the recent Unity of Italy celebrations and his flock obeyed him. Since then they have been on bad terms with the Italians and wish as soon as possible to go over to Austria.

So that, having annexed Tripoli, Italy has these provinces which want to quit. The added taxation that must follow the African adventure will make them feel that way more fiercely still. There are sure to be more taxgatherers presently to strip them even barer than to-day.

WILL FIGHT TO STRIKE OUT THE TAX ON BAR RECEIPTS

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Local hotelmen consider that they have just about reached the end of the long lane in regard to license fees and they will now endeavor to knock out the Ontario Government tax of five per cent. on bar receipt exceeding a certain amount.

The meeting of the Hotelmen's Association was not the innocent little election of officers affairs it looked like in the report furnished the newspapers.

Figures submitted to the Association went to show that the five per cent. tax did not interfere at all with 700 license holders in the Province outside of Toronto.

With very few exceptions it only hits the Toronto boniface to any extent. The Toronto license fee is $1,600 which for some of the hotelmen is about doubled, owing to the special tax.

The Association is advised that by making and accepting this special tax the Government contributes itself a partner in the hotelmen's business and if for instance, an hotel company fail in business the Government would be responsible in regard to the liabilities.

A legal opinion that the imposition of the tax in its present form is unconstitutional was discussed and it was decided that a deputation should wait upon the Government with a view to having the tax removed.

"If they will give me the five per cent. they can run my business and take the rest," one prominent hotelman is credited with having said.

So strong do the local license holder feel in their position that they expect, at least after their representations have been made to the Government, that all round increase to the license fee will soon supplant the five per cent. tax.

A NEW LINE FROM OTTAWA

Central Gadada Railway Said to be Developing

WILL BUILD TO MIDLAND

When Completed Line Will be 430 Miles in Length—Will Probably Come to Peterborough.

Montreal, Jan. 27. OR some considerable time it has been rumored that the Central Canada Railway whose head office is in Trenton, is likely to be extended both east and west. An English syndicate is said to have agreed to finance the road by taking over the bonds. The proposed Line will extend from Montreal, through Ottawa and Peterborough to Midland.

Messrs. C. J. Willis and Sons of London, England, the well-known firm of English contractors, is said to have the contract to construct a double-track line between Montreal and Ottawa. The first section of the new road which the Railway proposes building is between Montreal and Midland, Ont., a town on the Georgian Bay. The whole line when completed will be 430 miles long, and will likely all be constructed by Messrs. Willis and Sons. The ties for the new road have been purchased and tenders have been called for the steel. Work will start on the Montreal-to-Ottawa section in the spring.

According to Mr. D. Lyall, M. Inst. C.E., a local representative of Willis and Sons, the contractors, have as yet gone no further in choosing the route of the new line than to take a number of surveys.

The Central Railway Company of Canada is capitalized at one million pounds sterling, and lately floated sufficient bonds on the English market to construct a new line between Ottawa and Montreal.

POPE WILL NOT BE ASKED TO WITHDRAW NE TEMERE

Montreal, Que., Jan. 27.—Positive denial was made this morning by Archbishop Bruchesi to the story sent out from Montreal to The Mail and Empire to the effect that there was a movement under way among the Roffian Catholic clergy of the Dominion to have the Ne Temere decree withdrawn in so far as it applies to Canada, before the judicial committee of the Privy Council has passed upon the constitutionality of the Lancaster bill. Speaking through his secretary, Canon Roy, Archbishop Bruchesi left no room for doubt on the matter.

"It is an absolute fabrication from whole cloth from beginning to end," he affirmed.

MONTREAL CLERGY DENY IT

"Further denials were forthcoming this morning from various well known members of the Roman Catholic clergy that there was any movement on foot or any contemplated to have the act withdrawn. Rev. Father Donnelly, pastor of St. Anthony's and a prominent clergyman said there was no basis in fact for the story. "If there was any such movement on foot, I certainly would know about it," he declared "and this is all news to me."

STATED CASE WOULD GO ON.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—The story from Montreal to the effect that the Catholic Church will withdraw the Ne Temere decree from Canada is not credited in Ottawa. However, if it were, it would not effect the Government's stand, and the stated case will be prepared and sent to Privy Council, as it is felt the question should be cleared up.

It is understood that the Minister of Justice is already preparing the stated questions, and they will be submitted to the courts immediately.

Mr. Doherty says they hope to have an answer in a year so that they can then know just what are their powers and how they stand.

ICE FAMINE THREATENED OVER SOURCE OF SUPPLY

Board of Health Will Not Permit Ice to Be Taken From Little Lake for Domestic Use

There is considerable trouble over the ice supply for the coming summer. Last fall The Times repeatedly warned the Board of Health and others that steps should be taken to secure pure ice, as the ice from the Little Lake is far from what it should be. No attention was paid to the matter until recently, when the Board prohibited the taking of ice from the lake for domestic use. The Allin Ice Company had already begun to fill their extensive store houses when the order came to stop. They were not expecting any action this year, for they as well as others who have had their ice houses filled from the lake, naturally felt that reasonable notice should have been given so that they could have arranged to harvest elsewhere.

A meeting of the Board was called yesterday afternoon to deal with the matter.

Messrs. Wm. Scott, Gordon Logan and Ald. Gillespie were present, and objected to the resolution passed at a recent meeting of the Board, prohibiting the use of ice from the Little Lake, on the ground that the manner in which they used the ice, it did not come in contact with the foodfood or drink as the case might be. Mr. Logan appeared on behalf of the Calcutt Brewing Co., and described the manner of their use of the ice, clearly satisfying the Board that the conditions were sanitary in every particular.

Mr. Scott and Ald. Gillespie explained that their refrigerators were thoroughly air and water tight, and that neither the dropping nor the ice itself could come in contact with the articles in storage.

Ald. Gillespie thought that there was no danger in using the ice for refrigerators in the stores, and he was doubtful if any person had put the ice directly on the goods.

Mr. Kerneghan assured him that this was often done, and he further stated that he had seen the ice put in lemonade, etc.

The Mayor then made a motion to the effect that in the cases of the men who were waiting on the Board and others so situated, the Medical Health Officer could investigate, and if he was satisfied as regards the conditions, he could issue a permit allowing them to secure ice from the lake, either by cutting it themselves or authorizing it to be cut for the use described top him. The Board was unanimous in their support of this resolution and the matter was settled.

The chairman, Dr. Young, and the Medical Health Officer, will interview Mr. Allin of the Allin Ice Co., and will report to the Board at an early date, as regards the matter of cutting this infected ice, and delivering it to those who secure permits to use it, and the necessary precautions will be taken to see that the same [illegible] vehicles are not used [illegible] Board, now [illegible]

ULSTER NOT PACIFIED BY CHURCHILL'S COMPROMISE

FEAR OF RIOTING STILL EXISTS THOUGH PERHAPS NOT SO ACUTE.

Meeting Will Be Held in Another Part of the City—Hardships of Siege Is Avoided.

London, Jan. 27.—Winston Spencer Churchill's action in giving up his intention to speao in Ulster Hall, Belfast, on February 8, is commented upon favorably in to-day's newspapers. Only the bitterest opponents of the First Lord of Admiralty chide him with retreating from a position which he should never have taken up.

The Home Rule meeting in Belfast will now probably be held in St. Mary's Hall, which is right in the Nationalist quarter.

Despatches from Ireland to-day express the fear that it will be difficult to prevent trouble in Belfast on the day that the Home Rule meeting may that they have created a force which they will be unable to control. Some of the Irish Unionists newspapers now advise Winston Churchill to cancel his visit entirely.

BOTH SIDES BELIEVED.

London, Jan. 25.—Winston Churchill's conciliatory move, whereby he agrees not to hold a meeting in Ulster Hall, where his father, Lord Randolph Churchill, said "Ulster will fight, and Ulster will be right," but to speal elsewher! in Belfast, is hailed by the Unionists as a great victory. However, there is little doubt that they welcome the opportunity to escape from an unpleasant position, as public opinion seems to be strong against them. Mr. Churchills letter was made public too late for the Orange leaders to arrive at a decision last night, but the general belief is that the trouble has been averted and the harbor board appear to have placed themselves in an uncomfortable position by needlessly snubbing Mr. Churchill.

MR. CHURCHILL'S LETTER.

Mr. Churchill says in his letter:

"It is my duty to keep my promise to the Ulster Liberal Association and assert the right of free speech in a public meeting. But as the main objection appears to be directed against the holding of the meeting in Ulster Hall, I shall ask the Irish Liberal Association to accede to your wish. There will thus be no necessity for your friends to endure the hardships of a vigil or sustain the anxieties of a siege. Neither will it be necessary for you to break the law in an attempt to deprive us forcibly of the use of property to which we are law-

On the contrary I desire to choose whatever hall or place is least likely to cause ill feeling to the Orange party."

MUST HOLD MEETING.

The letter concludes:

"It has, however, become necessary to public liberties that the meeting should take place at Belfast on February 8th, and I intend to hold it there in the lawful exercise of the elementary rights of citizenship."

CITY COUNCIL'S LEGAL COMMITTEE IN A SHORT BUSINESS SESSION

The City Council's Legal Committee met this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Present Mayor Bradburn, chairman Alderman Brown, Aldermen Gordon Anderson, Duffus and Gillespie.

The chairman and the City Solicitor were authorized to investigate Mrs. Milborough's claim for $194 damages accruing from her falling on a faulty wooden sidewalk on Hunter street (north side), October 16th last.

On advice of the City Solicitor the Committee agreed to await action on Judge Huycke's ruling that the St. Alphonsus Lyceum be exempt from taxes until the result of the hearing of eight similar cases now before the court of appeal at Ottawa. This will give Council the benefit of the Court of Appeal's decisions in these cases before them as criterions upon which to be governed in accepting or appealing Judge Huycke's ruling in the case of the taxes, the city claims it is justified in levying against the St. Alphonsus Lyceum (better known as the T.A.S.).

Although not within their province the committee informally discussed the proposed garbage by-law and agreed that such a measure is a crying need.

Ald. Brown offered that during his trip through the West last fall, he learnt on enquiry that a garbage by-law is in force there in a city of [illegible] continuously employed.

Ald. Duffus offered that the booklet published for the Scotch Curlers, who recently visited this city, will prove a splendid advertising medium for Peterborough. The booklet was handsomely illustrated and descriptive of Peterborough, will be taken back to Scotland as souvenirs, and unquestionably freely commented upon and quoted from in the British press, thus drawing attention to this city as a desirable industrial centre. Consequently he thought the Council should pay the cost of publishing these booklets—70 at 70c each $49 in all. Ald. Duffus moved in this direction, but secured no seconder.

Ald. Duffus here contended that the Council should advertise Peterborough in a similar way, which he thought would aid considerably in booming this city.

SHOT, BEHEADED AND BURNED

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 27.—General Pedro Montero, who was recently the popular hero of Guayaquil was yesterday shot by the angry populace, dragged into the streets, beheaded, and burned.

General Montero in November last was proclaimed president by the troops stationed there, but handed over the leadership in the Provisional Government to General Flavio Alfaro. A revolutionary army went from Guayaquil to meet the Government troops from Quito, who under command of General Leonidas Plaza defeated them and eventually forced Guayaquil to capitulate.

General Montero with other leaders was captured on January 22, and last evening General Montero was brought before a courtmartial and sentenced to sixteen years in the penitentiary.

When General Plaza, who presided over the courtmartial, announced the sentence, crowds of angry people who had surrounded the palace, awaiting the result, shouted violent protests. The excitement increased rapidly and some of them rushed into the court room, riddled General Montero with bullets, seized his body and dragged it into the open air. There they hacked the head off the shoulders, gathered fuel with which they started a fire and then cast head and trunk into the flames.

THE POWER QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would suggest to Mayor Bradburn and members of the Council that it would be a good stroke of business to get the power matter settled as speedily as possible. There is no use in dilly-dallying over this matter. Let the cost of hydro power be ascertained, and a by-law submitted to the electors for the required amount without delay. There is no use in waiting until next summer or fall before making a start. Let our Council show that they mean business.

THE MARRIAGE DECREE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would ask The Times to publish the article in this week's Orange Sentinel on the Papal decree. It is the best exposition of the matter I have seen, and shows that Premier Borden did exactly the right thing. It is all very well for the Liberals and those hostile to the government to try and raise a noise and say things that are not true regarding the action of the government.

When the Privy Council renders its decision, as it certainly will do, stating that the Dominion Parliament has full power to pass a marriage law, then we will find Mr. Burnham in the line, backing up Mr. Borden in placing such a law on the statute book of Canada.

MONK ACCUSED OF MURDER IN CONNECTION WITH ROBBERY

Precious Stones to the Value of $75,000 Taken From Statue of the Virgin Have Been Recovered.

Czenstochow, Russian Poland, Jan. 26.—Precious stones to the value of over $50,000, which were stolen two years ago from the statue of the Virgin, known as the Miraculous Black Virgin, in the famous Monastry of St. Paul, in this city, were recently discovered in the store of a jeweler named Wiler, in the city of Lubin, Poland. Clues were also found which led to the recovery of another $25,000 worth of jewels taken from the same statue in a house near Lemberg, in Austrian Galicia.

Father Macoch, one of the monks of the Monastery of St. Paul, has now been accused of murdering his brother because he threatened to inform the authorities that he was the author of the robbers. Father Macoch will be tried on the capital charge next month.

The Pope since the date of the robbery has presented two diamond crowns of the value of $40,000 to the shrine of the Virgin in the Monastery which is visited every year by over a quarter of a million pilgrims.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THREE MILLION MATCHES

Fifteen Hundred Billion is the Number of Matches Used Annually by the Entire World for Smoking.

It has been estimated that, for each minute of time, the civilised nations of the world strike three million matches. This is said to be the average for every minute of the twenty-four hours of the day. Fifteen hundred billion is the number for the entire year.

The importance of the industry which turns out the little splinters of wood tipped with sulphur or some other material ignited by friction, is only recognised when the average smoker tries to contemplate his predicament if he had to go back to the time when he had to coax a spark from a tinder-box. Small and insignificant as it is, the match demands as much attention in the choice of the wood involved in its manufacture as any other forest product. Only the choicest portions of the best trees are suitable. Sapwood, knotty or cross-grained timber will not do. Instead of being a by-product, the little match is turned out at hundreds of mills over the country where the by-products are bulky objects like doors, sashes, shingles, sidings, posts, and cord-woods. The pines, linden, aspen, white cedar, poplar, birch and willow are the most suitable match timbers.

IT IS VERY STRANGE

How the Men Who Know Themselves Be Taken Down.

Most of us have met, at some time or other, that objectionable individual who "has heard that years ago," and knows everything under the sun worth knowing.

When next you run up against him, ask him how many five cent bits, laid side by side, it would take to cover the surface of a half-dollar without overlapping the edge. He may suggest four, and may probably regard you with suspicion when you inform him that not even two of little coins can be so arranged.

When he has digested this marvel, ask him which city is the farther east — Edinburgh or Liverpool — and note the look of humility on his face when you produce a map and prove to him that Liverpool enjoys that distinction!

If he is still cocksure about things in general, get him to tell you how many pennies, piled one on the other, it takes to equal the height of a quarter. Mindful of his previous failure, he may hazard eight or nine, when you promptly pulverise him with the fact that fourteen are required.

If, however, he is still obdurate, ask him how far the human eye can see on a clear day. He may say thirty or forty miles, whereupon you complete his discomfiture by informing him that ninety-five million miles is nearer the mark — the distance of the earth from the sun.

Birth Stones.

For ages certain gems have been allotted to the months, each with its significance. The list given below is one generally accepted:—

January—Garnet. Constancy and fidelity.

February—Pearl or amethyst. Purity, peace of mind.

March—Jasmith or bloodstone: Courage in affection.

April—Diamond: Unchanging affection.

May—Emerald: Ensures happiness in love and domestic felicity.

June—Agate: Ensures long life, health and prosperity.

July—Ruby: Exempts from love woes and anxiety.

August—Sardonyx: A charm for conjugal felicity.

September—Sapphire: Ensures cheerfulness.

October—Opal: Helpfulness and happy faith.

November — Topaz: Fidelity in friendship.

December — Turquoise: Success, happiness, and many friends.

The Prodigal's Return

Larry could not get on very well with his people at home, so he emigrated, and, after a time, went to India.

After some years he returned to his native village. How surprised the old folks would be! He walked along the village street in his smart-looking uniform, his heart beating fast as he neared the old home. Opening the gate, he stepped up the gravel path. Just then a ferocious dog rushed out and grabbed the soldier's leg. Shaking the dog off, he speedily regained the road, and was standing on the other side of the fence when his old father came out.

"Ah! my son," said the old man, "like the prodigal, you have returned."

"Yes," growled the soldier; "but it's your confounded dog that's enjoyed the fatted calf."

The Canadian Club.

Arrangements have been made to have Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., of Toronto, to address the Club on the evening of Thursday, February 1. Members are asked to kindly keep this date in mind. Mr. Johnston has the reputation of being a very entertaining speaker and a large meeting is hoped for on that evening.

SPORTING COLUMN.

BEST LIGHTWEIGHT IN THE SOUTH

Year Champion as Result of Friends' "Joshing".

Many persons, including Ray Bronson, Grover Hayes and Abe Attell, boxers, claim credit for bringing out Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who looms up as a dangerous opponent to Champion Wolgast. Mandot says Johnny Lynch, of Boston, is responsible for him.

Two and a half years ago, Mandot, pushing a delivery wagon about New Orleans for his father's bakery, was induced to enter an amateur tournament. He did not know who his first opponent would be until the night of the fight. Imagine his surprise to find himself matched against a boy larger than himself, who had been the neighborhood bully for years. Mandot's heart almost failed, and although he knocked out his opponent, he took a hard lacing.

Joe had enough then and there, but friends "kidded" him into another match. The little southerner didn't know anything about the game, but among the spectators was Johnny Lynch, training for a fight with Freddy Andrews, of Milwaukee. Lynch heard Mandot's friends making fun of him and asked the boy to train with him.

Joe learned rapidly and Lynch secured a preliminary engagement for him and he won handily.

After this Mandot learned from every top-notcher who landed in New Orleans. He made friends for him among the boxers and they helped him along.

Mandot's rise has been little short of phenomenal. Since he joined with Blackey Raggio, a Memphis Sportsman, he has defeated all comers.

Had it not been for the "kidding" of his friends, Mandot would not be a near champion. His determination to silence the "joshing" and his natural ability made him a star, although he never fails to credit Lynch as the man who really gave him the first encouragement.

PEDESTRIANISM

A good performance was accomplished by C. Harris when beating Pat White for the 10 miles Irish professional running championship recently. The event was decided at Dublin, and as rain fell in torrents during the race, the track was very heavy. In spite of this handicap, Harris covered the journey in 53 mins. 58 secs., winning by 500 yards, a very smart bit of running on the part of the ex-amateur.

The times accomplished in the series of sprint races between A. B. Postle and J. Donaldson, at Melbourne, make interesting reading. The course was grass, but a good turf track is quite as fast as cinders. Postle's 7 4-5 secs. for 80 yards, and Donaldson's 9 2-5 secs. for 100 yards, are both splendid, but Donaldson's 10 4-5 secs. for 100 yards does not strike one as remarkable. On the 100 yards' time Donaldson ought to have shown 10 1-2 secs. at least, though possibly Postle failed to push him. There can be little doubt that the winner is a wonderful sprinter, and the writer can testify from personal experience that Donaldson is very modest about his great ability.

The Quebec Hockey Club have concluded arrangements with the Quebec Skating Club, and it has been decided to erect a new gallery at the far end of the rink. This will give increased accommodation. The architects are now busy upon the preparation, and the work will be rushed through for the opening match. Three new exits will be installed.

The line-up of the Quebec team is expected to be one of the strongest it has had for a long time. Outside clubs are still dickering for some of last year's players, but nothing definite has yet been done.

The locals expected to get to work tonight, but owing to the mild spell the ice was not in condition.

A PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Employee of Auburn Mills Caught in Belt and Injured.

On Wednesday afternoon Jerry McCormack, an employee of the Auburn Woollen Mills, while attempting to throw a chain belt on a revolving pulley, was caught and whirled around the shaft, sustaining a broken shoulder blade and bruises on the head and body. The machinery was promptly stopped and a hurry call sent for an ambulance and a doctor.

The victim was hurried to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. McClelland dressed his wounds. He is now doing as well as can be expected.

TO HELP THE EXPORT TRADE

Well Known Business Man of Montreal Urges Canadian Manufacturers To Wake Up and Get After Foreign Trade

Mr. George F. Johnston, the well-known financier is urging the manufacturers and traders of Canada to consolidate and form an association through which authentic information of the wants of other countries—particularly South America—could be secured for the benefit of Canada. Mr. Johnston's appeal, in part, is:—

Has not the time arrived when we should put forth some concerted action whereby we would render valuable aid to our Canadian exporters. This might be accomplished by following the example of our neighbors to the south of us by the formation of a Canadian Export Association. Our export trade is growing at a remarkably rapid rate and the work of such an association would be to educate our expanding manufacturers and traders who may be anxious to participate in profitable over-seas business. It would be the purpose of the suggested association to establish an intelligence department and through the agency of accredited correspondents who would supply ruling prices, point out new markets and fresh sources for the purchase of our raw material.

It may be news to many Canadians to know that there is scarcely a country in the world where Canadian merchandise does not find a ready market, both in the countries of the Old and New World. We have now a direct steamship service to Australia, New Zealand and the Far East and we have lately turned our attention to the development of trade to Latin South America and with most promising results.

From January 1st. to September 30th. of last year, the exports and imports between Canada and Argentine aggregated $5,051,467, which is $1,000,000 more than the previous year. During the nine months above mentioned, Canada sent to Argentine $2,869,913 worth of goods and bought from that republic $2,181,554.

In looking over all the countries' trade with each of the Republics of South America, I personally believe that our trade of 1910 with the Argentine might be duplicated in each one of the other Republics, if we put the proper trade machinery into operation. Canada in the last few years, has been developing her export trade at a very rapid rate.

I would like to see our government assist in establishing a direct line of steamships with South America. This would facilitate the work of an energetic and patriotic Canadian Export Association. In many ways South America presents a very attractive field for Canadian business men and [illegible] with South America and its business, that there is no doubt a large trade could be worked up, if proper attention were paid to cultivating the republics of South America. As everyone knows, South Americans for the most part, are not competitors of Canada. They buy what we have to sell and sell us commodities which we require. The only exception to this statement is the Argentine Republic and even with this republic our export trade last year was over $8,000,000. Canada should have, next to Great Britain, the first claim upon South American trade, because of the fact that the chief commercial houses of South America are English and would naturally give a preference to Canada. There is invested in South American enterprises at the present time, over two billions dollars of British money and as a result of this large amount of British capital invested, Canada, as a part of the British Empire, would receive a cordial welcome should she energetically seek closer trade relations with South American countries.

As a Canadian much interested in Canadian enterprises, I would like to see a system of organized effort to extend and enlarge our export trade and for that purpose, I would suggest the formation of a powerful league, known as the Canadian Export Association, which league ought to secure diplomatic influence for the successful exploitation of Canadian commerce. In order to secure a remunerative business for a direct steamship line, the government might grant a subsidy, which subsidy would not be required after a more extensive trade had been developed, as it would soon be apparent that Canadian steamships would soon have a paying cargo each way.

It might be pointed out that the greater part of manufactured goods used in South America are imported and that there is hardly an article manufactured in Canada which would not find a ready and profitable sale in the south. Implements are used there in enormous quantities. Cement is used in millions of tons. Leather goods, including saddles, boots and belting are everywhere in great demand owing to the agricultural nature of the country. The bulk of this trade is now going to Americans, Germans and the Belgians. We in turn need their asphalt, nuts, mutton, hides, mahogany, rice, rubber, wool, etc. Our Canadian government has neglected putting a live, energetic Canadian representative in each one of the Republics of South America and I think the time has arrived for either the government or such an association as I have indicated to take immediate steps towards the development of our Canadian trade in the south.

Mr. Johnston invites correspondence from manufacturers and traders of the Dominion on the subject and if there is sufficient interest manifested, necessary steps will be taken to organize an export association and to develop and extend our export trade.

An Enjoyable Smoker.

The West End Club held an enjoyable smoker in their club rooms on Wednesday night. The programme consisted of cards, music and addresses. Those taking part being Messrs. Clark, Lang, Morphet, Milburn and Dobbin. The euchre prizes were won by Messrs. Grand and Williamson. Mr. H. H. Dingdale, president of the club, occupied the chair. At the conclusion of a varied and interesting programme, dainty refreshments were served.

THE GOLD SHIP

THE GOLD SHIP
The Way Treasure Is Transported From One Country to Another and the Precautions Taken To Protect It.

Of the many romantic happenings which relieve the drabness of modern life, few appeal more strongly to the imagination than the conveyance, to and fro, of the great quantities of gold — whether bullion or specie — which, week in, week out, form an ever-flowing golden stream round the civilized world.

Perhaps the largest quantities of the precious metal are those conveyed weekly from South Africa, the output of the mines, which in bars, not infrequently exaggerated cakes of yellow soap in appearance, find their way to the Bank of England and the other great banks. The value of these weekly cargoes frequently runs into mil-

[illegible] too, every mail steamer which [illegible] docks carries its quantum of gold. Gold in bars, gold in [illegible]ngs, gold in the coinage of [illegible] nation.

The casual passer-by who wanders through the long corridors of the Bank of England may happen on a stone-paved courtyard, completely shut in by several sets of iron [illegible]. Here he may see gold "bricks" being thrown into very ordinary-looking [illegible] by sturdy porters, who handle the precious metal as if it were mere clay.

A Big Responsibility.

The van being full a couple of individuals, also very ordinary-looking, climb in and seat themselves on its [illegible]-paved floor, and off it goes to the docks or the railway-station.

Arrived at the docks, the gold, whether in bars or coin — which latter is packed in bags containing [illegible] sovereigns or their equivalent, which in turn are enclosed in iron-bound boxes, sealed with an official seal at the Bank of England on every [illegible] — goes straight on board the ship it is to voyage in.

The bars, or boxes, are received by one of the ship's officers, and, with the assistance of a couple of quartermasters, are carefully checked and [illegible]. The officer — usually the second officer — signs a receipt for [illegible], and they are placed in a special hold, to which access is obtained by only one entrance, and that is locked and sealed.

From the moment that he has signed the receipt the officer is personally responsible for the bullion and specie and its safe custody and delivery, and access to the treasure-hold can only be had — legitimately — by means of the key, which remains in his possession.

When Silence Is Golden.

As to the exact precautions taken to guard the bullion-hold and its contents, and its precise situation, representatives of the various companies [illegible] a complete [illegible] who, in [illegible]cense, and even sailors and officers [illegible] where the gold is kept during its [illegible]shipment, so well is the secret kept.

Probably not more than three or four people in the ship are in possession of the information. The truth [illegible] startling as the statement may seem to the uninitiated, there [illegible] in existence very highly organised gangs of international thieves, whose special work is the theft or attempted theft of gold while in the charge of the steamer companies.

BENEFICIAL WARS

Some People Argue That Wars and Industrial Calamities Benefit Mankind in the Long Run.

Few calamities in the world's history have been unattended by some advantage to humanity. The late Lord Palmerston is credited with having stated that even a great war had its benefits for the English people inasmuch as it induced them to study geography. There are people who go much further, and seriously argue that the horrors of war are afterwards compensated by reforms and discoveries which mankind at large would never have enjoyed but for the drastic chastisement which war inflicts among the arguments of this kind deduced from history is the statement that all the wealth and luxury the world has enjoyed from the industry of brass-working would probably have been lost but for the sacking and burning of the city of Corinth in the year 146 B.C. In Corinth there were immense quantities of gold, silver, and copper, and it is said that the virulence of the conflagration was so great that these precious metals were melted and ran together, and thus the famous Corinthian brass was first manufactured.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention, chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted —

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud and denied what was being said against him.

WOMAN WALKS 3000 MILES

A walk of 3,000 miles was recently be finished by Mrs. Stella Woolf, and her husband, Dwight H. Woolf, when they arrive at their home in Kansas City.

The trip started at San Antonio, Texas, more than thirteen months ago. The pair went first to Atlanta and then to New York, where they turned their steps toward home. Previously they made two other walking tours and have covered a total of 10,300 miles on foot.

"When you get into a rut walk out," said Woolf today, as he explained that he took up walking in order to get the outdoor life which his physician two years ago said he must have. At that time Woolf was a music dealer. His health was poor and the doctor told him he would have to get out in the open or die.

"Let's walk," suggested his wife, "for I'm going along."

With them went the family pets, a faithful pony, which has drawn a cart carrying their baggage on the long marches, and a dog.

The Woolfs have eaten and slept in the open. Since leaving San Antonio they have spent only twenty-one nights out of 411 with a roof over their heads.

BADGE FOR COMPETITORS AND OFFICIALS AT STOCKHOLM OLYMPIC GAMES.

BOB FITZ THE MOST REMARKABLE FIGHTER

Who was the most remarkable heavy-weight fighter who ever put up his gloves under the Marquis of Queensbury rules? Answer: Bob Fitzimmons. The freckled faced Cornishman, maker of horse shoes, and built like a reversed pyramid, was the most extraordinary fighter.

Fitz was thirty-five years old when he won the championship of the world from Jim Corbett at Carson City. He was thirty-seven when he lost the title to Jeffries and thirty nine when beaten by the Californian the second time.

Age is a big factor in this story. It serves to show that the ruddy product of the anthracite was more extraordinary than Jeffries, who up to the recent disaster at Reno was generally conceded the distinction. Likewise it proves that care of a body can combat the advance of years to a certain extent.

Jeffries was twenty-four years old when he beat Fitzimmons at Coney Island. He was thirty-five years, two months and nineteen days old when Johnson whipped him in the "battle of the century," July 4. At thirty five he is an old man. At this same age Fitz was in the zenith of his great power.

After the two knockouts which Jeffries imposed on him, the Cornishman went out and beat all candidates except Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, with whom he drew, until the total period of his existence totalled forty-three years. What other fighter in the history of pugilism can claim such a record? None.

Fitzimmons is to be considered all the more extraordinary because of the weight handicap which he suffered after he defeated all the middleweights. Never scaling more than 170 pounds he had all the punching force of men of fifty pounds more heft.

At twenty-nine Jeff retired from the ring and rested on his reputation. He did much hunting and fishing, but idleness was his principal occupation for six years. And when he was induced to train and knock the packing out of Johnson, his paunch bulged out like a submarine boat. He reduced to his old weight after much effort. In training he looked as good as when he had made mince meat of Jack Munro, as his farewell fight. But Ed Dunkhorst could have put up a better battle at Reno than the "mighty" Jeff.

BASEBALL SALARIES WONT BE CUT.

The fact that the minor baseball leagues intend to reduce salaries of players in future has alarmed members of the profession who firmly believe that in the course of time the magnates of the majors, the National and the American, will decide to adopt a similar policy. Alarmists point to present conditions in organized baseball as favorable. From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico there isn't an outlaw circuit. The players, big and little, are at the mercy of organized major and minor leagues wherever professional baseball thrives upon gate receipts. If the major league magnates wanted to apply the screws and chop salaries the players would be compelled to submit or retire from the diamond. They could get no baseball employment anywhere else unless with semi-professional teams paying nominal salaries for one or two games a week.

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds," because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the time of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

SOCIETY DEALERS

Society People By Art Dealing Make Good Money on the Side And Many Make Their Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of almost every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain, it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures, and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. "There are certainly in society many who add to their diminished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"A well-known connoisseur, when recently visiting a Duchess, had the following experience:—

"The lady was delighted to see him, she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt, he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is badly hit by the depression in agriculture. You know all the rich Americans and the value of fine furniture; could you possibly help me to [illegible] [illegible] piece? It was given to a former Tsar by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture — it was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have been in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kwangtung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husband more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself in her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, rates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

AFTER THE BANTAMWEIGHT

Al Delmont, who has fought Jimmy Walsh about as often as Jim Barry has mixed with Sam Langford, wants to get the bantamweight belt and has challenged. Johnny Coulon at 116 pounds. Albert is a good little fighter, but he will not be able to make 116 pounds ringside and Johnny Coulon absolutely refuses to make a lower weight for any one.

THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE

The Story of the Founding of the Famous British League. — The Primrose Was Beaconsfield's Favourite Flower.

It was really a chance remark which led to the founding of the Primrose League — that remarkable political organization which to-day has over 1,500,000 members.

When, on April 19th, 1883 — the second anniversary of Lord Beaconsfield's death — his statue was unveiled in Parliament Square, Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, arriving at the Commons late in the afternoon was given a primrose by Mr. Cove, superintendent of the members' cloak room. When Sir Henry entered the Chamber he found the whole Conservative party similarly decorated with Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower. The fact impressed him so much that as he walked home with Lord Randolph Churchill he remarked "What a show of primrose! This should be turned to account. Why not start a Primrose League?"

Lord Randolph was instantly interested. "Draw up a plan," he said "to carry out your idea, and we will see what can be done."

Ultimately Lord Randolph and Sir Henry were joined by Sir John Gorst and Sir Alfred Shade and in due course these four gentlemen founded the League, and constituted themselves the ruling council.

It was originally intended to admit men only, banded in companies of about a hundred, to act as missionaries of the League. Ultimately, however, it was decided to admit ladies with the result that the membership rose from 957 in 1884 to 237,283 in 1886. Not long ago it was reported that the total membership had touched 1,700,000.

It has, of course, been said that the primrose was not Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower, and that when Queen Victoria sent a wreath of primroses to Lord Beaconsfield's funeral and wrote on it, "His favourite flower," the allusion was to the Prince Consort — not to the dead statesman. Mr. Reynald Lucas, however, in "Lord Glenesk and the Morning Post," says that one who knew Lord Beaconsfield well declares that he habitualy wore a single primrose in his button hole when he was at Hughenden in the early spring, while another more intimate friend can speak of having seen an abundance of primrose in Beaconsfield's house in Curzon Street that had been gathered on the slopes of Windsor Castle.

THE MEAN MAN

"Talking about meanness," said an old man of the sea, who sucked a pipe of ale in a chair by the fire, "you should ha' known old Ruby what used to keep a farm out Goswell way.

"Twenty years ago, it is that his son went out with a tin busket to milk a cow. Somehow or other, boy the lad and the bucket disappeared mysteriously.

"No more was heard of him till he wandered back home ten years after, as rich as a millionaire, an loaded the old man up with gold an diamond pins and new clothes, an gave him five thousand dollars as a birthday present.

"And d'ye think old Ruby was grateful? Ne'er a bit!

"'George,' says he 'wot 'ave yo done with the bucket?'

PURE ENGLISH

"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully," said a stickler for pure English to his wife. "You say that 'Henry Jones came to this town from Sunderland.' Don't you see that it would be better to say that he 'came from Sunderland to this town'?"

"I don't see any difference in the two expressions," rejoined the lady.

"But there is a difference in the two expressions — a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make use of such awkward expressions. By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

"Oh, dear, is my father in your pocket?" inquired the wife. "You mean that you have in your pocket a letter from my father."

"There you go with your petty quibbles! You take a delight in harassing me; you are always taking a thread and representing it as a rope."

"Representing it to be a rope, you mean, dear?"

And then he grinned a sickly grin and wished he had never started the discussion.

RUN DOWN

The council employé had formally applied, in writing, for a holiday — with salary, of course — on the grounds that he was "run down."

"I'm a bit suspicious of this run down-ness," remarked the chairman. "It has been very prevalent among the council's employés of late. I propose the applicant be sent for."

"I beg to second that."

The proposition being carried, a messenger went in search of the applicant. Presently there was a scuffling at the door of the council chamber.

"Order there!" commanded the chairman. "Officer, why do you allow that person to try and force his way into the room? Remove him instantly!"

"Beg pardon, sir," said the officer, with a smile, the breadth of which not even his own capacious palm could conceal, "it's the man you sent for — the road foreman wot's run down."

"Oh, well, let him enter, then."

"Beg pardon, sir, 'e can't. 'E's too fat for the door!"

ATTITUDE OF ELECTRIC CO.

Explanation of the Manager of the Life in Regard to the Matter.

Montreal, Jan. 25. — Speaking of the Canadian Associated Press report of Tuesday, which quoted Mr. T. B. Macaulay, as saying that 'if the Hydro-Electric Commission were looking for a fight it would be accommodated,' Mr. Macaulay stated to the 'Witness' this morning that this expression did not come from him, and added that such a retort was not characteristic of him.

He regretted that confusion should have entered needlessly into these discussions and negotiations between the Electric Company, Limited—of which he is president, and the Hydro-Electric Commission over the possibility of the latter organization absorbing the former. He stated his position as follows:

'We are not disposed to quarrel with the Hon. Adam Beck or the Hydro-Electric Commission, and press reports which speak of us as being hostile towards it are mistaken. Our position is simply this: We are willing to accept a reasonable offer for our company which would be arranged and arrived at through the usual form of arbitration. We don't want to force matters in any way.'

Too Much for the Tiger!

On one occasion at a service in church in a remote village of India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much flabbergasted as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

In the north-west of Canada a bear once strolled into a church. There was an immediate panic among the women, and some men sprang towards the shaggy beast, intending to slay him. Bruin, however, saw all these things very coolly, and up he looked so amiable and unassuming that, instead of killing him, we much laughed at him. Indeed, it was almost immediately seen that the bear was the dentical animal which had formerly been the pet of the village, which had run from the settlement into the woods about six months before. He had now returned to pay his respects to his old friends, and finding them all at church had evidently thought he might as well go too.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

If the King were to renounce the Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer: —

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was said in the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

The Late Mrs. John Sherwin.

There passed away at Nicholls' Hospital on Wednesday evening, Fanny Stevenson, relict of the late Mr. John A. Sherwin of Grafton, aged 59 years. She was born in Alnwick Township, removing later in life, to Grafton. On the death of her husband, ten years ago, Mrs. Sherwin came to Peterborough where she has resided ever since. Three weeks ago the deceased visited her sister, Mrs. M. J. Carter of Lindsay, but as she complained of indisposition, she was brought to the Nicholls' Hospital, where she passed away as above. The late Mrs. Sherwin is survived by two sisters and one brother, namely, Mrs. M. J. Carter, above mentioned, Mrs. Rollison, of New York; and Mr. J. Stevenson of Michigan. The funeral will take place at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, in Wardsley's cemetery, near Roseneath.

Comeau, a well known and highly respected resident of this place cured her kidney disease, her heart trouble and other aches and pains also disappeared. She cured her kidney disease easily and speedily by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My heart troubled me at all times," Mrs. Comeau states, "and I feared for the terrible results that might follow. My limbs would swell, my back ached and I was always tired and nervous.

"These symptoms led me to believe that kidney disease was the root of all my troubles, so I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box the swelling was gone, my back was well and my heart no longer troubled me. I am now in the best of health, and I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Always strike at the root of the trouble. And in nine cases out of ten all women's troubles start with the Kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills are woman's best friend.

The best [illegible]

All men, as well as women, like to be understood. Sympathy is the greatest help, and no woman who is self-centred, who is vain and thinks only of herself will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, have a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful [illegible] a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband. If she understands him, is interested in him and his life-work, whether it be planting vegetables, composing music, or building towers, she will encourage him to reach his highest [illegible]. Being beautiful will not make up for selfish indifference.

Fun and Fresh Ideas.

To remain young one must have company and enjoy it. Not a big dinner party one day, an afternoon reception the next, a late card party the following, and so on. This, for the hostess, is hard work that will quickly bring the appearance of age in its train, and indeed, no work is more arduous. To attend to the wants of guests, to anticipate their desires, to have the whole responsibility of the success of a party is an utterly differtn thing to the bright company necessary to the well-being of the woman who leads too monotonous a life.

The limiting influence of four walls is what so many women who are housewives and mothers have to fight against, and they need company as a recreation.

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

She had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, delicious, kissable dimple.

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" And he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will keep there until next pay day.

A GOOD HAND

A young fellow had popped the question, and anxiously awaited the answer that was to decide his fate.

"Do you ever gamble at cards?" the fair one asked.

"No," he answered; "but if I do now would be the time."

"Why?" she inquired.

"Because," he answered, with [illegible]

Sensible Methods of Removing Wrinkles

(From Woman's Realm)

If crow's feet appear prematurely about the eyes, apply a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the best, quickest-acting treatment known, as it tends to restore normal conditions. It tightens and strengthens the skin, likewise the underlying tissue, the loosening and softening of which are the cause of this trouble. It also has a tonic effect, which not only aids in the same direction but, by increasing the circulation, helps to bring a healthy color to the face.

The same solution, acting as it does, naturally affects not only every wrinkle and line, but hanging or flabby cheeks and chin as well. Tell the druggist you want powdered saxolite, in which form it is most effective. When your face wears a tired expression, bathe it with this refreshing, revivifying liquid.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10 00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 867 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that: I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic trouble.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.

12—Pain in the hip joint.
13—Pain in the neck or head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

THE WONDERFUL BARN

In Ireland in the county of Kildare, not far distant from Leixlip, is a very picturesque architectural effort, commonly called "The Winderful Barn." It is built of brick and has six storeys. Each storey internally, is dome-shaped, and in the centre of each floor is a round hole, so fashioned that by means of tackle sacks of corn can be lowered or raised from floor to floor. The ordinary means of entrance and access is by way of a cockle-stair flight of steps, which is carried around and outside the building, being connected with doors on each floor. The whole structure is 75ft. high, and was built with the chief object of providing employment for the out-of-works of the district.

MUFFS FOR MEN

Although the muff is now exclusively an article of feminine apparel, it was when first introduced in England, toward the close of the sixteenth century, used by both men and women. In fact, in the seventeenth century it was generally regarded as an essential part of the dress of a man of fashion. The muffs then used were somewhat similar to the present fashion — large and bulky.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

PROFESSIONAL ETIQUETTE

Some Barristers' Curious Customs and Traditions Belonging to the Old Country.

From the day when he eats his first student's dinner to the day when he pockets his last professional fee, the man of wig and gown in England has to observe customs and to obey traditions such as the members of no other learned profession have any knowledge of and which are not even known in Canada amongst the lawyers.

The Temple, where for the most part the would-be Lord Chancellor has his legal nursery, is an exact nest of old-world observances, thinking it with the far-away time when it was the home of Crusading Knights, who feasted, six and more centuries ago, on the very spot on which the young Templar of our day eats the dinners that go some way towards qualifying him for his wig.

Brothers All!

The very grace that heralds his meal and the grace that concludes it are the same, in the Inner Temple, that the Knights of the Cross listened to when the Plantagenet Kings were wearing their crowns. Like their martial predecessors, the Benchers file into the Middle Temple Hall preceded by the mace, the substitute for the old-time battle-axe. Their entry is heralded by a loud blow of the mace on the floor, as was that of the senior Knights Templar of old by a similar blow with the butt-end of a lance; and the grace is preceded by three blows with a wooden mallet, the ancient knightly form of invoking the Trinity.

Barristers and students mingle and feast together at the same tables, without any regard to seniority — a survival of the ancient Templar practice of the essential principle of brotherhood. If one of them is dissatisfied with his food, he may send a sample of it to the Treasurer for his verdict, just as the most junior Templar in King John's time would submit any food of which he disapproved to the Senior Knight; and the fragments of the modern Grand Day banquet are given to the servants of the Inn just as the surplus food was always given by the Knights of old to the poor.

The Knights Templar were summoned to the hall of feasting by the blowing of a horn; and to-day the Middle Templar is similarly called to the table by blasts of the very horn which summoned his predecessors in Elizabethan days. These, and the arrangement of messes, the ceremonials of bowing, the circulation of the loving-cup and many another, custom, all serve to link the Templar of to-day with his martial "forefathers" of long-dead centuries.

Briefs and Fees.

And those are but a few of the many quaint customs and regulations which the man of wig and gown must observe, if he does not wish to get himself into trouble with the authorities. When he is qualified to accept briefs and to play the part of a counsel "learned in the law," he [illegible] falls of etiquette that mark his path to the Woolsack.

However an empty purse may tempt him, he must not accept a professional fee that falls short of the irreducible guinea, with a half-crown added for his clerk, whether he has one or not. Nor must he accept less than the fee, however big it is, that is marked on his brief for all to see.

However much he may yearn for clients, he cannot even see one unless through the introduction of a solicitor; and the solicitor must be present at the interview. Between him and the litigant whose cause he is to plead there is a gulf which only a solicitor can bridge. And when the solicitor appears at the chambers, bearing the coveted brief, it must be handed, not to Mr. "Wig," but to his clerk, and it is the clerk, and not the master, who arranges the delicate matter of fees.

No Touting Allowed.

Some professional men may tout for clients; but not all the barrister. It will be an evil day for him when he starts brief-hunting, though he may be starving for lack of golden guineas. If he calls at a friendly solicitor's office for a gossip, or accepts an invitation to a dinner or a dance at his house, he is going perilously near the danger-line. If he is a wise man he will avoid the company of solicitors and pass them by, like the Levite, "on the other side."

On circuit the watchful eyes of Etiquette are always on him. Even for the sake of company, if he be a sociable man, he must not travel there by any class but the first; nor may he reach an Assize town earlier than the day before the list opens.

However much his services are wanted on another circuit than his own he must turn a deaf ear, unless his brief comes to him marked with a special fee of at least fifty guineas, in addition to the fee he would receive on his own circuit. If he is unable to appear in any case for which he is retained, he must provide a substitute; for whose services, however, he may pay what he pleases. The fee he puts into his own pocket.

Even his professional dress is regulated for him to the extent that he must not appear in court in any coat but one of sober black; nor must he show his face in court if he is carrying the blue bag which may be his familiar companion in the street and train. Unless he is entitled to carry a red bag (and this he may not buy—it must be given to him by some friendly senior), he must be content to make his appearance with his briefs and papers under his arm.

O'K

Extra Mild, Remember

Many people would drink ale, in preference to all other malt beverages, if ale did not make them bilious.

This O'K brew is brewed especially for these people. It is extra mild and extra light, and lets you enjoy the creamy deliciousness of real old English ale without the heaviness and excessive bitterness. Is easily—opened and stoppered bottles. No broken cork or tinfoil in the glass.

How English Beauties Peel Their Faces

(From Society World)

While abroad recently I could not help observing that the average Englishwoman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average woman of our country," says Mrs. Scott, secretary of the National Health-Culture Society. "Making inquiries, several intimate friends in London confided to me that they regularly used on their faces what is commercially known as mercolized wax. I do not know whether the habit is general there, but I do know that this wax has wonderful rejuvenating properties, for I've tried it myself.

"If you will get an ounce of this mercolized wax at your drug store and apply it like cold cream, you will soon behold in your glowing cheeks their first resemblance to the remarkable transparent beauty of the Englishwoman's complexion. This wax gradually peels off the lifeless scarf skin in tiny, almost imperceptible flakes, revealing the fresh new skin underneath, pinky white, with the bloom of youth and health."

CLEVER INVALIDS

By the death of W. Clark Russell we lose one of the finest writers of sea-stories that this century ever possessed. His romances throb with such vitality that it is hard to realize that for many year their author had been virtually a cripple. Yet such was the case, and his latest works were dictated to his son while he himself was stretched on a couch of pain.

What wondrous results can be effected by strength of will the life of Herbert Spencer pre-eminently shows. Of delicate constitution, he set himself to accomplish a task the magnitude whereof would have appalled the most robust, and wrestling manfully with the demon of ill-health, which sometimes for months together totally incapacitated him from work, never wavered in his stern resolve until, in 1896, he brought his stupendous "System of Synthetic Philosophy" to a triumphant conclusion.

His fellow-worker in the field of evolution, Charles Darwin, for over forty years knew not the joy of a day without pain. Dyspepsia, allied maybe to gout, held him in thraldom, so that his life was one long and continuous struggle against illness. Yet he bore his unenviable lot with cheery patience, and, though his poor health at times compelled him to cease from his arduous studies and researches, the work that he left accomplished is proof sufficient that no physical ills could subdue the indomitable energy of his mind.

In pain and torture, too, lay Tom Hood when he penned some of his most humorous verses. Even in boyhood his health was delicate, and with increasing years his weakness became more alarmingly apparent. Yet he gallantly struggled on until, in the winter of 1844, he finally broke down and took to his bed. Even there his fertile brain refused to rest, and not till death took him in the following spring did the world cease to enjoy the dying poet's witty words.

Over Keats, the while he was composing those poetic gems that have given him place among the immortals, was posed the hand of death. A victim to consumption and consequent haemorrhage from the lungs, he resolved, "as a soldier marches against a battery," to try the effect of a winter in Italy. Thither he went, and lingered on in Rome, where, on February 23rd, 1821, his brief life of twenty-six years came to a peaceful end.

NATURES WARDROBE

Dame Nature allows her children a complete change of clothes at least once a year. In some instances she is more liberal. This change of [illegible] and changes most with man's approval, and [illegible] petty annoyances it may cause, the fact that the whole matter is not without points of interest is generally overlooked.

During the autumn the canary has a most irritating way of casting its feathers, and causing what the housemaid calls a "litter" all over the room for their tiny yellow feathers get blown about, and they are extremely difficult to pick up. The sweeping brush is no good at all for the purpose; every feather must be taken up separately, and really, considering that they are from one little bird, their number is extraordinary. "Drat that canary!" remarks the lady of the broom and duster.

The poultry yard is dreadful. Feathers lie everywhere, giving the whole place a desolate, uncared-for look, which is quite in keeping with the miserable appearance of its inmates.

But it is not only the feathered family which cause trouble by leaving their discarded clothes tossing about. Never drive behind a white horse in the spring unless you have a mind above being disturbed by horse hairs. In the pre-taxi days the point was worth remembering, for a white horse between the shafts of the hansom at certain times could make the "fare's" black coat unsightly. A horse sheds his coat — but not his tail or mane — in the spring, and grows a short, glossy, summer coat, which is the delight of the groom. As the winter approaches the animal's appearance undergoes a change. His coat grows long, and is extremely dense, so that if he is out in the fields he can stand severe weather.

It is worth while examining the coat of the house cat in the summer and then in the winter. The animal's appearance may have undergone no change, yet the increase of hair is there all the same. The long-haired cat cannot make her toilet so unobtrusively, and the owner must be very blind who does not know when puss is "moulting" and when she is "in coat."

Not Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper making.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHEN WOMEN LED

The Fair Sex Has Been Well to the Fore in the Past, But Where Real Fighting Was to Be Done.

In the French Revolution women often led the bands of peasants who rose against the aristocrats. At Troyes a similar sight was seen during the champagne riots which convulsed the Aube Department of France.

At the head of the detachment which one district sent to join the "Iron Battalion" marched a splendid-looking young woman, wearing a white-knitted cap, with the Revolutionary red ribbon twined around it. Her starting-point forty miles from Troyes, this girl tramped every step of the distance between dawn and dark. She was cheered by the crowds when she arrived in Troyes.

It was a girl, too, who headed the great no-rent strike in New York three years ago.

Nearly all the big tenements in the Bowery, the most crowded section of darkest New York, are let to agents, who sub-let them in rooms or small flats to the poor. The rents are awful. A man will have to pay twenty-five dollars a month for three small rooms on a fifth floor.

It will be remembered that at the end of 1907 Eastern America suffered from the worst times which had been known in the States for very many years, and the result was that evictions for non-payment of rent became more and more frequent.

A REDUCTION IN RENTS

It was Cecilie Arkin, a nineteen-year-old girl, who devised the plan of campaign, and banded together no fewer than thirty thousand families, who all vowed to pay no more rent unless a general reduction of twenty per cent. was granted. Each family pledged itself to shelter as many as possible of the evicted ones.

The struggle was a long and bitter one. Hundreds of families were turned out, but in the end Cecilie Arkin won a victory; for the agents compromised, and a general reduction of ten per cent. was the condition on which the strike was settled.

The last Carlist rising in Spain was headed by a woman. This was in 1901 and the insurrection broke out at Berga, in the turbulent province of Cabalonia. The identity of the lady has never leaked out. She was tall, beautifully dressed, and rode magnificently.

It was rumoured at the time that she was Donna Blanca, Duchess of Braganza, and wife of Don Alfonso, brother of Don Carlos. But this surmise was proved to be false, and to this day her identity is a mystery.

There has always been a deal of smuggling along the western end of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico.

The most notorious of all these smugglers was a Mexican woman known as Lola, Queen of the Smugglers. She was quite young, and extremely good-looking, and by her extraordinary talents rose to be head of a band of most daring smugglers.

A QUEEN DEPOSED

For nearly four years she reigned supreme, and then one day, as her long train of "burros" (donkeys), bearing contraband goods, was crossing the Rio Grande, she was surprised by a sudden shower of rifle-bullets. She had been betrayed, and a strong force of Mexican "Rurales" had been ambushed among the rocks.

One of her arms was broken by a bullet, but with splendid courage she gathered her men and rode straight at the troops.

A soldier seized her bridle. She cut him down, and for some minutes a furious fight raged. Then numbers prevailed, and she and her surviving companions were pulled down. She died in hospital a few days later.

There is no part of the world and no race which does not produce its fighting women. Quite lately our Crown Colony of Southern Nigeria has been plagued by a lady of colour known as the "Oma."

Among her tribe she is reckoned officially as a man, and cannot have a husband.

After causing endless trouble to the authorities she made peace, and then coolly demanded a seat upon the legislative Council. So far this has not been granted, but it is possible we may hear more of this coal-black Suffragette.

PERSIAN WEDDINGS

Tying the matrimonial knot is a very prolonged and serious affair in Persia. In fact, a wedding may extend for a week. On the last day of the wedding the bride, who has been treated as a sort of outcast, is conducted by a near relative to a room, where she undergoes further and more elaborate decoration.

She then returns to the guest-room, and her dowry is laid before her in trays. The dowry often comprises such queer things as cheap and highly-coloured oleographs, gaudy vases, birdcages, and many useful household articles. Having kissed the hearthstone of her home, she is then given bread, salt, and a piece of gold, and thus equipped and closely veiled she is hoisted on to a gaily-adorned donkey and, accompanied by a circus-like procession of friends, goes to her future home, where her husband awaits her.

"Are you a friend to William Biggins? That ne'er-do-well?"

"I should think not, indeed!"

"Then you'll hardly be interested to hear that he has inherited a hundred thousand pounds."

"What? Dear old Bill!"

Asker: "How do you excuse those mother-in-law jokes of yours to your wife?"

Fuminan: "I tell her they refer to her mother-in-law, and she says they are not half bad enough." 42

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a skirtless bathing suit," she says. "when I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk tpousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

A DIFFICULT LANGUAGE

Chinese Language Has 40,000 Characters of Separate Meaning, and Accent.

The difficulties of making up a font of Chinese type, says the American Consul at Shanghai, although considerable, are not relatively so great as one might imagine, for while Kang Hsi's dictionary the standard and most comprehensive work of its kind in the language, contains some 40,000 characters it has been found that for all practicable purposes a font need contain about 7,000. Of course, with a font of this size the Chinese printer, in the course of setting up a book will frequently find that he lacks a dozen or so unusual characters, a difficulty which he readily meets by having these missing symbols hand cut on blank type by skilled engravers, who, thanks to the old wood-block system are to be found in practically every town in China. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and their commentaries, are still produced by the time-honored method of printing from wooden blocks. Among the reasons why the Chinese prefers his books of this nature printed in the old way are his naturally strong conservatism, the peculiar charm and artistic softness of the pages printed from blocks, which the modern books from metal presses do not have, and the fact that the new style volumes lack that peculiar odour imparted in the older method by the lampblack table ink, with which they are printed, an odour which, although extremely disagreeable to occidental nostrils, is inseparably associated in the Chinese mind with good literature.

TROUSERS FROM OLD COATS

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match-boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy up in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any other work, collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his bowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting; cock-roaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for thirty or fifty cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.

One has only to watch their storytellers in the streets to see that the Chinese are natural orators. They are also very clever conjurers. Rich Chinese are very charitable. They distribute free rice and tea in time of exceptional distress; they subscribe to hospitals and to asylums for the blind, for the old, for lepers, and for orphans they even support associations for supplying free coffins to the poor.

THAT WONDERFUL DOG

One evening at a tavern the topic was about dogs. "Oh!" said Juby, "I had a dog and was taking a near cut [illegible] animal, and on going back I found him staring at a notice-board bearing the words, 'All dogs found here will be shot.' And come he would not."

"Yes, yes, that's good, but what about Johnson's retriever? One night his house caught fire, all was confusion; old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled them out sharp.

"Alas! one was left behind, but up jumped the dog, rushed in, and soon reappeared with the child, depositing it on the lawn. All were out now, but in rushed the dog again. What he was after no one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with what do you think?"

"Give it up," came from the listeners.

"Why, with the fire-policy wrapped up in a damp towel, gentlemen."

A NEWSPAPER BLUNDER

A year or two ago, Big Ben (the well-known Westminster parliament clock) was fitted with new hands. A reporter in the London office of a Manchester paper saw his chance and wrote: "A well-known character, who has lived in Westminster all his life, and is familiarly known to many Londoners as "Ben," underwent a serious operation this morning. As Westminster Hospital was too full to allow of him having a bed, the operation was carried out by two doctors in the open air, and in the presence of a large crowd. Both of Ben's hands were taken off — successfully and rapidly. A new pair will be provided for him." The sub-editor in Manchester read through the paragraph, and added the headlines: 'Operation in the Open Air Big London Crowd Watches Man's Hands Taken Off.' And so it duly appeared in next morning's paper."

Entertaining Up To Date

A new form of entertaining, started by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is being taken up by Newport hostesses. It is a dinner and dance, with the dancing between the courses. As soon as one course is finished the orchestra strikes up, and the guests leave their places and begin to dance. The dance finished, another course is served. Eating and dancing go on in this way until the dinner is finished. By the time coffee is served the dinner-ball has lasted two hours

COL. STEELE, C.B., M.V.O. Winnipeg.

The recent publication by Col. Steele of the military history of the prairie province, brings to mind the leading part the colonel himself played in its history, though he took too great care that he did not figure in the article, so that the reading of it was like "Hamlet" with the principal character left out.

Col. Samuel Benfield Steele was born in County Simcoe in the year 1849 and educated at Orillia School and the British American Commercial School, Toronto. He was gazetted his first commission in 1886 in the Militia and on the return of the Red River Expedition in which he served gallantly, in 1870 joined the Canadian Permanent Artillery. Mr. Steele joined the N. W. Mounted Police in 1873 rising to superintendence in 1885. For the next four years Col Steele commanded the Police in most of their expeditions against the Indians and to restore order in the new districts. He was chosen to command the "Strathcona" Horse in the South African War. Col. Steele is now commanding military district No. 11.

As a sportsman Col. Steele is well known as one who takes a keen interest in every exercise that will strengthen a man bodily and mentally.

COSTLY SPITE

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $875,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by methods. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment of Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the scions of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A collar-stud, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of Hesse.

The Children's Aid Society beg to acknowledge the receipt of five dollars from the Barbers' Union.

MISSIONARIES ARRIVE IN SHANGHAI.

Shanghai, Jan. 25.—The exodus of Christian missionaries from interior China to the seaport towns is continuing. The Methodist mission rooms have just received the following cable from Shanghai:

"Mrs. O. L. Kilburn and son, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Billinger and children have arrived here safely and well from Cheng-Tu."

Cheng-Tu is the interior post from which all the Methodist missionaries have been recalled because of the disturbances. The cable would seem to indicate that the trouble is not nearly over yet, but may break out with increasing vigor any minute.

Encouraging Reports Presented at Annual Meeting of St. Paul's Church

The members and adherents of St. Paul's Presbyterian church held their annual meeting on Wednesday night Rev. Mr. Pogue, pastor of the church conducted devotional exercises, after which Mr. J. Crane was elected chairman.

Tribute to the Pastor.

After the reading of the minutes and the report of the Managers, Sheriff Hall, in a happy manner moved the following resolution:

"The congregation of St. Paul's church at this their fourth annual meeting, since the collection of their Pastor, the Rev. Robt. Pogue, desire to place on record their cordial and hearty appreciation of his services during these years of faithful and efficient ministry.

They rejoice in the renewed activities manifested in all the departments of Christian work, and especially in the forward movement on the part of the congregation in connection with the mission work of the church, which they feel is, in large measure, due to the earnest and devoted efforts of their pastor.

Many Reports Followed.

Reports were read from Sabbath School, Board of Managers, Ladies' Aid and several other societies of the church. They all indicated prosperity in their various branches of activity.

The following managers were elected: Messrs. J. Crane, T. H. Gillespie, R. Irwin and W. Scott of the old Board, and J. S. Keys, to fill the vacancy made by D. H. Moore's resignation.

Messrs. W. H. Hill and P. S. McLean were re-elected auditors.

After the pastor has expressed his appreciation regarding the services rendered him by the congregation, as a whole, the meeting was dismissed by the Doxology and prayer.

ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY

Company Puts Forward Its Side of the Case

Ottawa, Jan. 25. "The Montreal Witness says that denial of any refusal of the Electric Power Limited, which controls most of the power development on the Trent River, to sell out to the Hydro - Electric Commission, was given this morning by A. B. Colville, of Campbellford, vice-president of the Electric Power Company, who is in town.

'The Electric Power Limited,' he says, 'has at the present time 16,500 horse power developed on the Trent river which has all been sold and is being delivered in the various cities, Oshawa on the west. Their lines also towns and villages in the district extending from Napanee on the east to extend into the mining district of North Hastings, and they supply Peterborough, Lindsay, and Millbrook in the north. They have over 200 miles of 44,000 volt transmission line and 24 sub-stations. The powers are either held in fee simple or under lease from the Crown. The Trent being a Dominion river, leases were granted by the Department of Railways and Canals. They have now under construction two additional power houses of 5,000 horse power and 11,000 horse power capacity, the first to be finished by July 1, and the second by January, 1913. Thirty years franchises have been obtained in practically every town of importance in the district, and the rates are under the control of the Dominion Railway Board.

'The Hydro-Electric Commission which in 1906 had an offer for a supply of power from the company which however, it did not take, now declares to extend its policy of government owned power and transmission lines to control Ontario,' said Mr Colville, 'and the Electric Power Company, while perfectly satisfied with its business, has no desire to stand in its way. It has offered to sell to the Hydro-Electric Commission the whole of its undertakings, including power houses, transmission lines, sub station, electric and gas plants, street railways, etc., at a price to be fixed by arbitration.'

When asked regarding the Hon. Adam Beck's statement that the department had granted leases of dams No. 4 and No. 8, which were claimed by the Electric Company, to the Hydro-Electric Commission, Mr. Colville said his company had not been notified of any such order in council.

WAS SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN DROWNED IN ST. LAWRENCE RIVER—USED TWO OTHER NAMES.

Captain Barton Cruikshank Returned to New York To-day, and Had a Lively Time.

New York, Jan. 25.—Running at top speed through the streets of Brooklyn in an effort to dodge a score of reporters who met him at the steamer, Captain Barton Cruikshank, the former editor and National Guard officer, who disappeared from his home in Potsdam, N.Y., and for a time was believed to be dead, finally took refuge in his lawyer's office in lower Manhattan to-day. In his exciting foot race through the streets he had a personal encounter with one reporter, appealed to the police to protect him from the newsgatherers, only to be laughed at, and finally got revenge by throwing three reporters bodily out of the law office after they had followed him there.

Cruikshank came back from Porto-Rico to-day on the liner Carsons. He was booked as "G. W. Fuller," having dropped the name Donald Douglas which he adopted following his arrival in New York city, after he had led his wife and friends to Upper New York to believe that he had been drowned while canoeing on the St. Lawrence River. His personal attorney L. E. Ginn and the reporters met him at the pier to greet him but none of his former friends members of the family appeared. Ginn did not get to Cruikshank at the pier, as, when the former Captain descended the gang plank, he was overwhelmed by the waiting reporters.

Cruikshank left here for Porto Rico recently after bidding good-bys to Miss Edith Robert, a Brooklyn girl whom he wooed in the guise of a single man.

WILLIAM WARD DEAD, ISLAND LIFE-SAVER

Toronto, Jan. 25.—With a record such as few men can boast of, Captain William Ward passed away last night at his home, 68 Brunswick avenue, at the age of 65 years. Death was caused by cancer of the stomach.

Captain Ward was born in a little cottage on Toronto Island near where the south end of the Eastern Gap is now situated, his father having settled there in 1838. This cottage, however, was washed away in 1846, water now covering the spot where it stood. Another home was built about 300 feet further north, which is now known as Ward's Island. The captain was an expert swimmer, and during his life-time rescued 164 persons from a watery grave. In recognition of his bravery he was appointed captain of the Dominion Life Saving crew in 1881.

Captain Ward was also an oarsman of wide renown, being at one time single skiff champion of America. When he was only 11 years of age, he was coxswain of the first four-oared shell in Canada. During one contest at Oswego, when all the other shells were swamped, he managed to keep his shell afloat by bailing while he held the steering ropes with his teeth.

Captain Ward was a member of Christ Episcopal Church, and in politics a Conservative. Fraternally he was a member of McKinley L.O.L., 275.

Stopping of Austrian Liner Gives Fresh Impetus to Campaign in Vienna—Press Making Protests.

Vienna, Jan. 25.—The action of an Italian warship in stopping the Austrian Lloyd Liner Bregenz has given fresh impetus to the anti-Italian campaign here. The press continues to make emphatic protests regarding the incident, although the owners of the Bregenz have stated that they consider the matter of no importance.

The suggestion is made here that Italy cede her East African possessions to Turkey as compensation for the loss in Tripoli. Some significance is attached to the fact that this suggestion is forthcoming just at the time of the visit to Rome of Herr Von Kiderlen-Waechter, the German Foreign Secretary.

Mrs. D. K. Clarke, Hamilton, and Mrs. Thos. McGillicuddy, Toronto, who have been visiting their sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Browett, have returned home. An older sister, Mrs. G. A. Deedman, of Brussells, is remaining with Mrs. Browett, during the latter's illness.

BOILED SNAKE-ONE

Reptiles Though Repugnant to European Tastes are Considered in Many Climes as Dainty Dishes.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "cut" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled Snake—One."

A peculiarly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs, in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat meankets of Senuaar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcases hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in Siam, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

Milly—"You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married." Tilly—"Oh, I don't know, dear; if you really love him you'll let him go looking for a little longer yet."

The Down-Trodden.

A certain battalion — the Terrors" — possessed but a very small band, the commanding officer's feet — he was a burly farmer — were — well, very large. One day the battalion was to march out, but the music was not forthcoming.

"Where on earth is the band?" queried the adjutant.

For some time there was no reply; but when the question was repeated, a gruff voice was heard from the rear rank.—

"I do believe, sir, the colonel trod on it by accident."

Cause of Rheumatism

Many physicians believe that rheumatism is the result of over-feeding, followed by putrefactive changes in the foodstuffs in the alimentary canal; that the action of certain bacteria produces specific toxic (poison) substances which, when introduced into the blood, cause a deviation from the normal oxidation process, thus causing the condition that is designated rheumatic. In the majority of instances it is probably due to eating too much of the vegetable class of foods; in other cases it is the result of eating too much meat.

Short of Fodder in Western States Assumes Alarming Proportions.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 25.—"Cattle, rabbits and quail are dying by thousands in North-Eastern Colorado and across the line in Western Kansas," said Rudolphe Borcherdt, Deputy State Game Warden, last night, on his return from a trip of investigation in that section. Borcherdt said that he counted hundreds of cattle on each side of the highway lying dead in the fields. He said he could see no prospect of relief, as not enough hay was being taken into that section of the country to relieve the starving animals.

Victim of Chronic Catarrh Cured.

I contracted a severe cold while following my occupation of furniture travelling, and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to attend to the Catarrh condition, and at last I became a victim of Chronic Catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhozone, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I possess to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life two years.

An Excellent Roadbed.

The following is an unsolicited letter from a prominent citizen of Ottawa:—

"After a varied and extensive experience on the several Canadian railway roadbeds during the past six months, I wish to say that it is a real pleasure to travel over the G.T.R. roadbed between Montreal and Detroit, either by day or night, permitting during daylight travel rest and relaxation and by night refreshing and sound sleep.

"In these days of extravagant claims as to superiority it seems to me only fair, when conditions are found to warrant it, that 'praise be given where praise is due.' Hence this statement."

NORTH AMERICAN LIFE.

Report For 1911.

The Thirty-first Annual Meeting of the Company was held at its Home Office in Toronto on Thursday, Jan. 25th, 1912, when the report of the business of the year ended Dec. 31st, 1911, was presented.

CASH INCOME

The Cash Income during the year from premiums, interest, etc., was $2,295,176.98, showing a large increase over the previous year.

PAYMENTS TO POLICY-HOLDERS

The amount paid on Policy-holders' Account was $968,313.49, of which sum $148,135.09 was for surplus or dividends. The relative importance of the policy-holders' interests is at once apparent, considering that the sum of $6,000 only was paid to Guarantors. Holders of Deferred Dividend Policies received $501,399.96. This item, including Reserve and Surplus, shows an increasing amount from year to year. It is an incident of the Company's growth and progress, and affords ample evidence that the business is being conducted for the benefit of the policy-holders.

ASSETS

The Assets increased in 1911 by $924,334.25, and now amount to $12,313,107.57. The Bonds and Stocks owned by the Company are carried, as heretofore, at their cost, price, although the market value was $168,575.72 in excess thereof, for which credit has not been taken.

NET SURPLUS

After making provision for all liabilities and further strengthening the reserves, the Net Surplus was increased to $1,300,784.00. This shows a handsome increase over the surplus of last year, and at once establishes the unexcelled financial condition of the Company.

INSURANCE INCREASED

The policies issued during the year, together with those revived, amounted to the sum of $6,129,426, being an increase of $1,019,367 over that of the previous year. The total business in force amounts to $45,849,515.

"Politeness Pays."

The Grand Trunk Railway System have issued a little booklet entitled "Politeness Pays," the contents of which were written by the well known litterateur, Mr. Elbert Hubbard, who has jotted down a number of thinks thought on a little journey over the Grand Trunk. The text is epigramatic in style, and interesting, as all this well-known writer's texts and epigrams are. It is printed in the Roverofter style on hand made antique paper, with a four page cover, printed in a light blue and black on a sepia deckled stock. There is not only good advice in this booklet to the railroad man, but to the public. A copy of the booklet may be had free on application to any of the Grand Trunk offices.

day that there is a possibility of an ice famine in Peterborough next summer, on account of the action of the Board of Health in refusing to let ice be cut from the Little Lake. I can tell you, Mr. Editor, that this is a serious matter. What will hotels and business people do without refrigerators? The food will not keep, especially meats, and milk will not keep over night, and hardly from one meal to another. Private homes will also suffer. I tell you, sir, that if it should happen that a supply of ice is not provided, people will not be able to live in the town.

I hope the Board of Health, therefore, will reconsider the matter and for this year at least permit ice to be used from the lake as heretofore. Next year the ice men will have time to make other arrangements.

Frank Montgomery,
Proprietor Montgomery House.

MR. BURNHAM MAKES REPLY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Examiner is in a bad way over my course on the Ne Temere question. Well! It and its friends will probably feel worse before I get through. Both the Lancaster bill and the general supremacy of the state in all matters, are now to be submitted to the highest court in the realm. That makes the Examiner uneasy and probably others also. The self assumed supremacy of other bodies that the state, will now be tested in the courts and will be set aside once and forever. If there is no delay (and delay is the only possible charge that can be unearthed against it), the whole question of the supremacy of the state will be solved. Did the Liberal administration ever propose to relieve the situation? Did it propose a reference? Does Sir Wilfrid suggest a remedy? No. He maintains there is nothing to refer to the courts. He maintains that the Ne Temere is not a civil but ecclesiastical measure. The same old sophistry that has been and is being played upon the people. Meanwhile families are being torn asunder. The Borden measure refers not only to marriage (the Lancaster Bill) but all questions of civil rights, a most far-reaching proposal.

The Examiner objects to this, it is under the lash. It must object as Sir James would say, "poor thing."

Yours truly,
J. H. Burnham.

MORE THAN A THOUSAND TO FIGHT IN THE RANKS

Against Home Rule—Will Go to Ireland at Once if Required—Great Winnipeg Meeting

Winnipeg, Jan. 29.—That eleven hundred Orangemen from Ulster, living in the Canadian North-West have volunteered to return to Ireland to take up arms against Home Rule, was reported to the secret meeting of Orangemen in Winnipeg Friday night.

The meeting approved of the proposal to hold a big public gathering in Winnipeg later on. Report was made of the success of the Grand Lodge in collecting funds to oppose Home Rule, some eight thousand dollars being raised.

At an enthusiastic meeting held in Scott Memorial Hall, a sweeping denunciation of the home government's Home Rule policy was made. The following resolution was presented to the meeting and was unanimously carried:

"Whereas, the Protestants of Ulster feel that the stability of the British Empire, more particularly the stability and unity of the United Kingdom is endangered by the Home Rule bill and its provisions, and

"Whereas, the despicable attempt of Winston Churchill to speak in the Ulster Hall, where his father a generation ago fought against Home Rule, can only be provocative of strife and bloodshed.

"We, the members of the Ulster Protestant Association in Winnipeg in regularly constituted and ordered meeting assembled, hereby express our heartiest sympathy with our fellow-countrymen in Ulster in their opposition, and condemn the policy which permits a Cabinet Minister to speak under circumstances which can only end in disorder, and we further particularly condemn the spirit which allows him to speak under protection which has been denied Unionist speakers against Home Rule in National constituencies.

"Resolved, that we pledge ourselves to support financially and otherwise the campaign against Home Rule, being convinced that it is not in accord with the best interests of the Protestant people of Ireland."

SUFFRAGETTES WILL MAKE HARCOURT'S LIFE MISERABLE

London, Jan. 29.—Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt's life is to be made miserable if the Suffragettes can do anything to make it so. In reply to a deputation, Mr. Harcourt, who is Secretary of State for the colonies, reiterated his opposition to Women's Suffrage, and the head of the deputation declared that the women of Great Britain would do all in their power to make his life miserable. It would, said the militant Suffragette, be the aim of women to work for his discomfort. His bread, she said, was buttered, and he had no sympathy for working women.

BLACK-HAND ARTIST JAILED

Cobalt, Ont., Jan. 29.—Peter Petterman was sentenced to ten years in Kingston, by Magistrate Atkinson, on Friday for Black-Hand Methods in trying to extort money from the Imperial Bank here. He threatened to blow up the bank if two thousand dollars was not sent him. The police stepped in and ended his arrest, after which he confessed. Petterman, an Italian, is a Swede, but has lived in America for twenty years.

ITALIANS SEIZE FRENCH BOAT, BUT RELEASE HER

Several Barges Were Shelled And Great Indignation Followed the Incident

Paris, Jan. 29.—The Italian torpedo boats which seized the French steamer Tavignano last night also shelled several barges which were going out from shore yesterday to unload the Tavignano off Biban, Tunis. According to a special despatch received here to-day from Ben Garda, a coast town on the frontier between Tunis and Tripoli, the capture of the Tavignano and the shelling of the barges occurred in French waters. The indignation over the incident is very great.

The Tavignano has been released.

TRADERS BANK REPORT.

The Financial Statement Most Satisfactory to the Shareholders.

In a year when all our banks have been making satisfactory progress, the Traders Bank has proved no exception to the rule. An analysis of their annual statement for the year ended December 30th, 1911, and a glance at the illuminating comparative statement shows that the bank made a record for itself. The net profits of $601,000 were the largest in its history. Other figures in connection with the report also constitute a record. Its Rest account, which stands at $2,500,000 shows a gain of $200,000 over the figures for the previous year. Its deposits amount to $40,000,000, showing a gain of $4,000,000 over the figures for the previous year. The bank's liquid or quickly available assets, which stand at almost $15,000,000 show a gain of over $3,000,000, while its total assets of $52,427,000 show an increase of over $5,000,000 over the figures for the previous year.

Thus, it will be seen that every department of the bank's activities shows increases over the records made in 1910. Such a showing naturally entitles the management to the congratulations of the shareholders and all who are interested in the bank's progress.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—An order-in-council published in this week's Canada Gazette, provides that human or other hair, unmanufactured or uncleaned, from China, must be unpacked and disinfected by steam or boiling water before it is allowed entry into Canada. WILL USE PRUDENCE.

German Socialists Will Endeavor Not to Give Offease.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Interviewed after his election at Potsdam, the seat of the Kaiser's suburban palace, Herr Leibknecht, leader of the Socialists said:

"You ask me what will now be the attitude and influence of the Socialist party in the Reichstag. No party has ever been so powerful in the German Parliament since the foundation of the Empire. Our influence, therefore, will be enormous, and we will have to be reckoned with, but we must act with prudence and so avoid giving patriots any pretext for dissolution.

"The peace of the world is now assured, and you can tell the public so with every confidence."

A Year of Prosperity

Annual General Meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

Elsewhere will be found the report of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, which took place at the head office of the Company in Peterborough on Friday, 26th inst. The President and directors are to be congratulated on the result of the year's operations. The gross earnings amounted to $251,-038.16, and after payment of interest on deposits and debentures, and all expenses of management, there remained a net profit of $141,943.44. To this amount has been added $44,-477.71, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $186,421.15. After payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. for the year, amounting to $100,000, and adding $40,000 to Reserve Fund, there remains $46,421.15 to be carried forward to Profit and Loss Account. The Reserve Fund now stands at $760,000, making 76 per cent. of the present paid up capital of $1,000,000.

The above is indeed a most creditable showing, and indicates the most careful and wise management.

The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox; Vice-President, W. G. Morrow and Richard Hall; Directors, D. W. Dumble, Peter Hamilton and H. C. Cox.

WILL TROOPS BE SENT TO SHOOT MEN WHOSE CRIME IS LOYALTY TO EMPIRE?

Opposition of Ulster Stronger and More Wide-Spread Than Ever—Will Not Allow Liberties to Be Sacrificed by Log-Rolling Between Liberals and Nationalists—Prosperity of Ireland May Be Endangered

London, Jan. 29.—England is rapidly splitting into two distinctly marked camps over Home Rule, which now has eclipsed all other questions of political significance. Indeed one must revert to the past of over a generation ago to find a parallel in intensity of feeling—the memorable campaign of '86, in which the Gladstone Government was crushed under the hated burden of Home Rule.

Unflinching Resistance.

That they are determined to offer unflinching resistance is beyond question. The manifesto now published by the Ulster Unionist Council is no empty demonstration. No one who has been in the North of Ireland lately can be under any illusion as to the temper of the people. Liberals at one time sought to comfort themselves with the thought that the opposition of Ulster to Home Rule was dying away. The truth is that it is stronger and more widespread to-day than it has ever been before. There was perhaps a tendency to misunderstand the attitude of Ulstermen. They do not, like the Nationalists, devote their lives to agitation and speech-making. At ordinary times they prefer to attend to the practical business of building up the welfare of the community. As long, therefore, as the prospect of Home Rule appeared vague and remote they remained calm and quiet. But as soon as the danger became real they prepared to act. Their intentions are perfectly simple and clear. They are resolved not to submit to the authority of a Dublin Parliament. Further, they make it plain that they feel themselves justified in resorting to every means that may be found necessary to enable them to preserve their position as loyal citizens of the United Kingdom.

All Ulster Opposed.

Ulstermen are not given to empty bluff and boasting. Only those who have ever been in the North of Ireland can cherish the delusion that the expressed intentions of the Ulster Unionist Council will not be carried out should the emergency arise. Ulstermen may have the defects of their qualities. They are said by their enemies to be narrow and intolerant. But there is no possible question as to their strength of character and tenacity of purpose. When they declare that if their claim to remain as citizens of the United Kingdom is disregarded, they will set up a provisional government, it is idle to pretend that they do not mean what they say, or that they are incapable of giving effect to their policy. The strength of the Ulster Unionists lies in the fact that all classes and sections of the community are firmly united in regard to Home Rule. In the face of this supreme issue all minor controversies are forgotten.

Roman Church Working.

In the North of Ireland the Unionists declare that Home Rule would mean Rome Rule. No proper safeguards, they insist, would avail to check the ambition of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to make the law of the land to conform to the law of the church. The recent Papal edict, following upon the Ne Temere decree, shows that these apprehensions are well founded.

This edict and the Bull which it interprets threaten with punishment of excommunication not only against all Roman Catholics who, without the Church's permission, summon ecclesiastical persons before a lay tribunal, but also against those "who enact laws or decrees against the liberty or rights of the church." The assurances which the Archbishop of Dublin was asked to give in reference to the non-application of the decree to Ireland were very unsatisfactory. He said in effect that the final decision in the matter rested with the Holy See. The decree, if enforced, could not but exercise a profound influence over the proceedings of an Irish Parliament. The majority in such a body would be Roman Catholics and they could be compelled under the threat of the severest penalties of their church, to obey the wishes of this Church in all legislation and administer in any way affecting ecclesiastical rights and liberties. It is little wonder that the Irish Protestants are up in arms.

HYDRO POWER FOR THE FARM

Commission Will Be Delivering It Direct by June

EXPERIMENT TO BE MADE

System is to Be Tried in One Municipality Before Installation Becomes General.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—The Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be delivering power direct to the farmers of Ontario before the first of June next.

"The demand from the farmers is growing like a snowball rolling down a hill," said Major Pope, secretary of the Commission this morning, "and by spring everything should be in readiness for turning Hydro-Electric power into the farmers' houses and barns."

Petitions from groups of farmers in all parts of the Province, forwarded through their township councils, are being received in considerable numbers each week.

Experiment in One Locality.

It is understood that an experiment will be made first in one municipality, limiting the operations for a short time to a certain zone in order that the details of installation operation, cost, etc., may be perfected and all possible mistakes in the further Provincial extensions guarded against.

The farmers will pay the cost of their own installations, and by agreeing to that comparatively minor expenditure, the power of the commission will be delivered everywhere in the country located within a reasonable distance of a low tension line.

The application of Hydro-Electric Power to the uses of the Ontario farmer will be along much the same lines as the rural telephone system.

Favor Township Plan.

The payment for the power consumed will impose the cost through the local assessment rolls.

Some of the counties have notified the Commission of their desire to discuss the Hydro-Electric proposition for farm purposes organizing their users on a county basis, but such a course is not encouraged by the Commission, the preferred basis of organization being within the township lines.

REIGN OF DYNAMITE

Outrages in Pekin Indicate That Bomb Campaign Has Been Started

Pekin, Jan. 29.—The agents of the revolutionary party in this city recently intimated that a dynamite campaign was not improbable in the near future. Yesterday's and to-day's outrages may be the beginning of a series of similar crimes. It is evidently the intention of the dynamiters to pick out the most prominent officials and military officers who are known to be opposed to the Republican movement.

Tien Tsin, China, Jan. 29.—An attempt was made this morning to assassinate Brigadier-General Chang Hsun Chih at the railroad station here. The General was not injured, and the bomb thrower was eventually arrested.

The would-be assassin is a young Chinaman. The General on leaving the train, proceeded to his brougham which was in waiting. The assassin followed him and threw the bombs, which wrecked the carriage.

JAPAN'S ATTITUDE.

Tokio, Jan. 29.—Japan intends to adhere to the preciple of integrity of the Chinese Empire. So much was gathered from the replies of Viscount Uchida, the Foreign Minister, to interpellations introduced at a meeting of the committee of the House of Representatives to-day.

THE ICE QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I hope something will be done to clear up the situation in regard to ice. If the Allin Ice Company, which appears to have a monopoly of the ice business in Peterborough, are forced to haul ice from above the city, they will, I presume, have to increase the price. That is all there is to it. But, at the same time, I agree with The Times in saying that they should have had reasonable not-

WILL DEVELOP NORTH BAY.

Temiskaming Commission Building Switches and a Big Ice House.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—The acquiring of running rights over the T. & N.O. Railway by the Grand Trunk Railway, connecting the G.T.R. lines east of Toronto with the Transcontinental line at Cochrane, evidently means development for North Bay. At North Bay, it is learned, 4,000 yards of track for switching are to be laid, and an ice house to hold 5,000 tons of ice is to be constructed, all of which goes to show that with the traffic from the east over the T. & N.O. to Transcontinental, the double tracking of the T.N.O. may be a possibility of the near future with the opening up also of New Ontario.

GERMANY MUST BREAK HER BONDS SOME DAY

A War With England Would Cripple Financial System of Whole World

London, Jan. 29.—Sir Edward A. Holden, M.P., chairman of the London City and Midland Bank, who is regarded as one of England's foremost financiers, made pointed reference to the British attitude towards Germany in a speech yesterday.

"Germany's financiers and business men," he said, "are equal to any in the world. They are assisting in the development of other countries in a most wonderful way. Outside her own country Germany has little territory which she can call her own. Other countries are acquiring additional interests abroad, but if Germany makes any move in the same direction she is immediately surrounded by difficulties."

"Such a condition must ultimately lead to the breaking of her bonds.

"Speaking for myself, I think nothing could happen that could be more for the benefit of finance throughout the whole world than that more consideration were shown her. We do not desire war. We do not desire to see Germany's financial institutions crippled. Neither do we desire to have our own financial institutions crippled. But as sure as war takes place it will mean disaster to and collapse of the financial system of the whole world."

DUKE OF FIFE IS VERY ILL

Princess Royal's Private Surgeon Gets Rush Orders to Sail

London, Jan. 29.—The chill which detained the Duke of Fife at Wadyhaifa has taken so serious a turn that the Princess Royal, daughter of the late King Edward VII., has telegraphed to London to Her Royal Highness' private surgeon, who left last night for Egypt.

The Duke and his royal wife were on their way to Khartoum to attend the consecration of the new cathedral when he became ill. The Duke, who is 18 years older than his wife, was born in 1849.

A few weeks ago, while on their way to Egypt, the Duke, the Princess Royal, and their daughters were ship wrecked and had a narrow escape from losing their lives.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR'S TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS

Manila, Jan. 29.—Terrible hardships was suffered by two school teachers, Arthur Young and his wife, of the town of Maasin, on the Island of Leyte, while on a visit of inspection of the schools of the district, accompanied by their 3-year-old child.

They started out from Maasin in a carrying launch, which soon became unmanageable. As there were no oars in the boat, they could not reach the shore and the little craft drifted out to sea. For five days and five nights they floated about without meeting any other vessel. They had neither food nor water with them, and were almost in despair when they were cast up on the beach of Biliran Island 200 miles distant. When they landed both Mr. and Mrs. Young were [illegible] the child was quite well. All will probably recover.

WHITE'S FRIENDS TO STOP ANY RELEASE FOR THAW

Another Application Will Be Made to Have Him Freed From Matteawan

Fishkill Landing, N.Y., Jan. 27.—The announcement that Harry K. Thaw's attorneys would early in February make application for a jury to determine his sanity, revealed the fact that friends of Stanford White have been busy collecting evidence with which to oppose Thaw's move. Through his counsel, Clarence J. Shearn, Thaw will demand a writ of habaes corpus, with a jury trial for sanity.

Standford White's friends, who have never come out in the open before as opposing Thaw, have, it is said, gathered much data, and will retain noted attorneys to fight Thaw's efforts to free himself. It is estimated that they will try to involve State officials in an effort to show that Thaw is intimately connected with them, and he was responsible for many of the changes that have been made at the matteawan asylum for the criminal insane.

JUDGMENT SOON IN HERBERT CASE

Mrs. Hebert's Appeal to Have Her Marriage Declared Binding Still Holds Attention.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—The discussion on the Ne Temere decree has drawn attention to the fact that an important and probably decisive judgment has yet to be delivered here in connection with the Hebert case, which first focussed the attention of the country on the subject.

MRS. HEBERT'S APPEAL.

The motion made by the wife of Hebert on Dec. 7, after her husband had decided to discontinue the action as he alleged "on the grounds of poverty" is still undecided. Mrs. Hebert's lawyers asked Judge Charbonneau to declare the marriage legal and binding.

Judge Charbonneau has been much delayed in bringing in his ruling on account of the tremendous pressure of work in his court. When things got easier he was called upon to take the courts of a fellow judge who was sick.

EXHAUSTIVE SEARCH.

One of the newspapers stated that the finding would be delivered in a few days. This was three weeks ago. Judge Charbonneau himself said this week that he was working hard on the judgment. He explained that he was making exhaustive search of every record that can have any possible bearing on the subject and was finding the task a very heavy one. He says that he is making all haste as he is anxious to get the problem off his hands.

On this the first birthday of his son, whom he had never seen, Captain Barton Cruikshank, returned to the village almost direct from Porto Rico, in a fruitless effort to see his wife and family, who for more than a year, mourned him as dead until he was found in New York as Donald Douglas.

Though announcements from the family that there would be no reconciliation, had preceded his arrival, Cruikshank was hopeful that his wife would receive him, and that he could see his children again. But Mrs. Cruikshank was firm in her refusal.

A DIFFICULT LANGUAGE

Chinese Language Has 40,000 Characters of Separate Meaning, and Accent.

The difficulties of making up a font of Chinese type, says the American Consul at Shanghai, although considerable, are not relatively so great as one might imagine, for while Kang Hsi's dictionary the standard and most comprehensive work of its kind in the language, contains some 40,000 characters it has been found that for all practicable purposes a font need contain about 7,000. Of course, with a font of this size the Chinese printer, in the course of setting up a book will frequently find that he lacks a dozen or so unusual characters, a difficulty which he readily meets by having these missing symbols hand cut on blank ype by skilled engravers, who, thanks to the old wood-block system are to be found in practically every town in China. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and their commentaries, are still produced by the time-honored method of printing from wooden blocks. Among the reasons why the Chinese prefers his books of this nature printed in the old way are his naturally strong conservatism, the peculiar charm and artistic softness of the pages printed from blocks, which the modern books from metal presses do not have, and the fact that the new style volumes lack, that peculiar odour imparted in the older method by the lampblack table ink, with which they are printed, an odour which, although extremely disagreeable to occidental nostrils, is inseparably associated in the Chinese mind with good literature.

TROUSERS FROM OLD COATS

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match-boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy up in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any other work, collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting; cock-roaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for thirty or fifty cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.

One has only to watch their storytellers in the streets to see that the Chinese are natural orators. They are also very clever conjurers. Rich Chinese are very charitable. They distribute free rice and tea in time of exceptional distress; they subscribe to hospitals and to asylums for the blind, for the old, for lepers, and for orphans they even support associations for supplying free coffins to the poor.

THAT DOG'S FACT, DOG

"I was telling you a story the other day," said Jones, "about dogs." "Oh," said Toby, "I had a dog and was taking a near cut across some fields when I missed the animal, and on going back I found him staring at a notice-board bearing the words, 'All dogs found here will be shot.' And come he would not."

"Yes, yes, that's good, but what about Johnson's retriever? One night his house caught fire, all was confusion; old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled them out sharp.

"Alas! one was left behind, big up jumped the dog, rushed in, and soon reappeared with the child, depositing it on the lawn. All were out now, but in rushed the dog again. What he was after no one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with what do you think?"

"Give it up," came from the listeners.

"Why, with the fire-policy wrapped up in a damp towel, gentlemen."

A NEWSPAPER BLUNDER

A year or two ago, Big Ben (the well-known Westminster parliament clock) was fitted with new hands. A reporter in the London office of a Manchester paper saw his chance and wrote: "A well-known character, who has lived in Westminster all his life, and is familiarly known to many Londoners as "Ben," underwent a serious operation this morning. As Westminster Hospital was too full to allow of him having a bed, the operation was carried out by two doctors in the open air, and in the presence of a large crowd. Both of Ben's hands were taken off — successfully and rapidly. A new pair will be provided for him." The sub-editor in Manchester read through the paragraph, and added the headlines: 'Operation in the Open Air. Big London Crowd Watches Man's Hands Taken Off.' And so it duly appeared in next morning's paper."

Entertaining Up To Date

A new form of entertaining, started by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is being taken up by Newport hostesses. It is a dinner and dance, with the dancing between the courses. As soon as one course is finished the orchestra strikes up, and the guests leave their places and begin to dance. The dance finished, another course is served. Eating and dancing go on in this way until the dinner is finished. By the time coffee is served the dinner-hall has tasted two hours.

AFTER THE BANTAMWEIGHT

Al Delmont, who has fought Jimmy Walsh about as often as Jim Barry has mixed with Sam Langford, wants to get the bantamweight belt and has challenged. Johnny Coulon at 116 pounds. Albert is a great little fighter, but he will not be able to make 116 pounds ringside and Johnny Coulon absolutely refuses to make a lower weight for any star.

McGOORTY IN ENGLAND

Eddie McGoorty, Wisconsin middleweight, is in England again this winter, as his manager, Patsy Callahan, has received an invitation to box Jim Sullivan at the National Sporting club.

Some roosters do almost as much crowing as some men.

Some of the new parasols are edged with narrow ostrich feathers, and have a big bow of ribbon on the handle, also edged with feathers.

For a satin slipper nothing is so effective as a small round buckle of rhinestone through which is inserted a satin or velvet ribbon.

Curls and puffs are used in profusion and quantities of false hair are still absolutely necessary. Infantile styles prevail — quite babyish, in fact.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

A vogue which will commend itself to the home artist is the use of hand-painted ribbon for trimming evening and other gowns. Both silk and satin ribbon are treated to water-colour designs of a "sketchy" artistic type usually in colours of "chintzy" suggestion, or imitative of Japanese colour schemes with the "Chinese" vases, pure greens and reds, and inevitable touch of black.

A broad satin ribbon hand-painted in a bold conventional design makes an excellent skirt "band" of the fashionable kind. It can, if desired be veiled with chiffon, in order to produce the attractive "blurred" effect so well liked this season. Moreover ribbons serve to trim tunics and empire blouses, the edges of the ribbon being turned under to make a simulate piece satin, or a beaded edge can be worked over the selvedge in beads coloured like the painted design. It is an original detail of this character which just now distinguishes the most expensive gown.

Some Sickroom Rules

The doctor's orders must be scrupulously obeyed. The patient should be in a room as remote as possible from the "bustle" of the house. The window should, as a rule, be kept open but there must be no draughts. The fire must be tended quietly — not with tongs, but with gloved fingers. The nurse's dress should be simple, washable, and make no rustling sounds. The patient must not be regaled with minute accounts of the terrible illnesses of other people. The household worries must not be mentioned in the sick-room. The patient's meals — no matter how simple they are — must be served up daintily, with specially attractive tray-cloths and china. Flowers must be taken out of the room at night. Visitors must be admitted with the doctor's permission, and not otherwise.

A Mother's Creed

Mrs. Osora S. Davis gives the following beautiful "mother's creed":

I believe in the eternal importance of the home as the fundamental institution of society.

I believe in the immeasurable possibilities of every boy and girl.

I believe in the imagination, the trust, the hopes, and the ideals which dwell in the hearts of all children.

I believe in the beauty of nature, of art, of books, and of friendship.

I believe in the satisfaction of duty.

I believe in the little homely joys of everyday life.

I believe in the goodness of the great design which lies behind our complete world.

I believe in the safety and peace which surround us all through the ever-brooding love of God.

To Cure Forehead Creases

A perfectly smooth brow is not the least of youth's enviable possession, and it is one of these tiresome accidents which makes a "fringy" style of hairdressing best becoming just when the forehead begins to record the wear and tear of time.

For the heavy lines known as "frown marks" the beauty doctors advocate what they call "wrinkle plasters." The lines are pressed out with the fingers, and the plaster is applied while the "frown mark" is thus forcibly held in abeyance. The plaster should be applied, it seems, every time one proposes to go into a "brown study," as well as during sleep.

To eradicate the fine lines, flannel wrung out of hot water and laid on the forehead for ten minutes at a time, and followed by a similarly lengthy dabbing not rubbing, with olive oil in the treatment prescribed. Adopted twice a day for a fortnight, these means are said to ensure a smooth white brow. The oil must be gently applied, as it is the oil which feeds the wasted tissues that cause the lines.

Browned Crumbs.

Keep all scraps of crust until there is a good quantity; cut off any black bits, and put the rest on a baking-tin in the oven until they are a bright golden brown all over and quite crisp. When ground them in a mortar, or, if there is not one available, put them between two pieces of paper and break them with a rolling-pin. Next pass them through a sieve—this ensures them being all of one size. Put them in a tin with a tight-fitting lid.

These crumbs are useful for rubbing over boiled ham or bacon, and can often be used for puddings instead of white crumbs, giving the mixture a richer appearance.

Seared Round Steak

Have the butcher cut the steak thick. Lay it on your meat-board, sprinkle lightly with flour and pound until the flour disappears. Continue this, turning the steak over occasionally, until about half a cupful of flour to one pound of steak has been used. Put a little butter or suet in the frying-pan and heat smoking hot. Sear the steak on both sides, being careful not to burn. Now add a little hot water, about a cupful, cover closely, and set back to simmer for about half an hour. Add more water if necessary. Season with butter, pepper and salt just before serving. You will have a rich, brown gravy, which may be thickened if liked.

Not Room for Both

"I know Amos comes in for a lot of points because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of brutality."

"What's the matter with Amos?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Amos was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Amos poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't get you both in.'"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

THOMAS GRIGG
Qu'Appelle

For nineteen years Thomas Grigg has farmed near Qu'Appelle, meeting set-backs, but prospering. Although a Canadian, he and his wife came to the Springbrook district from South Dakota. Generally speaking, wheat growing has been the mainstay. Horse-raising, also, has received attention to an extent sufficient to lead Mr. Grigg to pass opinion that a man can make as much money on a half section of rough land raising colts as he can on a real good quarter at wheat-growing. Pigs, also, are kept and on different occasions have helped him "out of a tight place." He finds that, as a rule, there is enough feed around to fatten a bunch. The farm comprises 640 acres of which about one-quarter is summerfallowed annually. Wheat is grown for two years, and then oats or barley. Recently, Mr. Grigg has rented his farm for a year in order that he and his good wife may spend the winter in California and take a well-earned rest.

HON. HUGH J. MACDONALD
Police Magistrate
Winnipeg

Mr. Hugh Macdonald who was lately appointed Police magistrate of the Gateway city was formerly premier of Manitoba. Probably the importance of his magistracy lies principally in the fact that the man he succeeded was the famous late T. Mayne Daly, and though Mr. Macdonald is not in his famous father's rank he is big hearted enough to make the attempt to fill a big man's shoes. Nothing attempted, nothing done is certainly not in his make up.

Squire Macdonald is a son of the late John A. Macdonald, and might have been premier of Canada today, if he had remained in Dominion politics, and followed closely in the footsteps of his dad. But he chose the nearer honors offered by a provincial premiership and got out of the running for the post of prime minister of Canada.

DR. A. BEVERLEY WELFORD
Woodstock.

It is well for this country that the doctors take such a large and disinterested part in its public life. True they cannot take an active interest in the larger problems because it would mean their giving up their professional duties, but in every community you will find at least one medical man taking an active interest in teh local affairs.

Such a one is Dr. A. Beverley Welford of Woodstock Ont. who is one of the pioneers of the Canadian Club movement in his district, though the doctor's energies are not confined to this laudable work. He is practically connected with every movement that has for its object—the raising of the standard of life.

NELLIE L. McCLUNG
Canadian writer

Mrs. McClung has lived in Manitoba for the last thirty years, having come from Owen Sound with her parents in the very early days of this province. However, she is always very careful to explain that she was only a "mere child" at that time, and yet her stories of some of the happenings of the long journey by ox-train from Winnipeg to the point on the Souris river where her parents located, are so vividly told that we are forced to believe that she must have been a very bright child for her years.

Mrs. McClung, who before her marriage was Nellie L. Mooney, received her education at a country school and afterwards at the Central Collegiate in Winnipeg. She taught school for five years and then married Mr. R. W. McClung, who was engaged in the drug business in Manitoba, Man They lived in Manitou until last summer, when they removed to Winnipeg, and have taken up their residence on Chestnut street. Mrs McClung was elected president of the local branch of the Canadian Woman's Press club, for this year.

Mrs. McClung has written two books, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and "The Second Chance;" also many short stories. Last year she gave a series of recitals, from her own books, in Manitoba, and also in Ontario.

At the present time she is engaged in writing another book

Mrs. McClung chooses for her characters the plain people of every day life, when we all know. The keen fidelity of her writing makes a strong appeal to the discriminating reader.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

SIRES AND SONS.

At sixty Sir William H. Smith, who began life as a ropemaker's boy, takes over Sir Philip Watts' job as director of naval construction for the fleets of George V.

Captain Herbert Edward Greenstreet of the New Zealand Shipping company recently departed on his eightieth voyage round the world. Altogether he has sailed 2,000,000 miles and never had a mishap.

Judge Edgar Jay Sherman, statesman, soldier, author and jurist, who recently resigned from the Massachusetts superior bench, was admitted to the bar fifty-three years ago. He is now seventy-seven.

Dr. James Curtis Hepburn, the oldest surviving graduate of Princeton, class of 1832, began his career as a medical missionary to China in 1840. On his ninetieth birthday anniversary he was honored with an imperial decoration from the mikado. He was born at Milton, Pa., ninety-six years ago.

F. Dewitt Fisher, clerk in the postoffice at Toledo, O., has received word from the postoffice department that he has been proclaimed the champion mail distributer in the United States postal service. Fisher's record in a test on Aug. 9 was 711 pieces of mail in eleven minutes, an average of sixty-five a minute. The title had formerly been held by John B. Francis of the Cincinnati postoffice.

Dr. Cook might now prepare a new and more exciting lecture upon his new and old adventures in Copenhagen.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Abroad J. P. Morgan is always the honored guest of the most illustrious. At home it is proposed to give him the third degree.—Washington Star.

Sporting Notes.

Baseball statistics just compiled show that during the last nine years American league teams have won 188 games in interleague contests to 120 for National league teams.

Miss Dorothy Campbell, one of the greatest golf players in the world, will reside in the United States and take up newspaper work this winter. Miss Campbell has won ten gold medals for championships in various countries.

Uhlan's feat in trotting a mile in [illegible] is regarded as one of the most wonderful performances that has ever characterized the American trotting turf. One-quarter of this great mile was trotted in 30 seconds by the son of Singan, two others in 31 seconds each and the final one in 30½ seconds.

GREAT CANVASSERS

Napoleon and George Washington and Many More Great Men Were Successful Books Agents In Their Youth.

Books — Well-known firm of London publishers require the services of country gentlemen to act as agents. Liberal commission. Districts apportioned. Hunting and shooting men preferred. Members of good families, younger sons who have been at the 'Varsities or public schools, will find this a first-class opening. Apply, etc.

When the above appeared in the advertisement columns of the English papers recently, no doubt many people who read it would ask themselves what things were coming to.

Country gentlemen taking to book-canvassing!

Certainly it reads revolutionary, even in these days of trading "nobility and gentry."

But greater men than country squires have, before now, been engaged in canvassing books.

Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French, the world's greatest military genius, was once a book-canvasser.

The future conqueror, while yet a lieutenant, and with nothing to live on but his scanty pay, undertook to "push" for Messrs. Boulanger and Co., the Paris publishers, a work called "The History of the (French) Revolution." And apparently he liked the work — with its emoluments — for after a short trial he applied to be given the sole agency for the Department of La Vendee. He had, however, to be content with a restricted district in suburban Paris With what zeal he "worked" this may be seen to-day at the Louvre, where there is exhibited his canvasser's outfit, together with the long list of subscribers' names which his industry secured.

Almost at the same time, in a different part of the world, another future ruler was partly earning his bread as a book agent. This was none other than George Washington, "Father" of the United States. The particular book that Washington canvassed bore the somewhat lengthy title of "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, American Savage; How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization."

To "get off" such a mouthful as this would surely require more than average ability and persuasiveness, and if, as he recorded, Washington's sales were eminently satisfactory, small wonder that in later life he accomplished so much [illegible]

The Wrong Bit.

An Irish Jarvie was driving an English tourist round Dublin, and on stopping for refreshment the tourist remarked to Pat how lean his horse was. Going up to the horse's head, the tourist examined its mouth, and, turning round with the air of a man who knew something, he said:—

"I am afraid that the want of flesh in your horse is due to the large bit you have in its mouth."

Pat looked at him sorrowfully as he replied:—

"Shure, yer honour, I won't argue wid ye, but I'm after thinking it's the small bit that he has in his stomach that's a-troublin' the poor baste!"

COSTLY SPITE

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $875,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by sidelines. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment of Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the scions of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A solar-stud, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of Hesse

CALGARY FOOTBALL

The energy of Calgary is becoming almost phenomenal. The desire of their football team to play for the Dominion honors seems quite natural although a little late to be perfectly seasonable. But the activity in professional baseball circles is remarkable, considering that [illegible] far away. It is reported that the manager of the Calgary Bronchos is signing up players right and left, one of the "finds" being a youth of nineteen named Brugnatine, who, save a Calgary writer, "has all the earmarks of a veteran."

BASEBALL IN CHINA

They have a baseball season in China as well as a revolution, and the ball-players finished their job first. The teams were recruited in Shanghai and last season the league consisted of four clubs. Next year, it is to be doubled in size. According to reports from Shanghai, baseball is making great headway in China — and why should it not, where there are so many fans?

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, clever manager of Joe Jeanette, claims the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVey, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeannette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVey.

SHOT, BEHEADED AND BURNED

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 27.—General Pedro Montero, who was recently the popular hero of Guayaquil was yesterday shot by the angry populace, dragged into the streets, beheaded, and burned.

General Montero in November last was proclaimed president by the troops stationed there, but handed over the leadership in the Provisional Government to General Flavio Alfaro. A revolutionary army went from Guayaquil to meet the Government troops from Quito, who under command of General Leonidas Plaza defeated them and eventually forced Guayaquil to capitulate.

General Montero with other leaders was captured on January 22, and last evening General Montero was brought before a courtmartial and sentenced to sixteen years in the penitentiary.

When General Plaza, who presided over the courtmartial, announced the sentence, crowds of angry people who had surrounded the palace, awaiting the result, shouted violent protests. The excitement increased rapidly and some of them rushed into the court room, riddled General Montero—with bullets, seized his body and dragged it into the open air. There they hacked the head off the shoulders, gathered fuel with which they started a fire and then cast head and trunk into the flames.

Toronto, Jan. 27.—Local hotelmen consider that they have just about reached the end of the long lane in regard to license fees and they will now endeavor to knock out the Ontario Government tax of five per cent. on bar receipt sexceeding a certain amount.

The meeting of the Hotelmen's Association was not the innocent little election of officers affairs it looked like in the report furnished the newspapers.

Figures submitted to the Association went to show that the five per cent. tax did not interfere at all with 700 license holders in the Province outside of Toronto.

With very few exceptions it only hits the Toronto boniface to any extent. The Toronto license fee is $1,600 which for some of the hotelmen is about doubled, owing to the special tax.

The Association is advised that by making and accepting this special tax the Government contributes itself a partner in the hotelmen's business and if for instance, an hotel company fail in business the Government would be responsible in regard to the liabilities.

A legal opinion that the imposition of the tax in its present form is unconstitutional was discussed and it was decided that a deputation should wait upon the Government with a view to having the tax removed.

"If they will give me the five per cent. they can run my business and take the rest," one prominent hotelman is credited with having said.

So strong do the local license holder steel in their position that they expect, at least after their representations have been made to the Government, that all round increase to the license fee will soon supplant the five per cent. tax.

A NEW LINE FROM OTTAWA

When Completed Line Will be 430 Miles in Length—Will Probably Come to Peterborough.

Montreal, Jan. 27. OR some considerable time it has been rumored that the Central Canada Railway whose head office is in Trenton, is likely to be extended both east and west. An English syndicate is said to have agreed to finance the road by taking over the bonds. The proposed line will extend from Montreal, through Ottawa and Peterborough to Midland.

Messrs. C. J. Willis and Sons of London, England, the well-known firm of English contractors, is said to have the contract to construct a double-track line between Montreal and Ottawa. The first section of the new road which the Railway proposes building is between Montreal and Midland, Ont., a town on the Georgian Bay. The whole line when completed will be 430 miles long, and will likely all be constructed by Messrs. Willis and Sons. The ties for the new road have been purchased and tenders have been called for the steel. Work will start on the Montreal-to-Ottawa section in the spring.

According to Mr. D. Lyall, M. Inst. C.E., a local representative of Willis and Sons, the contractors, have as yet gone no further in choosing the route of the new line than to take a number of surveys.

The Central Railway Company of Canada is capitalized at one million pounds sterling, and lately floated sufficient bonds on the English market to construct a new line between Ottawa and Montreal.

An Excellent Roadbed.

The following is an unsolicited letter from a prominent citizen of Ottawa:—

"After a varied and extensive experience on the several Canadian railway roadbeds during the past six months, I wish to say that it is a real pleasure to travel over the G.T.R. roadbed between Montreal and Detroit, either by day or night, permitting during daylight travel rest and relaxation and by night refreshing and sound sleep.

"In these days of extravagant claims as to superiority it seems to me only fair, when conditions are found to warrant it, that 'praise be given where praise is due.' Hence this statement."

MISSIONARIES ARRIVE IN SHANGHAI.

Shanghai, Jan. 25.—The exodus of Christian missionaries from interior China to the seaport towns is continuing. The Methodist mission rooms have just received the following cable from Shanghai:

"Mrs. O. L. Kilburn and son, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Billinger and children have arrived here safely and well from Cheng-Tu."

Cheng-Tu is the interior post from which all the Methodist missionaries have been recalled because of the disturbances. The cable would seem to indicate that the trouble is not nearly over yet, but may break out with increasing vigor any minute.

The Best Helpmeet.

All men, as well as women, like to be understood. Sympathy is their greatest help, and no woman who is self-centred, who is vain and thinks only of herself will gain the highest regard of man. She may be exquisitely beautiful, have a crowd of admirers at her feet, but she cannot bestow that wonderful happiness a plain little woman full of sympathy gives to her husband. If she understands him, is interested in him and his lifework, whether it be planting vegetables, composing music, or building towers, she will encourage him to reach his highest aim. Being beautiful will not make up for selfish indifference.

Fun and Fresh Ideas.

To remain young one must have company and enjoy it. Not a big dinner party one day, an afternoon reception the next, a late card party the following, and so on. This, for the hostess, is hard work that will quickly bring the appearance of age in its train, and, indeed, no work is more arduous. To attend to the wants of guests, to anticipate their desires, to have the whole responsibility of the success of a party is an utterly different thing to the bright company necessary to the well-being of the woman who leads too monotonous a life.

The titukling influence of four walls is what so many women who are housewives and mothers have to fight against, and they need company as a recreation.

NEW BATHING SUITS

New York.—Skirts on bathing suits are only in the way thinks Miss Dorothy Taylor, the young New York society woman whose abbreviated costume on European bathing beaches last summer shocked many American visitors. Trousers or trunks are less clumsy. Only prudish, silly people, with naughty minds see the harm in a sleeveless bathing suit," she says. "When I go swimming, I go into the water, and I wear silk trousers, or trunks and a long silk jersey, which reaches almost to my knees."

EXPENSIVE DIMPLES

One had a dimple in each cheek — a deep, dainty, loving, delicious, kissable dimple.

"Ah," exclaimed the young fool, "how I wish I had dimples like that!" and he reached out his hand and patted them softly.

The maiden smiled until the dimples were a hundred times lovelier than before, and the youth was completely captured. He took her for drives in the park. Then he took her to the Calidorf and treated her to a dinner such as visiting princes indulge in at the expense of the Government.

Next they went to the theatre and occupied a box, and after that they sought out a cosy café.

And since then he has had two dimples, two deep, cavernous, empty dimples, one in each side of his purse, and they will stay there until some [illegible]

BOILED SNAKE-ONE

Reptiles Though Repugnant to European Tastes are Considered in Many Climes as Dainty Dishes.

People in general have an instinctive abhorrence of reptiles, yet in many parts of the world it is a "cut" from the alligator, not from the joint. The waiter may deliver his order of "Boiled Snake—One."

A peculiarly dainty and nourishing dish is made with the iguana, the flesh of which is as white as that of a chicken and just as palatable, though the reptile's outward appearance with its scaly, blackspotted, green coat, is more repulsive than either crocodile or alligator. To the inhabitants of the Bahamas and the other islands in the West Indies, the iguana affords a much valued source of food. They hunt them down by means of dogs, their mouths muzzled in order to prevent them using their teeth and damaging the reptile, then eat them alive, or kill, salt and barrel them for home consumption. The flesh of the reptile is usually served up boiled, together with a dish of clarified iguana fat, into which the meat is dipped as it is eaten. The eggs of the iguana also are much relished, and are like hens' eggs, in flavour, but wholly filled with yolk, and do not become hard in boiling.

Crocodile flesh is publicly sold in the meat meurkets of Senuaar in Africa, and in Siam you see their carcasses hung up for sale like sheep's in the butcher's shop. Both alligator and crocodile eggs are much prized by certain nations. The second is considered to be a dainty in Siam, while the natives of Madagascar are particularly fond of the first.

Milly: "You know, dear, we've been engaged for two years, and I think it's time we were getting married." Filly: "Oh, I don't know, dear. If you really love him you'll let him go loving for a little longer yet."

'Twas at the skating rink, and the young man was but a beginner. Wherefore he lost his balance! He made a wild effort to grab anything in the way of support. And, as it happened, the nearest thing was a fashionably-dressed lady, also on skates. She promptly turned on him.

"You contemptible cur!" she snarled. "Do you think I am a lamp post, or a piece of furniture, or what? You ought not to be allowed in here, you clumsy lout! What right have you to tear other people's clothes to rags, and claw them in that mad way? You are not fit——"

But the young man had now recovered his composure.

"Pardon me, madam," he remarked, "but haven't you made a mistake?"

"A mistake?" gasped the lady. "What do you mean?"

"Simply this, madam," came the calm retort, "I am not your husband!"

"Accused of begging!" exclaimed a magistrate. "Why, you are the very man who was begging at my door yesterday!"

"Yes," answered the vagrant, with a shrug, "and you didn't give me anything."

THE WONDERFUL BARN

In Ireland, in the county of Kildare, not far distant from Leixlip, is a very picturesque architectural effort, commonly called "The Wonderful Barn." It is built of brick and has six storeys. Each storey internally, is dome-shaped, and in the centre of each floor is a round hole, so fashioned that by means of tackle sacks of corn can be lowered or raised from floor to floor. The ordinary means of entrance and access is by way of a cockscrew flight of steps, which is carried round and outside the building, being connected with doors on each floor. The whole structure is 60ft. high and was built with the chief object of providing employment for the out-of-works of the district.

MUFFS FOR MEN

Although the muff is now exclusively an article of feminine apparel, it was when first introduced in England, toward the close of the fifteenth century, used by both men and women. In fact, in the seventeenth century it was generally regarded as an essential part of the dress of a man of fashion. The muffs then used were somewhat similar to the present fashion — large and [illegible]

MEN WHO DON'T EXERCISE

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPETITE, SLEEPLESSNESS.

Nothing so Sure to "Set Up" a Man Make Him Feel Brisk and Vigorous as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lack of exercise and overwork were the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel S. Stephens, Jr., one of the best known citizens in Woodstock.

In his convincing letter Mr. Stephens says :—

"A year ago I returned ho...e after a long trip, completely worn out. I was so badly affected by chronic biliousness, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of ever getting well. I was always tired and languid, had no energy and spirit, found it difficult to sleep for more than five hours. My appetite was so fickle that I ate next to nothing and in consequence lost weight and strength. I was pale and dark rings und... eyes that made me look like a shadow.

"It was a blessing that I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, languor and feeling of depression passed away, and I fast regained my old-time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well — thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength comfort and good spirits there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Beware of substitutes, and don't let any dealer palm off some other pill on which he can make more money. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

BANKS AND BANK INSPECTION.

One of the large Canadian banks ... tion. It declares that it has no objection whatever to an outside audit of its accounts, but that it does not want an inspection by the Canadian Bankers' Association for the reason that such examination involves a moral responsibility which no association ought to assume in the case of a weak institution. That is to say, the Bankers' Association might guarantee the correctness of a weak bank and thus become morally, if not legally, responsible for the financial standing of the concern. This particular bank prefers its own system of bank inspection, which is admittedly thorough and efficient.

In discussing this matter a Winnipeg paper says that an inspection which might meet the requirement of this bank and its patrons might not suffice to meet the conditions which made possible the collapse of the Ontario Bank and the Farmers' Bank. It is, fortunately, a rare occurrence for a Canadian bank to go into liquidation. But care should be taken to make the number of Canadian bank failures even smaller. There is need of some system of disinterested bank inspection which will safeguard the interest of shareholders and depositors alike. It ought to be possible to prevent banking institutions in Canada from operating in a state of insolvency like the Ontario and the Farmers' banks, which were in rotten condition long before they collapsed. The history of these two banks, with its story of official incompetency, governmental inefficiency and dishonest management, should be warning enough against any bank inspection which does not inspect.

Just what system of disinterested bank inspection the present government proposes or should adopt The Telegram neither knows nor presumes to suggest. But this much is certain that nothing should be left undone to make the banking system of Canada as safe and sound as it is possible for human foresight to provide for. The wretched chapter of recent banking collapses in Canada argues the necessity of a system of inspection wholly apart from the activities of interested parties.

A grateful manner, considered even from a sordid point of view, pays. Would you not be inclined to repeat an invitation to the grateful guest who laid stress upon heartful thanks for the pleasure received?

Certainly it is agreeable to be amply thanked, instead of feeling every entertainment is accepted as a matter of course.

Too Much for the Tiger!

On one occasion at a mission church in a remote village in India a tiger put in an attendance. At any rate, the monarch of the jungle entered the church — probably for the first time in his life — but when the whole congregation rose "en masse" he was evidently not quite sure whether it was a sign of welcome or of menace. The tiger was as much frightened as the congregation, turned tail, sprang out by the way he had entered, and disappeared into his native haunts.

THE KING'S PRIVATE NAME

Throne and resolve to become an ordinary citizen he would be called George Wettin. How does the name Wettin come to be King George's surname? This is the answer —

Queen Victoria married Albert, Duke of Saxe-Cobourg-Gotha, of the senior branch of the House of Saxony. The family name by which this house, dating from the middle of the tenth century, came to be known afterwards was Wettin, and this was and is the surname of both branches — the Ernestine and Albertine — of the House of Saxony.

A GOOD HAND

A young fellow had popped the question, and anxiously awaited the answer that was to decide his fate.

"Do you ever gamble at cards?" the fair one asked.

"No," he answered; "but if I do now would be the time."

"Why?" she inquired.

"Because," he answered, with a deep sigh, "I hold such a beautiful hand."

The Down-Trodden.

A certain battalion — the Terrors" — possessed but a very small band. The commanding officer's feet — he was a burly farmer — were — well, very large. One day the battalion was to march out, but the music was not forthcoming.

"Where on earth is the band?" queried the adjutant.

For some time there was no reply; but when the question was repeated, a gruff voice was heard from the rear rank:—

"I do believe, sir, the colonel trod on it by accident."

WHEN WOMEN LED

The Fair Sex Has Been Well to the Fore in the Past, But Where Real Fighting Was to Be Done.

In the French Revolution women often led the bands of peasants who rose against the aristocrats. At Troyes a similar sight was seen during the champagne riots which convulsed the Aube Department of France.

At the head of the detachment which one district sent to join the "Iron Battalion" marched a splendid-looking young woman, wearing a white-knitted cap, with the Revolutionary red ribbon twined around it. For starting-point forty miles from Troyes, this girl tramped every step of the distance between dawn and dark. She was cheered by the crowds when she arrived in Troyes.

It was a girl, too, who headed the great no-rent strike in New York, three years ago.

Nearly all the big tenements in the Bowery, the most crowded section of darkest New York, are let to agents, who sub-let them in rooms or small flats to the poor. The rents are awful. A man will have to pay twenty-five dollars a month for three small rooms on a fifth floor.

It will be remembered that at the end of 1907 Eastern America suffered from the worst times which had been known in the States for very many years, and the result was that evictions for non-payment of rent became more and more frequent.

A REDUCTION IN RENTS

It was Cecilia Arkin, a nineteen-year-old girl, who devised the plan of campaign, and banded together no fewer than thirty thousand families, who all vowed to pay no more rent unless a general reduction of twenty per cent. was granted. Each family pledged itself to shelter as many as possible of the evicted ones.

The struggle was a long and bitter one. Hundreds of families were turned out, but in the end Cecilia Arkin won a victory; for the agents compromised, and a general reduction of ... per cent. was the condition on which the strike was settled.

The last Carlist rising in Spain was headed by a woman. This was in 1906, and the insurrection broke out in Berga, in the turbulent province of Catalonia. The identity of the lady has never leaked out. She was ... beautifully dressed, and rode magnificently.

It was rumoured at the time that she was Donna Blanca, Duchess of Braganza, and wife of Don Alfonso, brother of Don Carlos. But this surmise was proved to be false, and to this day her identity is a mystery.

There has always been a deal of smuggling along the western end of the boundary line between the United States and Mexico.

When it is cold and beginning to set whisk in the cream and beat all together until it is a thick creamy mass. Pour into a wet mould, and leave it aside until set and quite firm. The Rain Complexion Cure

There are two beautiful women, well known in Irish society, says a lady writer, who frankly declare "the rain cure" to be the sole cause of their exquisite skins being always in perfect condition. Every woman can take the "rain cure" if she wills. Put on a pair of strong shoes, a waterproof, a simple tweed hat, but no veil, and let the fresh soft water reach the skin. Then, on coming in, rub briskly with a soft towel, sit down in a warm but not heated room, and treat all the facial muscles, and you will be astonished at the result. Of course, damp ... will have been re ...

A QUERY SETTLED

For nearly four years she reigned supreme, and then one day, as her long train of "burros" (donkeys), bearing contraband goods, was crossing the Rio Grande, she was surprised by a sudden shower of rifle-bullets. She had been betrayed, and a strong force of Mexican "Rurales" had been ambushed among the rocks.

One of her arms was broken by a bullet, but with splendid courage she gathered her men and rode straight at the troops.

A soldier seized her bridle. She cut him down, and for some minutes a furious fight raged. Then numbers prevailed, and she and her surviving companions were pulled down. She died in hospital a few days later.

There is no part of the world and no race which does not produce its fighting women. Quite lately our own Crown Colony of Southern Nigeria has been plagued by a lady of colour known as the "Omu."

Among her tribe she is reckoned officially as a man, and cannot have a husband.

After causing endless trouble to the authorities she made peace, and then coolly demanded a seat upon the Legislative Council. So far this has not been granted, but it is possible we may hear more of this coal-black Suffragette.

PERSIAN WEDDINGS

Tying the matrimonial knot is a very prolonged and serious affair in Persia. In fact, a wedding may extend for a week. On the last day of the wedding the bride, who has been treated as a sort of outcast, is conducted by a near relative to a room, where she undergoes further and more elaborate decoration.

She then returns to the guest-room, and her dowry is laid before her in rays. The dowry often comprises such queer things as cheap and highly-coloured oleographs, gaudy vases, birdcages, and many useful household articles. Having kissed the hearthstone of her home, she is then given bread, salt, and a piece of gold, and thus equipped and closely veiled she is hoisted on to a gaily-adorned donkey and, accompanied by a circus-like procession of friends, goes to her future home, where her husband awaits her.

"Are you a friend to William Biggins? That ne'er-do-well?"

"I should think not, indeed!"

"Then you'll hardly be interested to hear that he has inherited a hundred thousand pounds."

"What? Dear old Bill!"

Asker: "How do you excuse those mother-in-law jokes of yours to your wife?"

Fuminan: "I tell her they refer to her mother-in-law, and she says they are not half bad enough." 42

"Silver Greyhounds."

The King's messengers are termed "Silver Greyhounds," because their badge of office consists of a silver greyhound surmounted by an Imperial crown attached to a red ribbon. The badge is always carried by a King's messenger, and in the times of war becomes part of his passport from one country to another. The salary of a King's messenger ranges from $1250 to $2000 a year. King's messengers, it might be mentioned, are nearly always Army men, who leave their regiments to undertake the business of carrying the King's official messages to all parts of Europe.

Pineapple Cream

Pineapple cream is a delicious sweet for the hot weather. Required one tin of pineapple, half an ounce of isinglass, ... pineapple into a saucepan (if there is not that quantity make it up with water.) Chop up two-thirds of the pineapple, being careful to remove any skin. Add the chopped-up pineapple and sugar for eight minutes; then add the isinglass that has been previously dissolved in a little hot water; allow all to boil gently for five minutes, and pour the mixture into a bowl. When it is cold and beginning to set whisk in the cream and beat all together until it is a thick creamy mass. Pour into a wet mould, and leave it aside until set and quite firm. Turn on to a glass dish and arrange the remainder of the pineapple around it cut into small chunks.

The Rain Complexion Cure

There are two beautiful women, well known in Irish society, says a lady writer, who frankly declare "the rain cure" to be the sole cause of their exquisite skins being always in perfect condition. Every woman can take the "rain cure" if she wills. Put on a pair of strong shoes, a waterproof, a simple tweed hat, but no veil, and let the fresh soft water reach the skin. Then, on coming in, rub briskly with a soft towel, sit down in a warm but not heated room, and treat all the facial muscles, and you will be astonished at the result. Of course, damp ... will have been re ...

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10 00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 887 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend ... money LOOKING for cure, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scalding, burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Brick dust deposit in the bladder.
5—Prostatic troubles.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weak nerves, nervousness
8—Dizziness or nervous headaches.
9—Rheumatism in any part of the body.
10—Sciatica or pain in the hip joint.
11—Pain in the small of the back.
12—Pain in the leg joints.
13—Pain in the muscles.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.

THE GOLD SHIP

THE GOLD SHIP
The Way Treasure Is Transported From One Country to Another and the Precautions Taken To Protect It.

Of the many romantic happenings which relieve the drabness of modern life, few appeal more strongly to the imagination than the conveyance, to and fro, of the great quantities of gold — whether bullion or specie — which, week in, week out, form an ever-flowing golden stream round the civilized world.

Perhaps the largest quantities of the precious metal are those conveyed weekly from South Africa, the output of the mines, which in bars, not unlike exaggerated cakes of yellow soap in appearance, find their way to the Bank of England and the other great banks. The value of these weekly cargoes frequently runs into millions.

Then, too, every mail steamer which leaves the docks carries its quantum of gold. Gold in bars, gold in sovereigns, gold in the coinage of every nation.

The casual passer-by who wanders through the long corridors of the Bank of England may happen on a little stone-paved courtyard, completely shut in by several sets of iron gates. Here he may see gold "bricks" being thrown into very ordinary-looking vans by sturdy porters, who handle the precious metal as if it were mere clay.

A Big Responsibility.

The van being full, a couple of individuals, also very ordinary-looking, climb in and seat themselves on its gold-paved floor, and off it goes to the docks or the railway-station.

Arived at the docks, the gold, whether in bars or coin — which latter is packed in bags containing 1,000 sovereigns or their equivalent, which in turn are enclosed in iron-bound boxes, sealed with an official seal at the Bank of England on every joint — goes straight on board the ship it is to voyage in.

The bars, or boxes, are received by one of the ship's officers, and, with the assistance of a couple of quartermasters, are carefully checked and tallied. The officer — usually the second officer — signs a receipt for them, and they are placed in a special hold, to which access is obtained by only one entrance, and that is locked and sealed.

From the moment that he has signed the receipt the officer is personally responsible for the bullion and specie and its safe custody and delivery, and access to the treasure-hold can only be had — legitimately — by means of the key, which remains in his possession.

When Silence Is Golden.

[illegible] precautions taken [illegible] situation [illegible] the [illegible] containing [illegible] presence, and even sailors and officers on the actual vessel seldom know where the gold is kept during its voyage, so well is the secret kept.

Probably not more than three or four people in the ship [illegible] possession of the information. The truth is that, surprising as the statement may sound to the uninitiated, there are in existence very highly organised gangs of international thieves, whose special work is the theft, or attempted theft, of gold while in the charge of the steamer companies.

BENEFICIAL WARS

Some People Argue That Wars and Industrial Calamities Benefit Mankind In the Long Run.

Few calamities in the world's history have been unattended by some advantage to humanity. The late Lord Palmerston is credited with having stated that even a great war had its benefits for the English people inasmuch as it induced them to study geography. There are people who go much further, and seriously argue that the horrors of war are afterwards compensated by reforms and discoveries which mankind at large would never have enjoyed but for the drastic chastisement which war inflicts. Among the arguments of this kind deduced from history is the statement that all the wealth and luxury the world has enjoyed from the industry of brass-working would probably have been lost but for the sacking and burning of the city of Corinth in the year 146 B. C. In Corinth there were immense quantities of gold, silver, and copper, and it is said that the violence of the conflagration was so great that these precious metals were melted and ran together, and thus the famous Corinthian brass was first manufactured.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

A Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused. Edward Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a model of model habits, teetotaller, non-smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than [illegible] collecting, and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a [illegible] roisterer, despoiler of women, and burglar.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young man who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and composition in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, thin, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:—

"No, no: that couldn't be true: I wouldn't do a thing like that!"

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

WOMAN WALKS 8000 MILES

A walk of 8,000 miles was recently be finished by Mrs. Stella Woolf, and her husband, Dwight H. Woolf, when they arrive at their home in Kansas City.

The trip started at San Antonio, Texas, more than thirteen months ago. The pair went first to Atlanta and then to New York, where they turned their steps toward home. Previously they made two other walking tours and have covered a total of 10,200 miles on foot.

"When you get into a rut walk out," said Woolf today, as he explained that he took up walking in order to get the outdoor life which his physician two years ago said he must have. At that time Woolf was a music dealer. His health was poor and the doctor told him he would have to get out in the open or die.

"Let's walk," suggested his wife, "for I'm going along."

With them went the family pets, a faithful pony, which has drawn a cart carrying their baggage on the long marches, and a dog.

The Woolfs have eaten and slept in the open. Since leaving San Antonio they have spent only twenty-one nights out of 411 with a roof over their heads.

BADGE FOR COMPETITORS AND OFFICIALS AT STOCKHOLM OLYMPIC GAMES.

BOB FITZ THE MOST REMARKABLE FIGHTER

Who was the most remarkable heavy-weight fighter who ever put up his gloves under the Marquis of Queensbury rules? Answer: Bob Fitzsimmons. The freckled faced Cornishman, maker of horse shoes and built like a reversed pyramid, was the most extraordinary fighter [illegible] he won the championship of the world from Jim Corbett at Carson City. He was thirty-seven when he lost the title to Jeffries and thirty nine when beaten by the Californian the second time.

Age is a big factor in this story. It serves to show that the ruddy proto-type of the antipodes was more extraordinary than Jeffries, who up to the recent disaster at Reno was generally conceded the distinction. Likewise it proves that care of a body can combat the advance of years to a certain extent.

Jeffries was twenty-four years old when he beat Fitzsimmons at Coney Island. He was thirty-five years, two months and nineteen days old when Johnson whipped him in the "battle of the century," July 4. At thirty five he is an old man. At this same age Fitz was in the zenith of his great power.

After the two knockouts which Jeffries imposed on him, the Cornishman went out and beat all candidates except Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, with whom he drew, until the total period of his existence totalled forty-three years. What other fighter in the history of pugilism can claim such a record? None.

Fitzsimmons is to be considered all the more extraordinary because of the weight handicap which he suffered after he defeated all the middleweights. Never scaling more than 170 pounds he had all the punching force of men of fifty pounds more left.

At twenty-nine Jeff retired from the ring and rested on his reputation. He did much hunting and fishing, but idleness was his principal occupation for six years. And when he was induced to train and knock the packing out of Johnson, his paunch bulged out like a submarine boat. He reduced to his old weight after much effort. In training he looked as good as when he had made mince meat of Jack Munro, in his farewell fight. But Ed Dunkhorst could have put up a better battle at Reno than the "mighty" Jeff.

BASEBALL SALARIES WONT BE CUT.

The fact that the minor baseball leagues intend to reduce salaries of players in future has alarmed members of the profession who firmly believe that in the course of time the magnates of the majors, the National and the American, will decide to adopt a similar policy. Alarmists point to present conditions in organized baseball as favorable. From the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico there isn't an outlaw circuit. The players, big and little, are at the mercy of organized magnates wherever professional baseball thrives upon gate receipts. If the major league magnates wanted to apply the screws and chop salaries the players would be compelled to submit or retire from the diamond. They could get no baseball employment anywhere else unless with semi-professional teams paying nominal salaries for one or two games a week.

SOCIETY DEALERS

Society People By Art Dealing Make Good Money on the Side And Many Make Their Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of almost every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain, it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures, and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. "There are certainly in society, many who add to their diminished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"A well-known connoisseur, when recently visiting a Duchess, had the following experience:—

"The lady was delighted to see him; she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt; he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is badly hit by the depression in agriculture. You know all the Irish landowners are, and the value of the estate; could you possibly buy from me that magnificent Louis Seize piece? It was given to a former Duke by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture — it was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have risen in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kwangtung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husband more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself in her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, rates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

AFTER THE BANTAMWEIGHT

Al Delmont, who has fought Jimmy Walsh about as often as Jim Barry has mixed with Sam Langford, wants to get the bantamweight belt and has challenged Johnny Coulon at 116 pounds. Albert is a great little fighter, but he will not be able to make 116 pounds ringside and Johnny Coulon absolutely refuses to make a lower weight for any star.

THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE

The Story of the Founding of the Famous British League. — The Primrose Was Beaconsfield's Favourite Flower.

It was really a chance remark which led to the founding of the Primrose League — that remarkable political organization which to-day has over 1,500,000 members.

When, on April 19th, 1883 — the second anniversary of Lord Beaconsfield's death — his statue was unveiled in Parliament Square, Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, arriving at the Commons late in the afternoon was given a primrose by Mr. Cove superintendent of the members' cloak room. When Sir Henry entered the Chamber he found the whole Conservative party similarly decorated with Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower. The fact impressed him so much that as he walked home with Lord Randolph Churchill he remarked: "What a show of primrose! This should be turned to account. Why not start a Primrose League?"

Lord Randolph was instantly interested. "Draw up a plan," he said "to carry out your idea, and we will see what can be done."

Ultimately Lord Randolph and Sir Henry were joined by Sir John Gorst and Sir Alfred Shade and in due course these four gentlemen founded the League, and constituted themselves the ruling council.

It was originally intended to admit men only, banded in companies of about a hundred, to act as missionaries of the League. Ultimately, however, it was decided to admit ladies with the result that the membership rose from 357 in 1884 to 237,283 in 1886. Not long ago it was reported that the total membership had touched 1,700,000.

It has, of course, been said that the primrose was not Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower, and that when Queen Victoria sent a wreath of primroses to Lord Beaconsfield's funeral and wrote on it, "His favourite flower," the allusion was to the Prince Consort — not to the dead statesman. Mr. Reginald Lucas, however, in "Lord Glenesk and the 'Morning Post,'" says that one who knew Lord Beaconsfield well declares that he habitualy wore a single primrose in his button hole when he was at Hughenden in the early spring, while another more intimate friend can speak of having seen an abundance of primroses in Beaconsfield's house in Curzon Street that had been gathered on the slopes of Windsor Castle.

THE MEAN MAN

"Talking about [illegible]," said an old [illegible] of ale in a chair by the fire, "you should ha' known old Ruby who used to keep a farm out Góswel way.

"Twenty years ago, it is that his son went out with a tin bucket to milk a cow. Somehow or other, both the lad and the bucket disappeared mysteriously.

"No more was heard of him till he wandered back home ten years after, as rich as a millionaire, and loaded the old man up with gold and diamond pins and new clothes, and gave him five thousand dollars as a birthday present.

"And d'ye think old Ruby was grateful? No'er a bit!

"'George,' says he 'wot 'ave ye done with the bucket?'

"And George left home again, wondering whether his dad was the meanest man in the world or whether that distinction was still held by the fellow who used a wart on the back of his neck for a collar-stud."

PURE ENGLISH

"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully," said a stickler for pure English to his wife. "You say that 'Henry Jones came to this town from Sunderland.' Don't you see that it would be better to say that he came from Sunderland to this town?"

"I don't see any difference in the two expressions," rejoined the lady.

"But there is a difference in the two expressions — a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make use of such awkward expressions. By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

"Oh, dear, is my father in your pocket?" inquired the wife. "You mean that you have in your pocket a letter from my father."

"There you go with your little quibbles! You take a delight in harassing me; you are always taking up a thread and representing it as a rope."

"Representing it to be a rope, you mean, dear?"

And then he grinned a sickly grin and wished he had never started the discussion.

RUN DOWN

The council employé had formally applied, in writing, for a holiday — with salary, of course — on the grounds that he was "run down."

"I'm a bit suspicious of this run downitis," remarked the chairman. "It's been very prevalent among the council's employés of late. I propose the applicant be sent for."

"I beg to second that."

The proposition being carried, a messenger went in search of the applicant. Presently there was a scuffling at the door of the council chamber.

"Order there!" commanded the chairman. "Officer, why do you allow that person to try and force his way into the room? Remove him instantly!"

"Beg pardon, sir," said the officer, with a sniffle, the breadth of which not even his own capacious palm could conceal, "it's the man you sent for — the road foreman wot's run down."

"Oh, well, let him enter, then."

"Beg pardon, sir, 'e can't. 'E's too fat for the door!"

The next literary evening of the Y. M.C.A. is announced for Tuesday, January 30th, when Mrs. Jas. Kendry will address the members of "Between the Testaments."

AN ENJOYABLE EVENT.

Annual Concert Given by Chemong Lake Indians.

The 44th annual tea and concert was given by the residents of Chemong in the town hall on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance. After a splendid dinner, a first class programme was rendered, consisting of music, songs, recitations dialogues, drills, etc. The sketch, "A Pain in the Side" was exceptionally humorous. In addition to the village artists a number of visitors from Peterborough rendered selections.

Mr. Harry Lee sang "My Dreams" with marked effect, while Mr. Albert New, in "I am a Friar of Orders Grey" was no less entertaining. The 'Gypsies Laughing Trio" by Messrs. Lee and New was received with loud applause, and Mr. E. Bartley sang effectively "Thora." Mr. F. Thompson in his humorous songs, entirely captivated the audience, who recalled him repeatedly.

Much credit is due the committee for their assistance in rendering the evening such an enjoyable one. The committee were Messrs S. Fawn, R. D. Tobico, H. Taylor, P. McCue, D. Whetung, Jr.

Shipped Out.

Alex. Windover, who was charged with non-support of his wife and family, has flown to parts unknown. The police have failed to locate him so it was necessary to enlarge the case for another week, when a further endeavor will be made to bring him to court.

Plenty of Snow.

Reports from the north country say that deep snow is interfering with getting out logs in the various lumber camps. It is said to be from three to five feet deep in the woods, which means that roads have to be shovelled in order to get the timber to the water.

A very successful "At-Home" was held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Sodality of the Sacred Heart Church.

EXPENSIVE ALBUM

$200,000 For An Autograph Album With 853 Signatures of World Renowned Celebrities and Their Remarks.

Seven years ago Councillor Louis Barth, of Arad, in Hungary, commenced to collect autographs, and today can boast of possessing one of the finest collections in the world. Indeed, he recently refused an offer of no less than $200,000 for his album, which contains the names of 853 world-renowned celebrities, whose remarks have been written in forty-three languages. Already ninety-three of them are dead.

Recently he visited Marlborough House to obtain the signature of Queen Alexandra, and at Her Majesty's request left his priceless volume there for twenty-four hours, in order that she might examine at leisure his wonderful array of signatures of Kings, Queens, Emperors, Ministers, scientists, artists, and writers. Herr Barth has gone all over the world to add to his book, and has spent between $45,000 and $50,000 in travelling expenses. The Emperor Francis Joseph, who favoured him with an autograph, told him he was the only person, not a Minister, who had ever received his signature.

"I was at Biarritz one year," says Herr Barth, "at the same time as King Edward. I showed him my volume, and, in giving me his signature, he said: 'Your book is an extraordinary treasure. It has only one defect — it is not mine.'"

Herr Barth is preparing a history of how his autographs have been obtained. This book will contain in facsimile every autograph he possesses. It is to be issued in an edition of 100,000 copies, and the proceeds of its sale will be devoted to international charity.

Wedded in Toronto.

A quiet wedding was celebrated on Thursday last in the Elm street Methodist Church, Toronto, when Miss Sarah Squires, of that city, was united in marriage to Mr. Alfred Pitchford, also of Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough. Rev. W. F. Wilson officiated. The young couple were unattended. After the usual post nuptial felicitations, Mr. and Mrs. Pitchford left on a honeymoon and are spending a few days in Peterborough, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Naish, 490 George street.

Not as Bad as Reported.

The many friends of Mr. John Bell, of Smith, will be pleased to learn that the statement which appeared in The Times a few days ago to the effect that he had his hands so badly frozen that two fingers had to be amputated, is incorrect. Mr. Bell while driving home from town on one of the coldest days of the winter, had his hands frostbitten, but not anything like as badly as reported, and there were no fingers amputated. Two finger nails on the left hand came off, but otherwise Mr. Bell has suffered no permanent injury.

An Exciting Mixup.

On Saturday afternoon a team of horses attached to one of Mr. Noble's rigs, created considerable excitement on Hunter street in an effort to run away. The horses did a couple of spectacular stunts, turning a complete circle several times, the sleighs to which they were attached striking in their skidding operations, a team of horses belonging to White Bros. cutting their legs. Through the heroic efforts of Mr. Edward Garbutt, and others, the animals were soon got under control. In the mixup Mr. Garbutt was injured, but we are happy to say, not seriously.

Won Some Prizes.

Local poultry men secured a number of prizes at the Lindsay Poultry Show last week. With five entries in the one class, Mr. J. J. Cunningham scored three firsts, a second and three specials and in other classes he also won prizes. Messrs. Jas. Baptie, Harry Lush, Geo. Buller and other exhibitors carried off a number of prizes and the showing of the local contingent was very gratifying. There were 600 entries and the competition in every class was very keen. Mr. John Bennett, who resides on the Peterborough show had a similar occupation at Lindsay and gate every satisfaction.

A Free Fight.

About four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, a fracas occurred on Simcoe street, near the corner of George street, which required the services of almost the entire police force to quell. Two men, it is said, got into an argument over the No Temere decree, and from words they came to blows. They fought desperately for several minutes, both being badly punished. One of the belligerents was taken to the cells in a sleigh, and the other was escorted by Chief Thompson and a couple of policemen, much against his will. They will be given an opportunity of explaining matters to Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning.

Cures Old Folks' Coughs

DOESN'T DISTURB THE STOMACH EASES AT ONCE AND CURES THOROUGHLY.

"CATARRHOZONE" A BOON TO MANY THOUSANDS.

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with everlasting coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with Catarrhozone. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhozone, and instantly its rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat, chest, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore, congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take—nothing to harm or sicken the stomach, because Catarrhozone is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

"For many years," writes Richard McCallum, Stirling, Ont., "I have suffered from Catarrh, and continually hawked and coughed, so that my throat was always in an inflamed, irritable condition.

"Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In one case it was time wasted in snuffing powder up the nose; in another using a greasy ointment, and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good.

"I heard Catarrhozone favorably spoken of, and tried it. Really it benefited me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors' and other so-called remedies.

"Receiving such immense benefit, I continued using Catarrhozone, and in a few weeks I was completely cured of Catarrh and throat trouble."

Get Catarrhozone to-day. Large size costs $1.00, and lasts two months. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

THE DOG NUISANCE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In your issue of last Saturday I noticed a communication from "Old Resident" on the dog nuisance, which was very timely, the number he mentioned as seeing in so short a distance seemed large to me, and while out for a stroll with a lady friend on Saturday morning we counted from Park street to George street on Charlotte street, the very great number of twenty-three canines, and from the east side of George St. in one block, on the Market Square, we counted ten of the dog species.

Now, Mr. Editor, as a woman, I think it about time our City Fathers should face this question as has been done in other places with less pretentions of being up-to-date, and study the interests of the citizens within her gates.

I never go out without wanting to cross to the opposite side of the street to avoid any dog or dogs I may see. No one who is thoughtful of children can go out without seeing small youngsters frightened by bowwows.

Possibly this may be a convention season for dogs, as we counted as many as six in a bunch. Then there is the moral side to this question. Don't you think it about time our little children were protected, from sights that greet them at every corner. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

—A Mother.

"Politeness Pays."

The Grand Trunk Railway System have issued a little booklet entitled "Politeness Pays," the contents of which were written by the well known litterateur, Mr. Elbert Hubbard, who has jotted down a number of thinks thought on a little journey over the Grand Trunk. The text is epigramatic in style, and interesting, as all this well-known writer's texts and epigrams are. It is printed in the Roycrofter style on hand made antique paper, with a four page cover, printed in a light blue and black on a sepia deckled stock. There is not only good advice in this booklet to the railroad man, but to the public. A copy of the booklet may be had free on application to any of the Grand Trunk offices.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors have much pleasure in submitting their Twenty-seventh Annual Report and balance sheet of the affairs of the Bank, as of the 30th December, 1911, together with Profit and Loss Account, showing the result of the operations of the Bank for the year which ended that day. The net profits of the Bank, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, amount to $601,133.78, being 13.80% on the paid-up capital of the Bank, which has been applied as follows:

The net profits for the twelve months, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, and reserving accrued interest, amount to	$601,133.78
Balance at credit of Profit and Loss last year	153,434.79
	$754,568.57
Appropriated as follows, viz.:
Dividend No. 60, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	$ 87,090.00
Dividend No. 61, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Dividend No. 62, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Dividend No. 63, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Transferred to Rest Account	200,000.00
Written off Bank Furniture	15,000.00
Transferred to Officers' Guarantee Fund	5,000.00
Transferred to Officers' Pension Fund	5,000.00
Balance at credit of Profit and Loss, new account	181,208.57
	$754,568.57

You will observe $200,000 has been added to Rest Account. The Rest Account is now $2,500,000, or about 56% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the Bank.

The business of the Bank continues to grow most satisfactorily, as the comparative statement submitted shows. The deposits during the year have increased $4,193,898.29, and the circulation has increased $583,595.

The Head Office and all the Branches have been carefully inspected during the year, and a full report of each office brought in review before your Directors, and, in addition to these inspections, a Committee of the Directors, other than the officers, and composed of Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., Mr. W. J. Sheppard, Mr. C. S. Wilcox, and Mr. H. S. Strathy, was appointed to examine and appraise all the securities held at the Head Office, which they did, and reported to the Board that they are as represented to it.

The increase in Bank premises is partly accounted for by discharging the encumbrances which existed at the time of the purchase of Vancouver and Winnipeg properties, and partly by the purchase of the property immediately east of your Head Office Building, which was acquired at a reasonable figure, a portion of which will be used for the purposes of the Bank. This purchase will be of great advantage in protecting the lighting of the east side of the Head Office Building. Your Bank premises now comprise 34 separate buildings.

The Directors have much pleasure in testifying to the good work performed by the Staff during the period under review.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHAS. D. WARREN, President.

The General Manager read the General Statement of the Bank, as of the 30th of December, 1911, as follows:

TORONTO, 30th December, 1911.

STUART STRATHY, General Manager.

The General Manager having read the statement and made explanatory remarks thereon, referred to the improved profits, which were $76,782.39 more than the year before. He also called attention to the growth of the Bank from its inception, which may be seen from the comparative statement appended to this report. In conclusion, he asked if any of the shareholders wished for further information regarding any of the items of the statement, upon which a general discussion ensued.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., explained the nature of the work done by the Committee referred to in the Report, and pointed out that the principle of checking the work of the Bank was carried out from the work of the juniors to the work of the General Manager.

On motion of the President, seconded by the Vice-President, the report was unanimously adopted.

The By-law governing the number of Directors was amended, increasing the number from seven to eight, and a By-law creating a Second Vice-President was passed.

The customary resolutions of thanks to the Directors and Officers were duly passed.

The election of the Directors was then proceeded with, and the Scrutineers reported the following gentlemen duly elected to act as Directors for the ensuing year, viz.: C. D. Warren, Hon. J. R. Stratton, C. Kloepfer (Guelph), W. J. Sheppard (Waubaushene), C. S. Wilcox (Hamilton), E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., H. S. Strathy, J. B. Tudhope (Orillia).

The meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the newly-elected Directors, Mr. C. D. Warren was re-elected President, Hon. J. R. Stratton Vice-President, and W. J. Sheppard Second Vice-President, by a unanimous vote.

The Following Comparative Statement will show the Progress of the Bank from its Inception:

G.T.P. Mileage.

The authorized mileage of the Grand Trunk Pacific main line and branches is 11,500 miles, of which 1,745 miles are between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. 1,800 miles are under contract by Transcontinental Railway Commission between Winnipeg and Moncton. At the completion of this national railway, the trip around the world will be shortened by one week, as Europe will be brought closer to Asia, and as the maximum grade of the Grand Trunk Pacific is one-fifth of the next best Transcontinental Railways on the continent. Time between the Atlantic and the Pacific will be annihilated when the service is in operation.

VOL XXXXI NO 26 PETERBOROUGH RIO, TUESDAY, JANUARY 30 191 PRICE TWO CENTS

MOTHER ABSOLVED IN DEATH OF HER CHILD

Toronto, Jan. 29.—The evidence of two medical men who examined the dead child of Maud Gilbert outweighed the alleged confessions heard by three witnesses, and Coroner Young's jury last night found that Frederick Gilbert, aged nine months, came "to his death on Jan. 14th, by suffocation, but that the mother was in no way to blame."

In view of the charge of murder arising when two Salvation Army officials reported that the mother had confessed that she had deliberately sat upon the child and smothered it, Chief Coroner Johnston conducted a post mortem examination. He found that there were no signs of violence upon the body, and that there were no fractured bones, which condition would be impossible if death had occurred in the above way. Dr. G. Williams also found the body in such perfect condition as would be impossible had an adult sat upon it and caused death.

Owing to illness the mother of the child was not called to make her statement, but Miss Florence Parry, who occupied an adjoining cot, said the mother had told her in the morning that she had wrapped a blanket too closely about her child and found it dead in the morning.

MAY PROSECUTE MILK DEALER FOR ALLEGED COMBINE

ALD. GORDON TAKES THE INITIATIVE IN A CAMPAIGN AGAINST COMBINES.

Police Commissioners Will be Invited to Seriously Consider Turning Into City Treasurer the Fees Earned by Police Constables Above Their Regular Salaries.

At a meeting of the City Fathers in Committee of the Whole last night Alderman G. N. Gordon offered that he had been advised that the latter part of last year the milk vendors had entered into an agreement amongst themselves to raise the price of milk several cents. Subsequently they did raise milk from six to seven cents a quart, which price at present prevails. Now, Ald. Gordon, contended that any such combine affecting living commodities comes within the criminal code, and consequently had milk vendors agreed amongst themselves to stiffen prices they are liable to penalties. He therefore moved that the chairman of the legal Committee take this matter up with the [illegible] and prosecute if warranted by the result of their investigation. Also that, if necessary, a search warrant for the alleged signed agreement be issued.

Ald. Duffus said he would second the resolution if it included all alleged combines in the city.

Ald. Gordon replied that such a course would naturally follow. "Let us make a start with the case before us first."

Ald. Duffus would not consent to singling out the milk men; there are others alleged to be similar combines—the coal men—

Ald. Buller—"That's right, get after the coal men; you are quite welcome to investigate conditions with them."

Ald. Gillespie did not think seven cents a quart any too much for milk.

His worship explained that the milk dealers had told Council candidly that the milk by-law—especially the bottling clause—would call for a raise in price.

Ald. Duncan—"The milk men put up $25 each, to be forfeited by any one of them selling for less than the price agreed upon."

Ald Buller agreed that it was only customary for milk dealers to stiffen their prices during the winter months.

Ald. Gordon here asked for a seconder to his motion. "Go after the milk men first, and if we find a reasonable hope for success, carry the campaign against exhorbitant prices for commodities into other quarters, the coal men included."

Ald. Morgan here seconded the resolution which carried.

POLICEMEN'S FEES

Ald. Gordon here inaugurated another economic campaign, aimed at the police. He offered that the Police Commissioners are about to appoint two more constables, in which the Council has no voice whatever, excepting in the matter of finding the cash for their salaries. But, he contended, the fees earned by policemen when on duty should be turned into the City Treasury and not retained by them as at present. A constable in some cases when making an arrest is allowed apart from his salary 17 cents a mile travelling expenses; out of this he pays 5c a mile return railway fare. Then in the court house a constable is entitled to a witness fee of $1 a day.

His worship offered that the policemen's fees are pooled and divided amongst the staff, in which case the police extra do not amount to much per man.

Ald. Gordon—Altogether, they amount some years to $250 or $300, which might acceptably be applied to the costs of suits the city occasionally loses.

Ald. Buller understood that when a constable is due in court as a witness, arrangement is made that he takes a night man's duty.

The Mayor—"In that case, if a man works night and day he is entitled to extra pay."

Ald. Gordon—"That arrangement may be made sometimes, but probably not on every occasion."

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That all fees paid police constables during 1912—witness, mileage, when making arrests, or otherwise—be turned over to the city treasurer. And that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Police Commissioners.—Carried.

The commissioners however are not bound to comply with the foregoing.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY OF BANK

Vancouver, B.C. Jan. 29.—The Royal Bank of Canada branch at the corner of Main street and Seventeenth avenue, was literally cleaned out of all its cash by two robbers at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and Ledger-keeper Harrison was knocked unconscious for resisting the hold-up. The amount of loot secured by the robbers is unknown because A. A. Steeces, manager of the branch, refused to make a statement. It is estimated, however, that between $1,000 and $5,000 was taken. The two men unlocked the back door and made their exit that way.

So far as can be learned no one saw the men enter the bank or saw them leave, but the door at the back of the building is always kept locked and when the clerks recovered from their shock it was found that the door was open and there were the footprints of two men in the lane behind. Later it was reported that the men had turned down the lane, and made their way to Sixteenth avenue, down which street they had turned towards the east. A little boy stated to the detectives on the case that about fifteen minutes after the bank is supposed to have been held up he saw two men running down Sixteenth avenue.

As soon as the robbers had left the bank the two men who had been shut up in the vault hurried out and gave the alarm. Harrison was still lying on the floor where the robbers had struck him down, and he soon revived and was taken to a nearby pharmacy where a clerk gave him a stimulant which completely restored him. He was suffering presumably as much from shock as from anything else, as when he revived no marks except a slight lump on the head were found upon him.

TO THE FARMERS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH

Gentlemen,—To-day, (Jan. 29) Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works in the late Laurier Administration moved in the House of Commons that the Borden government take immediate steps to bring about preferential reciprocal trade with Australasia. He was supported by Mr. Amos (Conservative) of Montreal Centre, and others from populous centres. The government, through Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, promised to bring it on accordingly and to send commissioners to Australasia early in the spring, for that purpose. Australasia exports in vast quantities mutton and beef and poultry, and in some years vast quantities of butter and eggs, and other farm products, at prices less than one-half (delivered here) of the like products of Canadian farmers. Such a treaty, on the proposed list for list basis, would rob the farmer bare of this protection and almost ruin him. That is my opinion. But I believe that our farmers should be protected as well as our other manufacturers and I do not propose to discriminate against the farmer and in favor of the manufacturer, unless the farmers wish it. I appeal therefore to the farmers of W. Peterborough to let me know with all speed if they are in favor of preferential reciprocity with Australasia. If so I will vote for it. If they consider it contrary to their interests and will let me know I will vote against it. No time is to be lost.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier supported very strongly the proposition for an Australasian preferential reciprocity treaty.

Yours truly,

J. H. BURNHAM.

HOME RULE BOOM HAS FALLEN FLAT DESPONDENCY FILLS NATIONALIST RANKS

Enormous Demonstrations Against the Measure Being Held in All Parts of England---No Demand for Speakers Provided by Home Secretary, Showing Lack of Enthusiasm

London, Jan. 29.—Bonar Law, by his opening speech of the winter campaign, has inspired the Unionist party to a high degree. Correspondingly a feeling of despondency pervades the Irish Nationalists, who fear that the prospects of seeing Home Rule accomplished in the early future, which seemed so bright a few months ago, are gradually slipping away before their eyes.

The truth is that the Government's Home Rule boom has fallen entirely flat, and while the Tories are daily holding enormous demonstrations throughout England, the Liberals are making no attempt to counteract the Tory propaganda.

A VERY MILD BILL.

Those in the inner councils of the Nationalist party understand that John Redmond, Joseph Devlin, and John Dillan have been made sufficiently acquainted with the general nature of the Government's Home Rule bill, and that it is only a mild measure, entirely unlike the comprehensive bill granting full self-government in local affairs, which the Nationalists had been led to expect.

Great significance is attached to the complete silence of Messrs. Redmond, Devlin and Dillon during the present month. Their followers think they should be addressing meetings almost daily and replying to Tory attacks. None of the three have spoken for months. Redmond had a slight accident and a prolonged convalescence. Devlin seized the excuse of a throat attack to visit the Riviera, while Dillon maintains absolute silence, and broke an engagement last week to speak at Donegal.

FURIOUS AT CHURCHILL.

These indications of the leaders' dissatisfaction with the Liberal Cabinet's plans have caused great trepidation among the rank and file of the Nationalist wire-pullers, who are furious at Winston Churchil, for pursuing his determination to address a meeting in Belfast. They argue that the move is a great tactical mistake, and has given a magnificent advertisement to the Ulster Orangemen's opposition to Home Rule, which otherwise could not be obtained.

Throughout England there is a significant lack of enthusiasm on the Irish question. Those Cabinet Ministers who have recently spoken in public have devoted all their time to an endeavor to popularize the insurance bill, while their references to Home Rule have been perfunctory.

NO DEMAND FOR SPEAKERS.

Winston Churchill inaugurated in October a propaganda to be called the Home Rule Council, to organize meetings throughout England, but there is no demand for the local Liberal organizations for speakers. The politicians who are closely in touch with the Irish question, fear that the new Home Rule bill will be so slight that it will be repudiated by the Dublin convention, held after its introduction, in the same way as was Birrell's Irish Council bill.

Mr. Asquith and the Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey, have never sympathized with Home Rule on Parnell's lines, and bitterly resent the present position in which the Government is entirely dependent on Irish votes.

WHAT I THINK OF MR. BURNHAM

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I wonder what the Examiner takes the "Protestants of Peterborough" for. Does that paper think for one minute that the people of this city can be fooled by the kind of mush they printed in their rag on Saturday last, about the attitude of our member on the No Temere decree? They have had a sharp rebuke administered to them by the people of Peterborough in the last two elections, if they had the intelligence to grasp it, but they have not. They tried to fool the people then, with the same brand of mush they dished out last Saturday and the people showed their contempt of it by turning it down and doing just what the "Examiner" told them not to do. That has not taught them anything, and they are pursuing the same methods to day, and they will meet with the same reward. Every decent person is disgusted with such actions. All Protestants will agree with me when I say, we know Mr. Burnham, we know his principles on this question, and they are our principles and we approve of them. What is there in Mr. Burnham's attitude that is crooked? He has done just what he told us he would do. He was always against this offensive decree. He had not been a member long before he brought it up in the House, and we were proud of him for doing it. Did the "Examiner" give him credit for that at the time? It did not, but we did, and it will take the "Examiner" a long time to make us alter out minds. On this Lancaster bill, his attitude, is the attitude of the champion of Protestantism, we know him to be. There is no humbug nor deceit in it. I have his speech before me, and it is the speech of a true man—the man we Protestants know him to be. I venture to say, no honest minded Protestant can find any fault with it. He says in effect that the bill of Mr. Lancaster is a good bill and gives it his hearty support; but he believed the best possible way to settle question, was to get the decision of the highest court in the land on the matter; and so he proposed to send the bill, with all questions relating to it, to the Privy Council. Where does inconsistency and humbug come in in his attitude?

Mr. Burnham feels the same as we all feel, that this question must be settled now, once and for all, and that is the proper way of looking at it. This is not my opinion alone, as I proceed to prove, speaking of this same matter, the "Orange Sentinel" says:

This is the policy decided upon by the Evangelical Alliance, upon the advice of some of the ablest lawyers in Ontario, who are also undoubted Protestants. Indeed petitions are now being signed, and sent to the secretary of the Alliance praying Sir James Whitney to do this very thing—to submit a stated case that may go to the Privy Council.

Now what becomes of the "Examiner's" charges against Mr. Burnham? Mr. Burnham's speech was printed in full in The Times last week, and all who read it will easily see that in voting for the bill to be sent to the Privy Council, Mr. Burnham was doing just what the Evangelical Alliance, under the advice of the ablest lawyers in Ontario, decided was the best thing to do. If that is humbug and fraud let's have lots more of it. I say. Note further what the Sentinel has to say of Mr. Burnham's attitude in this matter:

"There can be no doubt of the faithfulness to Protestant principles, of Hon. J. H. Burnham, and Col. Hugh [illegible] who have attended the committee of the Protestant organizations which met in Toronto last fall, under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, arrived at the same conclusions as Mr. Borden."

Note the following also taken from the Sentinel:

"If Mr. Lancaster's bill had been passed, it would in all probability, have been taken before the Privy Council. It might have been set aside on a trivial technicality. To reach such an issue after two or three years' time would be much worse than to await the decision of the highest court, and upon that solid foundation frame an enactment THAT WILL STAND."

These extracts are taken word for word from the Sentinel. There are no "parenthetical explanations"—none are needed. The Examiner's "interpolations" were put in for a purpose and we all know what that purpose was. What does it all come to? It comes to this, Mr. Burnham in his wisdom acted in the way the Evangelical Alliance decided was the very best way. In writing against that way, the Examiner shows it is against the Alliance; the Sentinel, and the great body of Protestants who form the Alliance. Protestants should remember this attitude of the Examiner against their Alliance—it is worth remembering.

In conclusion, I have seen Bro. Hocken, editor of the Sentinel, on the same platform as Mr. Burnham, since the election. He knows Mr. Burnham's attitude both before and since the election, and his approval is worth our taking notice of.

OUR NEW STORY.

DUKE OF FIFE IS DEAD

Assuan, Upper Egypt, Jan. 29.—The Duke of Fife died here at six o'clock this evening.

The Duke was the brother-in-law of King George, he having married King Edward's eldest daughter, who is known as Princess Royal. He was 63 years old, being 19 years older than his wife. He was an earl at the time of his marriage, but was created a Duke at his wedding breakfast. He and his family lived the simple life, the Duke having expressly stipulated when he married the Princess that the usual precautions and ceremony affecting royalty should be dispensed with. The Duke was for nine years vice-president of the Chartered Company of South Africa, but he resigned after the Jamieson Raid. His estate consisted of about 249,300 acres.

The title descends to his eldest daughter by special remainder, she becoming Duchess Alexandra of Fife, [illegible] will be called the Honorable Duchess of Fife. Princess Maud is the only other child.

The Duke died from pleurisy and pneumonia, following a chill, which he probably first contracted when he was shipwrecked a few weeks ago. The Duchess has always been delicate.

SURPRISED DOCTOR

Illustrating the Effect of Food.

The remarkable adaptability of Grape-Nuts food to stomachs so disordered that they will reject everything else, is illustrated by the case of a woman in Racine, Wis.

"Two years ago," she says, "I was attacked by a stomach trouble so serious that for a long time I could not take much of any sort of food. Even the various kinds prescribed by the doctor produced most acute pain.

"We then got some Grape-Nuts food, and you can imagine my surprise and delight when I found that I could eat it with a relish and without the slightest distress.

"When the doctor heard of it he told me to take several small portions each day, because he feared I would grow tired of it as I had of all other food.

"But to his surprise, (and that of everybody else), I did not tire of Grape-Nuts, and became better day by day, till, after some weeks, my stomach entirely recovered and I was able to eat anything my appetite craved.

"My nerves, which had become so weakened that I feared I would become insane, were also restored by the Grape-Nuts food in connection with Postum which has become our table beverage. I appreciate most gratefully and thankfully the good that your food preparations have done me, and shall be glad to answer any letters inquiring as to my experience." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville", in packages. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

CITY COUNCIL ADVERTISING FOR PERMANENT ASSESSOR

ALD. ANDERSON MOVES THAT ASSESSMENTS FOR SEWERS BE EQUALIZED.

By-law Re-Appointment of a Sanitary Inspector to be Prepared—Alderman Buller Urges Compulsory Sewer Connection—Removal of G.N.W. Poles from George St. in Sight.

The City Fathers met in Committee of the Whole last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Duncan, Anderson, Morgan, Johnston, Brown, Duffus, Buller and Gordon.

Mr. Wm. Cochran, on behalf of the Belmont Club, asked permission to erect a streamer across George street advertising the club's amatuer minstrel show on February 15th and 16th. On Motion of Ald. Buller and Duffus this request was granted.

PERMANENT ASSESSOR.

The Mayor urged that it is high time, in the best interests of the city, a permanent assessor be appointed—such a course would assure an equalization of assessments.

Ald. Morgan acquiesced in this view, and added that a man permanently employed becomes thoroughly conversant with the work and acquires expert knowledge of valuations.

To Ald. Duffus his worship replied a permanent assessor would possibly need to himself employ help at times.

Ald. Morgan offered that he knew of property valued at $1100, and the owner is not entitled to vote because it is not assessed up to $400.

His Worship knew of property valued at $400 an acre that is assessed at but $60 an acre.

Ald. Buller opposed the proposition. If the properties are not properly equalized then the two assessors appointed year by year in the past had not made good.

Ald. Johnston was in favor of putting the assessment under one head and let that head himself employ whatever assistance he may require.

Ald. Gillespie, while not having studied the question very thoroughly still had often thought that the bulk of the work in the past has been done by one man. A permanent assessor could devote considerable time during the winter to estimating values in preparation for the ensuing summer's assessing.

Ald. Buller thought that most of the under assessment complained of referred to vacant property the value of which had increased by reason of buildings springing up adjacent thereto. And the assessors had not raised the assessment commensurate with increased values created thereby.

Heretofore, it has cost $1400 to assess the city—two men at $700 each—and his worship and Ald. Johnston thought a permanent assessor could be engaged at that figure, he to employ his own assistant, if any.

Ald. Gillespie thought that this is a big question the position should be advertised and applicants asked to state salary. This would give the Aldermen until Monday night's Council meeting to think the matter over seriously before decisive action.

Moved by Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the Council advertise for applications for the position of permanent assessor, applicants for the position to state what salary they would accept. Applications will be received up to Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.—Carried.

It must be understood that Council while generally in favor of appointing a permanent assessor, have not yet definitely decided that the position shall be permanent, and may, to use his worship's own expression, "kick over the traces" on Monday night, and resort to the same method of assessing as heretofore—by two men appointed, each February regular meeting.

TO REMOVE POLES.

The Great North Western Telegraph Co., by letter renewed their proposition made in 1910, to remove their poles from George street, in consideration of the city paying the cost of such removal, estimated roughly at $600.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Gillespie,—That the Mayor and Chairman of the Board of Works Property Committee and Fire, Water and Light Committee take this matter up with the superintendent of the G.N.W. Co., and report back to Council.—Carried.

NO FOOT BRIDGE.

His Worship explained that District Superintendent Oborne had taken up with his superiors the question of allowing a foot bridge to be constructed along the C.P.R.'s railway bridge across the river, and had been informed that it is positively against the company's policy to permit such a course being taken by the city. Again, Mr. Oborne had pointed out that even were the company's consent to this foot bridge obtained it would involve a waste of expenditure as it is intended to make a change to the present railway bridge within two years' time.

A WATER LOT.

The C.P.R.'s request from the city for the conveyance to them of a water lot adjacent to the William English property, to the extent of one-tenth of an acre, for the purpose of straightening out their line in connection with the new grain route, was left in abeyance till Monday night, when his worship intends that this matter which has been hanging fire for some time now, shall be straightened out.

SANITARY INSPECTOR.

His worship here introduced this question. "Such an appointment would assure inspection of dairies and milk, and relieve the police of inspecting city premises. He had induced the Police Commissioners to wait a short time before adding to the police staff. Should a Sanitary inspector be appointed, the Commissioners will appoint only one additional policeman instead of two as originally intended.

Ald. Gordon offered that as Peterborough is an inland city with but few arrests, and but little opportunity for criminals getting away, the city could do without an additional policeman at $700 a year.

Ald. Gillespie offered that a sanitary inspector should be qualified in the way of being educated on sanitary lines.

Ald. Duncan informed Council that the Property Committee will meet [illegible] will be discussed.

His worship here explained that last year the police issued 4000 notices re condition of city premises, but did not follow them up, hence the need of a sanitary inspector to enforce sanitary measures.

Ald. Buller at this juncture, contended that all house holders adjacent to sewers and not connected with same, be enforced to have such connections made. This was a crying need, even in some thickly populated districts, especially in the case of terraces. This point will be seriously considered at a subsequent meeting.

Ald. Johnston wanted the work for an inspector outlined before such an official is appointed.

Ald. Duffus while agreeing with Ald Johnston thought Council should decide whether an inspector is to be appointed or not. The appointment of an inspector follows another motion.

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Duncan.—That a by-law be prepared to appoint a sanitary inspector and defining his duties, and submitted to the Property Committee.—Carried.

COST OF SEWERS.

Ald. Anderson raised the question of equalizing the assessment for sewers so that some property owners are not charged more than others for same service by reason of unfavorable natural construction conditions, as has heretofore been the case.

Ald. Anderson moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus,—That the City Engineer be instructed to average up the cost of sewers in the whole city, in 1911, so as to equalize the cost thereof against the properties affected.—Carried.

CLAIM SETTLED.

Council on advice of the Legal Committee and City Solicitor, agreed to settle Mrs. Milborough's claim for damages by payment of $150. The claimant fell over a loose plank on Hunter street sidewalk last August and sprained her ankle. She asked $194 damages. $150 was the least her solicitors would accept in settlement.

German Socialists Will Endeavor Not to Give Offense.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Interviewed after his election at Potsdam, the seat of the Kaiser's suburban palace, Herr Leibknect, leader of the Socialists said:

"You ask me what will now be the attitude and influence of the Socialist party in the Reichstag. No party has ever been so powerful in the German Parliament since the foundation of the Empire. Our influence, therefore, will be enormous, and we will have to be reckoned with, but we must act with prudence and so avoid giving patriots any pretext for dissolution.

"The peace of the world is now assured, and you can tell the public so with every confidence."

London, Jan. 29.—Rt. Hon. Lewis Harcourt's life is to be made miserable if the Suffragettes can do anything to make it so. In reply to a deputation, Mr. Harcourt, who is Secretary of State for the colonies, reiterated his opposition to Women's Suffrage, and the head of the deputation declared that the women of Great Britain would do all in their power to make his life miserable. It would, said the militant Suffragette, be the aim of women to work for his discomfort. His bread, she said, was buttered, and he had no sympathy for working women.

Cobalt, Ont., Jan. 29.—Peter Petterman was sentenced to ten years in Kingston, by Magistrate Atkinson, on Friday for Black Hand Methods, in trying to extort money from the Imperial Bank here. He threatened to blow up the bank if two thousand dollars was not sent him. The police stepped in and caused his arrest, after which he confessed. Petterman is a Swede, but has lived in America for twenty years.

Not as Bad as Reported.

The many friends of Mr. John Bell, of Smith, will be pleased to learn that the statement which appeared in The Times a few days ago to the effect that he had his hands so badly frozen that two fingers had to be amputated, is incorrect. Mr. Bell while driving home from town on one of the coldest days of the winter, had his hands frostbitten, but not anything like as badly as reported, and there were no fingers amputated. Two finger nails on the left hand came off, but otherwise Mr. Bell has suffered no permanent injury.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Remarkable Instance in Real Life of the Dual Existence in One Man — Bad and Good.

In Springfield, Massachusetts, a murder trial is engaging attention chiefly because of the remarkable Jekyll and Hyde existence which is attributed to the accused, Bertram Spencer. He, it is alleged, was a quiet clerk by daytime, a young man of model habits, teetotaller, non smoker, Scripture reader, a devoted husband and father, and with no more serious weakness than postage-stamp collecting; and yet at night, according to the evidence, he was a robber, burglar, despoiler of women, and murderer.

Two years of burglaries which had terrorized Springfield ended with the arrest of Spencer, who was charged with shooting and killing Miss Blackstone, a school teacher, and the young clerk who had been admired and respected as a hard worker, dutiful husband, and fond father, stood revealed by his own confession as a most startling contradiction of character and occupation in real life. Alienists from many cities are watching the case, and apparently insanity will be the defence.

During counsel's address for the prosecution the prisoner, a mild-mannered, slim, nervous-looking young man, wept hysterically, and occasionally, as some particularly horrible detail was recited, shouted:

"No, no; that couldn't be true; I wouldn't do a thing like that."

When evidence was given he sobbed aloud, and denied what was being said against him.

'Twas at the skating rink, and the young man was thinking beginner. Wherefore he lost his balance!

He made a wild effort to grab anything in the way of support. And, as it happened, the nearest thing was a fashionably-dressed lady, also on skates. She promptly turned on him.

"You contemptible cur!" she snarled. "Do you think I am a lamp post, or a piece of furniture, or what? You ought not to be allowed in here, you clumsy lout! What right have you to tear other people's clothes to rags, and claw them in that mad way? You are not fit——"

But the young man had now recovered his composure.

"Pardon me, madam," he remarked, "but haven't you made a mistake?"

"A mistake?" gasped the lady. "What do you mean?"

"Simply this, madam," came the calm retort. "I am not your husband!"

"Accused of begging!" exclaimed a magistrate. "Why, you are the very man who was begging at my door yesterday!"

"Yes," assented the vagrant, with a sneer, "and you didn't give me anything."

"Well, I'll give you something now. Fourteen days!"

JUDGMENT SOON IN HERBERT CASE

Mrs. Hebert's Appeal to Have Her Marriage Declared Binding Still Holds Attention.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—The discussion on the Ne Temere decree has drawn attention to the fact that an important and probably decisive judgment has yet to be delivered here in connection with the Hebert case, which first focussed the attention of the country on the subject.

MRS. HEBERT'S APPEAL.

The motion made by the wife of Hebert on Dec. 7, after her husband had decided to discontinue the action as he alleged "on the grounds of poverty" is still undecided. Mrs. Hebert's lawyers asked Judge Charbonneau to declare the marriage legal and binding.

Judge Charbonneau has been much delayed in bringing in his ruling on account of the tremendous pressure of work in his court. When things got easier he was called upon to take the courts of a fellow judge who was sick.

EXHAUSTIVE SEARCH.

One of the newspapers stated that the finding would be delivered in a few days. This was three weeks ago. Judge Charbonneau himself said this week that he was working hard on the judgment. He explained that he was making exhaustive search of every record that can have any possible bearing on the subject and was finding the task a very heavy one. He says that he is making all haste as he is anxious to get the problem off his hands.

Manila, Jan. 29.—Terrible hardships was suffered by two school teachers, Arthur Young and his wife, of the town of Maasin, on the Island of Leyte, while on a visit of inspection of the schools of the district, accompanied by their 3-year-old child.

They started out from Maasin in a gasoline launch which soon became unmanageable. As there were no oars in the boat, they could not reach the shore and the little craft drifted out to sea. For five days and five nights they floated about without meeting any other vessel. They had neither food nor water with them, and were almost in despair when they were cast up on the beach of Siquidjor Island 200 miles distant. When they landed both Mr. and Mrs. Young were fearfully emaciated and suffering, but the child was quite well. All will probably recover.

LEAVE MALTA FOR HOME.

King and Queen Given a Rousing Send Off.

Malta, Jan. 29.—After spending three days here, King George and Queen Mary left for England to-day. They were given a rousing send-off at the pier.

Their Majesties had not fully determined whether they would stop at Gibraltar.

HYDRO POWER FOR THE FARM

EXPERIMENT TO BE MADE

System is to Be Tried in One Municipality Before Installation Becomes General.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—The Hydro-Electric Power Commission will be delivering power direct to the farmers of Ontario before the first of June next.

"The demand from the farmers is growing like a snowball rolling down a hill," said Major Pope, secretary of the Commission this morning, "and by spring everything should be in readiness for turning Hydro-Electric power into the farmers' houses and barns."

Petitions from groups of farmers in all parts of the Province, forwarded through their township councils, are being received in considerable numbers each week.

Experiment in One Locality.

It is understood that an experiment will be made first in one municipality, limiting the operations for a short time to a certain zone in order that the details of installation operation, cost, etc., may be perfected and all possible mistakes in the further Provincial extensions guarded against.

The farmers will pay the cost of their own installations, and by agreeing to that comparatively minor expenditure, the power of the commission will be delivered everywhere in the country located within a reasonable distance of a low tension line.

The application of Hydro-Electric Power to the uses of the Ontario farmer will be along much the same lines as the rural telephone system.

Favor Township Plan.

The payment for the power consumed will impose the cost through the local assessment rolls.

Some of the counties have notified the Commission of their desire to discuss the Hydro-Electric proposition for farm purposes organizing their users on a county basis, but such a course is not encouraged by the Commission, the preferred basis of organization being within the township lines.

MUST DISINFECT CHINESE HAIR

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—An order-in-council published in this week's Canada Gazette, provides that human or other hair, unmanufactured or uncleaned, from China, must be unpacked and disinfected by steam or boiling water before it is allowed entry into Canada. These amendments to quarantine regulations are designed to safeguard the country from plague.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10 00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 607 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pains in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scalding or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic trouble.
6—Sore or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
9—Swelling in any part of the body.
10—Discharge of pus or blood.
11—Dissatisfaction or pain under the heart.
12—Pain in the hip joints.
13—Pain or soreness in the head.
14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
15—Sore or swelling of the joints.
16—Sore or swelling of the muscles.
17—Pain and soreness in nerves.
18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

A Year of Prosperity

Annual General Meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company.

Elsewhere will be found the report of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the shareholders of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, which took place at the head office of the Company in Peterborough on Friday, 26th inst. The President and directors are to be congratulated on the result of the year's operations. The gross earnings amounted to $251,938.46, and after payment of interest on deposits and debentures, and all expenses of management, there remained a net profit of $141,943.44. To this amount has been added $44,477.71, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $186,421.15. After payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 10 per cent. for the year, amounting to $100,000, and adding $40,000 to Reserve Fund, there remains $46,421.15 to be carried forward to Profit and Loss Account. The Reserve Fund now stands at $760,000, making 76 per cent. of the present paid-up capital of $1,000,000.

The above is indeed a most creditable showing, and indicates the most careful and wise management.

The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: President, Hon. Geo. A. Cox; Vice-President, W. G. Morrow and Richard Hall; Directors, D. W. Dumble, Peter Hamilton and H. C. Cox.

Mr. John Bennett was judge at the Peterborough show had a similar occupation at Lindsay and gave every satisfaction.

Wedded in Toronto.

A quiet wedding was celebrated on Thursday last in the Elm street Methodist Church, Toronto, when Miss Sarah Squires, of that city, was united in marriage to Mr. Alfred Pitchford, also of Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough. Rev. W. F. Wilson officiated. The young couple were unattended. After the usual post nuptial felicitations, Mr. and Mrs. Pitchford left on a honeymoon and are spending a few days in Peterborough, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Naish, 490 George street.

An Exciting Mixup.

On Saturday afternoon a team of horses attached to one of Mr. Noble's rigs, created considerable excitement on Hunter street in an effort to run away. The horses did a couple of spectacular stunts, turning a complete circle several times, the sleighs to which they were attached striking in their skidding operations, a team of horses belonging to White Bros. cutting their legs. Through the heroic efforts of Mr. Edward Garbutt, and others, the animals were soon got under control. In the mixup Mr. Garbutt was injured, but we are happy to say, not seriously.

EXPENSIVE ALBUM.

$200,000 For An Autograph Album With 853 Signatures of World Renowned Celebrities and Their Remarks.

Seven years ago Councillor Louis Barth, of Arad, in Hungary, commenced to collect autographs, and today can boast of possessing one of the finest collections in the world. Indeed, he recently refused an offer of no less than $200,000 for his album, which contains the names of 853 world-renowned celebrities, whose remarks have been written in forty-three languages. Already ninety-three of them are dead.

Recently he visited Marlborough House to obtain the signature of Queen Alexandra, and at His Majesty's request left his precious volume there for twenty-four hours in order that she might examine the treasure its wonderful array of signatures of Kings, Queens, Emperors, Ministers, scientists, artists, and writers. Herr Barth has gone all over the world to add to his book, and has spent between $45,000 and $50,000 in travelling expenses. The Emperor Francis Joseph, who favoured him with an autograph, told him he was the only person, not a Minister, who had ever received his signature.

"I was at Biarritz one year," says Herr Barth, "at the same time as King Edward. I showed him my volume, and, in giving me his signature, he said, 'Your book is an extraordinary treasure. It has only one defect — it is not mine.'"

Herr Barth is preparing a history of how his autographs have been obtained. This book will contain in facsimile every autograph he possesses. It is to be issued in an edition of 100,000 copies, and the proceeds of its sale will be devoted to international charity.

TRADING IN NIGERIA

Though Christianized the Natives of Nigeria Are Always in Fear of the Fetish Ju-Ju and Offer Sacrifices.

Life on a trading station would not suit everyone, as it is a very quiet one. I am stationed at a place about 50 miles from the coast on an island in the centre of a creek, entirely isolated, and it requires a very optimistic disposition to keep cheerful under some of the circumstances which go to make up the life of a trading station.

The natives on this port of the coast are a fighting, semi-savage lot, and the white man's safety is not at all secure, as the natives are nearly always having tribal differences, and whatever state of civilisation they may have attained during the term of peace is entirely forgotten, and they return to their natural state of cannibalism.

When any person of importance dies, there is what is called a "play," in which all the surrounding chiefs take part. They dress up in all the fantastic and grotesque attires conceivable, and dance for hours on end, after which a great feast is prepared and drinkables consumed to no small extent. This may last for a day or two, and perhaps a week, when the next of kin takes possession of the household.

Ju-Juism is very much in evidence out here, and although Christianity is preached in every town, the native, irrespective of what he professes to be, has a superstitious dread and fear of the fetish ju-ju, to which he makes sacrifices of fruit and flesh of animals.

For instance, a native convert had just loaded his canoe with merchandise, of which he had a large amount, when he came into one of the stores where I was and made a trifling article. I chased him to his canoe, but he got there first, and in my anger I told him that the Ju-Ju would get him. Coincidences though this may seem, his canoe capsized in the middle of the creek, and needless to say he never would come back again to our station. Although he sent a native witch doctor and the natives dance round it, to drive away the to build a fire near the factory and u-Ju.

"FIRST AID"

Canadian Railroad Now Introducing First Aid Classes All Over Its System.

Of such value does at least one railway consider "First Aid to the Injured" work that it is now extending its sphere of activities in this connection. Formerly the railway's "First Aid" work was largely confined to the employees of its operating departments, but now the work is being extended to all classes of employees, classes being formed among clerks and office staffs. This is now done not so much for the advantage of the railway itself, but from a feeling which those at the head of the railway have that everybody should have at least a rudimentary knowledge of "First Aid" together the C. P. R. system there are now about between 1500 and men enrolled in the classes, the cities and towns in which the Classes are situated being, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Moosejaw, Victoria, Brandon, Carleton Place, Fort William, Port Arthur, Ste. Nelson, North Bay, Ottawa, Regina, Smith Falls, St. John, Lennoxville, Farnham, McAdam Junction, Windsor, Goderich, Fort Frances, Chapleau, Sudbury, White River, Webbwood, Sault Ste Marie, Parry and Rung Inlet. Altogether there are over 100 classes, Montreal leading the list with ten classes.

Ten Years Ago.

With the Boxers

Ray Temple, the Milwaukee lightweight, is going to Australia to box for Promoter McIntosh.

After his recent bout with Bob Roha, Bill Papke said that he was through with the game for good.

Mat Wells has returned to his home in England and will perhaps be matched to meet Packy McFarland in London.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

SPORTING COLUMN.

BEST LIGHTWEIGHT IN THE SOUTH

Near Champion as Result of Friends' "Jooking".

Many persons, including Ray Bronson, Grover Hayes and Abe Attell, boxers, claim credit for bringing out Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who looms up as a dangerous opponent to Champion Wolgast. Mandot says Johnny Lynch, of Boston is responsible for him.

Two and a half years ago, Mandot, pushing a delivery wagon about New Orleans for his father's bakery, was induced to enter an amateur tournament. He did not know who his first opponent would be until the night of the fight. Imagine his surprise to find himself matched against a boy larger than himself, who had been the neighborhood bully for years. Mandot's heart almost failed, and although he knocked out his opponent he took a hard licking.

Joe had chances then and there, but friends [illegible] him into another match. The little southerner didn't know anything about the game, but among the spectators was Johnny [illegible] heard Mandot's friends making fun of him and asked the boy to train with him.

Joe learned rapidly and Lynch secured a preliminary engagement for him and he won handily.

After this Mandot learned from every top-notcher who landed in New Orleans. He made friends for him among the boxers and they helped him along.

Mandot's rise has been little short of phenomenal. Since he joined with Blackey Raggio, a Memphis Sportsman, he has defeated all comers.

Had it not been for the "kidding" of his friends, Mandot would not be a near champion. His determination to silence the "joshing" and his natural ability made him a star, although he never fails to credit Lynch as the man who really gave him the first encouragement.

PEDESTRIANISM

A good performance was accomplished by C. Harris when beating Pat White for the 10 miles Irish professional running championship recently. The event was decided at Dublin, and as rain fell in torrents during the race, the track was very heavy. In spite of this handicap, Harris covered the journey in 53 mins 54 secs, winning by 500 yards, a very smart bit of running on the part of the ex-amateur.

The times accomplished in the games of sprint races between A. B. Castle and J. Donaldson, at Melbourne make interesting reading. The course was grass, but a good turf track is quite as fast as cinders. Castle's 7 4-5 secs for 80 yards, and Donaldson's 9 3-5 secs for 100 yards, are both splendid, but Donaldson's 10 4-5 secs for 100 yards does not strike one as remarkable. On the 100 yards' time Donaldson ought to have shown 10 1-2 secs, at least (though possibly Castle failed to push him. There can be little doubt that the latter is a wonderful sprinter, and the writer can testify from personal experience that Donaldson is very modest about his great ability.

QUEBEC HOCKEY CLUB

The Quebec Hockey Club have concluded arrangements with the Quebec Skating Club, and it has been decided to erect a new gallery at the far end of the rink. This will give increased accommodation. The architects are now busy upon the preparation, and the work will be rushed through for the opening match. Three new exits will be provided.

The line-up of the Quebec team is expected to be one of the strongest it has had for a long time. Outside clubs are still dickering for some of last year's players, but nothing definite has yet been done.

The locals expected to get to work tonight, but owing to the mild spell the ice was not in condition.

Doing Well in West.

Mr. Robt. E. Dolan, whose headquarters at present are at Athabasca Landing, Alta., was in town on Saturday a guest at the Oriental. "Bert" as his many friends here call him, is an old Peterborough boy, and has made good in the West, where he is engaged in the real estate business. Mr. Dolan left for Toronto on Saturday, but may return again before going West.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

AN EFFECT OF BACK DRAPERY

Quite like the manner of a gown in one of Steven's pictures was one worn by a leader of the Paris modes; its skirt, a bit full, dragged a little, and there was an apron over skirt, heavily fringed, which was pulled in wrinkling folds to the back and disposed of in a large looped bow only a little below the belt line. Narrower fringe edged the fichu corsage and bordered the short, straight sleeves, which opened over little undersleeves of white muslin drawn below the elbow into a narrow, embroidered band. The fichu left a space in the back and front that was covered with an unlined muslin guimpe, its little round collar tied with a knot of cerise ribbon. Black feathers waved from her wide hat of cerise-colored velvet.

A Pretty Sash

A new serge dress for the winter very simple, to be worn with white collars and cuffs, has a black satin ribbon sash tied cleverly, and easy to copy. The ribbon is about six inches wide, and passes straight around the waist, being only tacked in place. Where it meets at the back it is tied in a regular knot, the width of the ribbon being enough to make it one of good size. Then below this are tied two loops, and those droop gracefully on either side, the big knot forming the middle. The whole is one of those simple touches by which the French accomplish a good effect.

A MUCH TRIMMED FUR COAT WITH ADAPTABLE IDEAS

Old clothes may easily be refurbished this season. Many different fabrics may be used in one garment. Coats are much trimmed. A bit of velvet and bands of broad titan braid give a decided air to the simplest coat.

A handsome caracul jacket served as an example. A band of velvet set a couple of inches above the bottom, while the flat deep collar and very deep cuffs of velvet are trimmed with titan braid. The collar extends into a panel and through the broad band around the coat and falls far down upon the dress skirt.

A muff and hat of caracul add to the effect.

The Empress Eugenie

The Empress Eugenie spends most of her time in England.

'I am not getting younger,' she says, 'and Farnham is now my home.'

There is a series of rooms in the house at Farnham devoted to momentoes of Napoleon IV. as the Empressists still like to call the Prince Imperial, who was killed during the Zulu War. In a locked cabinet are the remains of the Prince's uniform, which his mother brought back from Africa when she made the journey to see the spot where he was slain. But most interesting of all is the sword with which he defended himself, the same that Napoleon I. wore at Arcola, at Austerlitz and at Waterloo.

It was not a sword of state, but a plain fighting sword in a simple sheath. When King Cetewayo was conquered this sword, which had terrified Europe, was found among the spoils in his kraal.

The best product of the prairie is not wheat but men, and the quarter section that produces a thinking man, full fledged in all his powers, may well be held to have performed its mission.

DIZZY HEADACHES CURED IN ONE NIGHT

IF TROUBLED WITH HEAD-FULLNESS, RINGING NOISES, SPECKS BEFORE THE EYES, THE STOMACH IS AT FAULT.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost set one wild. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleansing remedy I would be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made strong, ruddy and healthy looking as one could wish, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

FORESTRY CONVENTION.

The program for the big Forestry Convention, at Ottawa, Feb. 7th and 8th, is now complete. The subject of how to handle our forests, so as to get the most out of them, both now and in the future, will be dealt with by leaders from Canada and from the United States. Among those who will speak are Messrs. Gifford Pinchot formerly Chief Forester of the United States, E. A. Sterling, Forester of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is now growing its own ties; Dr. Fernow, head of the Forestry School of Toronto University; Dr. J. W. Robertson, C.M.G., Chairman of the Commission, and H. R. MacMillan of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior. The banquet on Wednesday evening, will be attended by parliamentary leaders, educationists, foresters, lumbermen and the heads of financial and commercial institutions. The day sessions are open to the public, and the importance which the Government attaches to this subject is shown by the fact that these are held in the Railway Committee Room of the Parliament Buildings; while the railways have granted special rates to delegates. The Seed Growers' Association, convene on Feb. 8th and 9th, so that delegates to the Forestry Convention will be able to attend some of the sessions of that body.

CHINESE CRISIS ACUTE.

China's fate is in the balance. Reactionism has won a temporary victory. The decision not to abdicate has been cunningly timed with reference to the demand of foreign creditors for settlement. Let disorder go on, is the word, and famine increase, outside intervention must come. Now outside intervention is the worst thing that could happen. It would mean imposing on the country a system which the majority might not approve, and which would in any case be unsatisfactory, seeing that China should work out her salvation unaided. Possibly the powers, whose only interest is to establish some kind of orderly administration, would decide to prop a regime which has given abundant proof of unfitness.

Yuan Shi Kai has not been a free agent; his life is now in danger. Those who have judged him harshly will now perhaps qualify their condemnations. It looks as if the issue might be decided in the streets of Pekin. It is perhaps well that there should be no further need of dissimulation. If Yuan prevails he will be free to co-operate with Sun Yat Sen. If he does it will be proof of his good faith. There must be some understanding between those two men.

Since he has come recently so prominently before the public, Dr. Sun's course and attitude have been in agreement with his early professions. They have confirmed the good impression which capable and close observers had formed of the man. It is no longer possible to question his disinterestedness or his sagacity. If the faith which many have in Yuan is justified by events China will be found to have two strong men who will save her yet.

To Remove First Sign Of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Mme. Lina Cavalieri, whose fame as a beauty culturist is scarcely outshone by that gained before the footlights. "These are more difficult and serious to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate that they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened."

The best way to strengthen and harden them is by using a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hasel. This creates a freer circulation to the affected parts, besides causing muscle and skin to contract. Saxolite, procurable at every drug store, has long been known by complexion specialists to possess remarkable properties, valuable in treating not only flabby tissue, but all wrinkles and furrows.

FLYING MACHINES AND COTTAGE IN ONE

Clever Invention of H. G. Turner, an Englishman—To Stop Over Night

A flying machine which can be rapidly converted into a neat little two-story cottage has been invented by Mr. H. G. Turner, of Manchester.

The inventor asserts that this new departure in aviation will make the flying man independent of hotel accommodation, and enable him to guard his machine at night by sleeping, as it were, on the premises.

The aviator of the future, it is understood, will sweep a hawklike glance over the landscape for a healthy gravel site, direct his volplane so as to alight with a south view, and then, by an adjustment of the planes, convert the aeroplane into a neat little homestead. In the morning he will peer out to see if the weather holds good, and then make a quick change from hearth and home to planes and petrol.

Mr. Turner describes his machine as a tri-monoplane, and says that one or two minutes will suffice to convert the planes into a two-story structure, with a couple of cabins for sleeping and cooking. Oil stoves and bedding can be carried on the machine.

SIX-A-SIDE A FROST

The Ottawa Journal Hands Out Some Hockey Comment

If anyone can give a reason why the sentence of the hockey court shouldn't be passed on that six-man rule, it's just the time for them to come forward. Sometimes we see some pretty raw attempts at rule-making on the part of the sport directors around the country, but this one is the worst ever. The penalty system, made to bolster up the six-man junk, could very well stand on its own legs; but, as for the other stuff—out with it! When the six-man rule was made, someone suggested that there might come a time when the better part of the team might be on the sidelines. The new fine system, with three warnings, and the full team always on the ice, was the result. It worked out well, although last night's game was a clean one, and there wasn't much chance to get any idea how it would work if the teams decided to rough things up. The six-man rule does all that its enemies claim for it—it breaks up any kind of combination play, tires out the forwards, and makes the game fast in spots only. Russell Bowie, one of the best referees in the game, condemned it; the Quebec manager, M. J. Quinn, has no use for it; the Ottawa players don't like it. In fact, the six-man rule seems to have no friend at all. The best thing to do is to get back to the last year's game, which seemed to be good enough for the hockey fans.—Ottawa Journal.

JOYS OF SKI-ING

Record Society Rush to Switzerland—Alpine Club's Warning to Visitors

The exodus from England for Switzerland for the winter sports which the Public Schools Alpine Sports Club has done so much to popularise, has already commenced, and will surpass all previous records.

No more enthusiastic skaters are found among the medley of nationalities congregated on the ice at Murren than the younger children of the Prime Minister. Mrs. Asquith, herself a skilful skater, accompanies them, and has secured a suite of rooms at the Hotel des Alpes. Murren is reputed to be the best centre for ski-ing. Ski factories have been established near by, as the demand for ski has increased to such an extent that Norway has not been able to cope with the orders received.

The Duchess of Westminster stays at Murren, concurrently with Mrs. Asquith, and obtained rooms at the same hotel. Lady Ursula Grosvenor accompanies her mother as well as Princess Pless's eldest son. Mr. and Mrs. Winston Churchill accompany Mrs. Asquith's party, and Mr. Cyril Asquith is accompanied by Miss Violet Asquith.

Other expert skaters are Lord and Lady Lytton, Lord Knebworth and Lady Margaret Lytton, all of whom spent part of last winter at Murren. Count and Countess Gleichen cross over from Belfast, and other well-known English people are found enjoying the exhilarating pastimes of skating and ski-ing are Lord Monkswell, Mr. and Mrs. John Collier, Lord and Lady Clanwilliam, Lord and Lady Leitrim, Lord and Lady Southesk, Lord Hawarden, Lord Carbery, Lady Frances Ryder, Lady Elliott, Lady Wharton and Miss Hemming.

According to the Swiss and Austrian Alpine Clubs, which have issued a notice to alpinists and skiers to be careful in the higher altitudes, this winter season is dangerous on account of the abnormal heat of the past summer having melted the snows to a great depth on the highest mountains and made the crevasses on the glaciers broader and deeper, making them very fragile and dangerous.

Hardly had this notice been issued when three workmen on the Jungfrau were killed by an avalanche and another slightly injured on a slope where avalanches are rare. Two members of the Swiss Alpine Club, Messrs. Ernest Cornu and Walter Bloch, were also swept down a ravine above Davos, and the former killed, being buried deep in the snow, while his comrade escaped unhurt and descended to Davos for help.

WHAT A POSTMAN WALKS

An official walk of 200,000 miles has been accomplished by Mr Leonard Wavell, a rural postman of Sandown, Isle of Wight, just retired from the service. For the past eighteen years he has daily walked from Sandown to Newchurch, via Apse Heath and Borthwood, and back, a distance of about twenty miles. During the previous thirteen years he covered the same district from Newport, the total distance covered being about the same. Thus for thirty-one years he has walked twenty-miles daily.

A LOSS TO FOOTBALL

Death of Mr. McGregor, the Father of the League

By the death of Mr. William McGregor, familiarly known as the "Father of the Football League," football has sustained an irreparable loss. Mr. McGregor was born in 1847 in Perthshire, but moving south in 1870 first became prominent in football circles by his association with the Birmingham and District Counties F. A. He was a vice-president of the Aston Villa Club, and toiled hard for junior football in the Midlands. His name, however, will be remembered chiefly as the founder of the League, of which he became first president and only life member. He early saw the need for a combination of the leading clubs in the country, so that fixtures could be fulfilled and faith kept with an increasing sporting public who were prepared to pay to see matches. As a result of his efforts the League was formed in March, 1888, and came into effect the following season. The clubs he drew and banded together were Preston North End, Aston Villa, the Wolves, Blackburn Rovers, Bolton Wanderers, West Bromwich Albion, Accrington, Everton, Burnley, Derby County, Notts County, and Stoke. Now the League has two divisions of twenty clubs, and it is the most powerful organization of professional football clubs in the country. In his early days Mr. McGregor was a good cricketer, showing capital form with the bat, and as a Volunteer, shot excellently.

AN AEROPLANE "LINER" THE VERY NEXT THING

It is to be 34 Feet Long, With Promenade Deck, 20 Feet Wide for Passengers

A gigantic aeroplane for the conveyance of passengers has been designed by G. Kunicke and George Koehler, of the Bronx. It is to have four propellers, and to be operated by two sixty horse-power motors. This aeroplane is the nearest thing in the heavier-than-air type to an aerial "liner." The inventors have planned a regular deck upon which passengers will be able to walk about with as much freedom as on an ocean liner.

The Kunicke aeroplane embraces some of the principles of the helicopter. Its four propellers will have lifting as well as driving properties. Two of the propellers are placed one on either side, and the other two situated one in front and the other in the rear of the machine. They will all be worked from a central shaft.

As to the planes or wings, of which there are two, the inventors have adopted the principle advocated by the late Prof. Langley of the Smithsonian Institution. These planes are placed one behind the other, tandem fashion.

The total length of the machine from boy to stern is to be 34 feet, and nearly all of this is occupied for a sort of promenade deck, nearly 20 feet wide, guarded by railings. It will weigh about 1,500 pounds, and its lifting capacity, it is figured, will be twice that, which ought to carry eight to ten passengers.

GOLFING SUGGESTION

Lord Herbert Vane Tempest was re-elected president of the Machynlleth Golf Club. The secretary reported that he had written to congratulate Mr. Andrew Carnegie on taking up golf, and suggested that, in the event of his being in danger of using unparliamentary language, he should try to pronounce Llanfairpwllgwyngyll, etc. Mr. Cardegie's private secretary, writing from Skibo Castle, had replied that there was not the slightest doubt of the excellency of the remedy, but he was inclined to think the remedy was worse than the disease.

A Soap Lake.

There is a soap lake in Nicaragua. This sheet of water, the Lake of Nejapa, contains a strong solution of bicarbonate of potash, bicarbonate of soda and sulphate of magnesia. The water, when rubbed against any solid object, at once forms a lather. It is used as a hair-wash, and enjoys a local reputation as a cure for external and internal complaints.

AN EXPERT BEGGAR

How Lord Rothschild must hate beggars! At the last one he attended he was badly victimized by a well-known woman author.

"Won't you buy? Won't you buy?" she cried, as he walked past her stall.

"I would willingly," he said, "but really, the articles you have for sale are rather bulky."

Then, catching sight of a little pile of papers, each bearing the author's signature, he added:

"But I shall be proud to purchase your autograph."

With ready wit the lady writer took a slip and scribbled above her name the words: "Received from Baron Rothschild the sum of fifty pounds for charity."

If the baron was staggered he did not show it. Gravely handing her a bank-note for the amount, he said: "Madam, this autograph shall occupy an honored place in my collection."

RECORDS OF 1911

Fast Time Made by the Trotters and Pacers

The [illegible] list of records for the year [illegible] will be of interest to the [illegible] the trotter and pacer, showing the best time made on the [illegible] as well as the mile [illegible] records.

Only three of them, however, the half-mile track trotting performance of Uhlan (2.02¾), which displaced his own mark of 2.03¼ under like conditions; the 2.15 pacing mile by the yearling, Frank Perry, which removes that of Paul D. Kelly (2.20¾), and the 2-year-old pacing record of 2.05¼, made by Miss De Forrest, displacing the 2.05½ of Kiatawah and a like mark by Jim Logan, are new world's records.

It was confidently expected that Uhlan would reduce his 1910 mile of 1.58½, but the attempt was postponed front runner, and at the same time dethrone Lou Dillon, whose mark is 1.58½, but he attempt was postponed until the Lexington meeting in October, by which time the weather was so unfavorable that after one losing mile the horse was not started again. There is no reasonable doubt, however, that had Uhlan's managers been fortunate in their choice of a day for the big trial the gelding would now have had a mark of 1.58 or better.

Whether he ever will be able to lower his present record is doubtful, as the great trotter is to be shipped in April to Russia, and, as he goes direct from New York to Moscow and will pass the best part of two weeks making the journey, it will be necessary to condition him almost from the beginning for the miles he is to trot in other lands. In any event, he would not be up to much in April, even if his trotting was to be done in America.

SPORT AND SPYING

The London Chronicle Protests Against a Recent Charge

London Daily Chronicle:—Sport has many enemies, we know, and among them there is a class of people who, if they had their way, would entirely sweep away every pastime, good or bad, healthy or the reverse, in the country. And now the faddists have had another opportunity presented them for decrying games, for a German contemporary gravely asserts that "England maintains an army of spies in the Fatherland," and that the organization chiefly comprises members of the best class of English society, who are so fond of sport—the more venturesome and daring the better—that spying has been taken up as one of our national pastimes! Spying certainly requires in the man who is fond of the "game" nerves of steel, and it is a well-known fact that the well-trained sportsman is the most suitable man for daring and dangerous exploits; but it is really too bad to state that sport and spying go hand in hand, and as sportsmen we protest against the imputation.

THE OLYMPIC FOR 1916

THE LEGS STRUCK.

It was the first night of the panto mime, and the stage-manager was rushing round excitedly.

The "Grand, Stupendous Scene of a Palace in India" was getting ready—but where was the elephant?

"Hurry up, there!" yelled the stage-manager to the property-master, buck up with that elephant! What's keeping it?"

"Well, sir," said the property-master aggrievedly, "it's the back legs, sir. We've found out as 'ow the front legs get thruppence a night more than 'e does, an' 'e refuses to go on till 'e is given the same."

PAINTER'S SECRET

Sign Painted Thirty Years Ago Still As Good As New

The living worth of good work is always recognized, even in small things. Sign-painters do not usually achieve wealth or fame, yet it is said that a fortune awaits the man who [illegible] Ferry, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shortly after the completion of the line at that point. The Western Society of Engineers has the sign on exhibition at their rooms.

The engineers are trying to ascertain who mixed the paint and applied it to the sign, which was placed in position at the Harper's Ferry station about thirty years ago. The summer's heat and winter's storms have in no way dimmed the lustre of the paint used to make the words "Harper's Ferry." They stand out as boldly as the day they were formed by the artist's brush.

The wood around the letters has been worn about one-sixteenth of an inch by sand beaten against it by fierce winds, but the letters have withstood the elements.

It is asserted that no paint manufactured nowadays is equal in durability to that which was applied to the old sign, and if the person who mixed it is living and will take advantage of the secret he possesses as to its composition it is said he can, by engaging in the paint-manufacturing business, soon accumulate wealth.

At Bingley Halyl, Birmingham, the record price of fifteen hundred guineas was recently paid for a shorthorn bull twenty-two months old.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors submit herewith their Twenty-seventh Annual Report showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the Balance Sheet to the 31st December, 1911.

The Gross Earnings for the year amounted to $251,938.46, and after the payment of Interest on Deposits and Debentures, and all expenses of management there remained a Net Profit of $141,943.44. To this amount has been added $44,477.71, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $186,421.15.

This amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(2) By Addition to the Reserve Fund	40,000.00
(3) By amount carried forward to Profit and Loss Account	46,421.15

The above addition to the Reserve Fund increases that account to $760,000.00, making it now 76 per cent of the present Paid-up Capital of $1,000,000.00.

All payments maturing during the year on the Company's investments have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the Company have also been promptly paid. The books, accounts and securities of the Company have been carefully examined by the Auditors, and their Report is attached to the Financial Statement.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

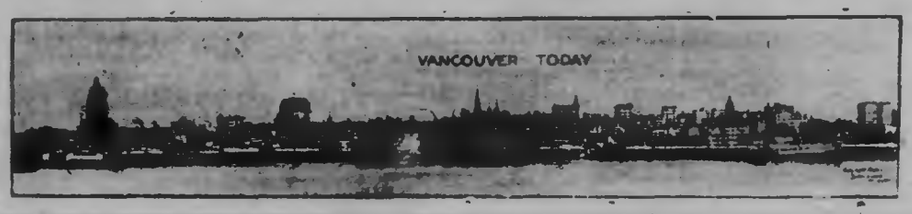
100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.



FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

100,000 Thousand Shares are offered at $1.00 per share, 44,500 of which have been subscribed. These shares may be purchased for cash or on the instalment plan. $10.00 cash and $5.00 per month handles 100 shares. Mail your subscription To-day.

MUSIC HALL'S ORIGIN

It was First a Part of Hotel—Not "Respectable" a Few Years Ago

The King and Queen consented to attend a "command" music-hall performance during their visit to Edinburgh.

How extraordinary such an announcement would have seemed to people thirty or forty years ago, says an English writer. For at that period, and even in much later times, music-halls were not "respectable."

Many of them, indeed, were merely adjuncts to hotels, and not always very high-class hotels at that. At an earlier date still they were just "free-and-easies," where the performers were unpaid, and the chairman was either the landlord or one of his employees.

No charge was made for admission, the landlord relying on his profit on the sale of refreshments, nor were the performers paid as a general rule.

After a while, however, the proprietors of some of the better-known free-and-easies discovered that it was to their interest to fee certain favorite singers. For some reason or other four dollars a week seems to have been the amount generally paid.

Sims Reeves, Jolly John Nash, Jenny Hill, and quite a number of others who afterwards became famous on the concert platform or the variety stage, were content to sing several songs nightly in return for this meagre wage.

To rent a building separate from a hotel and give an independent performance of a similar kind, but plus a small charge for admission, was the next step forward. In this way the music-hall, as distinct from the tavern free-and-easy, came into existence.

One of the first, and certainly the most famous of these very early music-halls, was the Rotunda, in the Blackfriars Road, London. Here appeared as duettiste and dancers Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Wilde, the parents of the late lamented Dan Leno.

Meanwhile, many of the tavern concert-rooms were emerging from the chrysalis stage into full-blown music-halls. Thus, the "Grapes" in Southwark became the Surrey Music Hall, the "Great Mogul," in Drury Lane blossomed forth as the Middlesex Music Hall, and so on.

GREAT FIND

How John D. Rockefeller Struck Something Not Oil

Mr. John D. Rockefeller's servant once unconsciously played a good trick upon him. The great man had acquired some oil-wells, and his agent had sent him a sample of the product of the first forcing in a bottle. Rockefeller was in a hurry to go out when it arrived, and gave it to one of his men to deliver to the analyst with a note he scrawled.

The servant [illegible] and took the bottle with him. Later in the evening he saw what he thought was the bottle on the sideboard, and with a guilty conscience hurriedly took it out to deliver it.

Judge of Rockefeller's amazement when, in the morning, he received the following telegram:—

"Yours is the first find of the century! You've struck paregoric!"

A TREE OF KNOWLEDGE

A student of holy writ has composed statistics of the King James authorised version of the Bible in this form:

The Bible contains 3,566,498 letters, 810,697 words, 31,175 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books. The longest chapter is the 119th Psalm; the shortest and middle chapter the 117th Psalm. The middle verse is the 8th of the 118th Psalm. The longest name is in the 8th chapter of Isaiah. The word "and" occurs 46,627 times, the word "Lord" occurs 1,855 times. The 37th chapter of Isaiah and the 19th chapter of the second Book of Kings are alike. The longest verse is the 9th of the 8th chapter of Esther; the shortest verse is the 35th of the 11th chapter of John. In the 1st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra is the alphabet. The finest piece of reading was in the 26th chapter of Acts. The name of God is not mentioned in the Book of Esther. It contains knowledge, wisdom, holiness and love.

ARE MEN THE WEAKER SEX?

An English college professor expresses the conviction that women are gaining the muscular supremacy over the men. He attributes this to their taking a more active interest in outdoor sports, while the men are becoming indolent in that respect, and prefer being spectators to participants in athletic exercises. With their admitted superiority in all the arts and graces, including fluency of expression, and to add to this physical predominance, there seems to be little left for mere man but to plod unostentatiously along in the ranks of the producers, and continue to push up his gross earnings to his mental and physical superior every Saturday.

NOVEL ORCHARD EXPERIMENT

Mr. W. H. Underwood, a great fruit raiser, of Hutchinson, Kansas, is preparing a novel experiment to protect his orchard from frost. Mr. Underwood has purchased 20,000 ten-gallon oil-stoves, which he proposes to set up in his apple orchard of 650 acres, and when the frosts come and the trees are blossoming he will keep these stoves alight day and night until the crisis is over.

EXCITING WHALE HUNT

An exciting whale hunt took place in the upper reaches of Loch Erisort, Lewis, a few days ago. A crew of fishermen sighted the "school" off the village of Habost, and they succeeded in driving the whales in as far as the rapids near the village of Balallan. Here the whole township turned out, the young men in boats armed with all kinds of weapons. Amid a scene of great excitement, the whales were driven into the shallow waters at the head of the loch. The crews of the boats jumped into the water among the whales, and in a short time, the whole "school" of fifty-four was secured. Then the work of cutting up began, every family getting an equal share, the blubber being melted for oil.

MY LADY'S COLUMN.

A vogue which will commend itself to the home artist is the use of hand-painted ribbon for trimming evening and other gowns. Both silk and satin ribbons are treated to water-colour designs of a "sketchy" artistic type usually in colours of "chintzy" suggestion, or imitative of Japanese colour schemes with the "Chinese" blues, pure greens and reds, and invariable touch of black.

A broad satin ribbon hand-painted in a bold conventional design makes an excellent skirt "band" of the fashionable kind. It can, if desired be veiled with chiffon, in order to produce the attractive "blurred" effect so well liked this season. Moreover ribbons serve to trim tunics and empire blouses, the edges of the ribbon being turned under to make a miniature piece satin, or a beaded edge can be worked over the selvedge in beads coloured like the painted design. It is an original detail of this character which just now distinguishes the most expensive gown.

Some Sickroom Rules

The doctor's orders must be scrupulously obeyed. The patient should be in a room as remote as possible from the "bustle" of the house. The window should, as a rule, be kept open but there must be no draughts. The fire must be tended quietly — not with tongs, but with gloved fingers. The nurse's dress should be simple washable, and make no rustling sounds. The patient must not be regaled with minute accounts of the terrible illnesses of other people. The household worries must not be mentioned in the sick-room. The patient's meals — no matter how simple they are — must be served up daintily with specially attractive tray-cloths and china. Flowers must be taken out of the room at night. Visitors must be admitted with the doctor's permission, and not otherwise.

A Mother's Creed

Mrs. Osora S. Davis gives the following beautiful "mother's creed":

I believe in the eternal importance of the home as the fundamental institution of society.

I believe in the immeasurable possibilities of every boy and girl.

I believe in the imagination, the trust, the hopes, and the ideals which dwell in the hearts of all children.

I believe in the beauty of nature, of art, of books, and of friendship.

I believe in the satisfaction of duty.

I believe in the little homely joys of everyday life.

I believe in the goodness of the great design which lies behind our complete world.

I believe in the safety and peace which surround us all through the ever-brooding love of God.

To Cure Forehead Creases

A perfectly smooth brow is not the [illegible] and it is one of these tiresome accidents which makes a "fringy" style of hairdressing best becoming just when the forehead begin, to record the wear and tear of time.

For the heavy lines known as "frown marks" the beauty doctors advocate what they call "wrinkle plasters." The lines are pressed out with the fingers, and the plaster is applied while the "frown mark" is thus forcibly held in abeyance. The plaster should be applied, it seems, every time one proposes to go into a "brown study," as well as during sleep.

To eradicate the fine lines, flannel wrung out of hot water and laid on the forehead for ten minutes at a time, and followed by a similarly lengthy dabbing not rubbing, with olive oil is the treatment prescribed. Adopted twice a day for a fortnight, these means are said to ensure a smooth white brow. The oil must be freely applied, as it is the oil which feeds the wasted tissues that cause the lines.

Browned Crumbs.

Keep all scraps of crust until there is a good quantity; cut off any black bits, and put the rest on a baking-tin in the oven until they are a bright golden brown all over and quite crisp. Then pound them in a mortar, or, if there is not one available, put them between two pieces of paper and crush them with a rolling-pin. Next pass them through a sieve—this ensures them being all of one size. Put them in a tin with a tight-fitting lid.

These crumbs are useful for shaking over boiled ham or bacon, and can often be used for puddings instead of white crumbs, giving the mixture a richer appearance.

Seared Round Steak

Have the butcher cut the steak thick. Lay it on your meat-board, sprinkle lightly with flour and pound until the flour disappears. Continue this, turning the steak over occasionally, until about half a cupful of flour to one pound of steak has been used. Put a little butter and suet in the frying-pan and heat smoking hot. Sear the steak on both sides, being careful not to burn. Now add a little hot water, about a cupful, cover closely, and set back to simmer for about half an hour. Add more water if necessary. Season with butter, pepper and salt just before serving. You will have a rich, brown gravy, which may be thickened if liked.

Hot Room for Both

"I know Ames comes in for a lot of praise because he hunts with a camera instead of a gun," Forbes began, in a slightly acrid tone. "It never seems to strike people that there may be more than one kind of bravery."

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall, Forbes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her attentions. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation.

"'Hold on there, old chap!' he yelled. 'You're too far ahead. I can't see you both in.'"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

THOMAS GRIGG
Qu'Appelle

For nineteen years Thomas Grigg has farmed near Qu'Appelle, meeting set-backs, but prospering. Although a Canadian, he and his wife came to the Springbrook district from South Dakota. Generally speaking, wheat growing has been the mainstay. Horse-raising, also, has received attention to an extent sufficient to lead Mr. Grigg to pass opinion that a man can make as much money on a half section of rough land raising colts as he can on a real good quarter at wheat-growing. Pigs, also, are kept and on different occasions have helped him "out of a tight place." He finds that, as a rule, there is enough feed around to fatten a bunch. The farm comprises 640 acres of which about one-quarter is summerfallowed annually. Wheat is grown for two years, and then oats or barley. Recently, Mr. Grigg has rented his farm for a year in order that he and his good wife may spend the winter in California and take a well-earned rest.

HON. HUGH J. MACDONALD
Police Magistrate
Winnipeg

Mr. Hugh Macdonald who was lately appointed Police magistrate of the Gateway city was formerly premier of Manitoba. Probably the importance of his magistracy lies principally in the fact that the man he succeeded was the famous late T. Mayne Daly, and though Mr. Macdonald is not in his famous father's rank he is big hearted enough to make the attempt to fill a big man's shoes. Nothing attempted, nothing done is certainly not in his make up.

Squire Macdonald is a son of the late John A. Macdonald, and might have been premier of Canada today, if he had remained in Dominion politics, and followed closely in the footsteps of his dad. But he chose the nearer honors offered by a provincial premiership and got out of the running for the post of prime minister of Canada.

Such a one is Dr. A. Beverley Welford of Woodstock Ont. who is one of the pioneers of the Canadian Club movement in his district, though the doctor's energies are not confined to this laudable work. He is practically connected with every movement that has for its object—the raising of the standard of life.

NELLIE L. McCLUNG
Canadian writer

Mrs. McClung has lived in Manitoba for the last thirty years, having come from Owen Sound with her parents in the very early days of this province. However, she is always very careful to explain that she was only a "mere child" at that time, and yet her stories of some of the happenings of the long journey by ox-train from Winnipeg to the point on the Souris river where her parents located, are so vividly told that we are forced to believe that she must have been a very bright child for her years.

Mrs. McClung, who before her marriage was Nellie L. Mooney, received her education at a country school and afterwards at the Central Collegiate in Winnipeg. She taught school for five years and then married Mr. R. W. McClung, who was engaged in the drug business in Manitoba, Man. They lived in Manitou until last summer, when they removed to Winnipeg, and have taken up their residence on Chestnut street. Mrs. McClung was elected president of the local branch of the Canadian Woman's Press club, for this year.

Mrs. McClung has written two books, "Sowing Seeds in Danny," and "The Second Chance;" also many short stories. Last year she gave a series of recitals, from her own books, in Manitoba, and also in Ontario.

At the present time she is engaged in writing another book.

Mrs. McClung chooses for her characters the plain people of every day life, when we all know. The keen fidelity of her writing makes a strong appeal to the discriminating reader.

AMERICAN FORESTS

They Have No Timber Fit for Paper-Making.

NEW YORK. — South American forests will never yield pulp timber worth importing to the United States for paper manufacture, according to Louis Chable, representative of the International Paper Company, who arrived home lately. Mr Chable said he had made an inspection of all the important forest lands of the Southern continent and found no pulp timber fit for paper-making.

GREAT CANVASSERS

Napoleon and George Washington and Many More Great Men Were Successful Books Agents In Their Youth.

Books. — Well-known firm of London publishers require the services of country gentlemen to act as agents. Liberal commission. Districts apportioned. Hunting and shooting men preferred. Members of good families, younger sons who have been at the Varsities or public schools, will find this a first-class opening. Apply, etc.

When the above appeared in the advertisement columns of the English papers recently, no doubt many people who read it would ask themselves what things were coming to.

Country gentlemen taking to book-canvassing!

Certainly it reads revolutionary, even in these days of trading "nobility and gentry."

But greater men than country squires have, before now, been engaged in canvassing books.

Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of the French, the world's greatest military genius, was once a book-canvasser.

The future conqueror, while yet a Lieutenant, and with nothing to live on but his scanty pay, undertook to "push" for Messrs Boulanger and Co., the Paris publishers, a work called "The History of the (French) Revolution." And apparently he liked the work — with its emoluments — for after a short trial he applied to be given the sole agency for the Department of La Vendée. He had, however, to be content with a restricted district in suburban Paris. With what zeal he "worked" this may be seen to-day at the Louvre, where there is exhibited his canvasser's outfit, together with the long list of subscribers' names which his industry secured.

Almost at the same time in a different part of the world, another future ruler was partly earning his bread as a book agent. This was none other than George Washington, "Father" of the United States. The particular book that Washington canvassed bore the somewhat lengthy title of "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, American Savage, How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization."

To "get off" such a mouthful as this would surely require more than average ability and persuasiveness, and if, as he recorded, Washington's sales were eminently satisfactory, small wonder that in later life he accomplished so much [illegible]

The Wrong Bit.

An Irish Jarvie was driving an English tourist round Dublin, and on stopping for refreshment the tourist remarked to Pat how lean his horse was. Going up to the horse's head, the tourist examined its mouth, and, turning round with the air of a man who knew something, he said:—

"I am afraid that the want of flesh in your horse is due to the large bit you have in its mouth."

Pat looked at him sorrowfully as he replied:—

"Shure, yer honour, I won't argue wid ye, but I'm after thinking it's the small bit that he has in his stomach that's a-troublin' the poor baste!"

COSTLY SPITE

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $375,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by sidelines. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment of Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the princes of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A clear-sted, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince. And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of Hesse.

BASEBALL IN CHINA

They have a baseball season in China as well as a revolution, and the ball players finished their job first. The teams were recruited in Shanghai and last season the league consisted of four clubs. Next year it is to be doubled in size. According to reports from Shanghai, baseball is making great headway in China, and why should it not, where there are so many fans?

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, driver manager of Joe Jeanette, claims the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVey, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeanette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVey.

A DIFFICULT LANGUAGE

Chinese Language Has 40,000 Characters of Separate Meaning and Accent.

The difficulties of making up a font of Chinese type, says the American Consul at Shanghai, although considerable, are not relatively so great as one might imagine, for while Kang Hsi's dictionary the standard and most comprehensive work of its kind in the language, contains some 40,000 characters it has been found that for all practicable purposes a font need contain about 7,000. Of course, with a font of this size the Chinese printer, in the course of setting up a book will frequently find that he lacks a dozen or so unusual characters, a difficulty which he readily meets by having these missing symbols hand cut on blank type by skilled engravers, who, thanks to the old wood-block system are to be found in practically every town in China. Although practically all Chinese newspapers and books on modern topics are now printed from movable metal type, books pertaining to old China, such as the Confucian classics and their commentaries, are still produced by the time-honored method of printing from wooden blocks. Among the reasons why the Chinese prefers his books of this nature printed in the old way are his naturally strong conservatism, the peculiar charm and artistic softness of the pages printed from blocks, which the modern books from metal presses do not have, and the fact that the new style volumes lack, that peculiar odour imparted to the older method by the lampblack table ink, with which they are printed, an odour which, although extremely disagreeable to occidental nostrils, is inseparably associated in the Chinese mind with good literature.

TROUSERS FROM OLD COATS

The Chinese never waste anything. A shopman puts up parcels with half the paper and string used by Europeans. Servants collect and sell match-boxes and things which seem to us to be useless. In the country you will see a boy up in a tree beating down a single leaf with a stick for fuel. Women, when too old for any other work, collect dry grass for the same purpose. A man collects his fowls and then beats old, damp mats or matting; cock-roaches and other vermin jump out, and the fowls have a meal that costs nothing. You give a coolie an old coat that you are ashamed to wear, and he will probably get a tailor to transform it for thirty or fifty cents into two pairs of excellent trousers for himself.

One has only to watch their story-tellers in the streets to see that the Chinese are natural orators. They are also very clever conjurers. Rich Chinese are very charitable. They distribute free rice and tea in time of exceptional distress; they subscribe to hospitals and to asylums for the blind, for the old, for lepers, and for orphans; they even support associations for supplying free coffins to the poor.

[illegible]

One evening at a tavern the topic was about dogs. "Oh!" said Juby, "I had a dog and was taking a near cut across some fields when I missed the animal, and on going back I found him staring at a notice-board bearing the words, 'All dogs found here will be shot.' And come he would not."

"Yes, yes, that's good but what about Johnson's retriever." One night his house caught fire, all was confusion; old Johnson and his wife flew for the children and bundled them out sharp.

"Alas! one was left behind, but up jumped the dog, rushed in, and soon reappeared with the child, depositing it on the lawn. All were out now, but in rushed the dog again. What he was after no one knew. Presently the noble animal reappeared, scorched and burnt, with what do you think?"

"Give it up," came from the listeners.

"Why, with the fire-policy wrapped up in a damp towel, gentlemen."

A NEWSPAPER BLUNDER

A year or two ago, Big Ben (the well-known Westminster parliament clock) was fitted with new hands. A reporter in the London office of a Manchester paper saw his chance and wrote: "A well-known character, who has lived in Westminster all his life, and is familiarly known to many Londoners as "Ben," underwent a serious operation this morning. As Westminster Hospital was too full to allow of him having a bed, the operation was carried out by two doctors in the open air, and in the presence of a large crowd. Both of Ben's hands were taken off — successfully and rapidly. A new pair will be provided for him." The sub-editor in Manchester read through the paragraph, and added the headlines: 'Operation in the Open Air. Big London Crowd Watches Man's Hands Taken Off.' And so it duly appeared in next morning's paper."

Entertaining Up To Date

A new form of entertaining, started by Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt, is being taken up by Newport hostesses. It is a dinner and dance, with the dancing between the courses. As soon as one course is finished the orchestra strikes up, and the guests leave their places and begin to dance. The dance finished, another course is served. Eating and dancing go on in this way until the dinner is finished. By the time coffee is served the dinner-ball has lasted two hours.

TO HELP THE EXPORT TRADE

Well Known Business Man of Montreal Urges Canadian Manufacturers To Wake Up and Get After Foreign Trade

Mr. George E. Johnston, the well-known financier is urging the manufacturers and traders of Canada to consolidate and form an association through which authentic information of the wants of other countries—particularly South America—could be secured for the benefit of Canada Mr. Johnston's appeal, in part, is:—

Has not the time arrived when we should put forth some concerted action whereby we would render valuable aid to our Canadian exporters. This might be accomplished by following the example of our neighbors in the south of us by the formation of a Canadian Export Association. Our export trade is growing at a remarkably rapid rate and the work of such an association would be to educate our expanding manufacturers and traders who may be anxious to participate in profitable over-seas business. It would be the purpose of the suggested association to establish an intelligence department and through the agency of accredited correspondents who would supply ruling prices, point out new markets and fresh sources for the purchase of our raw material.

It may be news to many Canadians to know that there is scarcely a country in the world where Canadian merchandise does not find a ready market, both in the countries of the Old and New World. We have now a direct steamship service to Australia, New Zealand and the Far East and we have lately turned our attention to the development of trade to Latin South America and with most promising results.

From January 1st. to September 30th. of last year, the exports and imports between Canada and Argentine aggregated $5,061,447, which is $2,000,000 more than the previous year. During the nine months above mentioned, Canada sent to Argentine $2,869,913 worth of goods and bought from that republic $2,191,554.

In looking over all the countries' trade with each of the Republics of South America, I personally believe that our trade of 1910 with the Argentine might be duplicated in each one of the other Republics, if we put the proper trade machinery into operation. Canada in the last few years, has been developing her export trade at a very rapid rate.

I would like to see our government assist in establishing a direct line of steamships with South America. This would [illegible] energetic and patriotic Canadian Export [illegible] By many South America presents a very attractive field for Canadian business men and I believe, as one personally acquainted with South America and its business, that there is no doubt a large trade could be worked up, if proper attention were paid to cultivating the republics of South America. As everyone knows, South Americans for the most part, are not competitors of Canada. They buy what we have to sell and sell us commodities which we require. The only exception to this statement is the Argentine Republic and even with this republic our export trade last year was over $6,000,000. Canada should have, next to Great Britain, the first claim upon South American trade, because of the fact that the chief commercial houses of South America are English and would naturally give a preference to Canada. There is invested in South American enterprises at the present time, over two billions dollars of British money and as a result of this large amount of British capital invested, Canada, as a part of the British Empire, would receive a cordial welcome should she energetically seek closer trade relations with South American countries.

As a Canadian much interested in Canadian enterprises, I would like to see a system of organized effort to extend and enlarge our export trade and for that purpose, I would suggest the formation of a powerful league, known as the Canadian Export Association, which league ought to secure diplomatic influence for the successful exploitation of Canadian commerce. In order to secure a remunerative business for a direct steamship line, the government might grant a subsidy, which subsidy would not be required after a more extensive trade had been developed, as it would soon be apparent that Canadian steamships would soon have a paying cargo each way.

It might be pointed out that the greater part of manufactured goods used in South America are imported and that there is hardly an article manufactured in Canada which would not find a ready and profitable sale in the south. Implements are used there in enormous quantities. Cement is used in millions of tons. Leather goods, including saddles, boots and belting are everywhere in great demand owing to the agricultural nature of the country. The bulk of this trade is now going to Americans, Germans and the Belgians. We in turn need their asphalt, nuts, mutton, hides, mahogany, rice, rubber, wool, etc. Our Canadian government has neglected putting a live energetic Canadian representative in each one of the Republics of South America and I think the time has arrived for either the government [illegible] association as I have suggested to take immediate steps [illegible] development of our Canadian trade in the south.

Mr. Johnston invites correspondence from manufacturers and traders of the Dominion on the subject and if there is sufficient interest manifested, necessary steps will be taken to organize an export association and to develop and extend our export trade.

SOCIETY DEALERS

Society People By Art Dealing Make Good Money on the Side And Many Make Their Living By It.

Although there are many dealers in art treasures and antiquities who are scrupulously honest and have never intentionally sold an object which was not exactly what they described it to be — and who to-day, in quite a number of cases, are prepared to give 10 per cent. profit upon the return of almost every article they have sold during the last ten years, so greatly has the value of these increased within that period — it is a fact that there are many others who, taking advantage of the modern craze for collecting, resort to all sorts of dodges in order to impose upon the ignorant.

For instance, in Great Britain, it is quite a common trick for dealers to distribute part of their stock in farmhouses and cottages, in the hope that enthusiastic strangers will assume that they have been there for generations. After thus stocking a cottage the dealer casually mentions to customers that he has been told of a certain cottager who has some very good antique "stuff," and that he himself has had no time to verify the report. Of course, the address is promptly asked for by the enthusiastic collector, who is thus led to purchase goods which he might not otherwise think of buying.

An Ingenious Method.

This is a somewhat common and fairly well-known trick, and the consequence is that some dealers have hit upon a more ingenious method. They arrange with some well-known man or woman in "society," who is furnishing a new house, to decorate it with fine furniture, pictures, and prints, supplied free on the understanding that should a visitor admire any of them they are to be sold if possible, and that a handsome commission will be given on the transaction. "There are certainly in society, many who add to their diminished incomes by either selling works of art themselves or acting as agents for dealers.

"A well-known connoisseur, when recently visiting a Duchess, had the following experience:—

"The lady was delighted to see him; she particularly wished for his advice and assistance. 'Algy has run terribly into debt; he may have to resign his commission in the Guards. I cannot ask his father for money, as he is [illegible] culture. You know all about [illegible] nature; could you possibly help me to sell that magnificent Louis Seize piece? It was given to a former Duke by the Emperor of Russia, and it was always said to be worth many thousands of pounds.' The visitor looked at the bit of furniture. It was one he had seen at the shop of a celebrated dealer, who had had it for years on his hands and had resorted to this device to try to get rid of it."

SILENT HUSBANDS

While Chinamen Have Risen in Chinese Revolt Women Have Determined to Assert Themselves Too.

While Chinamen have risen in revolt against the Manchu dynasty, their women-folk — at any rate some of them — have come to the conclusion that the time has arrived when they should make a strong protest against the custom which forces a girl to be betrothed to a boy in her infancy and ultimately marry him, although they may be scarcely acquainted with one another and have nothing in common. Such is the determination of Chinese women to stamp out this custom that some years ago nine Cantonese maidens drowned themselves together one night in the Pearl River rather than accept the lot of wife under these conditions.

"In three districts in Central Kuangsung, where a girl can always get work at silk-winding, thousands of girls have formed themselves into anti-matrimonial associations, the members of which refuse to live with the husbands more than the customary three days.

"Then they take advantage of their legal right to visit mother, and never return, save on certain days or after a term of years. If the parents attempt to restore the runaway bride to her husband she drowns herself or takes opium; so parents and magistrates have had to let the girls have their way. By presenting herself in her husband's home on certain festival days the bride keeps her wifely status."

Dr. Ross also mentions a very curious practice observed between husbands and wives in certain districts of China. Etiquette, it appears, forbids husband and wife to be seen talking together. Thus, a young man and his wife meet in an empty lane and, supposing themselves unobserved, he asks her for the key of the garden gate.

She throws it on the ground without looking at him, and, once indoors, rates him soundly for speaking to her in public.

"Suppose," she says, "someone had seen us!"

FOOTBALL

[illegible] football, which is the British Empire, have become popular all over the world, is again illustrated by Association football. Its growth has been rapid and its popularity is by no means confined to the white race. Some of the native races in the ramparts of Empire are capable of showing really good football, all of which is satisfactory. How other nations have taken to "soccer," rather comes home to one through Fulham having tried Hussein Hegazi as centre forward on Saturday, against Southport. He is an Egyptian, who played capital form against English teams in Cairo before coming to England a few months ago. His play in England was closely watched, and he showed very well for a first appearance in an important game.

THE PRIMROSE LEAGUE

The Story of the Founding of the Famous British League. — The Primrose Was Beaconsfield's Favourite Flower.

It was really a chance remark which led to the founding of the Primrose League — that remarkable political organisation which to-day has over 1,500,000 members.

When, on April 19th, 1883 — the second anniversary of Lord Beaconsfield's death — his statue was unveiled in Parliament Square, Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, arriving at the Commons late in the afternoon was given a primrose by Mr. Cove superintendent of the members' cloak room. When Sir Henry entered the Chamber he found the whole Conservative party similarly decorated with Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower. The fact impressed him so much that as he walked home with Lord Randolph Churchill he remarked: "What a show of primrose! This should be turned to account. Why not start a Primrose League?"

Lord Randolph was instantly interested. "Draw up a plan," he said, "to carry out your idea, and we will see what can be done."

Ultimately Lord Randolph and Sir Henry were joined by Sir John Gorst and Sir Alfred Shade and in due course these four gentlemen founded the League, and constituted themselves the ruling council.

It was originally intended to admit men only, banded in companies of about a hundred, to act as missionaries of the League. Ultimately, however, it was decided to admit ladies with the result that the membership rose from 957 in 1884 to 237,283 in 1886. Not long ago it was reported that the total membership had touched 1,700,000.

It has, of course, been said that the primrose was not Lord Beaconsfield's favourite flower, and that when Queen Victoria sent a wreath of primroses to Lord Beaconsfield's funeral and wrote on it, "His favourite flower," the allusion was to the Prince Consort — not to the dead statesman. Mr. Reginald Lucas, however, in "Lord Glenesk and the 'Morning Post,'" says that one who knew Lord Beaconsfield well declares that he habitually wore a single primrose in his button hole when he was at Hughenden in the early spring, while another more intimate friend can speak of having seen an abundance of primrose in Beaconsfield's house in Curzon Street that had been gathered on the slopes of Windsor.

THE MEAN WAY

"Talking about meanness," said an old son of the soil, who nursed a pint of ale in a chair by the fire, "you should ha' known old Ruby who used to keep a farm out Goswell way.

"Twenty years ago, it is that his son went out with a tin bucket to milk a cow. Somehow or other, lost the lad and the bucket disappeared mysteriously.

"No more was heard of him till he wandered back home ten years after, as rich as a millionaire, and loaded the old man up with gold and diamond pins and new clothes, and gave him five thousand dollars as a birthday present.

"And d'ye think old Ruby was grateful? Ne'er a bit!

"'George,' says he 'wot 'ave you done with the bucket?'

"And George left home again, wondering whether his dad was the meanest man in the world or whether the distinction was still held by the fellow who used a wart on the back of his neck for a collar-stud."

PURE ENGLISH

"My dear, I wish you would speak more carefully," said a stickler for pure English to his wife. "You say that 'Henry Jones came to this town from Sunderland.' Don't you see that it would be better to say that he came from Sunderland to this town?"

"I don't see any difference in the two expressions," rejoined the lady.

"But there is a difference in the two expressions — a rhetorical difference. You don't hear me make use of such awkward expressions. By the way, I have a letter from your father in my pocket."

"Oh dear, is my father in your pocket?" inquired the wife. "You mean that you have in your pocket a letter from my father."

"There you go with your hypercritical. You take a delight in harassing me; you are always taking up a thread and representing it as a rope."

"Representing it to be a rope, you mean, dear."

And then he groaned a sickly groan and wished he had never started the discussion.

RUN DOWN

The council employee had formally applied, in writing, for a holiday — with salary, of course — on the grounds that he was "run down."

"I'm a bit suspicious of this run down-ism," remarked the chairman. "It's been very prevalent among the council's employés of late. I propose the applicant be sent for."

"I beg to second that."

The proposition being carried, a messenger went in search of the applicant. Presently there was a scuffling at the door of the council chamber.

"Order there!" commanded the chairman. "Officer, why do you allow that person to try and force his way into the room? Remove him instantly!"

"Beg pardon, sir," said the officer, with a smile, the breadth of which not even his own capacious palm could conceal, "it's the man you sent for — the road foreman wot's run down."

"Oh, well, let him enter, then."

"Beg pardon, sir, he can't. He's too fat for the door!"

BANKS AND BANK INSPECTION.

One of the large Canadian banks in making public its annual statement refers to the matter of bank inspection. It declares that it has no objection whatever to an outside audit of its accounts, but that it does not want an inspection by the Canadian Bankers' Association for the reason that such examination involves a moral responsibility which no association ought to assume in the case of a weak institution. That is to say, the Bankers' Association might guarantee the correctness of a weak bank and thus become morally, if not legally, responsible for the financial standing of the concern. This particular bank prefers its own system of bank inspection, which is admittedly thorough and efficient.

In discussing this matter a Winnipeg paper says that an inspection which might meet the requirement of this bank and its patrons might not suffice to meet the conditions which made possible the collapse of the Ontario Bank and the Farmers' Bank. It is, fortunately, a rare occurrence for a Canadian bank to go into liquidation. But care should be taken to make the number of Canadian bank failures even smaller. There is need of some system of disinterested bank inspection which will safeguard the interest of shareholders and depositors alike. It ought to be possible to prevent banking institutions in Canada from operating in a state of insolvency like the Ontario and the Farmers' banks, which were in rotten condition long before they collapsed. The history of these two banks, with its story of official incompetency, governmental inefficiency and dishonest management, should be warning enough against any bank inspection which does not inspect.

Just what system of disinterested bank inspection the present government proposes or should adopt The Telegram neither knows nor presumes to suggest. But this much is certain that nothing should be left undone to make the banking system of Canada as safe and sound as it is possible for human foresight to provide for. The wretched chapter of recent banking collapses in Canada argues the necessity of a system of inspection wholly apart from the activities of interested parties.

THE FEES INCREASED

Examination Charges Have Gone Up A Good Notch.

Principal Kemner of the Collegiate Institute has received a circular from the Department of Education at Toronto, announcing a new schedule of examination fees.

Heretofore there has been no charge for the entrance examination, but commencing this year an assessment of $1 will be levied on each pupil trying the examination.

The Senior High School entrance, the examination for admittance to the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, taken by pupils who have taken several years at a continuation school, will now be $5. The fees for all other examinations save that of entrance to the Normal Schools have also been boosted.

A comparative table of the old and new fixed fees for the examination is:

High school entrance	$1.00
Junior matriculation	3.00	5.00
Partial matriculation	3.00	2.00
Honor or scholarship matriculation	10.00	5.00
Entrance Nor. school	5.00	5.00
Entrance Fac. of Edu.	8.00	5.00
(Part 1 or 2)	5.00	3.00

The increase in the fees is for the purpose of preventing candidates unprepared for their examinations trying them for the mere sake of trying.

They will be joined in Toronto by Mr. and Mrs. Ford, of Mitchell, Ont. Their hosts of friends in Peterborough will join in wishing them a pleasant trip and a safe return.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Polson, University Avenue, Kingston, with their three daughters, the Misses Jessie, Isabel and Una Polson, will leave town Thursday for Boston, whence they will sail on Saturday Feb. 3rd, on the SS. Canopic, to spend the next four months on the continent. Mr. Polson is a brother of Mrs. (Rev) Rollins, of this city.

Transforms Complexion Wins Social Favors

"Had I been unable to transform my complexion so quickly, so completely, by an unique process I had just learned of, I never could have attended the Charity Ball." A certain social favorite, a picture of loveliness at the great event, told me this. "I had been much run down," she said. "When I beheld myself in the mirror after a night's troubled sleep, I saw I was becoming heavy-eyed and pale. I could not take, and attend the ball, the long rest my physician advised. A friend suggested I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the druggist's and use it as I would cold cream. I did—the result is apparent.

"In a week I had a new complexion. The wax took off the old skin, with its worry lines—so gradually, there was no discomfort. Now you see the fresh, bright underskin, with its youthful glow and expression."—Saturday Evening Herald (Chicago).

VOL XXXIX NO 27 PETERBOROUGH ONT WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 31 1912 PRICE TWO CENTS

BOYS CONFESS TO THE BURNING OF COLLEGE

Two Other Boys Ran Away, After Failing to Burn the Institution—Determined Feelings.

Sweetsburg, Que., Jan. 30.—The lad who admits setting fire to the Holy Cross College, causing its destruction, is J. P. Marchand, aged 11 years, of Montreal. His accomplices were Eugene Bernard, aged 15, Albany, N.Y., and William Henry, aged 14, South Bridge, Mass. Two former attempts, after each of which a pupil ran away, had been made. One of the boys wrote a letter on January 20th to a friend, saying that the College would burn down on the 25th. One of the brothers opened the letter before it was sent and learned of the plan. He informed the lad's parents and the youngster was removed from the school.

Yesterday morning all the boys went to church. Marchand pretended that he was sicv, and got leave to return to his room. He got together a lot of paper which he piled in the lavatory and then set a match to it. The flames spread to the wooden interior, and when the alarm was given it was too late to quench the blaze.

Sheriff Refused to Give Up Key and An Attack Soon Followed—Negro Was Put to Death.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 30.—Governor Brown has authorized an order to rush state troops to Cordele, Ga., where it is reported a mob is storming the jail to get Albert Hamilton, a negro, who was identified this morning as the one who attacked the girl there last night.

It is declared the Sheriff refused to give the keys to the jail, and it was assaulted.

The mob, got inside took Hamilton forth and hanged him to a tree. The troops failed to arrive in time.

OPENING OF PANAMA CANAL

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 30.—In an interview here to-day, Sir Donald Mann said:

"It occurs to me that the opening of the Panama Canal will exert a tremendous influence on the development of Western Canada than is generally realized. That a large traffic will flow westward through the gateway to the coast cities is certain. Vancouver will be the port of import for a very considerable portion of the Prairie Provinces. Now it is inevitable that this business will be encouraged by the Trans-continental railways, which will be in a position to handle it, as they are certain to carry enormous quantities of export grain to Vancouver and other points on the coast. I see no reason why the surplus wheat crop of all Alberta, the Peace River district, and at least one-quarter of Saskatchewan should not seek an outlet via the Pacific and the Panama Canal."

MORGANSHUSTER CHEERED

London, Jan. 30.—The Persian Committee, composed of members of the House of Commons and other prominent men, gave a banquet last night in honor of Morgan Shuster, the American ex-Treasurer-General of Persia.

Replying to the accusation in the British papers that he lacked tact, Mr. Shuster declared that he had kept on the most cordial relations with the Russian and British Ministers at Teheran throughout. To the criticisms of his course in presenting Persia's case through the newspapers, he said that he had asked the Persians, "whether they preferred their country slain in a dark alley or that the crime should be committed in a public square," which evoked prolonged cheering.

TO THE FARMERS OF THE WEST RIDING OF PETERBOROUGH

Gentlemen,—To-day, (Jan. 29) Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works in the late Laurier Administration moved in the House of Commons that the Borden government take immediate steps to bring about preferential reciprocal trade with Australasia. He was supported by Mr. Ames (Conservative) of Montreal Centre, and others from populous centres. The government, through Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, promised to bring it on accordingly and to send commissioners to Australasia early in the spring, for that purpose. Australasia exports in vast quantities mutton and beef and poultry, and in some years vast quantities of butter and eggs, and other farm products, at prices less than one-half (delivered here) of the like products of Canadian farmers. Such a treaty, on the proposed list for list basis, would rob the farmer here of this protection and almost ruin him. That is my opinion. But I believe that our farmers should be protected as well as our other manufacturers and I do not propose to discriminate against the farmer and in favor of the manufacturer, unless the farmers wish it. I appeal therefore to the farmers of W. Peterborough to let me know with all speed if they are in favor of preferential reciprocity with Australasia. If so I will vote for it. If they consider it contrary to their interests and will let me know I will vote against it. No time is to be lost.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier supported very strongly the proposition for an Australasian preferential reciprocity treaty.

Yours truly,

J. H. BURNHAM.

EXPELLED THE JESUITS

Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Toronto, addressed an immense audience on Sunday, dealing with the Jesuits. He said that Jesuitism was an evil, although the Order was given one of the holiest of names. Father Vaughan said that it was the only true religion, and it therefore was necessary to combat that statement. Sixty-three countries or states had expelled the Jesuits. The list includes Great Britain, three times. Pope Clement XIX. issued a bull suppressing the Jesuits, which it is stated he read in St. Peter's at two o'clock in the morning, through dread of the members of the order. The bull said that "so terrible were their crimes he would refrain from mentioning them."

While Roman Catholicism was the state church in France, a committee of 35 statesmen, 32 Catholics and three Protestants reported to the government that the Jesuit teachings condoned theft, lying and perjury. That the order was disloyal to the state and corrupting to religion.

The Jesuit Order must not be allowed to get its hands on the throat of the Dominion, continued the speaker. The question might well be asked who was behind the ne temere decree, or that a Catholic, who brought a Roman Catholic priest into a court of law should be excommunicated. For 300 years the Jesuits had sought to throttle civil liberty wherever they could. Canada was menaced, would the young giant succumb?

PETERBORO 6, LINDSAY 4

The Intermediates played at Lindsay last night and won by a score of 6—4. The game throughout was very fast, showed by the closeness of the score.

By winning last night's game the Intermediates are the winners of this district and they will play off with either Cobourg or Oshawa, who are tied in their district.

That the Lindsay septette did not turn the trick as in former years, goes to show that Peterborough has at last got a team worth while, and with the showing already made, they have a good chance for the semi-finals.

Between 500 and 600 rooters accompanied the home team and helped them on to victory.

JESUIT PRIEST REPLIES TO THE REV. C. O. JOHNSTON

Former Resident of Toronto Says It's Ridiculous to Represent Jesuits as Thieves and Murderers.

Montreal, Jan. 30.—[illegible] the Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Toronto, said one of the leading officials of Loyola College to-day. "They can't prove what they say. Let them make any accusations of the kind Rev. Mr. Johnston has put forth against any person down here and they will show how quickly they will land in the courts. Any dealings which we may have with Rev. Mr. Johnston, or any of his ilk, will be through the medium of the law. No Jesuit, priest, nor Catholic layman in good standing would write such letters as Rev. Mr. Johnston says he has received. If we were such thieves and murderers as they paint us we could not hang together for twenty-four hours. We would be cutting each other's throats. We have some knowledge of the teachings of Protestant Sunday Schools and know that their scholars are so imbued with such ideas that the declarations of Rev. Mr. Johnston will be readily believed by them. It is a characteristic of the campaign against the Jesuits that whenever the name of the order is entangled in a scandal the scene is laid in South America or some equally distant part of the world."

CONNAUGHTS CANCEL ALL ENGAGEMENTS FOR MONTH

Death of Duke of Fife Causes the Cancellation of the Montreal Visit and Many Social Events—Prolonged Visit Called Off.

Ottawa, Jan. 30,—The following official bulletin on the period of mourning on account of the death of the Duke of Fife was issued at the Government House at noon.

Owing to the death of the Duke of Fife, His Excellency the Governor-General and Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught, will attend no public functions for one month. The engagement to visit Montreal, is therefore cancelled.

The Duke, accompanied by the Duchess, and Princess Patricia had accepted a large number of engagements that naturally cannot now be carried out. He was to stay from Thursday next to Feb. 15.

The principal events affected include a reception by the Board of Trade, a reception by the Mount Royal Club, a dinner by the members of St. James Club, attendance at the charity ball and the presentation of an address by the Canadian Defence League.

QUEBEC'S CONDOLENCE.

Quebec, Jan. 30. Sir Francis Langelier, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec sent to H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught the following message:

"I pray your Royal Highness to convey to our beloved Majesty, King George, the expression of sincere condolence of my Ministers, the people of the Province of Quebec, and myself on the occasion of the death of the regretted Duke of Fife."

How the Dining Cars are Supplied, etc.

The travelling public seldom or never give a thought as to how or when the dining cars are supplied with everything the season affords. They are often heard to express themselves on the excellence of the different viands, but never give it a thought of how it reaches the table.

The Canadian Pacific have at a considerable expense equipped new supply depots at Vancouver and Winnipeg. The latest models of mechanical refrigeration enable the department to keep in perfect condition the choicest supplies from outside markets, for example, midwinter fruits, vegetables etc.

A refrigerated store-house has been erected at Sicamous Junction in which are gathered at the approach of the winter season the finest fruit and vegetables produced by British Columbia. Two of these are at the present time featured on the menu cards in the West—"Apples from the famous Okanagan Valley" and "British Columbia Championship Potatoes" (which won the $1,000 Championship Cup at the Irrigated Land Show in New York, November, 1911).

The Company has opened bungalows for the accommodation of its dining car employees at lay-over points, furnishing them with sleeping quarters, baths, recreation rooms, etc., and making them at least as comfortable as they would be at home. These facilities ensure the patrons of the Company being served by waiters in first class physical and sanitary condition, and in addition, every dining car employee is required to undergo, periodically, a medical inspection and to surrender a satisfactory certificate.

PUBLIC OPINION

THE DOG NUISANCE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have observed from time to time letters appearing in The Times regarding the number of dirty, useless curs that are permitted to run at large in the streets. Surely it is time there was a dog by-law. Don't you think so, Mr. Editor.

Decency.

"FINE ITALIAN HAND DISAPPEARS."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Church of Rome for centuries, and in every land, has always been credited with being a past master in the art of clothing its designs against the liberties of the masses, in velvet and silk, and only coming out in the open when its schemes were ripe and the time opportune. For ages this policy has been pursued and invariably with success. History can point to no more polished diplomats than those occupying the high places in the Roman Church.

In view of all this and the circumstances surrounding us in Canada today may we not well ask what has become of this "fine Italian hand?" Have the leaders of this Church lost their ancient expertness or have they grown desperate and reckless under adversity? What are they doing in Protestant Canada to-day—stepping between man, wife and family—setting at naught the marriage laws of the land and placing the behests of a foreign potentate above those of the state. And mark you, attempting this in the freest land under the sun to-day and under the only flag the grand old Union Jack—that tolerates them without restrictions. Have not their leaders been kicked out of every country in Europe except Great Britain? They have been banished from all their ancient strong-holds. Even the supreme head of the church—the Pope—is a virtual prisoner in the country in which Romanism had its birth. When in the last ditch, as it were, wouldn't it be thought that common sense, if nothing else, would teach them to at least mind their own business and not attempt to impose on the good nature of the last country in the world open to them. Apart from its deep importance to the nation as a whole, it may be thought by careless [illegible] Peterboro [illegible] would be [illegible] caught in this city—instances can be pointed to where ifrealeable injury is being done through this most damnable "Ne Temere" decree. Is is not high time that this outrageous edict was placed outside the zone of party politics and pronounced upon by the highest tribunal in the Land?

Yours sincerely,

Liberty.

A SUCCESSFUL BANQUET

St. John's Church Association Helo Enjoyable Function.

A very enjoyable banquet was held on Monday evening in the Sunday School Room of St. John's church, given under the auspices of St. Johns Church Association. About 70 guests sat down, the chair being ably filled by Mr. R. J. Devey, who made an ideal chairman.

After a few remarks from the chairman, the "King" was proposed, and which brought forth the national anthem.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, in a few well chosen words, proposed the toast of the ladies, and referred to the splendid work which is being done by them in many ways in connection with the church. Mr. A. H. Stratton, on behalf of the ladies responded in fitting terms.

A general discussion followed on church work, in which Messrs. Devey, Aylmer, Dean, Clinton, Campbell Conway, Kingdon, Stratton, Pitchford, Coleman, Jay, Bell, Jamieson, and Canon Davidson and Rev. Ben Oliel, of Lakefield took part.

Solos by Messrs. Flower, Roberts, and Langley, with Mr. Devey, as accompanist, enlivened the proceedings of the evening, as also did a reading by Mr. Jamieson.

EXPLORERS GAVE YANKEE NAMES TO CANADIAN LAND

Cook and Perry Did Their Best to Americanize Place, Says Capt. Bernier.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—"That Cook and Peary on their respective polar trips had named some Canadian land with American names and that unless something were done "Hail Columbia would be scattered all over the Canadian Arctic map," was the statement made to-day by Captain Bernier, the Canadian explorer. Captain Bernier is still working on his report to the Government, and pending its presentation would say nothing as to the result of his recent trip to the North. But he was nothing loath to decry the Americanization at long distance, of what was really Canadian land.

"Peary had called one particular portion of the land Crocker Land, in honor of one of his sponsors, states Captain Bernier, "although he had never set foot on it. Cook had done the same woth other portions, although he had never come closer than some twenty-five miles to it." Captain Bernier considers that the land should be renamed by proper occupation.

It is understood that the result of Captain Bernier's report as regards to the territory around the Northern and Magnetic Poles will show some radical differences from those of Cook and Peary.

SUPPOSED MURDERER THE ONE MURDERED

Quebec, Jan. 30.—Onofrio Ross, who was supposed to be the murderer of an Italian at Bay St. Paul, and who was being looked for by the police to answer for the crime, happens to be the murdered man. Another man disappeared with Maria Rossi. A few days after their disappearance Rassi had quarrelled with him for paying too much attention to Marie.

SUICIDE COOLLY PLANNED

Donaldsonville, La., Jan. 30.—Made insane by disastrous cane crop losses, Augustin LeBlanc, a sugar planter, 50 years old, committed suicide yesterday, on Souvenir Plantation by drowning.

Binding his ankles with a plough line and tying his wrists securely, LeBlanc, standing on a plank across an old style open sugar kettle used as a water trough for cattle, fell backward into four feet of water. One end of the plough line was attached to a fence and kept the feet up and the head submerged. Le Blanc lost practically everything by a succession of freezing during the recent cold wave.

THE KING AND QUEEN MOURN, FLAGS HALF-MAST

Their Majesties Reached Gibraltar to-day, But Their Program Was Curtailed, Owing to Death of King Edward's Brother-in-law, the Duke of Fife.

Gibraltar, Jan. 30.—King George and Queen Mary arrived here to-day on board the steamer Madina which is bringing them back to England from India where the King and Queen were crowned Emperor and Empress at the great Durbar in Delhi.

The Medina's flag was floating at half-mast as the vessel entered port on account of the death of the Duke of Fife yesterday in Egypt. The program arranged for the reception of their Majesties has been greatly curtailed owing to the royal visitors being in mourning for the King's brother-in-law.

The Spanish fleet lying off Algeciras and the British fleet anchored at Gibraltar saluted the Medina as she entered the harbor.

A Moorish delegation was presented to the King during his stay here.

SPOILS WELCOME HOME.

London, Jan. 30.—The death of the Duke of Fife at Assuan Egypt, from pleurisy and congestion caused quite a shock to the British public. The deepest sympathy is everywhere expressed for the Princess Royal, who accompanied her husband to Egypt.

The Duke's death will cause the curtailment or modification of all projected arrangements at Portsmouth and London for the reception of King George and Queen Mary on their return from India. It is probable that all the festivities will be shorn of military display and State ceremonial.

The court functions in the early spring also will be modified.

WAR AEROPLANES FOR THE BRITISH

The War Office Will Purchase a Large Number of Military Airships

Important plans are pending in connection with British military and naval airmanship. Colonel Seely's speech, in which he said that the Government proposed to make up for lost ground, foreshadowed early developments. It is understood that the War Office is arranging to purchase, almost immediately, a number of military aeroplanes, among them machines of British manufacture. A largely increased air-fleet will be necessary to provide machines for the Air Battalion when strengthened by the carrying out of the recently announced scheme of organizing a corps of 100 skilled airmen.

The Admiralty is now interesting itself in a practical way in airmanship. Another batch of naval officers is to be taught to fly at Eastchurch (Isle of Sheppey). The two Valkyrie machines recently presented to the Navy by Mr. H. Barber are to be used in experiments to gain data regarding the use of hydro-aeroplanes. Constructional experiments to determine the features of an exclusively naval aeroplane are to be carried out by Messrs. Short Brothers in their aircraft factory on the Isle of Sheppey.

Among the aeroplanes shown at the Grand Palais, Paris, is an English model, the Bristol military monoplane, which appears to combine all the qualities to be looked for in a military machine. Its skids are jointed in front so as to reduce the shock of landing on bad ground by means of special springs which project far to the rear so as to act as a brake. Its slip attachment, which will enable the pilot to start without assistance, is also a very attractive feature.

Among the tendencies of construction, apart from the use of metal instead of wood, the increased solidity of landing chassis, and the attempts made by the provision of mica windows and the like to give the pilot and passenger as good a view as possible, one notes the great attempt to avoid head resistance and to protect the airman from the oil of the motor and the weather. The necessary struts and wires are cut down to a minimum, and the body, including the engines and the airman's seat, is entirely enclosed in metal, wood and fabric. In some cases, notably in monoplanes shown by the Paulhan-Tatin firm, the result is an object which looks like an exaggerated torpedo with wings. Even the [illegible] as to enable either airman to take charge of the machine.

The attempt made in the Paulhan biplane which was acquired by the War Office, to obtain flexibility of wing, is repeated this year, though to a less extent, by the biplane shown by the German Albatroswerke, which, in addition to a wooden chassis of unusual construction, has very flexible edges to its birdlike wings. The fact that there are only fifteen biplanes to thirty-nine monoplanes in the show indicates the predominant position for military purposes at present held by the monoplane, but there is on view more than one biplane which possesses important merits from the military point of view. Among the latter machines, besides the Albatros, may be mentioned the Savary with its two big tractor screws and the Sloan, which hollows in its lower plane the curving of a bird's wings, and has big ailerons which are said to give it an exceptional sliding angle. Ailerons (movable pencils attached to the edge of the wings), by the way, seem nearly extinct. Even the biplane makers who used to try them in all sorts of shapes appear to have dropped them this year and to rely on warping instead. It is noticeable, too, that the 50-h.p. Gnome engine is found powerful enough for a very large proportion of the machines. There are, however, several other well-tried motors on view. Several firms show the impressive engine-rooms of airships, and there is one complete airship, the Astra.

LOST THE TENNIS CUP

Americans Grieve Over the Victory of New Zealanders

Boston is in mourning. The Transcript announces that "the defeat of the American team for the Davis lawn tennis cup in New Zealand is the most surprising as well as the most overwhelming defeat that the American team has ever suffered. It would be difficult to get together three better tennis players in the United States than Larned, Wright, and McLoughlin, and the opinion given out by Mr. Larned on his way to Australia—namely, that if this team did not bring back the cup it would be difficult to find a team in the future that would—was certainly prophetic." That is just the sort of thing the English papers were wont to say when first the Americans and colonials began to beat the old country in cricket, and running, and rowing, and other outdoor sports. It is the remark that comes naturally to the middle-aged sport when the young fellows begin to teach him that he is out of training. New England is no longer young England. By-and-bye it will sit beside John Bull on the old sports' bench and watch the boys on its own West, and Canada, and Australia, and South Africa at play.

THE LEGS STRUCK.

It was the first night of the pantomime, and the stage-manager was rushing round excitedly.

The "Grand, Stupendous Scene of a Palace in India" was getting ready—but where was the elephant?

"Hurry up, there!" yelled the stage-manager to the property-master buck up with that elephant! What's keeping it?"

"Well, sir," said the property-master aggrievedly, "it's the back legs, sir. 'E's found out as 'ow the front legs get thruppence a night more than 'e does, an' 'e refuses t 'o on till 'e is given the same."

COST OF RUNNING AN AUTOMOBILE

A Writer Says a Car, 8-Horse Power Can Be Run a Year For, at Most, $800

J. Prioleau writing in Answers on "Motoring for the Many" says in part: "A good, light car of about 6 or 8 horse-power, costing between $750 and $1,250, will carry you and a friend swiftly and comfortably about your business or pleasure for some $200 a year running expenses. One ardent motorist I know manages to drive his 6 horse-power two-seater fifty or sixty miles a week, and to take in on a fortnight's tour at holiday time, for $200 a year. What man has done man can do, no doubt; but it is safer to reckon on your upkeep expenses for a similar car at $300 a year. To arrive at this result, common-sense rules must, of course, be strictly observed, and the first of these is to get a suitable car. Make up your mind, as nearly as you can, as to how many people you will be likely to carry as a general rule, how often, and how far. The man who wishes to motor economically must dissociate himself from all the old ideas of what motoring means. He may buy an excellent little car for $900 or $1,000 which will give him faithful service ofr a number of years if he uses it properly, and does not expect it to do the work of a $5,000 car.

The worst enemy is high speed, and the one which tempts the new-comer most to sin. It devours tyres, oil, and petrol with insatiable appetite, and shortens the life of every part of the car. As to the choice, then, of a first car. Three rules I would have the novice bear in mind: (1) Two-seated cars are more economical than four-seated cars. (2) Moderate-paced cars are cheaper than fast ones. (3) Four-cylindered cars are, or should be, no more trouble to run than single or twin-cylindered cars, and they are infinitely pleasanter to own.

There are, of course, many more points to remember—a very important one being that it always pays in the end to give a few dollars more for a car by a famous maker than to try and save them by buying one from an inferior factory.

Many people are shy of buying a little car, because they have been told that they "don't really go," or because they remember being taken out in the old days in some clattering mass of mystery which rattled along the roads at a painful fifteen miles an hour. Continuing the writer thinks that a little 8 horse-power two-seated could be taken 3,000 miles at a cost of about $150. He figures the consumption of petrol at 100 gallons and oil, 15 gallons, puts $50 aside for taxes and licenses. He adds: Let it be clearly understood that motoring to be cheap, must be motoring without a chauffeur. The man to whom these opinions are addressed must learn to do everything for himself—even, if necessary, to washing and cleaning. He will want a small two-seater, painted, for choice, what is known as battleship-grey—that is, unpolished.

"By keeping a pot of quick-drying paint of the same shade at hand scratches and other blemishes can be made good in an evening, and the little car should be—at the acme of tidiness. A little two-seater, with a minimum of brasswork to keep clean—and the less you have the better the car looks, in my opinion—ought to be made presentable in half an hour with practice.

"Never overload a small car. If it is built to carry two, let two be its maximum. Stop, start, and take your corners as gently as you know how. More damage is done to tyres by half a dozen hard breakings—with one wheel scraping a furrow in the road, and the same number of cuttings of corners "fine and fast"—than by a month's ordinary wear. And tyres are your biggest item. Never forget that."

GOOD PLAYERS IN CUBA

The Barrier Against Some of Them Is That They Are Negroes

The scouts who have invaded Cuba in search for new material have come back with glowing reports. Several players have been secured from there. Two Cuban players worked in the Cincinnati line-up last season. There is some great talent on the island, but unfortunately some of the very best players will not be able to get into the game here unless they are whitewashed, on account of the barrier against negroes in organised ball. McGraw recently said that he would give $50,000 for Mendez if the boy could turn white. Mendez, who is really a wonderful pitcher, never met a decisive defeat until recently when Mathewson beat him in Havana.

"RICH MAN'S SPORT"

Easterners Pay Two Million a Year For Golf

Yacht racing and the turf have ceased being the "rich man's sport." Statistics gathered to-day show that fully $2,000,000 is now spent on golf every summer in the metropolitan district, which embraces parts of New York, Jersey City and Connecticut.

The number of golfers is also increasing rapidly. Four years ago it was estimated that there were 100,000 players in the metropolitan district; to-day it is figured that there are at least 125,000. The expansion is believed to be an irresistible sweep toward outdoor sports.

WHAT A POSTMAN WALKS

An official walk of 200,000 miles has been accomplished by Mr. Leonard Wavell, a rural postman of Sandown, Isle of Wight, just retired from the service. For the past eighteen years he has daily walked from Sandown to Newchurch, via Apse Heath and Borthwood, and back, a distance of about twenty miles. During the previous thirteen years he covered the same district from Newport, the total distance covered being about the same. Thus for thirty-one years he has walked twenty-miles daily.

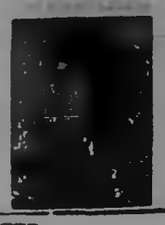
FROM A SOUTH WINDOW IN CANADA

"Love, Laughter and Life"



DON'T TAKE IT FOR GRANTED

When husband makes efforts to break himself of that tiresome habit of unpunctuality at meals, when your daughter at last undertakes some distasteful duty she has hitherto shirked, don't take these things "for granted," but show them that their attempts or successes are appreciated.

In every stratum of society there is the same craving for that very human thing which some give so grudgingly, while others withhold it altogether. Although we love a bit of praise ourselves, we often forget that others love it too.

"Life is such a thankless task," said a "weary-of-well-doing" friend the other day.

More shame to us all if it is, says I. Praise and encouragement are like sunshine on the way, and it costs us nothing to give a cheery word in passing. How can one of us choose to withhold a single beam when the world so badly needs every ray of light?

SMART LONG COAT

This is one of the latest imported models, and also one of the smartest. Cuffs and inlaid collar are of large plaid velvet, and the closing is made with three huge buttons a trifle below the waist line; the stitching of all seams is exceedingly heavy.

GOLD AND SILVER JEWELLERY.

This kind of jewellery is easily cleaned by dipping for an instant in a cup of water containing one teaspoonful of ammonia. The same treatment is suitable for cheap imitation diamonds.

SEPARATING THE YOLKS.

When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs break them into a funnel over a glass or cup, when the whites will pass through, and the yolks will remain in the funnel.

HANDY DOOR MAT

Scraper, Cleaner and Wiper Are All Combined in One

Particular housewives usually see that their front steps are equipped with three articles to enable visitors to enter the house with clean shoes. At the bottom of the steps is the scraper, on the top step is a metal mat, and in the vestibule is a rough, fibrous mat for wiping the feet. An Illinois man has combined these three things in one door mat. His invention is in two parts, hinged together. One of these parts is a metal mat of the kind familiar to everybody, and on one end of this the scraper is mounted. Hinged to this is a cocoa mat. The visitor, on a muddy day, can thus scrape off the worst of the mud on the scraper, scratch the rest loose on the metal mat, and wipe his shoes perfectly clean on the cocoa mat. The dirt that collects under the metal portion can be swept away in an instant by raising this part on its hinges.

No Excuse for Muddy Shoes

Accompanying a plain skirt of dark blue cloth is a chic little jacket of unusual design, with shaped fronts heavily stitched, and a rever collar bordered with a broad band of pointed gray fox, corresponding to cuff bands. This is a particularly pretty model for a young girl.

CANADIAN WOMEN

Lady Grey Says They Are More Independent Than in England.

Lady Grey, wife of the late Governor-General of Canada, told a representative of the London Telegraph:—"The women of Canada are more independent than those at home, and they have less of the shyness which is characteristic of the English woman. That is naturally so, for the children are brought up differently. From the time when they go to school they manage their own lives. They arrange how they shall spend their time and their money. They have their own parties and amusements independently of their parents. The young girl, for instance, will have a luncheon party without her mother being present at all. . . . . As soon as she has finished school, if her parents can in any way afford it, she is sent to Europe—to England, France, or Germany—in order to study music and languages. . . . . The Canadian girl has every opportunity for reading, however, for there are public libraries in every town. There are women's colleges, too, and the University of Toronto. A very good education is given at the Agricultural College at St. Ann's, Bellevue, about twenty-eight miles from Montreal. The girls are taught domestic science—cookery, laundrywork, housekeeping—and everything to do with agriculture—dairying, poultry farming, bee-keeping, and fruit-growing.

GOOD CHEERY FIRE.

An easy method to get a good cheery fire quickly, and without a failure, is to lay a couple of newspapers on the floor, take the sticks you are about to use, roll them up inside the paper like a neat parcel, stand them up in the grate with the ends of the sticks towards the chimney draught, apply lighted match, and then put on the coal, and a good fire will be the result in less than a quarter of an hour.

SERVING CABBAGE.

Clean and wash a large cabbage in the usual way. Cook it until tender, strain, and drain it quite dry. Then chop fine, sprinkle it with grated nutmeg, dot over with small bits of butter, and put into oven to get quite hot. Serve on hot dish. True, this is only cabbage, but cooked in this way it is a delightful dish.

SLEEP FOR CHILDREN.

Children who are studying at school require from nine to ten hours' sleep every night. Even the older children should be asleep by half-past nine, whilst boys and girls of nine or ten should establish the habit of getting to sleep by half-past eight, so that they may be up at half-past six next morning. This prevents any rush and gives them time for morning duties.

PAINTER'S SECRET

Sign Painted Thirty Years Ago Still As Good As New

The living worth of good work is always recognized, even in small things. Sign-painters do not usually achieve wealth or fame, yet it is said that a fortune awaits the man who painted a station sign at Harper's Ferry, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shortly after the completion of the line at that point. The Western Society of Engineers has the sign on exhibition at their rooms.

The engineers are trying to ascertain who mixed the paint and applied it to the sign, which was placed in position at the Harper's Ferry station about thirty years ago. The summer's heat and winter's storms have in no way dimmed the lustre of the paint used to make the words "Harper's Ferry." They stand out as boldly as the day they were formed by the artist's brush.

The wood around the letters has been worn about one-sixteenth of an inch by sand beaten against it by fierce winds, but the letters have withstood the elements.

It is asserted that no paint manufactured nowadays is equal in durability to that which was applied to the old sign, and if the person who mixed it is living and will take advantage of the secret he possesses as to its composition it is said he can, by engaging in the paint-manufacturing business, soon accumulate wealth.

EXPENSIVE ALBUM

$200,000 For An Autograph Album With 853 Signatures of World Renowned Celebrities and Their Remarks.

Seven years ago Councillor Louis Barth, of Arad, in Hungary, commenced to collect autographs, and today can boast of possessing one of the finest collections in the world. Indeed, he recently refused an offer of no less than $200,000 for his album, which contains the names of 853 world-renowned celebrities, whose remarks have been written in forty-three languages. Already ninety-three of them are dead.

Recently he visited Marlborough House to obtain the signature of Queen Alexandra, and at Her Majesty's request left his precious volume there for twenty-four hours in order that she might examine at leisure its wonderful array of signatures of Kings, Queens, Emperors, Ministers, scientists, artists, and writers. Herr Barth has gone all over the world to add to his book, and has spent between $45,000 and $50,000 in travelling expenses. The Emperor Francis Joseph, who favoured him with an autograph, told him he was the only person, not a Minister, who had ever received his signature.

"I was at Biarritz one year," says Herr Barth, "at the same time as King Edward. I showed him my volume, and, in giving me his signature, he said: 'Your book is an extraordinary treasure. It has only one defect — it is not mine.'"

Herr Barth is preparing a history of how his autographs have been obtained. This book will contain in facsimile every autograph he possesses. It is to be issued in an edition of 100,000 copies, and the proceeds of its sale will be devoted to international charity.

LEAN HOCKEY SEASON IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Is Competitive Interest Needed to Improve Play? The London Chronicle Asks

This seems likely to be a "lean" season in English hockey. Or is it a further tilt in the decline of the game some believe to have taken place during the last year or two?

It is a little strange that hockey has not won for itself a higher place amongst winter sports. Its great growth in popularity is certain—it is computed that 10,000 or more players are engaged in more or less serious matches every Saturday afternoon; but having regard to the fact that it is now played at the public schools and has drained the resources of many amateur football clubs the quality of the play is disappointing and has not made a commensurate advance in point of merit with its spread all over the country.

It is an ill-deserved reflection on the game that the authorities at Oxford have not yet seen fit to award "Blues" to the members of the 'Varsity team, and yet this decision—which amounts to a refusal to rank hockey as a first-class sport—is significant. At the same time, the withholding of Blues is assigned as a contributing cause for the poor eleven Oxford appears to have this season. That, again if it be true, is a significant fact, which may suggest a reason for the statement that hockey today is no better played than, say, ten years ago. For it indicates pretty plainly that as compared the game is not thought worth the playing without some reward greater than the honor of representing the University.

Unhappy state of affairs. For a recent game the secretary of a county association had to approach as many as 3 players before he could get an eleven together. Even for the international contests there is a want of keenness. There are often several withdrawals from the chosen side.

Hockey is well managed according to the views of those responsible for its welfare despite the little squabbles which are for ever cropping up with regard to the rules. It does not need any stimulant, we are told, in the shape of cup competitions and leagues though for some queer reason an exception is made with regard to the Army. But it does need something to bring about a general improvement in the play, a greater interest and more inducement for teams to excel. A match between, say, Hampstead and Beckenham may satisfy all these requirements, but games between lower grade clubs are all too casual and wanting in seriousness for the play to be really good.

It is the experience in all branches of sport that competitive interest is the surest way of bringing the best out of a man, but so far as hockey is concerned the first principle of the creed is "There shall be no leagues or prizes," and it is repeated fiercely whenever the old question of competition is raised. But even the Amateur Football Association has its leagues and cup competitions, and a still more striking instance is the introduction of an athletic competition at Cambridge, which has brought about a wonderful revival in this old-time branch of 'Varsity sport. But what is good for A.F.A. football, Cambridge athletics and almost all other amateur sports would, for some fancied reason that has never been made clear, be harmful to hockey. The sentimentalist in sport is an intolerant person of strong prejudices, and those responsible for the management of the game may yet be forced to take a wider view of what is good for hockey.—London Chronicle.

SALE OF SIGNORINETTA

Lord Rosebery Purchases the Derby Winner of 1908

Signorinetta, the famous 100 to 1 Derby winner of 1908, and one of the only three of her sex to secure both that race and the Oaks, has been disposed of privately to Lord Rosebery, and is at the Durdans stud. Chevalier Ginistrelli submitted his favorite to auction at the December sales, when she failed to reach her reserve, and was withdrawn at $37,200. It was rumored—though nothing transpired on the point—that $50,000 was the reserve figure. The Chevalier is now free to gratify his desire to return to Italy, which he announced he should do in the event of the "apple of his eye" changing hands.

COSTLY PLATE

Dinner Services that are Valued in the Hundreds of Thousands—Priceless China

Senator W. A. Clark, the Montana "[illegible]" is said to be the proudest man in all America, for he is rejoicing in the possession of "the costliest, most ornate, and the largest silver and gold dinner-service in the world." And a wonderful service it is, with its full table equipment for twenty-four diners, each piece made of the purest silver, lined with sheet-gold of great thickness, and the whole service costing $120,000.

But the proud Senator is surely wrong in boasting that his service is the largest and costliest in the world. It is far surpassed in value and splendor by the famous Emperor's service at Windsor Castle, which is used only for crowned heads. Some of the epergnes of this marvellous service weigh [illegible] 1 hundredweight, and even a strong man can carry no more than three of its dishes or eight of its plates at a time. It is of silver, richly gilt, and its value must run into six figures.

At Windsor, too, there are five tons of plate, some of it of solid gold, and of a value far exceeding $5,000,000. There is a [illegible] fountain of silver, which weighs 2,350 ounces, and a nautilus cup by Cellini, with shell of pearl and [illegible] of gold and silver, which alone is said to be worth many thousands of dollars.

In America Mr. Pierpont Morgan's plate is valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Indeed, the plate of the Tudor and Stuart days alone was purchased for six figures in Berlin. Mr. Morgan's collection includes two silver table-ornaments valued at $500,000 each. One represents Diana seated on a stag, with jewelled headdress and trappings; the other is an iridescent nautilus, borne on a gold and silver snail, and on it is perched a Nubian boy in black enamel.

It is not long, too, since a Piccadilly, London, firm completed an order for silver and china to the value of $850,000, designed as the present of a millionaire to an Eastern potentate. The silver included a table weighing 6,000 ounces, a tray eight feet in diameter, and a service, all in solid gold, for a thousand persons—a thousand silver dinner-plates, a thousand smaller plates, a thousand spoons and forks, a thousand silver wine-glasses, and so on.

In English noble houses there are many services of solid gold and silver almost, if not quite, as valuable as Senator Clark's vaunted purchase. And the china is of almost fabulous value. The Duke of Argyll has refused $20,000 for his white and gold Cauldron china; Lord Hillingdon's superb hand-painted Worcester dinner-service for twenty-four persons is valued at $6,000; and Lord Dudley has a Coalport game-service worth $6,700, while Lord Rothschild's Dresden and Sevres ware is almost priceless.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S DESK

Is a Token of Goodwill Between Great Britain and the United States

The desk used at the White House by the President of the United States is interesting in itself, apart from its connection with the ruler of a nation, for it is a token of the [illegible] United States. Although occupying so prominent a place in the official residence of the chosen governor, it is not of American manufacture.

It was fashioned in England, and was a present from Queen Victoria to a former President. It was made from the timbers of H.M.S. Resolute, which was sent in search of Sir John Franklin in 1852. The ship was caught in the ice and had to be abandoned. It was not destined to go to pieces in frozen waters, however. An American whaler discovered and extricated it in 1855, and it was subsequently purchased and sent to Her Majesty by the President and the people of the United States as a token of goodwill and friendship.

In an English dockyard the Resolute was at last broken up, and from her timbers a desk was made, which was sent by the Queen "as a memorial of the courtesy and loving kindness which dictated the offer of the gift of the Resolute."

At this desk, itself a representative of the kindly feeling of both nations, the President does the greater part of his writing.

BIBLICAL IGNORANCE

Members of Parliament Who Have Made Amusing Errors

Some interesting stories are told of members of the British House of Commons who were lacking in Biblical knowledge. For instance, in a debate a few years ago Mr. George Wyndham referred to David and the fifty fighting men he had in a cave. "Not David—Daniel," interjected Sir Edward Grey. "I am much obliged to my right honorable friend," continued Mr. Wyndham; "of course I meant Daniel," as the House resounded with laughter and shouts of "Obadiah!"

A little later the same evening Sir Edward again aired his Biblical knowledge by speaking of the feeding of the prophets on bread and water, when Sir William Evans Gordon convulsed everybody by suggesting that the prophetic menu consisted of locusts and wild honey.

Certainly a few lessons on the Bible would have been useful to a good many statesmen, past and present. Mr. Gladstone once committed the atrocity of putting Daniel in the fiery furnace, and made the Psalmist responsible for the words, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb." John Bright saddled St. Paul with the well-known aphorism, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness"; and Lord John Russell made a touching reference to Pharaoh and his host struggling in the engulfing waters of the Jordan.

In Paris, during 1910, 30,955 marriages took place, while 1,926 divorces were granted.

Examinations Earlier.

The various departmental examinations to be held in the Collegiate Institute at the close of this term will take place at an earlier date, than last year, so as to avoid the extreme heat. This year there will be a new examination, which will be known as the Lower School examination for entrance into the Normal Schools and into the Faculties of Education. This examination will be tried by those pupils entering the middle school, who intend to take the teachers' course. The following is the time-table for 1912 examinations:

Lower Schools examinations begin June 11, for entrance into Normal School or Faculty of Education.

Faculty Entrance, (upper school) begins June 12th.

Matriculation examinations begins June 13th.

IN WRONG

Bored Man (at party):—"Beastly slow here! I'm going. Which way do you go home?"

Son of the House—"I'm at home now."

AN HOUR'S OVERTIME

"I will you claim one hour's overtime, Bill," said the employer. "How's that? I thought no one worked overtime last week."

Bill passed a horny hand across his mouth.

"Quite right," he replied, "One hour's my due."

The master regarded him suspiciously.

"Come, when was it?" he inquired.

"Last Thursday," responded Bill. "I was sent up to your own house to help shake the carpets."

"Yes, I remember that distinctly," cut in the boss. "But you got off at six sharp."

"Ah, that's true as far as it goes," assented the man. "But your missus give me half a meat pie to take home and that there hour is for bringing the dish back!"

A NARROW ESCAPE

Actor:—"The people in this town don't understand acting. I'll be hanged if I ever act here again!"

Stage Manager:—"You will, my boy. It was all I could do to keep the audience from lynching you to-night."

HOME-GROWN

He was a seedy, sad, sick-looking individual. His coat was gritty and grimy, and his countenance showed a close and unwashed friendship with Mother Earth. The large boquet in his buttonhole, despite its size and bright color, did not relieve his deplorable condition. It only seemed to accentuate it.

Yet he was nothing worse than a neighbor who had dropped in to pay Jones a call.

"How are you?" he said, extending an ungloved paw. "Nice day, ain't it? Everything's bloomin'. What do you think of my buttonhole?"

"Charming!" replied Jones politely.

"Yes, ain't it?" said its owner proudly. "Now, where d'you suppose I got it—eh?"

Jones bestowed upon the flower and the dirty coat-lapel on which it was pinned a thoughtful scrutiny.

"I give it up," he answered at last. "Did it grow there?"

HOW IT HAPPENED

"Cook has only broken one plate to-day."

"Hooray! How did it happen?"

"It was the last one in the house."

SPENT HIS FORTUNE

"Jinks would have spent his fortune on himself in a year if it hadn't been for his wife."

"How did she stop him?"

"Spent it on herself."

WORKS WITH HIS GLASS

"I defy anyone," roared the teetotal lecturer, "to name a man who works better with his glass than without it."

"I know one," said a quiet man in the front row.

"Who is that?"

"A glazier."

Couldn't Get Strong

SEEMED TO HAVE LOST ALL AMBITION, WAS PALE AND ANAEMIC.

Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. La Pierre, wife of a well-known resident of Labemene, "yet I never could get strong like other women. I ate well enough, but somehow blood rich and red I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping, but it kept me tired all the time. Mrs. Lochance, my neighbor, looked well — she told me her health had been made by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I only thought of pills as a physic, but now I know that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are more, for they quickened my stomach, liver and bowels—made me stouter and stronger, gave me such color in my cheeks as I never had before. They do good to parts in ways I need not mention in this letter, but I sincerely believe Dr. Hamilton's Pills should be used at regular intervals by every woman—that's why I write this letter."

No medicine invigorates a woman like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada

ENGLAND'S SOCIAL REFORM.

Whatever may be said of Chancellor Lloyd George's radical political propaganda, which shows forth in such social revolutionary proposals as his national insurance scheme, there is no question that the burning enthusiasm of a social reformer is driving the Chancellor of the Exchequer along to the end that English life be re-created on an entirely new basis. His address before a Cardiff conference of clergymen and lay workers, met to discuss the relation of the church to social questions, reveals the mind and purpose of the Welsh statesman in his social reform legislative programme, [illegible] was not present, he [illegible] political programme but to help to rouse a spirit that will compel every party in its turn to deal with the social evils of the nation, to create an atmosphere in which it will be impossible for anybody to remain a ruler of the realm unless he deals with these social problems. Which by the way is an admirable statement of what the church's attitude should be toward practical political questions.

Then the Chancellor went on to emphasize the necessity for the community as a community dealing with slum problems, housing conditions, poverty and wretchedness in its many forms. These problems of magnitude could not be left to be dealt with by charity any more than the Army and Navy could be run by voluntary subscriptions. "If you depended for the defence of our shores," he said, "upon more eloquent appeals to the patriotism and the sympathy and the humanity of the people, you could not build or maintain a navy of Chinese junos, in this country,"—an illustration that went home. So in the same way Mr. Lloyd George reasoned that the state must look after the wretched conditions of the unfortunate, and he laid down the creed that it was incumbent upon those who had been blessed by Providence to make sacrifice for others, and that it was the business of the churches to insist upon the facts being known, upon every man realising his own responsibility, upon every man realizing that he has got to sacrifice in order to help. The Chancellor's concluding illustration was effective. He said:—

"I wonder what would happen if during this Christmas those who have been sitting comfortably enjoying their Christmas dinner found at the height of the festival an invisible hand sliding a panel in the wall and opening a window and showing them another household, of men, women, and children like themselves, no worse, some of them—probably better—in all the essentials of character, huddled shivering in wretched dens. I tell you what would happen. Movement would be frozen in every heart, the conscience of the nation would be roused in a way it has never been roused before, the demand would rise from every quarter in this country that our rulers should do something to rid the land of this pestilence of wretchedness. It is the business of the church to open that window, to keep it open, to keep our eyes steadfast until that spectacle of wretchedness, woe and despair shall have been transmuted into one of happiness and of hope."

A Home Recipe For Wrinkled Shaggy Skin

(From Beauty and Health)

The famous saxolite lotion which is recommended by beauty specialists for the removal of wrinkles and for reducing distended pores, can be made at home. Ask your druggist for saxolite in powdered form, 1 oz., and ¼ pint witch hazel. Dissolve the powder in the witch hazel and bathe the face, neck and hands in the solution. Results are remarkable, and instantaneous. The skin tightens, and this naturally reduces the wrinkles, as well as creases or folds about the neck, cheeks or hands. The tissue and muscle beneath the skin also become firmer and more solid.

One feels much refreshed and exhilarated after using this truly wonderful preparation. Its continued use for only a short time will make one look five or ten years younger.

INTERNATIONAL BOXING

Bombardier Wells Beats Storbeck at the London Club

At the National Sporting Club, London, England, Bombardier Wells, the English heavyweight champion, met Fred Storbeck, the South African heavyweight, and defeated him in the eleventh round, the stakes and purse money amounting to more than $5,000. A marked contrast was presented by the men when they entered the ring. Wells bearing himself in his usual upright position, and apparently towering above his opponent by reason of Storbeck adopting the style of Will Papke—that is to say, Storbeck would walk up to Wells, with his Storbeck's body at right angles to his legs. By this means Storbeck made it very difficult for so tall a man as Wells to land a punch with anything like severity.

Wells's Clever Tactics

It was much like Wells trying to punch an eighteen-year-old boy. Under these tactics seemed to appear to loud-voiced onlookers, they were very wise, for it was obvious in the first round that Storbeck could not have lived with Wells if the contest had been boxed out on orthodox lines.

Storbeck, from his stooping position slung up all sorts of blows that looked ridiculous when Wells, agile as a welterweight, withdrew out of distance and there could be no two-spirit [illegible] to the reach when Wells's straight hits sent Storbeck's head back with short blows on the nose and mouth. When Storbeck stood upright Wells hit the South African every time that he tore English chan[illegible] punched.

No one realized this more completely than Storbeck himself, who, with splendid daring, dropped his head down and bored in on Wells's fists. People looked and wondered why Wells did not hit harder, but those who wondered failed to realize that the closer Storbeck's head got to Wells the less severe was the blow. By pushing his head forward Storbeck converted the blows of Wells into pushes rather than punches.

Storbeck Severely Punished

The number of times that Wells hit Storbeck was almost uncountable, but the Englishman could not hit with sufficient force to be completely effective until the ninth round. That ninth round was the keynote to the contest. By that time Wells had discovered that by jab-jab-jabbing with the left he could force Storbeck to drop guard, leaving an opening for a severe, stinging upper-cut. Thus, when Storbeck's low-lying head had been prodded by Wells's left three times, the South African thought a move would be wise. When the move came, and Storbeck's head was lifted, Wells sent a ripping, tearing right upper-cut to the face.

This move was repeated on five occasions in the ninth round, and those upper-cuts were the settling of the bout. At the end of that round Storbeck was very weary, for he had tired himself by punching very frequently at Wells's and landing on nothing, and he was battered with the painful [illegible] of Wells's left-hand [illegible]

While people shouted to Wells to hit the Englishman kept his head and did the right thing, for at the end of the tenth round he tried the left prods and the right upper-cut, with the result that Storbeck was sent to the floor and took nine seconds' rest, and was much relieved to hear the bell go at the end of that time.

In the eleventh Wells repeated his winning tactics, and Storbeck, one of the most plucky men who ever boxed was forced to take the count. Even when the timekeeper declared the contest over Storbeck got on to his feet, and looked as if he would like to continue, but he was helped back into his seat, and had to submit to a superior boxer.

Wells's victory was received with great enthusiasm.

A LOCKED NEST

One usually thinks of a bird's nest as an open, cup-shaped contrivance, or a mere platform of bare twigs, or a cushion of grass and moss; but there are many forms of nest almost completely covered in. Perhaps the most extraordinary of all nests is that of the hornbill, which is a complete fortress in itself. As a rule, the hornbills build their nests in holes in tree-trunks. As soon as the eggs are laid and the mother bird commences to sit, the male hornbill locks his whole family securely in the home by plastering up the front of the nest with a thick hard wall of mud, leaving only a very small opening through which food may be passed. Thus he protects them from danger.

FATHER'S SIZE

"Dearest!" he cried.

"Darling!" she murmured.

"Do you know," he said, as she coyly surrendered her little hand, "that yours are the smallest hands I have ever kissed—I mean, seen" And what dear little feet you have!"

"Do you think so?" she answered demurely.

"Rather! Just compare them with my great, clumsy hoofs. I take 'tens'—"

"And I take 'twelves,' my boy!" shouted an angry voice behind them.

The lover seized a convenient vine and slid down from the balcony into the darkness below.

KING TALKED OF A DUEL

But George II. and Frederick of Prussia Didn't Fight

The personal enmity which existed between George II. and Frederick, King of Prussia, reached at one time to such a height that, as Baron Byfield was informed on good authority, the monarchs conceived the very singular design of gratifying it in a duel.

King George made a choice of Brigadier Sutton for his second, and the King of Prussia of Colonel Derschau. The Territory of Hildersheim was picked on for the meeting. His Britannic Majesty was then at Hanover, and his Prussian Majesty had come as far as Salzdahl, near Brunswick. Baron Brock, the Prussian Minister at London, and lately dismissed from the court in a very abrupt manner, having repaired to the King, his master, at Salzdahl, found him in such a violent passion that he did not think it advisable directly to oppose his design, but to gain time feigned to approve of the extraordinary combat which his Majesty mediated, and he even offered to carry the challenge.

The challenge was not sent. Ministers on both sides gained time, the choler of both parties evaporated, and the following year the quarrel was made up.—The Percey Anecdotes.

VALUE OF ATHLETICS

Hiram Gets Advice From His Son As to How to Retain Health

Hiram, in old age, wonders why he can't do as much as he used to do. Hiram's son being away from home, he writes to him for information as to how he may regain his health. His son, being a good athlete and knowing the value of physical culture, thinks that it would be beneficial to the old man to take morning exercise, and so writes, but his imagination runs away with him at times, as follows:—

"Dear Dad,—In order for you to bring back your health and be as good a man as you used to be, you should become an athlete and go through [illegible] and power [illegible] exercises. The first thing when you [illegible] you should give a leap in the air, hit your snout against the ceiling, and clap your heels lightly nine times together before you touch the floor. By doing this once over it will give your blood a good circulation and strengthen your nerves. It will also prepare you for the next performance which you are about to undergo.

"Give a high kick and slap your toes against the ceiling, and at the same time fall to the floor upon your head thrice. This exercise will strengthen the neck-bone, harden your order. After this you should hoist the lid and go out on the roof and take deep breathing exercises. Do the high comeflop. Walk off the roof as though you were walking through the air, but take good care that you fall flat to the ground on your stomach. This will strengthen your wind, develop your breast, also make you see stars. Then you should walk in and get ready for breakfast, and put up a notorious growl about the victuals and all that's on the table. This exercise will prepare you for the difficult ups and downs of this world. All of these exercises should be undergone not less than once a day for a week, and if you are alive when your week is up, you will be a healthy and able-bodied man."

BEST BASEBALL PLAYERS

Head of the Chicago White Sox Names Greatest Players of All Times

President Charles A. Comiskey, of the White Sox, has selected the men who he considers the twenty greatest ballplayers of the past or present. The list includes Charlie Ferguson, the old Philadelphia pitcher and Ed. Collins, of the Athletics. Comiskey's selections are as follows: Buck Ewing, first; Mike Kelly, second, and "Pop" Anson, third, Charley eFrguson, Fred Pfeffer, Eddie Collins, Hans Wagner, John Glasscock, Harry Lord Ty Cobb, Fred Clarke, Willie Keeler, Tom McCarthy, of the old Boston team; Lajoie, Charlie Radbourne, Providence pitcher; Bobby Carruthers, St. Louis Browns; Christy Mathewson, Clarke Griffith, and Ed. Walsh. Of Ferguson, he says:

"He played with the Philadelphia team, and had it on Anson in that while he was always considered a great first baseman, he could play any position in the game. He was a rattling good pitcher, could bat like a house afire, and was one of the speediest runners of his day. It was a pity that he died in the prime of life, long before his active playing days were over."

A doctor predicts that we shall in time become a one-toed race. Those who suffer from corns will be glad to hear this.

RELENTLESS FATE

Investor:—"With one exception everything I have put money into has gone up in the air."

Friend:—"That so? And what was the exception?"

Investor:—"Why, an airship."

PRECEDENT ESTABLISHED

The stout lady waddled down the high road, turned down a side street and stopped at a gate.

"Can I go through this gate to the cross little boy?" she asked of a lad standing near.

"P'raps so, mum," replied the little boy hesitatingly; "I see'd a load of 'ay go through it this morning."

FOR SWEET SIXTEEN

Not to be outdone by "big sister," maids of 16 and thereabouts are wearing chic tailor coat suits, elaborately trimmed with narrow bands of fur put on in the manner illustrated above. Suits of this type may be bought "ready to wear" at quite reasonable prices.

THE HELMET SHAPE

Black Velvet Costumes and Black Velvet Hats With White Feathers are in Order.

We are growing somewhat tired of the velvet and fur caps that cover the ears and the back of the head, even when they are supplemented by large mitre-shaped piece of polychrome embroidery. They no longer suit the tastes of to-day. It has become too luxurious and less "petite femme." Our hats must now have a more imposing character, and the milliners have invented the helmet shape that is now taking the place of all other hats. One of the prettiest models is in black velvet, or seal, drawn tightly over the crown, with the narrow, upturned brim, perfectly symmetrical, bordered with a couple of inches of ermine. A black or white aigrette trims the hat at the back. For a large hat, to be worn on dressy occasions, the favorite is a feather falling on the side. Black velvet costumes, black hats with white feathers, and black shiny shoes with white antelope gaiters is the order of the day.

TEACHING RESPONSIBILITY

The yielding, pliant type of child requires to be taught self-reliance. A little responsibility is just what such a girl requires. She should be given pocket-money to lay out for herself, encouraged to decide what she will do with her time, and asked to form her own opinion as to what subjects she should take up.

Life is always difficult for the people who waver in their opinions, who are not quite sure what they should do or how they should act in the everyday things of life. The child who is too dependent upon others at school becomes the adult who does not know how to do anything, who cannot decide to buy a carpet without consulting two or three people beforehand. A mother should realise the danger of allowing such characteristics to go unchecked during the school age.

WASTE NOT WANT NOT SOUP.

Get from your butcher 1 lb. of ends and trimmings of meat and some bones; place in a saucepan, cover well with water. Put in any raw and cooked vegetables you have, celery stalks, rinds and bones of bacon, scraps of bread and toast, seasoning of herbs, salt, and pepper, scraps of poultry or veal, some rice and minced parsley. Simmer gently for three hours, removing the fat occasionally. Strain through a colander, and serve very hot. Poach two or three eggs, and add them after the soup is in the tureen.

Satchets With Violet Perfume.

Mix equal quantities of powdered orrieroot and ground cloves with a little musk and attar of roses, the whole moistened with a little alcohol, and then rolled and kneaded into a paste. It will in time get quite stiff. Break the mass up finely and pack into satchets.

CLEAN WINDOWS.

A great many people do not realise that the insides of windows actually catch more dirt than the outsides. Try rubbing them inside every day with a clean cloth and you will find that they will not require washing nearly so often.

INVOLUNTARY REST

A young lady entered a crowded car with a pair of skates hung over her arm. An elderly gentleman arose to give her his seat.

"Thank you, very much, sir," she said, "but I've been skating all afternoon, and I'm tired of sitting down."

A FLY ON YOUR NOSE

The Seedy One: — "Say, guv'nor, there's a fly on your nose."

Old Gent: — "What the dickens has that to do with you?"

The Seedy One: — "Nothin', nothin'; only I thought it would get its wings scorched."

BLACK AND BLUE

"Your husband is not looking well to-night, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking?"

"It isn't that so much, it is his originality. Why, that man is struck by so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises."

TROUBLES OF STATE

When Cabinet Ministers Would Like to Change Their Callings—Some of the Difficulties

One is apt to think that a Cabinet Minister's lot is one to be envied, says an English writer.

He has a big salary and immense political and social influence. But there are other points to be taken into consideration. The strain of public speaking, for instance, brought Mr. Lloyd George a bad attack of "clergyman's throat." And there are other ways in which a statesman may find life has its disadvantages.

At one time the Irish Secretary was set upon by a band of Suffragettes. He was kicked on the shin, and had his hat knocked off. In trying to get away he twisted his knee, having to go to bed for a week. And he limped for some time.

A statesman may run still more serious risks. In England attempts to assassinate Cabinet Ministers are practically unknown. But it was only the luck of a bad aim that saved the French Prime Minister recently, when a man with a grievance fired at him from the public gallery in the Chamber of Deputies. M. Briand escaped, but a colleague was seriously wounded.

A few years ago an Austrian Cabinet minister had a narrow escape from death by poison. A man, whose identity was never discovered, sent him a letter fastened with jagged paper-fasteners in such a way that it was almost impossible to open it without getting scratched. It was a private secretary opened it, and the poison in the scratch caused an illness that lasted for weeks.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer some months ago received a letter containing a white powder. But as the writer declared straightforwardly that it was arsenic, and added instructions that half of it was to be given to the Prime Minister, and half of the rest to the Home Secretary, the Chancellor took the letter as a practical joke, and showed it to his friends. The powder he did not take in any way.

The "trade risks" of the Cabinet Minister have considerably increased since the growth of the Suffragette movement. Everyone remembers how the Home Secretary was, though surrounded by plain-clothes men, slashed across the face with a whip by a woman on a Bristol railway-station. He would probably have been marked for life if his hat had not broken the blow. And it is not long since a Suffragette climbed into a taxicab which contained the Chancellor of the Exchequer, argued with him for a little, and then publicly shook him. So if the days are over when an Irish Secretary had to carry a loaded revolver when in Dublin, fresh risks have arisen.

Another unpleasant penalty of high political position is that one is a target for scandal and attempted blackmail. Mr. Lloyd George some time ago defended his personal reputation by winning a libel action against a newspaper. Some years ago, too, a German attempted to blackmail Mr. Balfour to the tune of $50,000 by representing himself to be the President of the Black Hand Society.

Lord Haldane is too big to be shaken by Suffragettes, but he, like Mr. Churchill and Mr. Asquith, has had his health seriously affected by the strain of all-night sittings. And he has, like all Cabinet Ministers nowadays, to forego the privacy that is the right of plain John Smith. A Cabinet Minister cannot go for a stroll without having detectives watch his every movement. Some time ago Mr. Asquith played a game of golf surrounded by no fewer than six plain-clothes men.

After all, the position of plain John Smith has its points.

BLUNDERS ON THE WIRE

Telegraphic Mistakes that Have Caused Much Annoyance

"Yes," said the telegraphic operator, "there is no doubt that the almost universal adoption of the Morse system of telegraphy has considerably diminished the number of mistakes made in the transmission of telegrams, but the telegraph is still a long way from being an unmitigated boon and blessing. Many of the symbols are so perilously alike that errors are sure to occur from time to time.

"For instance, 'bad' and 'dead' are composed of dots and dashes, the only difference being that in 'dead' there is a very slight space or pause that does not occur in 'bad.' The difference is so slight, however, that one has to be listening very attentively to hear it. Now, it is a most unfortunate fact that many people are very fond of using the phrase 'he is bad' for 'he is ill,' so there are quite a number of telegrams which should read, say, 'Father is bad,' that get altered in transmission to 'Father is dead.'

"Then, again, many people curtail their messages to such an extent as to invite errors. For instance, a certain lady telegraphed to a registry office for servants, 'Send them both thanks,' by which she meant 'Thank you, send both of them' (the 'both' referring to two servants). The telegram reached its destination as 'Send them both back.' This error was due to the fact that 'th' and 'b' are not unlike in the Morse alphabet, which, together with the fact that telegraphists totally ignore punctuation, fully explains the error."

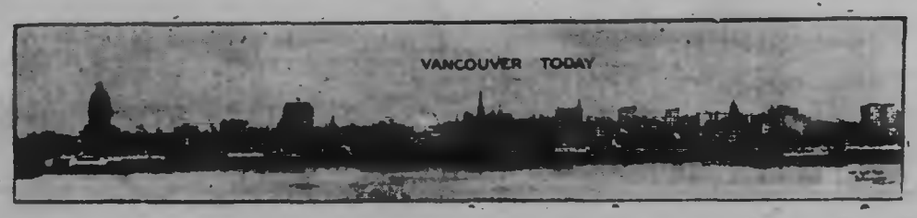
100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.



FIRST ISSUE OF SHARES

ATTRACTIVE DRESS BODICE

Crepe de chine or any of the soft materials makes up beautifully in a bodice of this sort. Yoke and stock are of all-over lace and the buttons are velvet-covered, to match the girdle, which is trimmed with pointed satin bands. Despite the fact that one sees numerous trimmed skirts, most of the best makers advise plain skirts, and after all they are more stylish and stay in fashion longer longer than those with decorations.

ELECTRIC HEATER

It took three Michigan men to design the electric heater here shown. But when they were through they had an apparatus that can be put up in any room of the house in a few minutes. A circular stand with four legs forms the bottom part. On this rests a steel plate of horseshoe shape with two projections on the ends upon which the electric wires are plugged to provide the current. The third part of the apparatus consists of a cylindrical chamber with a top and closed at the bottom, that forms the heater proper. This chamber fits on the stand, and a centre rod runs through the centre of the stand and is clamped in place, holding the affair together. This device can be used not only to take the chill off the bath room or any other room before the heater is started in the cellar, or it can be used as a stove to heat food that does not require a very hot fire.

OYSTER PATTIES.

Open a quart of oysters, strain the liquor into a basin, and add to it half a pint of milk and two well-beaten eggs; stir in by degrees flour enough to make a smooth, but rather thin, batter; when perfectly free from crimps put the oysters in it. Have some beef dripping or butter made hot in a very clean frying-pan, and season with a little salt, and when it is boiling drop in the batter with a large spoon, putting one or more oysters in each spoonful. Hold the pan over a gentle fire until one side of the batter is a delicate brown, turn each fritter separately, and when both sides are done place them on a hot dish, and serve.

FOR THE STOVE.

Always keep a small whisk broom for cleaning the gas-stove. It removes all the dirt and dust from the cracks and crevices, and makes it much easier to keep clean. The whisk should be thoroughly washed every day in warm soapy water.

When choosing new wallpaper for a room remember that large patterns and dark colors will make the room appear smaller, while a plain or striped paper, if a light color, will make the room appear much larger than it really is.

If the pockets in suits of clothes are made of chamois leather the life of them will be twice as long as when made in the ordinary way, more especially when keys have to be carried in them.

TARNISHED BRASS.

To prevent brass from tarnishing clean it in the usual way, and then rub on a little methylated spirit. Next apply some powdered chalk, rubbing it on with a dry rag. This preserves the brass, and makes it nice and bright.

OLYMPIC STADIUM

The Swedish Committee Has Officially Described in the Structure

The Stadium is described by the officials of the Swedish committee as follows:—The building, which will be of a thoroughly permanent character, is erected in hand-made purple brick and granite. The plan shows a perfect amphitheatre, all under cover, at the foot of a hill which forms the northern side of the complex. Inside this permanent building, extra rows of temporary seats will be arranged for use during the games. The Stadium will then hold about 25,000 spectators. It contains a running track, four laps to the mile, and a grass football ground which, in the winter time, will be transformed into a skating rink.

The entrances to the athletes' special dressing rooms, to which long corridors lead, are situated at the foot of the hill.

The gangs and arcades are valued in the old mediaeval Swedish style. On the brick walls there are blocks of granite inlaid, in which a series of Swedish heroes will be sculptured and the gates to the entrance stairs will likewise be decorated by eighteen heathen gods and goddesses.

Two massive brick towers will stand at the side of the Eastern and Western gates, and behind them two side buildings, each containing a hall and a number of administration rooms. At the centre of the northern arcade, which connects the side buildings, is the gate through which all the competitors will march down to the ground on the opening day.

In front of the southern elliptical arcade, outside the Stadium proper but within the enclosure, is a fine garden of oaks and birches, with paths for the spectators. The paths run the whole way round the building. At the foot of the two big towers, two granite water fountains are to be arranged. From the balconies of the towers, trumpet signals for the various races will be given. Above the Southern gateway, which forms the main entrance for the spectators and beside which two octagonal brick towers will be erected, is the band stand, which will be used for the distribution of the prizes. The flags, to be hoisted in honor of the winners, will be placed on the top of the northern entrance. The Royal box is situated alongside the finishing straight, under the golden yellow baldachin, and the press representatives will have their seats at the finishing post.

The whole of the building will be completed during 1911.

The money towards the expenses has been granted by the Swedish Government, who will ultimately become the owner of the building and grounds.

The site is situated close to the fashionable part of Stockholm.

WILL BE CHAMPION

That Is What Marcel Moreau Says of Carpentier

Marcel Moreau, the French middleweight champion, who came here under the management of Mr. Millage, has trained Carpentier, and he asserts that his protege will, in time, be the world's champion heavyweight. This assertion coming from Moreau should also carry weight, for Moreau has a great record in his own country. He has fought 45 battles and won 35 of them, on a knockout. He is said to be clever, and yet he rushes and mixes it whenever the opportunity offers, just like Battling Nelson. Although uncarred, Moreau looks like a fighter. His face is the face of the fighter, with high cheek bones, heavy jaw, quick watchful eye and a general air of quiet determination and aggressiveness. When stripped you see a man built for fighting. His legs are light below the knee, strong but light above. His waist is strong and muscular, his shoulders big and broad, and the muscles of his arms, back and shoulders unusually heavy in proportion. His muscles are not knotty, but large and smooth. He does not carry an ounce of superfluous flesh.

McFARLAND'S GOOD RECORD

In the past year Packey McFarland engaged in fourteen battles winning all but one, and that resulted in a draw. Five of the bouts ended in knockouts, his principal victims being Billy Ryan of Syracuse and Jack Goodman of New York. He won the decision in twenty rounds over Tommy Murphy on Thanksgiving Day, and also outpointed Young Erne, who defeated Mike Gibbons. The clever little English boxer, Owen Moran, was also beaten by the stockyard champion, as McFarland is dubbed in Chicago.

"OVER THE STICKS"

The Romance of the Steeplechase From Back As Far As 1752

The sport of steeplechasing is by no means of such old standing as its present popularity would lead one to believe. Compared with the game on the flat, which first began to flourish in Charles II.'s time, racing "over the sticks" is quite a juvenile.

Though it can be traced back so far as 1752, when a match was run in Ireland between Mr. O'Callaghan and Mr. Edmund Blake over a four-and-a half-mile course, "from the Church of Buttevant to the spire of the St. Leger Church," it was not until the early 'thirties that any attempt was made at organizing meetings. The origin of the word "steeplechase," in fact, was that competitors used to set out to race across country, generally on "point-to-please" lines, to the steeple of some distant church.

Liverpool, where the great steeplechase of the year takes place generally in March, was appropriately enough "the first home of organized steeplechasing." It was on March 29th, February 29th, 1836, that the first officially-recorded race of the kind took place there, twice round a two-mile course.

Well Won, Sir!

Three years later the first Grand National Steeplechase was run, and "gentlemen riders" was the rule. Until 1866 there was no governing body of the steeplechase world, the Jockey Club refusing to recognize the sport. However, in the autumn of that year the Grand National Hunt Committee was formed; but it was dissolved in 1883, when a new one came into being, under the same name. This body included several members of the Jockey Club.

Among the National Hunt rules there is one to the effect that, if a rider is thrown, he can remount and continue the race, provided he does so in the same enclosure—i.e., pair of fences or hurdles—in which he was unhorsed. Otherwise, he must take his mount back before continuing the race.

In this connecting an amusing scene was witnessed in a steeplechase at Croydon. An amateur jockey came down heavily at the water-jump, and his mount trotted away. The rider, however, got up and ran after him, succeeding at last in catching hold of his tail. He ran for some yards in this rather laughable fashion, then remounted his horse, and won the race.

What Jockeys Earn

Robert I'Anson, the trainer, used to tell a story of Mr. Ede, an amateur who rode under the name of "Edwards." Mr. Ede, was, it is believed, the only amateur who ever beat George Fordham, which he did on one occasion, after a very hard finish.

He happened to be riding in the first cross-country race in which I'Anson—then quite a youngster—ever took part, and throughout the race the amateur guided and helped the lad, showing him how and where to take hill fences, to such effect that young I'Anson found himself in perfect safety, and actually beat his generous instructor by a short head.

Despite the far greater dangers incurred by steeplechase jockeys, they do not earn nearly as much as their brethern on the flat. Whereas the latter will often earn a Cabinet Minister's salary, the jockey "over the sticks" in many cases has to wait about on the course for a casual mount. His reward is generally $25 for a winner, and $15 for riding into a place.

CARPENTIER THE "WHITE HOPE"

Jack Johnson Will Probably Have to Look to His Laurels

Charles Millage, a Frenchman, says that Carpentier is the coming "White Hope." If young Carpentier continues to grow as a champion and mows down everything while growing, then Jack Johnson may well look to his laurels. The English welterweight champion was the latest victim of Carpentier, and Harry Lewis' measure has also been taken by this phenom. Carpentier is now 18 years old and has been fighting since he discarded his baby clothes. He has held the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight championships and has successfully defended them. His ring boxing began two years ago when he was a skinny little chap in knickerbockers, with thin arms and legs and narrow chest. Bue Carpentier is growing fast. When he fought Young Josephs he had a hard struggle to make the weight and when the fight was over he then and there decided to let the welterweight class go. He became a middleweight and it is hard for him to make the 158 pounds now. He is growing at the rate of an inch a month in height and is developing wonderfully. When he has attained his full growth he will be over six feet tall and will weigh over 200 pounds. He is now the fastest and cleverest fighter in all Europe. If he retains his speed and forcefulness, young Carpentier is truly a "white hope."

Six Men a Side

According to reports from the eastern hockey centres the new six-men hockey teams are not proving such a big success as was anticipated. It got a few trials in Winnipeg when men were injured, and did not look good to the local fans, and from this distance it looks as if the N.H.A. will have to come back to the old rule of seven men a side.—Winnipeg Free Press.

LAUGHING JACKASS

Many years ago, before steamboats were so plentiful as they are now, a certain Wellington Smith paid a visit to Australia in order to hunt the kangaroo.

When he woke up the first morning he stood at the window, which looked out upon the garden, and, as his custom was, went solemnly through his breathing exercises.

Suddenly, just as he was performing the feat of touching his toes, he nearly fell over himself with surprise and anger, for out of the shadow of the trees there came a deep, rollicking laugh. "Ha! ha! ha! ha! What a joke! ha! ha! You do look a sight!" the laugh seemed to say.

"Ha! ha!" it went on, and Wellington Smith got quite purple with fury. It had never dawned on him before that a stout man trying to touch his toes must be a rather funny sight.

"Australian manners," he muttered. "I'll teach 'em to make fun of me!"

And now a second laugh had joined the first, and the whole house seemed to ring with the mocking, teasing sounds. "Ha! ha!" roared the first voice; "Ha! ha!" roared the second, and Smith cut short his exercises and dressed as quickly as he could. After breakfast he mentioned the matter, very stiffly, to his host; but what was his surprise when the Australian, after looking at him for a moment with open mouth, burst into a great laugh himself—laughed and laughed until he had to hold his sides.

"Come out," he said, taking his astonished guest by the arm, "and I will show you the fellow whose sense of humor has been tickled so much."

They went out into the garden, and there sitting solemnly on a branch of a tall she-oak was a big bird with a huge bill, almost as big as its body.

"There's your jester," said the squatter. "It was the laughing jackass you heard. He does love a joke."

"That!" said Smith.

His surprised face caused the Australian to burst into another laugh, and lo, "Ha! ha!" the bird joined in as if enjoying his victim's amusement.

"I suppose you thought a jackass was a kind of donkey?" said the squatter. "So did I until I came out to Australia. Isn't it wonderful to find a bird that can laugh like that? Those fellows can see a joke as well as you or I."

"Nonsense!" said Smith, feeling a bit nettled. "It's just the noise they make. It's not a real laugh."

"Oh, isn't it!" said the squatter. "Very funny thing, then, they always seem to laugh at the right moment. You wait till you know them as well as I do."

But Wellington Smith was not content with knowing the bird in his native wilds. Nothing would satisfy him but that he must capture one to take home to England.

Hunting the kangaroo quite paled beside the excitement of catching a jackass, and at last his wish came true.

By means of a special cage containing a bait that was quite too tempting for Mr. Jackass, Wellington Smith became the proud possessor of the bird that had dared to laugh at him.

But once inside the cage there was no laughter from the jackass.

"What did I tell you?" said the squatter. "He doesn't see the joke of losing his liberty."

"Of course he will pine a bit," said Smith, "but he will get used to it."

So he went back to England, taking the jackass with him, intending to show his prize to all his friends.

But that jackass was a failure from the show point of view. That annoying bird kept up an obstinate silence the whole time, and nobody would believe he really could laugh just like a man.

Wellington Smith spent all his spare time in front of the cage "ha-haing" with all his might, but the jackass only winked solemnly out of one eye at him, and did not even smile.

At last, one day when Smith was showing the bird to a party of visitors, he lost his temper.

"Laugh, you wretch! Laugh! Laugh! Why don't you laugh, you wretch!" he cried, and struck the cage door with his fist.

The catch slipped, the door flew open, and in a trice out came Master Jackass.

Out he flew through the open window into the garden, and perched himself on the topmost branch of the tallest tree in the place.

Out came Wellington Smith, out came his friends, and out came John the Gardener, with cage and ladder.

The gardener's son joined in the chase, and climbed the tree like a squirrel, but when he was halfway up the jackass had skipped to another.

Hot and perspiring, angry and excited, the group below tried to entice him back to the cage.

But Mr. Jackass was one of those beings who profit by experience.

There was to be no more cage for him!

Then as he looked down upon the scene, and saw all the preparations that were being made to catch him again, the jackass, for the first time since he had left Australia, burst into a rollicking guffaw. He laughed and laughed and laughed till the little crowd looking up at him could not help themselves. They were forced to join in, and anyone passing that garden would have seen the strange sight of several respectable members of society rolling on the grass, holding their sides, unable to stop themselves from laughing, while foremost in the merriment was the erring jackass.

Even Wellington Smith was so triumphant that he had at last convinced his friends that the bird could laugh, he almost forgot his anger.

Still laughing, the Jackass gaily flew away, and his parting guffaw echoed through the trees.

Wellington Smith never saw him again, and he admitted at last that the jackass certainly did seem to understand a joke, and that in this case at least the joke was all on his side.

COSTLY SPITE

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway navvy was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $875,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by side-lines. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment at Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the scions of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A collar-stud, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince. And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of Hesse.

CALGARY FOOTBALL.

The energy of Calgary is becoming almost phenomenal. The desire of their football team to play for the Dominion honors seems quite natural although a little late to be perfectly reasonable. But the activity in professional baseball circles is remarkable, considering that spring is so far away. It is reported that the manager of the Calgary Broncos is signing up players right and left, one of the "finds" being a youth of nineteen named Brunetine, who, says a Calgary writer, "has all the earmarks of a veteran."

BASEBALL IN CHINA

They have a baseball season in China as well as a revolution, and the ball-players finished their job first. The teams were recruited in Shanghai and last season the league consisted of four clubs. Next year, it is to be doubled in size. According to reports from Shanghai, baseball is making great headway in China — and why should it not, where there are so many fans?

A NEW CLAIMANT

Danny McKetrick, clever manager of Joe Jeanette, claims the world's championship, basing his stand on the statement of Jack Johnson that he is through with the ring. Joe should share the honor with Langford and McVey, with Johnson out of the way, but the champion has not retired and the chances are he will be seen in action again before another six months passes. In the meantime it might be well for Jeanette to settle the question of supremacy with Langford and McVey.

CHINESE CRISIS ACUTE.

China's fate is in the balance. Reactionism has won a temporary victory. The decision not to abdicate has been cunningly timed with reference to the demand of foreign creditors for settlement. Let disorder go on, is the word, and famine increase, outside intervention must come. Now outside intervention is the worst thing that could happen. It would mean imposing on the country a system which the majority might not approve, and which would in any case be unsatisfactory, seeing that China should work out her salvation unaided. Possibly the powers, whose only interest is to establish some kind of orderly administration, would decide to prop a regime which has given abundant proof of unfitness.

Yuan Shi Kai has not been a free agent; his life is now in danger. Those who have judged him harshly will now perhaps qualify their condemnations. It looks as if the issue might be decided in the streets of Pekin. It is perhaps well that there should be no further need of dissimulation. If Yuan prevails he will be free to co-operate with Sun Yat Sen. If he does it will be proof of his good faith. There must be some understanding between those two men.

Since he has come recently so prominently before the public, Dr. Sun's course and attitude have been in agreement with his early professions. They have confirmed the good impression which capable and close observers had formed of the man. It is no longer possible to question his disinterestedness or his sagacity. If the faith which many have in Yuan is justified by events China will be found to have two strong men who will save her yet.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY OF BANK

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 29.—The Royal Bank of Canada branch at the corner of Main street and Seventeenth avenue, was literally cleaned out of all its cash by two robbers at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and Ledger-keeper Harrison was knocked unconscious for resisting the hold-up. The amount of loot secured by the robbers is unknown because A. A. Stocco, manager of the branch, refused to make a statement. It is estimated, however, that between $1,000 and $5,000 was taken. The two men unlocked the back door and made their exit that way.

So far as can be learned no one saw the men enter the bank or saw them leave, but the door at the back of the building is always kept locked and when the clerks recovered from their shock it was found that the door was open and there were the footprints of two men in the lane behind. Later it was reported that the men had turned down the lane, and made their way to Sixteenth avenue, down which street they had turned towards the east. A little boy stated to the detectives on the case that about fifteen minutes after the bank is supposed to have been held up he saw two men running down Sixteenth avenue.

As soon as the robbers had left the bank the two men who had been shut up in the vault hurried out and gave the alarm. Harrison was still lying on the floor where the robbers had strewn him down, and he soon revived and was taken to a nearby pharmacy where a clerk gave him a stimulant which completely restored him. He was suffering presumably as much from shock as from anything else, as when he revived no marks except a slight lump on the head were found upon him.

Invited to Buffalo.

Rev. Canon Davidson, who conducted noon-day Lenten services in St. Louis, Mo., a couple of years ago, has received an invitation to conduct similar services in Buffalo during the week beginning March 19th. The services are under the joint auspices of all the Protestant Episcopal churches of Buffalo.

Vote on Church Union.

The question of Church Union is now before the Presbyterian and Methodist churches of the city. On Sunday, Rev. Mr. Henderson of the Charlotte street church, took up and discussed from the pulpit the question of Church Union, on which the people of the church are called upon to vote. In St Paul's church, the matter will be presented to the congregation on Sunday next, by Rev. Mr. Pogue, and a vote will be taken later.

OUR NEW STORY.

The Times has secured the right to publish the thrilling romance, entitled "The Cable-man", the opening chapter of which will begin on Saturday next, Feb. 3rd. This splendid story is written by Weatherby Chesney, which is sufficient to mark it as first-class. Do not miss it.

MOUJIK WEDDING FEAST

Peasants Give Themselves Up to the Enjoyments of the Occasion

When the day's work is done the Russian moujik's recreations are of the simplest. Perhaps he dances, or plays the concertina, or sings some melancholy air. But when a wedding has to be celebrated, and the priest has duly united the couple, the peasants give themselves up to the enjoyments of the occasion.

The writer well remembers peeping into the brightly-lit rooms of a tiny two-roomed log-cabin where such a revel was in progress. The evening was a hot one. In one room, so small that only four couples could with difficulty wheel about, dancing was in progress. The perspiring couples had made up their minds to enjoy themselves. There was a kind of determined-to-see-it-through look on their faces, and evidently they had great staying powers (says a writer in Chambers' Journal"). In the same room, closely packed and lining the walls, were onlookers waiting till a couple should drop out to take their place in the dance.

The second apartment was laid out with refreshments. A side-table groaned with all kinds of dishes dear to the peasant palate. One knife, one table napkin, one fork, did service for the party; but some scorned even these aids, and picked up here a sardine, there a hunch of melon, or tore at a hard sausage.

One tall man was pointed out as the stationmaster of a tiny wayside station near by. He was conspicuous as being better groomed and less savage in appearance than his fellows, and one heard afterwards that the seductive charms of a wedding feast made him forget on that evening his duty as signalman. A freight train waits two hours before a signal at danger, and then—for the signalman is quaffing vodka and dancing at the wedding—the train proceeds. The driver reports at the next town.

Result: Two months afterwards the stationmaster, for neglect of duty in his capacity of signalman, is degraded to a charge at a smaller station.

Japanese Workman Has Carved Greatest Piece of Wood in the World

One of the most marvellous workmen in the world is Hananuma Masakichi, of Tokio, Japan, who has carved a figure in wood so like himself that when the two are placed side by side it is said to be almost impossible to tell which lives and breathes and which does not.

By several connoisseurs in art this wooden figure has been pronounced the most perfect and human image of man ever made. Masakichi has faithfully reproduced every scar, vein and wrinkle to be seen on his own body. The figure is composed of 2,000 pieces of wood, dovetailed and jointed with such wonderful skill that no seams can be detected.

Tiny holes were drilled for the reception of hairs, and the wooden figure has glass eyes and eyelashes in which no dissimilarity to Masakichi's own can be detected.

The Japanese artist posed between two mirrors while modelling this figure, and for some time after its completion he posed frequently beside it, to the confusion of spectators, who were often entirely at a loss as to which was the artist. The figure stands with a little mask in one hand and an instrument for carving in the other; the life-like eyes are apparently gazing at the mask, and the face wears a look of intense absorption.

CURT K. OF K.

From what I have seen of Kitchener I am not at all surprised that there is little anxiety for his company at the War Office. He detests circumlocution, and his criticism is apt to be rather withering. Personally, he cares nothing for what is said of him. "I know a man on the staff of a paper which criticised him rather unsparingly not long ago who called up him and asked for a criticism."

"Sir," said K. of K., looking him with a steely stare, "your editor has said that I'm a fool. My opinion of my critic cannot. Therefore [illegible] ly, and he must [illegible] of us to think it well. Good day to you!"

Before he could collect himself for a reply, my friend, who is a keen Territorial, found himself gently but firmly piloted to the door.

"Whew!" he ejaculated, as the front door slammed behind him, "I shouldn't like to be in his regiment!"

FROM CARPENTER TO EDITOR

A striking illustration of the versatility of modern man is furnished by the career of Mr. Ramsay Colles. Mr. Colles began life as a carpenter's apprentice, and among the first things he made when he became proficient was a coffin. This he fitted with shelves and drawers, and kept standing in his room at Dublin as a cupboard. Then, in turn, he became manager of a bank, a timber importer, managing director of a cycle company, then newspaper founder and proprietor. Ultimately he became editor of a popular London journal, and devoted much of his time to writing books and editing a series of poetical works.

CHEESE OVER 100 YEARS OLD

In the Alpine regions of the Swiss cantons of Vaud and Valais cheese-makers will keep their products for years. They assert that cheese improves with age. At Les Ormonts, in the canton of Vaud, it is customary to make special cheeses for certain family feasts. They are tagged with explanatory labels, and eaten several years later, at other feasts, or even at funerals. Often such cheeses are bequeathed from one generation to another as family souvenirs. At Les Ormonts, in a concealed shelter, there was discovered a cheese dating from 1785. It was as hard as a rock, and had to be cut with a saw. It is reported to have tasted "good."

Out of Danger.

The many friends of Ald. Graham, and family will be pleased to learn that his son, Mr. Walter Graham, who has been seriously ill in Calgary hospital, has taken a turn for the better, and is regarded as out of danger, by the medical men of the hospital. Ald. Graham and Mrs. Walter Graham left for Calgary yesterday.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10.00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls by urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 487 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as comprising in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent or scanty passage of urine.
3—Smarting or burning sensation in passing.
4—Brick dust or sediment in the urine.
5—Pain in the bladder.
6—Gas or pains in the stomach.
7—Kidneys sore to the touch, or dull aching pain.
8—Puffy or rheumatic pains in any part of the body.
9—Feeling of weakness.
10—Specks before the eyes.
11—Sediment in the urine after standing for a few hours.
12—Pain in the head.
13—Pain in the small of the back.
14—Pain in the region of the kidneys.
15—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
16—Pain or soreness in the bowels.
17—A desire to urinate frequently.

RACING IN AUSTRALIA

A New Zealand trainer, just returned from Australia, said that racing in the Commonwealth was booming. As harder to win than they used to be regards the horses, where there was one good one a few years ago there were now 50, and races were much harder to win than they used to be. He expressed the opinion that the general standard among the racehorses in Australia was higher than in New Zealand, because for one good horse that could be taken over there from the Dominion there were scores to be found in Australia.

CURLING IN SWITZERLAND

Curling is now one of the strong attractions offered to winter visitors to Switzerland. The three old curling clubs—Davos, St. Moritz and Grindelwald—had a practical monopoly of the game for a score of years after their foundation, almost a generation ago. But there are now some dozens of new centres in the field, says a Swiss correspondent, and every fresh resort as a matter of course adds a curling rink and a full complement of stones to its other attractions. Every season at the international bonspiel a special party of players, mostly from Scotland, assembles, and holds high festival. In some of these tournaments over 100 players have taken part.

BOXERS NOT WANTED

At the last meeting of the Clones Urban Council one member told another that he had "legs" long enough for an ass, and the member so alluded to responded that he was willing to meet the other "anywhere, with gloves or without them." After this interchange of courtesies an application was read, amid laughter, for the use of the town hall for a boxing contest. Mr. Murphy:—"There is no necessity for importing fighters for a pugilistic display. Anything that is to be done in that line we will do it ourselves. (Laughter.) Mr. Knight:—"We had better get a pair of boxing gloves for use here."

THE FEES INCREASED

Examination Charges Have Gone Up A Good Notch.

Principal Kenner of the Collegiate Institute has received a circular from the Department of Education at Toronto, announcing a new schedule of examination fees.

Heretofore there has been no charge for the entrance examination, but commencing this year an assessment of $1 will be levied on each pupil trying the examination.

The Senior High School entrance, the examination for admittance to the High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, taken by pupils who have taken several years at a continuation school, will now be $5. The fees for all other examinations save that of entrance to the Normal Schools have also been boosted.

A comparative table of the old and new fixed fees for the examination is:

High school entrance...	$1.00
Junior matriculation..	3.00	5.00
Partial matriculation.	3.00	2.00
Honor or scholarship matriculation	10.00	5.00
Entrance Nor. school	5.00	5.00
Entrance Pub. of Edu.	3.00	5.00
(Part 1 or 2)	5.00	3.00

The increase in the fees is for the purpose of preventing candidates unprepared for their examinations trying them for the mere sake of trying.

An Interesting Address.

Mr. H. B. Cowan of Farm and Dairy, gave an address before Knox Church Men's Brotherhood, last night on "The Causes of Poverty." The address was an excellent one, being both interesting and instructive.

After 27 years of service it is thought by many who worship at St. Andrew's Church that the organ is about worn out. A committee has been appointed to secure information regarding the cost of a new organ, as well as to report upon the old one.

Concert in Otonabee.

A very successful social evening was held in the Foresters' Hall, Zion, Otonabee, last night, when a good programme of vocal and instrumental music was presented. Quite a number drove down and enjoyed the entertainment.

A Correction.

In our issue of yesterday we stated that James Hattrey and Alfred Stevens were fined $10 each or 20 days in gaol at the Police Court for fighting on the public street, and were taken to jail. This is incorrect, as both fines were paid into court at the time.

Hunter Street Bridge.

The City Engineer has been instructed to prepare an estimate of the proposed new Hunter street bridge, and will do so in the near future. It is proposed to follow the present level. In the meantime Mayor Bradburn is endeavoring to secure government aid to the undertaking.

Canadian Club.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnstone, who was to address the Canadian Club on Thursday, the 1st February, is unable to be present and the meeting is therefore cancelled. On Thursday, February 8th, the Club will have as its guest, Mr. J. L. Englehart, Chairman of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway.

A Chimney Blaze.

A blazing chimney gave the fire brigade a run yesterday morning. The overheated stovepipes had set fire to the draperies, window curtains, table covers, etc. By the aid of chemical fire extinguishers, the flames were subdued without the necessity of using the hose, little damage being done.

Lindsay's Slippery Walk.

Lindsay Warder: The Warder was informed by Chief Chilton this morning that on account of the slippery condition of the walks on Kent street that he deems it advisable to leave a few inches of snow thereon. Many accidents and serious falls have taken place of late through the anxiety of the shopkeeper to live within the law. Those fears are now dispelled and the boy who juggles the coal and feeds the office cat can give the snow shovel the icy mit until further orders.

Similar to Peterborough.

Berlin is having similar trouble in regard to pure ice as we are having in Peterborough. That town's only available source of ice supply has been cut off by the Board of Health, acting on instructions from Chief Health Officer McCullough, of the Provincial Board of Health. The Victoria Park lake was condemned as a source of ice supply. The Provincial Health Officer directed the confiscation of ice which has been harvested by A. C. Quickfall since it has been condemned. The report submitted to the local board says the ice is "unfit for human consumption and cooling purposes." At present this leaves the town in the grip of an ice famine. It is probable, however, that a supply will be received from Lake Simcoe.

Tweed Electric Light Co. Sells.

The first of January witnessed the demise of the Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., controlled by the Messrs. Kiswack Bros., which has furnished light to the village for the past number of years, says the Tweed Advocate. The transfer of the plant to The Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., Limited, took place this week, and the new company will assume ownership from the first of the year. It now transpires that the Electric Power Co. of Toronto, have the controlling interest and that new developments to take place to the system in the spring will be very advantageous to Tweed. We understand it is the new company's intention to connect with the Seymour power line at the sub-station at Sulphide which will make accessible any amount of electric power.

YOU CAN'T CURE CATARRH BY SWALLOWING DRUGS

COUGH SYRUP, TABLETS AND SPRAYS SICKEN THE STOMACH BUT DON'T REACH THE GERMS OF CATARRH—HENCE THEIR FAILURE TO HELP.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

Catarrhozone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies, such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets, and sedative powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral and drowsy narcotics so commonly found in liquid cough and catarrhal remedies.

Couldn't Breathe — "Catarrhozone" Cured.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes [illegible] Bridgetown, N.S. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. All reliable dealers or the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Lindsay's Slippery Walk.

Lindsay Warder: The Warder was informed by Chief Chilton this morning that on account of the slippery condition of the walks on Kent street that he deems it advisable to leave a few inches of snow thereon. Many accidents and serious falls have taken place of late through the anxiety of the shopkeeper to live within the law. Those fears are now dispelled and the boy who juggles the coal and feeds the office cat can give the snow shovel the icy mit until further orders.

Similar to Peterborough.

Berlin is having similar trouble in regard to pure ice as we are having in Peterborough. That town's only available source of ice supply has been cut off by the Board of Health, acting on instructions from Chief Health Officer McCullough, of the Provincial Board of Health. The Victoria Park lake was condemned as a source of ice supply. The Provincial Health Officer directed the confiscation of ice which has been harvested by A. C. Gurickfall since it has been condemned. The report submitted to the local board says the ice is "unfit for human consumption and cooling purposes." At present this leaves the town in the grip of an ice famine. It is probable, however, that a supply will be received from Lake Simcoe.

Tweed Electric Light Co. Sells.

The first of January witnessed the demise of the Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., controlled by the Messrs. Kiswack Bros., which has furnished light to the village for the past number of years, says the Tweed Advocate. The transfer of the plant to The Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., Limited, took place this week, and the new company will assume ownership from the first of the year. It now transpires that the Electric Power Co. of Toronto, have the controlling interest and that new developments to take place to the system in the spring will be very advantageous to Tweed. We understand it is the new company's intention to connect with the Seymour power line at the sub-station at Sulphide which will make accessible any amount of electric power.

AN INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS.

Dr. Porter's Lecture Last Night on Tuberculosis.

Dr. George D. Porter, secretary of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, gave a very instructive and interesting address at a public meeting in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute last night. The Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis has been doing a splendid educational work throughout the Dominion during the past few years by the free distribution of literature and delivery of lectures to the public regarding the methods of preventing consumption. The address last night included statistics of the disease. The doctor is doing a noble work in educating the people as to how to stamp out consumption.

At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker.

BORDEN DENIES THAT HE IS DICKERING WITH UNITED STATES

NO ACTION WILL BE TAKEN BY THE GOVERNMENT—BUT CHANGES MAY BE MADE IN CERTAIN ITEMS.

Story Emanating From Washington Is Described by Him as An Absolute Fabrication and Unworthy of the Slightest Credence.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—There is not the slightest foundation for the story from Washington that the Borden Ministry is contemplating overtures to Washington for a modified reciprocity agreement. The story is described by the Prime Minister as an absolute fabrication made out of whole cloth, and unworthy of the slightest credence.

Other Conservatives say that no action will be taken by this Government for trade with the United States especially. It may be that as a result of the investigation of the Tariff Commissioner there will be changes in some tariff items affecting the United States, but if this is the case each item will be treated separately and upon its merits.

THIS TOAST OUTSHINES SOME JESUIT OATHS

W. T. STEAD IS THE AUTHORITY BUT HE DOES NOT GIVE ANY NAMES.

Saved Them From Popery Also From Knaves and Knavery, Slaves and Slavery, Brass Money and What Not.

Mr. W. T. Stead, the editor of the "Review of Reviews," who is a whole-hearted, if somewhat eccentric, Radical, writing in his magazine just one year ago, under the heading "Will Ulster Fight?" made some remarks which are not without interest at the present juncture.

"The blatant remnant of blaspheming fanatics," said Mr. Stead, "which is to be found in Belfast and the county of Antrim, has been making itself ridiculous by swearing that Ulster will never, never submit to Home Rule. Even after Home Rule has been decreed by King, Lords, and Commons, these devoted 'loyalists' now declare that they will import arms from Germany to shoot down the King's soldiers, rather than obey the law of the land. As everyone knows, they have no authority to speak on behalf of Ulster, for there are as many Nationalists in Ulster as there are Unionists. The majority of Ulster Unionists are too sane and law-abiding to contemplate these incitements to civil war. But it is necessary to demonstrate the worthlessness of their braggadocio. It will suffice simply to reproduce here the famous Charter Toast which these truculent gentry drink with enthusiasm at every festive gathering they hold in the North of Ireland. Here is the precious toast, which sometime even takes precedure of the toast to the King:

The Toast.

To the glorious, pious, and immortal memory of King William not forgetting Oliver Cromwell), who saved us ifrom Pope and Popery, knaves and knavery, slaves and slavery, brass money, and wooden shoes. And all who refuse to drink this toast may they be rammed, crammed, stammed and damned into the great gun at Athlone, to be blown over the hills of damnation. May their teeth be converted into paving-stones, to pave the way of the croppies into hell, and their blood into train oil to light their souls to damnation. May I be at the end of the gun with a fiery flambeau, to send them burning around the earth, the moon, the stars, and the sea, like flies round a sugar-cask on a hot summer afternoon. May they be blown against the rock of blastation, and come down in ashower of innumerable pieces, and may those pieces be picked up and made into sparables to mend the soles of the Orangemen's boots to walk on the Twelfth of July."

"What," asks Mr. Stead, "can any civilized man think of the trousered bipeds who cheer such sanguinary sentiments, but that they should doff their trousers and display themselves as the Yahoos that they are? And it is these savages who are threatening the British Empire with armed revolt."

THE PROPER COURSE

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It is highly amusing to read the frantic efforts of the "friends of good government" to show that Mr. Lancaster was betrayed. It may not be necessary to say it, but the fact remains that Mr. Lancaster, on the floor of the House on that memorable occasion, openly accepted the course ultimately agreed to by Mr. Borden.

I sent 500 copies of Hansard to Peterborough, in care of Col. Miller, and it can be seen from this official report that in reply to Mr. Porter's questions both Mr. Borden and Mr. Lancaster accepted the course ultimately adopted, of sending both Lancaster's bill and a general statute over to the Privy Council. That more need be said?

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

TWENTY-THREE DOGS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see letters appearing in The Times on the number of dogs to be encountered on our streets. Now, sir, yesterday between Reid and Aylmer streets, a distance of only three blocks, I counted twenty-three canines. Is this not becoming a nuisance?

Too Many Dogs.

LEGISLATION REQUIRED.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the Council has decided to wait the outcome of some similar cases in Ottawa before entering an appeal against the ruling of Judge Huycke, in the matter of the assessment of the St. Alphonsus Lyceum. This is wise, I think. Should it be found, however, that the law bears out Judge Huycke's ruling, then it will be up to the Protestants of Peterborough to have an amendment to the Municipal Act put through, compelling such places to pay their fair share of taxes. In other words Mr. Peck will have to get busy.

Equal Rights.

ROYAL COMMISSION MAY ISSUE FOR TELEGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES

Postmaster-General Likely to Be Left With Parcels Post and Rural Mail Delivery---Country Owns 8,406 Miles of Telegraph Lines

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Nationalization of telephones and telegraphs will be the question which will be before the House to-day, and it is expected by Mr. J. E. Armstrong, East Lambton, who is bringing up the question, that the Government will agree to the appointment of a Royal Commission to investigate the whole problem of nationalization of telegraphs, telephones, cables, wireless telegraphy.

Mr. Armstrong has given a great deal of study to the subject and has examined on the ground the working of the public-owned systems of Great Britain and Europe. Mr. Armstrong will present a resolution which calls for the appointment of a commission to investigate nationalization of telephones, telegraphs, wireless telegraph cables, parcel posts and rural mail delivery. It is likely the Government will suggest that the last subject be eliminated, as they could be dealt with more effectually by the Post Master General himself.

TRUNK LINE AT LEAST, UNDER PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Mr. Armstrong's idea is that the trunk lines of the telephone should at least be owned by the Federal Government so that in Ontario the various rural systems would be independent of the Bell, while he thinks that a line should be built over Canadian territory, if at all practical, to connect the east and the west. He points out that Manitoba's only telephone connection with the East now is by Minneapolis and Chicago.

NEARLY 2,500,000 MESSAGES ON PUBLIC LINES.

Mr. Armstrong also points out that at the present time the Dominion Government actually owns 8,406 miles of telegraph lines and has 603 offices. Nearly two million and a half messages were sent last year. It was not a paying proposition because the Government lines are only in the most out-of-the-way districts, where the commercial companies will not build. The profitable part of the business is under the control of the C.P.R. and G.N.W.

WEST IS ON VERGE OF GREAT CALAMITY DUE TO WET GRAIN

WHOLE DISTRICT WILL BE RUINED IF A FEW DAYS OF DAMPNESS COMES—25,000 BUSHELS HAVE GONE BAD.

Hundreds of Thousands of Bushels Have Been Spoiled for Want of Storage Facilities.

Winnipeg, Jan. 31.—Wet grain in the Weyburn district is a serious feature just now. Hundreds of thousands of bushels have been exposed to the weather all the winter for want of storage facilities.

At Veregin, Sask., in one pile is 500,000 bushels covered with snow. This belongs to the Doukhobors.

"It is not a question," said a grain man to-day, "of the ruin of an individual. It is a question of the ruin of whole districts. We are on the verge of the worst calamity which has ever happened in Western Canada. From 15 to 20 per cent. of the cars of grain which have come into Winnipeg have been wet, damp, or tough. The same proportion of the grain in the Western country still undelivered must be in a similar condition. A few days of wet weather would destroy the value of every bushel of this grain. To-day I heard of one elevator with 25,000 bushels which had already all gone bad. The same thing may happen in a month to 10,000,000 bushels of wheat, and to similar quantities of flax, oats, and barley. What this would mean to our Western interests is difficult to conceive."

NEW ARRIVAL LOST HIS FOOT

Oct. 7.—Landed in Canada at Montreal.

Oct. 8.—Arrived in Toronto, looking for work.

Oct. 9.—Injured by a street car so severely that his foot had to be amputated.

Such is the brief history of the first three days spent in Canada by Ernest Robert S. Jacob, a young English engineer, who, on a pair of crutches, limped into the Jury Assize court at the City Hall this morning, and told his story in his action against the Toronto Railway Company for unstated damages.

He rang the bell for a Parliament street car to stop at the corner of Queen and Sherbourne, he said, so he might get off from the platform, but just as he was getting off, "the motorman started the car suddenly and without any warning," causing him to fall off the front.

LAST YEAR ONE OF MOURNING

Pope of Rome Refers to the Political Reverses

A BACKWARD MOVEMENT

Review of the Conditions by His Holiness is Not Encouraging to the Adherents of That Church — Italy's Rejoicing May Be Turned.

Rome, Jan. 31. WHEN the year 1911 came to an end, it was designated by Pope Pius himself as a year of mourning for the Catholic Church. A review of the conditions which the church had to face during the past year in various European countries indicates also that the year was one of mourning for the church in other respects than that which Pope Pius had in mind when he so designated it.

It was early in 1911 that Pope Pius announced that the church would observe the entire year as one of sadness; that no great function would take place either at the Vatican or at St. Peter's and that in every way possible the church and the Holy See would endeavor to make the world realize the position to which the church has been subjected by so-called spoilation of its temporal rights by the new kingdom of Italy. This was decided upon because of the celebrations and expositions which Italy held last year in honor of the 50th anniversary of its national unity.

If, on the other hand, had the conditions of the year been such that this was the only reason why the Holy See should regard it in the light of one of mourning, it might well have regarded it in the light of rejoicing instead. The complete failure of the two centenary expositions, the utter failure of any great crowds to come to Rome to celebrate the anniversary and the distraction of the attention of the Italian people from the anniversary caused by the war, might fully have justified the Vatican in professing to see in such an outcome the righteous punishment of Italy for the wrongs which the church alleges it has inflicted upon the Holy See.

Great Persecutions.

In spite of these conditions for Italy, however, Pope Pius in his address before the consistory, held on Nov. 27, again called attention to the fact that the year had continued to the last, one of mourning for the church. During 1911 it was pointed out that the church has suffered perhaps more persecutions than during any previous year of its history. In France, for instance, it was pointed out that the work of driving the religious orders out of the country progressed steadily; that the various religious houses and congregations were forced to close and that the country churches were allowed to fall into disrepair.

In Portugal the law of separation, conceded to be one of the most drastic measures that has been passed against the church in centuries, continued in full operation. Under it at least three bishops, including the patriarch of Lisbon, were driven from their dioceses. In Spain, with the exception of the Eucharistic Congress at Madrid, there was nothing there to cause the church to rejoice.

Russia Also.

In Russia, also, the church met with the most bitter persecutions. It was necessary to notify the Czar that unless these persecutions ceased, the Holy See would sever its diplom-

A TEN-YEAR-OLD YOUNGSTER FOUND WANDERING STREETS

Says He Came From Buffalo to Toronto and Visited Paris and Hamilton—All In Only Two Days.

Toronto, Jan. 31—Aged 10 years, and wandering the city streets, and unable to give a definite address, Gordon Taylor, a well-dressed boy, has found his way to the Children's Shelter, where he will be cared for until the authorities can learn where are his people.

The boy tells the officials that his home is in Buffalo, that he ran away from there on Monday, and came to Toronto. Since that time he claims to have visited Paris and Hamilton in search of relatives, but being unsuccessful came back to this city last night.

Now he is in a dejected state of mind. He says his parents live in Buffalo, that they formerly came from Paris, but that he can't recall the address. The officers of the Children's Aid will be glad of any information which will be of assistance in restoring the child to his family.

THE PAPAL DECREE DOES NOT APPLY TO CANADA

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Rev. Father O'Connor, of St. Bridget's Church, an authority on Roman Catholic ecclesiastical law in a statement to the press to-day says that the Quantavis Deligentia, the Papal decree which forbids Roman Catholic laymen to bring clerics of their faith before the courts, is not applied to this country. He explains that in the decree after it is set forth that excommunication will be the lot of whomsoever brings a priest or a bishop before a cessary.

FELL DEAD WHILE BEING INSTALLED AS ALDERMAN

SAD ENDING OF CEREMONY AFTER THE LORD MAYOR'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

Had Just Received Congratulations of Distinguished Colleagues—Suddenly Passed Away.

London, Jan. 31.—With suddenness which caused a painful shock throughout civic circles in the city, C. J. Cuthbertson fell dead yesterday afternoon shortly after the announcement of his election as an alderman for the Ward of Farringdon Within. His nearest opponent was John Walter, managing director of The Times, who polled 259 votes to the 331 obtained by Mr. Cuthbertson.

The tragedy occurred in Cutler's Hall. The Lord Mayor had just offered the victor his congratulations and Mr. Walter had seconded them. A vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor was being proposed by the new alderman, when it was noticed that his face was ashen grey. With a faint exclamation Mr. Cuthbertson sank to the floor, expiring before medical aid could be summoned. The scene was terrible, the men and women present thinking Mr. Cuthbertson, a young man, had fainted. It was presently realized, however, that the end had come.

Mr. Cuthbertson, who was head of a well known firm of hatters, was 69 years old. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

TURKISH MOB CUT OFF HEADS OF NINE BULGARIAN MONKS

STORMED MONASTERY WHERE THEY WERE PRAYING—REFUSED TO LISTEN TO PLEAS.

Vengeance Was Sworn and a Severe Racial Conflict is Feared—A Turkish Mosque Was Blown Up.

Sofia, Jan. 31.—Storming a Bulgarian Monastery near Uskab, a Turkish mob to-day decapitated nine monks while they begged for mercy.

The fathers were assembled in prayer, when the mob appeared before the monastery and demanded admission. The order was refused, and a volley of shots were fired through the windows. Still the monks refused to open the doors, and the mob began a fierce assault with a battering ram. One of the big steel gates was shattered and the frenzied Turks rushed to the altar where the nine monks were kneeling before a statue of the Virgin, praying that they be shielded from danger.

Without listening to the pleas of the terror-stricken victims, the Turks dragged them from the altar and struck off their heads one by one. The bodies were then dragged to the doorway and thrown down the steps, where they were left. Vengeance was sworn by Bulgarian residents and it was reported late to-day that a severe racial conflict was impending.

The slaughter of the monks was believed to have been inspired by the blowing up of a Turkish mosque several weeks ago. Assassinations have been frequent since that time.

The Turkish Government, Bulgarians said, has made no effort to suppress the atrocities.

BABY THROWN FROM A TRAIN

Body of Young Child, Partly Eaten By Dogs, Found at Ridgetown—Police are Working.

Ridgetown, Ont., Jan. 31.—This town was thrown into a great state of excitement by the discovery of the body of a young child near the Pere Marquette tracks. It was first noticed by Mrs. McCauley, who at once communicated with the police. Dr. Marr, who made a thorough examination of the remains, gave it as his opinion that the child had been murdered. The body had been partly eaten by dogs.

LITTLE PARISENNE

Helene Avril draws a charming picture of a day in the life of the little Parisienne. It is a cold morning in February, dull and chilly. Out of doors passers-by hurry along wrapped and miserable looking. Simonne wakens early in her warm little bed, and as soon as she opens her eeys she smiles at the thought of the happiness that is in store for her. This is the day on which she has been invited to a children's party at the home of her little friend Jeanne, and they are going to have such fun. The night before the dressmaker sent her the dress specially made for the part. It is a "robe fourreau," in dark green velvet, which makes her look ever so tall. In a few hours everybody will be admiring her at Jeanne's house; her little friends first, but perhaps also their big brothers. In Simonne's heart is already awakened the desire to please "ces messieurs," the oldest of whom is not yet sixteen years of age.

While her little brain is still excited at the thought of what the day is destined to bring her, Simonne's mother enters to give her the usual good-morning kiss. She bends over the bed, puts her ar munder the frail body, which clings to her with affection, and mother and daughter pass a delightful moment.

But eight o'clock strikes. "Vite, Monette, levons nous." You will amuse yourself this afternoon, but this morning we must work hard. The French teacher will be hear shortly. Are you quite ready with your lessons? Simonne hesitates to reply. Trying on her new dress last night kept her behind with her lessons, and she has not had time to go over her grammar again. Lessons, however, and dressing does not take her long this morning. Five minutes to swallow her chocolate—then there is a ring at the bell. It is mademoiselle. Already? And Simonne has not even looked at the second page, which she does not know at all. She runs to meet her teacher, throws her arms around her neck, and kisses her. "Oh, ma petite mademoiselle," she exclaims. "If you knew how delighted I am. This afternoon I am invited chez Jeanne. Mamma has had a new dress made for me, and we are going to have lots of fun."

Mademoiselle is used to these effusions. With both hands she takes the girl's head between hers and gives her a long maternal kiss on the forehead. Her pupils are almost as dear to her as if they were her own children. Simonne knows it well, the sly little minx. Now she feels is the moment to admit that she does not know her lessons very well. Mademoiselle does not scold her, but improves the occasion to give her some wise council.

Mademoiselle does not like vain and coquettish little girls, and their doubtful dresses leave her absolutely indifferent, for she loves to imagine a portrait of simple good-hearted children, and in her dress attractive little Simonne feels a wee bit ashamed of the sentiments that agitated her shortly before.

Two o'clock. If anything were needed to add to Simonne's happiness, it is provided in the auto that whisks her to Jeanne's house, where nearly all the other children have arrived and are gathered in the hall. In a corner, seated by a little table, where they are turning over the leaves of a picture book, are a little boy and his sister who seem out of place in these surroundings. The boy is thirteen years of age, his sister eleven or twelve. No one takes any notice of them. Simonne asks Jeanne who they are.

"Oh," replied Jeanne, "they are the children of a post-mistress mamma knows. She invited them so that they might have an opportunity of amusing themselves—a thing that does not happen often. But I am sure they will be rather bored here, for no one knows them. Have you noticed the girl's dress. It must have been her mother who made it; it is not elegant. And anyone can see that the boy's suit is ready-made."

Simonne stood thinking for a while. These little ones "whom no one knew" interested her. She remembered what mademoiselle had told her in the morning, and found that they resembled in an astonishing manner the portrait of the little ones whose greatest charm was their simplicity. Her heart was stirred. It was true that they were not very fashionably dressed, but a generous movement sent her to their side. Might she sit by them and look at the pictures. In a few moments all three were chattering away as if they had known each other for years. Their laughter soon brought the other children around them. They joined in the games they organized and during the whole afternoon they amused themselves with a heartiness that made Simonne very pleased. She forgot all about her beautiful dress. Besides, other girls were as well dressed as she, so it was not really worth while to make any fuss about her dress, even if it was a "robe fourreau." What a delightful afternoon she had had, making two other children happy, who, but for her, would have been left out in the cold. She would be sure to tell mademoiselle how she had carried her lesson into practice.

RECORDS OF 1911

Fast Time Made by the Trotters and Pacers

The following list of records for the year just closed will be of interest to the admirers of the trotter and pacer, showing as it does the best time made on the half-mile as well as the mile tracks and also showing the world's records.

Only three of them, however, the half-mile track trotting performance of Uhlan (2.02¾), which displaced his own mark of 2.05¼ under like conditions; the 2.15 pacing mile by the yearling, Frank Perry, which removes that of Paul D. Kelly (2.30¾), and the 3-year-old pacing record of 2.05¼, made by Miss De Forrest, displacing the 2.05½ of Klatawah and a like mark by Jim Logan, are new world's records.

It was confidently expected that Uhlan would reduce his 1910 mile of 1.58½, but the attempt was postponed front runner, and at the same time dethrone Lou Dillon, whose mark is 1.58½, butt he attempt was postponed until the Lexington meeting in October, by which time the weather was so unfavorable that after one losing mile the horse was not started again. There is no reasonable doubt, however, that had Uhlan's managers been fortunate in their choice of a day for the big trial the gelding would now have had a mark of 1.58 or better.

Whether he ever will be able to lower his present record is doubtful, as the great trotter is to be shipped in April to Russia, and, as he goes direct from New York to Moscow and will pass the best part of two weeks making the journey, it will be necessary to condition him almost from the beginning for the miles he is to trot in other lands. In any event, he would not be up to much in April, even if his trotting was to be done in America.

SPORT AND SPYING

The London Chronicle Protests Against a Recent Charge

London Daily Chronicle:—Sport has many enemies, we know, and among them there is a class of people who, if they had their way, would entirely sweep away every pastime, good or bad, healthy or the reverse, in the country. And now the faddists have had another opportunity presented them for decrying games, for a German contemporary gravely asserts that "England maintains an army of spies in the Fatherland," and that the organization chiefly comprises members of the best class of English society, who are so fond of sport—the more venturesome and daring the better—that spying has been taken up as one of our national pastimes! Spying certainly requires in the man who is fond of the "game" nerves of steel, and it is a well-known fact that the well-trained sportsman is the most suitable man for daring and dangerous exploits; but it is really too bad to state that sport and spying go hand in hand, and as sportsmen we protest against the imputation.

AN IRISH LEGEND

BY SANO HARRIS WALKER

Driving along from Watergrasshill to Cork, the traveller may see the ruins of the mansion of Rath Goban, the ancient dwelling-place of Goban Saer. Of the many edifices erected by this famous builder and architect nothing now remains but the shell of an old tower. The memory of the builder, however, is still kept in veneration, for he was as upright in his conduct and as wise in his conversation as he was clever in the art of building.

Few things brought the Goban Saer more honor than the insight he showed into the true virtues and merits of women. When he took it into his head to get married, he did not look for the most beautiful girl of his acquaintance, as is the fashion with the foolish members of his sex; neither did he, like a miser, or one inflated with his own importance, think only of money and family. No! He had but one thought in regard to a wife, and that was, she should be the wisest and wittiest woman in the country.

He hit on the following plan of selection:

One morning he told his servant to take a skin just stripped from a young sheep to the neighboring fair, ordering him, as soon as he had sold it, "to bring it back again, as well as the price received for it."

The servant had such confidence in the wisdom of his master that he never even questioned the strange command.

Arrived at the fair, he was soon surrounded by a crowd of women, for the fleeces which came from the farm of the Goban Saer were renowned through the country for their thickness and their quality. But the eagerness of the bidders, as may be guessed, quickly changed to stupefaction when they learned the conditions of the sale. "He was to take back the skin as well as the price of it! What folly, to be sure! He could take back the skin, but they kept their money!"

A young girl had remained behind after they all had departed. Molly Desmond was not rich. Indeed, she would never have nourished a hope of acquiring a fleece so thick and so silky if all the competition had not ceased! Now she approached the servant and, having reflected for a moment on his bizarre proposal, bought the skin at a very low price. It was the work of a few minutes to remove the wool from the hide and return the latter to the servant, who brought it back to his master.

On learning that [illegible] girl in the neighborhood who possessed penetration enough to understand his meaning, Goban Saer at once sought her hand in marriage.

The years passed on. The reputation and fortune of the Goban Saer increased with everyone.

When he saw his daughter twenty years of age, beautiful as she was good, and knew that he had comfortably provided for her future, and that of himself and of his wife, he resolved to do no more work, but to spend the closing portion of his life in rest and recreation.

However, it happened that the King of Brittany wanted to have a magnificent palace built. The stories he had heard from travellers of the marvels erected by the famous Irish builder made him determine that the old man must be coaxed to Brittany. The Goban Saer was promised marbles the like of which had never been seen in Ireland; gold, silver, and precious gems would be as plentiful as iron, wood or stone; ten thousand slaves would be placed at his command, and all the workmen of the kingdom be his servants.

Does artist ever refuse to add another laurel to his crown? The old builder began to disparage his former works, and spent his days and nights in dreaming of the palace to be built for the Breton king.

His ambition was a great grief to the wise Molly. She was frightened when she thought of the least hot the journey and the dangers an old man might encounter in a strange country among jealous and envious people. Remonstrance or reasoning, however was of no avail—to Brittany the Goban Saer would go. Molly made the best of it, only insisting that Ellen should accompany her father.

"My dear Ellen," said she to her daughter before they started, "your father is old; but man refuses to acknowledge the weight of age unless it presses very heavily. See, then, that he often rests on the way. In each strange house that you enter, make friends with the women, the children, and the dog, and be careful never to remain longer than three days in a town where you will not have made at least three friends for your father. Still, as human prudence can never foresee what God hides in His Powerful hand, if it should happen that you are ever in want of any assistance let me counsel you to tie a thread of red wool round the arm of any messenger you may send to me."

The father and daughter then departed.

After a great deal of travelling, both by land and water, they arrived safely at the palace of the King of Brittany.

Just as they were entering the courtyard, the king's eldest son, the heir to the throne, was leaving for the hunt. As soon as he learned, however, that the illustrious architect who had been waited for so impatiently had at last come, his curiosity to see him was so great that he dismissed his suite and re-entered the palace.

Next day the prince again gave up the hunt, but for another motive. He wished to see Ellen, and soon he began to find more pleasure in suddenly meeting her graceful figure at the turn of a gallery than in seeing the largest wild boar rush from among the branches of the forest.

Little by little the young people got from looks to words. From the day that Ellen first spoke to him the prince gave up, not only hunting, but every other amusement in which he used formerly to take delight. He passed his entire days shut up in the palace listening to the wise and sweet words which fell from the girl's lips.

The attention of the prince to Ellen did not escape the observation of the Goban Saer. "If," said he, "the feeling which this young man has for my daughter is honorable, she shall be his; if it is otherwise, I must take her away from here as quickly as possible, even though I leave the palace, which promises to be so beautiful, unfinished." In order to find out the nature of the feeling which inspired the prince, Goban Saer spoke to his daughter.

"The prince is in love with you," said he; "I know it, my daughter; but it is necessary to prove this love. To-morrow I shall invite the prince to breakfast in the new palace. When the repast is finished, you will enter, followed by your attendants, carrying water for the washing of oud hands. You will bring the basin to the prince, but as he is plunging in his hands, you must take up some of the water on your fingers and throw it into his face. If this proud Breton should bear this affront patiently, he loves you sufficiently to let you share his throne. If, on the contrary, he gets into a passion, it will be a proof that the habits of his rank and the violence of his character are stronger than his love, and we must fly at once. In my case, I shall say good-bye to an unfinished palace; in yours, to a growing tenderness."

Ellen bent her head and sadly prepared to obey her father.

The day of trial arrived all too soon. After breakfast, the trembling girl advanced towards the prince, holding the basin of water. He mechanically dipped his hands into it, his eyes being all the time fixed on Ellen's blushing face. She, with a pretence of gaiety, took up some drops of the water and threw them at him. Instead, however, of flying into a passion, the prince just smiled at the play, and gathering in his hand some of the drops which remained on his forehead, pressed them to his lips.

On seeing this Ellen felt that she loved the prince a hundred times more than ever, and the old Goban said gaily to himself, "I am building this beautiful palace for my daughter."

During all this love affair, however, it must not be forgotten that the charming prince had a father, the King of Brittany, and that this father was a very selfish and cruel man. Enchanted with the palace which was being erected for him, he got it into his head that Goban Saer might build one still more beautiful for another king. He could think of no better way of averting this calamity than by cutting off the artist's head as soon as the work was finished.

Goban was warned by a friend of his destined fate, and sought for means to avert it.

[illegible] sign, "your palace will surpass any [illegible] let me go to Rath Goban for one ornament—an ornament such as neither France nor England can produce on account of the peculiar beauty and originality of its material and finish."

The king, guessing that he wished to escape, said, "Send a messenger."

"And to what messenger, sire, could such a precious object be confided?" asked the Goban Saer.

"I shall think about it," replied the king; "but you cannot leave the palace."

When the king left him the Goban Saer confided his trouble to his daughter. Ellen cudgelled her brains to see a way out of their difficulties. Alas! even if she were able to send a messenger to Molly, what were that poor woman's resources against those of a powerful king?

In the midst of her worrying, the prince came to visit her, and at sight of him her plan was formed.

"My lord," said she, "there is a precious ornament which my father must have to finish this great palace. But the king mistrusts him, and will not allow him to return to his own country for this treasure. My father, mistrustful also, is afraid to let a slave, an officer, or a lord go on such an important commission."

"Perhaps he would consent to my going?" said the prince.

"Oh! I have no doubt he would," replied Ellen, "and my mother, also, will be happy to see you, especially if you allow me to attach this thread of red wool to your arm. She will know then that you came from us, and that you are a friend."

Ellen trembled as she spoke. The prince smiled and held out his arm, around which the dutiful daughter of Goban Saer tied the mysterious sign which was to deliver the head of her lover, to be held as hostage for that of her father.

The king did not offer any opposition to the departure of his son. "For," said he, "when my palace will be perfect, I shall always be master to do what I like with the architect."

The prince travelled to Ireland and was hospitably received by Molly; but he did not return. In his place came a messenger bearing a letter for the King of Brittany.

The Breton king read the letter.

What was his anger when he learned that the prince was kept a prisoner at Rath Goban! He tore out his hair in fistfuls, he blasphemed, he swore, he wanted to imprison, torture, chop up Goban and his daughter. But as the words of the sanguinary orders were going to fall from his lips he recalled the threat of Molly: "Member for member, blood for blood, head for head."

And the king had no other hair.

On his side, the prince, after recovering from the first shock, could only admire the heroism of Ellen, who was willing to sacrifice the man she loved and the chance of a crown for the life of her father. He sent a message to the king that even if he were set free he would voluntarily remain at Rath Goban until a consent was given to his marriage with Ellen.

The king at first, of course, gave a strong "No," backed by a stout oath. The prince, however, was the only hope of the country, and the Breton seigneurs, seeing the obstinacy of the monarch, commenced to murmur and threaten.

Fear often masters the greatest of Kings, so the lord of Brittany, judging it time to yield, graciously renounced the little pleasure of killing his architect. He contented himself with getting Goban's word that he would never build another palace.

The prince married Ellen. Both reigned long and happily, and as long as the kingdom of Brittany lasted, the people blessed the memory of the daughter of the Goban Saer.

PAINTER'S SECRET

Sign Painted Thirty Years Ago Still As Good As New

The living worth of good work is always recognized, even in small things. Sign painters do not usually achieve wealth or fame, yet it is said that a fortune awaits the man who painted a station sign at Harper's Ferry, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shortly after the completion of the line at that point. The Western Society of Engineers has the sign on exhibition at their rooms.

The engineers are trying to ascertain who mixed the paint and applied it to the sign, which was placed in position at the Harper's Ferry station about thirty years ago. The summer's heat and winter's storms have in no way dimmed the lustre of the paint used to make the words "Harper's Ferry." They stand out as boldly as the day they were formed by the artist's brush.

The wood around the letters has been worn about one-sixteenth of an inch by wind beaten against it by fierce winds, but the letters have withstood the elements.

It is asserted that no paint manufactured nowadays is equal in durability to that which was applied to the old sign, and if the person who mixed it is living and will take advantage of the secret he possesses as to its composition it is said he can, by engaging in the paint-manufacturing business, soon accumulate wealth.

At Bingley Halyl, Birmingham, the record price of fifteen hundred guineas was recently paid for a short horn bull twenty-two months old.

WAR AEROPLANES FOR THE BRITISH

The War Office Will Purchase a Large Number of Military Airships

Important plans are pending in connection with British military and naval airmanship. Colonel Seely's speech, in which he said that the Government proposed to make up for lost ground, foreshadowed early developments. It is understood that the War Office is arranging to purchase, almost immediately, a number of military aeroplanes, and to them machines of British manufacture. A largely increased air-fleet will be necessary to provide machines for the Air Battalion when strengthened by the carrying out of the recently announced scheme of organizing companies of 100 skilled airmen.

The Admiralty is now interesting itself in a practical way in airmanship. Another class of naval officers is to be taught flying at Eastchurch (Isle of Sheppey). The two Valkyrie machines recently presented to the Navy by Mr. H. Barbeck are to be used in experiments to obtain data regarding the use of hydro-aeroplanes. Constructional experiments to determine the features of an exceptional naval aeroplane are to be carried out by Messrs. Short Brothers in their aircraft factory on the Isle of Sheppey.

Among the aeroplanes shown at the Grand Palais, Paris, is an English model, the Bristol military monoplane, which appears to combine all the qualities to be looked for in a military machine. Its skids are jointed in front so as to reduce the shock of landing on bad ground by means of special springs which project far to the rear so as to act as a brake. Its slip attachment, which will enable the pilot to start without assistance, is also a very attractive feature.

Among the tendencies of construction, apart from the use of metal instead of wood, the increased solidity of landing chassis, and the attempts made by the provision of mica windows and the like to give the pilot and passenger as good a view as possible, one notes the great attempt to avoid head resistance and to protect the airman from the oil of the motor and the weather. The necessary struts and wires are cut down to a minimum, and the body, including the engines and the airman's seat, is entirely enclosed in metal, wood and fabric. In some cases, notably in monoplanes shown by the Paulhan-Tatin firm, the result is an object which looks like an exaggerated torpedo with wings. Even the control arrangements are doubled so as to enable either airman to take charge of the machine.

The attempt made in the Paulhan machine, which is declared by the makers to be entirely free from the "dihedral angle" of the wing, is repeated this year, though to a less extent, by the biplane shown by the German Albatrosswerke, which, in addition to a wooden chassis of unusual construction, has very flexible edges to its birdlike wings. The fact that there are only fifteen biplanes to thirty-nine monoplanes in the show indicates the predominant position for military purposes at present held by the monoplane, but there is on view more than one biplane which possesses important merits from the military point of view. Among the latter machines, besides the Albatros, may be mentioned the Savary with its two big tractor screws and the Sloan, which follows in its lower plane the curving of a bird's wings, and has big ailerons which are said to give it an exceptional sliding angle. Ailerons (movable pennib attached to the edge of the wings), by the way, seem nearly extinct. Even the biplane makers who used to try them in all sorts of shapes appear to have dropped them this year and to rely on warping instead. It is noticeable, too, that the 50-h.p. Gnome engine is found powerful enough for a very large proportion of the machines. There are, however, several other well-tried motors on view. Several firms show the impressive engine-rooms of airships, and there is one complete airship, the Astra.

LOST THE TENNIS CUP

Americans Grieve Over the Victory of New Zealanders

Boston is in mourning. The Transcript announces that "the defeat of the American team for the Davis lawn tennis cup in New Zealand is the most surprising as well as the most overwhelming defeat that the American team has ever suffered. It would be difficult to get together three better tennis players in the United States than Larned, Wright, and McLoughlin, and the opinion given out by Mr. Larned on his way to Australia—namely, that if this team did not bring back the cup it would be difficult to find a team in the future that would—was certainly prophetic." That is just the sort of thing the English papers were wont to say when first the Americans and colonials began to beat the old country in cricket, and running, and rowing, and other outdoor sports. It is the remark that comes naturally to the middle-aged sport when the young fellows begin to teach him that he is out of training. New England is no longer young England. By-and-bye it will sit beside John Bull on the old sports' bench and watch the boys on its own West, and Canada, and Australia, and South Africa at play.

BLAMES THE BUTCHER

Butcher:—"Well, sir, did that large fowl I sold you do for the whole family?"

Buyer:—"Very nearly. The doctor is still calling."

HIS BALD HEAD

Old Gentleman: —"Now, children, do you want me to have a game of romps with you? Eh?"

Youngster:—"Oh, no! We're playing at Indians, and you're no use. You're scalped already."

REPLY FROM THE AUDIENCE

A political speaker, while making a speech, paused in the midst of it and exclaimed:

"Now, gentlemen, what do you think?"

A man rose in the assembly and, with one eye partially closed modestly, with a strong Scotch brogue, replied:

"I think, sir—I do, indeed, sir—I think if you and I were to stump the country together we would tell more lies than any other two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself during the whole time, sir!"

GENERAL MISUNDERSTANDING

"I hear their engagement has been broken off through a misunderstanding."

"Yes. He understood she had money and she understood he had money."

QUITE SIMPLE

The little man at the back of the pit had been vainly trying to see round the big stout fellow in front of him, but not one glimpse of the stage could he obtain. At last he leaned forward and touched the other on the shoulder. "Excuse me, sir," he said meekly, "but I can't see the stage."

"Can't see the stage," repeated the big man sarcastically. "Well, what do you want me to do? Lift you on my shoulder?"

"Hardly that," replied the little one meekly, "but I thought perhaps—"

"Look here," interrupted the big one, "I know how to manage it. Just you keep your eye on me and laugh when I laugh."

DEFECTIVE MEMORY

Lady:—"How long is it since you have done any work?"

Tramp:—"I'm not quite sure, lady. I forget whether I am forty or fifty years old."

FATHER'S SIZE

"Dearest!" he cried.

"Darling!" she murmured.

"Do you know," he said, as she coyly surrendered her little hand, "that yours are the smallest hands I have ever kissed—I mean, seen? And what dear little feet you have!"

"Do you think so?" she answered demurely.

"Rather! Just compare them with my great, clumsy hoofs. I take 'tens'—"

"And I take 'twelves,' my boy!" shouted an angry voice behind them.

The lover seized a covenient vine and slid down from the balcony into the darkness below.

INVOLUNTARY REST

A young lady entered a crowded car with a pair of skates hung over her arm. An elderly gentleman arose to give her his seat.

"Thank you, very much, sir," she said, "but I've been skating all afternoon, and I'm tired of sitting down."

A FLY ON YOUR NOSE

The Seedy One: — "Say, guv'nor, there's a fly on your nose."

Old Gent: "What the dickens has that to do with you?"

The Seedy One: — "Nothin', nothin'; only I thought it would get its wings scorched."

BLACK AND BLUE

"Your husband is not looking well to-night, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking?"

"It isn't that so much. It is his originality. Why, that man is struck by so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises."

THE GALLOWS CHEATED

Some Remarkable Reprieves in the Annals of Crime in Britain—Strange Reasons

More than one murderer has owed his escape from the gallows to the simple fact that it was a physical impossibility to hang him. Some years ago, for example, a prison surgeon in England discovered that a man under sentence of death had a peculiarly malformed throat, making it almost a certainty that any attempt to hang him would prove a failure. He reported the facts of the case to the Home Office, and a reprieve was granted at the last moment on the doctor's report. Prior to the surgeon's examination the Home Secretary had refused to interfere with the sentence.

A similar case was that of an Englishman who had murdered a woman some years ago. This man's spinal column for some inches below the base of the skull was found to consist practically of gristle instead of bone. If he had been hanged his head would have been torn clean away from his body, the horrible idea of which was enough to save the man from the gallows. His sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life in the ordinary way, it being understood that it was for the full life and not for the usual twenty years after his reprieve.

Charlotte Winsor, the notorious child murderess, was reprieved for an extraordinary reason. It was discovered after she had been convicted that the whole of her trial was illegal on account of a series of omissions in the indictment against her. For a year she lay under sentence of death before the reprieve was finally granted.

But perhaps the most famous case of all in the Old Country was that of John Lee. He killed his mistress, Miss Keyse, at Babbacombe, near Torquay, in 1885. Three times he was placed on the gallows, and each time the drop failed to act. In consideration of the terrible mental strain that the convict must have suffered the Home Secretary commuted the death sentence to imprisonment for life.

Jessie McIntosh, who murdered Jessie McPherson in Glasgow, escaped hanging in a curious way. When she was condemned petitions poured in on her behalf. A tract by a clergyman entitled "A Plea for Jessie McIntosh" actually went through thirteen editions. So great was the public outcry that the Home Secretary hesitated before signing the fatal document ordering her execution. The day was postponed when she should have been hanged, and a secret inquiry ordered. This inquiry was held in Glasgow, and what took place at it was never made public. But the end of it all was that the Home Secretary exercised his prerogative of mercy, and the gallows was cheated of another victim.

Bull-fighting levies a heavy toll upon human life. During a recent season in Madrid at least twelve bull-fighters were killed and 111 injured, a record of casualties unprecedented in the history of the national sport of Spain. It has been computed that about 2,500 bulls and 3,500 horses are killed every year in Spanish bull-fights.

It was the first night of the panto-mime, and the stage-manager was rushing round excitedly.

The "Grand Stupendous Scene of Pekoe in India" was getting ready—but where was the elephant?

"Hurry up, there!" yelled the stage-manager to the property-master; "buck up with that elephant! What's keeping it?"

"Well, sir," said the property-master aggrievedly, "it's the back legs, sir. 'E's found out as 'ow its front legs get thruppence a nig more than 'e does, an' 'e refuses to go on till 'e is given the same."

A SUCCESSFUL BANQUET

St. John's Church Association Held Enjoyable Function.

A very enjoyable banquet was held on Monday evening in the Sunday School Room of St. John's church, given under the auspices of St. Johns Church Association. About 70 guests sat down, the chair being ably filled by Mr. h. J. Devey, who made an ideal chairman.

After a few remarks from the chairman, the "King" was proposed, and which brought forth the national anthem.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, in a few well chosen words, proposed the toast of the ladies, and referred to the splendid work which is being done by them in many ways in connection with the church. Mr. A. H. Stratton, on behalf of the ladies responded in fitting terms.

A general discussion followed on church work, in which Messrs. Devey, Aylmer, Dean, Claxton, Campbell, Conway, Kingdon, Stratton, Pitchford, Coleman, Jay, Bell, Jamieson, and Canon Davidson and Rev. Ben Oliel, of Lakefield took part.

Solos by Messrs. Flower, Roberts, and Langley, with Mr. Devey, as accompanist, enlivened the proceedings of the evening, as also did a reading by Mr. Jamieson.

Similar to Peterborough.

Berlin is having similar trouble in regard to pure ice as we are having in Peterborough. That town's only available source of ice supply has been cut off by the Board of Health, setting on instructions from Chief Health Officer McCullough, of the Provincial Board of Health. The Victoria Park lake was condemned as a source of ice supply. The Provincial Health Officer directed the confiscation of ice which has been harvested by A. C. ed. The report submitted to the local board says the ice is "unfit for human consumption and cooling purposes." At present this leaves the town in the grip of an ice famine. It is probable, however, that a supply will be received from Lake Simcoe.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

How the Dining Cars are Supplied, etc.

The travelling public seldom or never give a thought as to how or when the dining cars are supplied with everything the season affords. They are often heard to express themselves on the excellence of the different viands, but never give it a thought of how it reaches the table.

The Canadian Pacific have at a considerable expense equipped new supply depots at Vancouver and Winnipeg. The latest models of mechanical refrigeration enable the department to keep in perfect condition the choicest supplies from outside markets, for example, midwinter fruits, vegetables etc.

A refrigerated store-house has been erected at Sicamous Junction in which are gathered at the approach of the winter season the finest fruit and vegetables produced by British Columbia. Two of these are at the present time featured on the menu cards in the West—"Apples from the famous Okanagan Valley and "British Columbia Championship Potatoes" (which won the $1,000 Championship

Tweed Electric Light Co. Sells.

The first of January witnessed the demise of the Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., controlled by the Messrs. Kissack Bros., which has furnished light to the village for the past number of years, says the Tweed Advocate. The transfer of the plant to The Tweed Electric Light & Power Co., Limited, took place this week, and the new company will assume ownership from the first of the year. It now transpires that the Electric Power Co. of Toronto, have the controlling interest and that new developments to take place to the system in the spring will be very advantageous to Tweed. We understand it is the new company's intention to connect with the Seymour power line at the sub-station at Sulphide which will make accessible any amount of electric power.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS CAUSED BY NEGLECT

ARE QUICKLY CURED AND ROBUST, SOUND HEALTH RESTORED BY DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Women are on the whole more sickly than men. One reason is that their system is more complicated. Another and more important reason is they put off measures of relief too long. At the beginning, constipation is the cause of nine-tenths of women's ailments. The blood becomes weakened and polluted the nerves suffer, and a run-down condition takes root.

Because of their mildness of action as a system regulator, because of their undoubted power to remove constipation, irregularities, no medicine for women can compare with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The kidneys quickly respond to the remedial action of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and the result is as you would expect, pain in the back and sides, shortness of breath, and bad color disappear—the inactions of the body then operate naturally, congestion and pain are prevented and perfect health returns.

Thousands of happy women say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest and best blood-purifier, the finest complexion renewer, the most certain regulating medicine known. All dealers in 25c. boxes, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

The groom's gift to the bride was a gold watch and chain The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreens. After the usual felicitations were extended to the young couple, the guests, about forty-five in number, repaired to the dining-room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was partaken of. HORSES AND WAR

The Thoroughbred is Indispersable to Cavalry Remounts

Mr. George M. Rommell, chief of the division of animal husbandry, of the Department of Agriculture, in an interview given to The New York Herald, calls attention to the direct and important relation of horse racing to the national defence. Mr. Rommell, who is a recognized authority on the subject of breeding, and who has no interest in racing beyond its influence in developing the thoroughbred, said the thoroughbred is indispensable in any country which requires cavalry in its national defence. Mr. Rommell said:

"The experience of foreign armies shows that the department is correct in planning to pay due attention to the thoroughbred in its plan to solve the army remount problem in the United States. Horses with more or less thoroughbred blood are found as troop horses in every European army, and are now being purchased by our remount officers. Practically every European army officer rides an Irish hunter, a half-bred horse or better. The New York mounted police ride horses which are of trotting and thoroughbred blood, and so it goes.

"The effect of racing on the thoroughbred has been and is exactly the same as its effect on the standard breed. Racing makes and maintains the breed. Without running, races the English people would never have had their world-renowned thoroughbreds, and without trotting races the American people would never have developed their matchless standard bred [illegible] racing is stopped the breeding of horses stops for the [illegible] breed is removed.

"The severe campaigning to which a race horse is subjected develops in time endurance, stamina, good wind and sound feet and legs as breed characteristics, for the horse that can go the pace is the one which leaves the impress on the breed; the fittest survive. These attributes in a horse make him valuable not only as a [illegible] of race horses but as a sire of saddle horses, drivers, carriage horses, army remounts, etc., and it is for this reason that racing does indeed improve the breed of horses. A handsome horse which can go through a racing career, winning race after race, and then retire to the stud as sound as when he first stepped on a track, is worthy the homage of every man with good red blood in his veins, and a sport, be it with running or trotting horses, which gives us such horses, deserves the consideration of th

"So you want to marry my daughter, sir!" he said. "What are your principles? Are you strictly temperate?"

"Temperate?" replied the matrimonial candidate, "perhaps if I tell you that it gives me pain even to find my boots tight, you may realize how strict I am on the subject you refer to."

WHY THEY GO TO FRANCE

The young bank clerk was writing home to his parents. "You will forgive a brief letter this week," he said, "as I am very busy, owing to the fact that we are short handed in the office just now. One of the cashiers has gone to France for a rest. The other has gone there to avoid it."

A NECESSARY SIGN

"Now," said the fussy old gentleman, putting one of the biggest strawberries in his mouth and picking up another, "what is the sense of having that sign reading 'Fresh Strawberries For Sale?' Don't you see that 'Fresh Strawberries' would be enough? Don't you suppose that everybody knows they are for sale?"

"I dunno," answered the fruiterer's assistant, sarcastically. "Some people seem to think we are giving them away."

And the old gentleman put the berry back in the box.

THE ONLY WAY

"Jane," said her mistress, "you really will have to put a stop to the visits of your follower."

"Yes, I must, mum," replied Jane.

"But you've said that before," expostulated her mistress, "and there it's ended!"

"I'm sure I've done my best, mum," said Jane; "it isn't easy. But I'll really try and settle him on my next Thursday out."

Her next Thursday out came and went. Her follower also came and went (with Jane), and Jane eventually returned herself in a radiant mood.

"I've settled him this time, mum!" she exclaimed breathlessly.

Her mistress wagged her head complacently. But in the hour of victory one should be generous to fallen foes, so she expressed the hope that Jane had not been too hard on the young man.

"Hard on him!" cried Jane. "...o, mum, that I wasn't. I've just married him, and I leave at the end of the month!"

A CLEVER RUSE

"What's in the bandbox, Bill, and where's the girl?" said the first cyclist.

"That contains my puncture-mending device. I get punctures mended quickly and well without lifting a finger," said the second cyclist. "That box contains a lady's skirt and picture hat; when I puncture I've only to don them and wait!"

"I'm off to get fitted up, too!" exclaimed the first.

WHAT A POSTMAN WALKS

An official walk of 200,000 miles has been accomplished by Mr. Leonard Wavell, a rural postman of Sandown, Isle of Wight, just retired from the service. For the past eighteen years he has daily walked from Sandown to Newchurch, via Apse Heath and Borthwood, and back, a distance of about twenty miles. During the previous thirteen years he covered the same district from Newport, the total distance covered being about the same. Thus for thirty-one years he has walked twenty-miles daily.

SHE FOUND THE SECRET OF YOUTH

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS MADE HER A NEW WOMAN.

Age, Finds a Cure for Headaches, Sleeplessness and Kidney Troubles in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Allen's Mills, Portneuf Co., Quebec, Jan. 31.—(Special)—That years do not make a person old if perfect health is that person's portion is shown in the case of Mrs. Eustache Tremblay of this place.

"I am a new woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it," Mrs. Tremblay explains. "Yes, I am sixty-one years old. But now that the headaches, from which I suffered are gone, my Kidney trouble has disappeared and I can sleep at night, I do not feel my age. Yes, it was Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else that took away my pains and aches and made me a new woman."

Perfect health means perpetual youth. And perfect health can only be obtained by keeping the mainspring of health, the Kidneys, in order. The one sure way to do this is to use the old reliable kidney cure, Dodd's Kidney Pills. It never fails.

HOW COULD SHE?

Mrs. Holmes:—"Mrs. Bangs threw a saucepan at her husband because he sat on her new hat. I could never do a thing like that."

Mr. Holmes:—"Ah, no! Because you love me so dearly, pet?"

Mrs. Holmes:—"No, because I have not a new hat."

How Many Women Keep Young

"A woman may be old at 18 and young at 80," says Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, prominent Chicago clubwoman. "Years don't matter. Didn't Ninon de L'Enclos have a proposal at 90?"

The youth of our women is more lasting than it was a generation ago, because we are becoming acquainted with simple physiological laws. When the first aging marks appear—wrinkles, baggy cheeks, neck and chin—we realize that the cause is a loosening of the skin and softening of the tissue underneath. We know the cause must be removed. Instead of laying on pastes we send to the drug store for an ounce of saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel, mix them and bathe face, neck and hands in the solution. We know this tightens the skin, solidifies the tissue, induces a healthy circulation. We treat causes rather than effects. We use reason — and stay young.

CLEAN HOCKEY SEASON IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Is Competitive Interest Needed to Improve Play? The London Chronicle Asks

This seems likely to be a [illegible] son in English hockey. Or is it a further tilt in the decline of the game some believe to have taken place during the last year or two?

It is a little strange that hockey has not won for itself a higher place amongst winter sports. Its great growth in popularity is certain—it is computed that 10,000 or more players are engaged in more or less serious matches every Saturday afternoon, but having regard to the fact that it is now played at the public schools and has drained the resources of many amateur football clubs the quality of the play is disappointing and has not made a commensurate advance in point of merit with its spread all over the country.

It is an ill-deserved reflection on the game that, the authorities at Oxford have not yet seen fit to award "Blues" to the members of the Varsity team and yet this decision —which amounts to a refusal to rank hockey as a first class sport—is significant. At the same time, the withholding of Blues is assigned as a contributing cause for the poor eleven Oxford appears to have this season. That, again, if it be true is a significant fact, which may suggest a reason for the statement that hockey to-day is no better played than say, ten years ago. For it indicates pretty plainly that at Oxford the game is not thought worth the playing without some reward greater than the honor of appearing for the University. County matches reveal a similarly unhappy state of affairs. For a recent game the secretary of a county association had to approach as many as players before he could get an eleven together. Even for the international contests there is a want of keenness. There are often several withdrawals from the chosen side.

Hockey is well managed according to the views of those responsible for its welfare, despite the little squabbles which are for ever cropping up with regard to the rules. It does not need any stimulant, we are told, in the shape of cup competitions and leagues, though for some queer reason an exception is made with regard to the Army. But it does need something to bring about a general improvement in the play, a greater interest and more inducement for teams to excel. A match between, say, Hampstead and Beckenham may satisfy all these requirements, but games between lower grade clubs are all too casual and wanting in seriousness for the play to be really good.

It is the experience in all branches of sport that competitive interest is the surest way of bringing the best out of a man, but so far as hockey is concerned the first principle of the creed is "There shall be no leagues or prizes," and it is repeated fiercely whenever the old question of competition is raised. But even the Amateur Football Association has its leagues and cup competitions, and a still more striking instance is the introduction of an athletic competition at Cambridge, which has brought about a wonderful revival in this old-time branch of Varsity sport. But what is good for A.F.A. football, Cambridge athletics and almost all other amateur sports would, for some fancied reason that has never been made clear, be harmful to hockey. The sentimentalist in sport is an intolerant person of strong prejudices, and those responsible for the management of the game may yet be forced to take a wider view of what is good for hockey.—London Chronicle

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

About 40,000 people without homes are nightly sheltered in common lodging-houses in London, England.

The deepest coal-pit shaft in the world is at Wearmouth Colliery. It is 230 fathoms deep and 16 feet wide.

Spain has more sunshine than any country in Europe. The yearly average is 3,000 hours; in England it is 1,400.

The "Weather Forecasts" which appear in the morning papers of Great Britain each day cost the country $30,000 a year.

It takes about twenty seconds for a short message to go from one end of the Atlantic cable to the other. This is about 100 miles a second.

The German Emperor has just purchased six new motor-cars. The Kaiser now possesses twenty-four passenger cars and four luggage cars, and he employs fifty-two chauffeurs.

Many firms are selling their old films to boot manufacturers or leather dressers, who treat the celluloid by chemical process and use it for making the gloss on patent leather boots and shoes.

According to Mr. J. Akers, the British Commissioner, as the result of an outlay of $81,000 by British manufacturers at the Buenos Ayres Exhibition last year, orders have reached the Old Country amounting to some $15,000,000.

Holding a visitation at Bugsworth and Chinley, an outlying district of the parish of Glossop, the Bishop of Southwell said it was a most unique parish. He knew of no other place where the vicar lived a two-and-a-half-hours' train journey from another part of his parish.

Glass that is unbreakable has been produced for the first time at Baccarat, France. The new process has been successfully applied to the manufacture of lamp-chimneys for use in coal-mines containing much fire-damp. The glass-makers of Baccarat have also succeeded in increasing the elasticity of the glass.

A novel method of cutting down trees has been devised by a Berlin inventor. It consists in the use of a fine steel wire, which is looped about the tree and sawed back and forth by an electric motor. The heat generated is sufficient to burn a thin channel through the wood. A tree 20 inches in diameter can be felled in six minutes.

The organ in the city hall at Hull, Eng., is only surpassed by one other in the surrounding country—the instrument at Colston Hall, Bristol. The Hull organ has five manuals, and among the stops are a complete orchestral set of timpani, besides other percussion instruments; the instrument is an orchestra in itself. Two 10-h.p. motors are used for the bellows. The smallest pipe weighs half an ounce, and the largest half a ton.

The process consists in the reduction of the oil of the Soya bean to a thick tough liquid through the addition of nitric acid. After further treatment with alkaloid solutions the mixture is heated to 150 degrees, giving a tough, highly elastic product similar to rubber, which can be vulcanized by the same process as rubber.

The menu of a wedding feast in a small Hungarian village is reported from Vienna. The wedding rejoicings started on a Monday afternoon and lasted until Thursday night. There were 1,400 guests, and they consumed an ox roasted whole, eight calves, six lambs, 650 geese, 25 turkeys, 1,200 chickens, 60 pigeons, 3,400 loaves, 400 tins of biscuits, 2 hundred weight of rice, 1,320 gallons of wine, and 100 barrels of beer. Five bands played during the entertainment.

Mme. Rodier, wife of a landowner at Borne, in Holland, had a rather peculiar experience. The good lady, who rejoices in the possession of a large picture-hat of realistic floral design, was sitting dosing in her garden when a swarm of bees surrounded her and settled on the hat. Waking up and realising the danger of the situation, with great presence of mind she went over to an empty hive and shook her hat into it, whereupon the bees took possession. Mme. Rodier escaped scathless.

A USEFUL DOUBLE

Only recently, Mr. Birchington discovered that his office-boy was one of twins, and it came about in this way. One Monday he absented himself from his duties, and was naturally called upon for an explanation on Tuesday.

"Went to another job," was his terse reply.

"Oh! So you'll be leaving us, I presume?" said his employer.

"No; don't think I'd be so hard on you as that. But, you see, it's like this. My brother Dick, he got a job last week, to start yesterday, where he was to get paid by the hour. Well, come yesterday he was so sick he couldn't go; and so, of course, I put on his clothes and went. We're twins, and I get paid here whether I work or not, and he don't. See?"

The members of the chapter were entertained at dinner by Canon Davidson at the rectory, and addresses were given by Rev. R. B. Grobb and Prof. Coleman.

The proposed revision of the Prayer Book was discussed when the session resumed, papers being read by Rev. Wm. Burns and Rev. Canon Davidson.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—Two indictments, each containing counts of bribery and attempted corruption, were returned yesterday by the county Grand Jury, against Clarence S. Darrow, of Chicago, formerly chief counsel for the McNamara brothers. The bills allege that he furnished the money out of the McNamara defence fund bribed Robert Bain, a juror sworn to try James B. McNamara, the confessed dynamiter and murderer, and George N. Lockwood, a veniremen.

That maximum penalty that could be imposed on Darrow for conviction on all counts is 30 years imprisonment and fines aggregating $10,000. He is under $20,000 bail.

THE ART OF STEWING

A Good Stew is a Very Delicious and Nutritious Dish.

Yes, it is an Art, fair readers, though I can see you turn up your noses at the very suggestion. Yes, and a stew—a good stew—is a very delicious and a most nutritious dish.

Many people seem to think that all that is required for a stew is to put pieces of meat, cooked or uncooked, according to taste, with any vegetables at hand, into a pot on the fire, and then leave it to take care of itself.

Small wonder that a stew is looked on with scorn!

To begin with, to stew is to cook at slow, even heat. Bring up the contents of the pan to near boiling point; then stand it at the side of the fire, and gently simmer till cooked. A stew will not take care of itself on a coal stove, for if the fire gets low, so does the temperature of the pot, and actual cooking ceases.

With gas it is different, for, having regulated your flame to a nicety, the stewing will go on gently until the flame is altered.

Now as to the merits of the stew.

It is economical and nourishing.

Economical because the coarsest, and consequently the cheapest, pieces of meat are by slow cooking rendered palatable.

Nourishing because all the juices of the meat and vegetables are in the meat and gravy, and nothing is thrown away.

So if you wish stews to be appreciated give care and time to their preparation, and success will crown your efforts. When preparing a stew, cut the meat into neat pieces, and if it is raw melt some dripping in your pan, and cook the meat in it till nicely browned. Then take up the meat and fry the vegetables lightly, and put them with the meat. Stir into the fat a level tablespoonful of flour, and when perfectly smooth, add a pint of gravy or water. Stir till it boils, then color, and flavor nicely with pepper and salt. Put the meat and vegetables back and stew gently for two hours. This is a rough, general idea of how stews should be done.

For Irish stew the meat does not require frying, but is put on with the vegetables, brought to the boil, and then stewed slowly for two hours, or two hours and a half.

Again, a delicious white stew of veal can be made by cutting the veal in pieces, and cooking it in milk and water, with an onion, a small blade of mace, and a few herbs. Let it cook slowly for an hour and a half, and then add three or four ounces of macaroni and cook for about half an hour longer. Serve the macaroni arranged round the dish with a garnish of chopped parsley, and the meat in the centre with a few rolls of fried bacon on it.—Exchange.

WHEN TO MARRY

Age is Not the Important Factor, Several Writers Say.

A number of prominent women have recently given their opinions on what is the right age for marriage. Mme. Sarah Grand says, "That the time to marry must vary according to temperament." "All should marry in their own class in life, in their own professions" is the advice given by Mrs. Kendall. According to Miss Fanny Brough, the best time is twenty-one. Mme. Bernhardt would say to the man: "Look for a wife who will be your companion." To a woman: "Seek a man whom you can trust to be a sympathetic protector." Mr. Plowden is convinced "that marriage is an experiment. The most that can be said is, that when it turns out happily, the age was not badly chosen; but even so it might have been earlier."

COAT OF NEAR-SEAL

"Twill be a "furry" season—weather permitting, and never has there been such a rich display of handsome skins. Manufacturers seem to have reached the high mark of perfection with near-seal, and are showing wonderfully good-looking coats in this fur. The shorter models are made somewhat dressy, with trimmings of lace jabots and large fancy buttons, and are exceedingly popular for afternoon wear.

LITTLE NELL

"God bless dadda, mamma, George, Elsie, an'—an' the wee dog ablow the bed," and then there was a long pause.

The little boy raised his head from his mother's lap and showed a very red face.

"What wee dog, John?" asked mamma Fulton.

John looked round, but Elsie and George had left the kitchen. He tried to speak, but instead of words came tears.

Mamma Fulton took his hand, raised him up, and led him to the room. A moment later she called, "Dadda, come here a minute."

Dadda Fulton laid down his paper, and walked to the room.

"Just see what's under the bed," said Mamma Fulton.

He went down on his knees and looked under the boy's bed. There was a little black heap near the wall. He crawled under the bed, took hold of it, and dragged it into the light.

"Who brought this here?" he asked, somewhat sternly.

All the children were now crying. George was the eldest—he was a plump little fellow of nine—and the others looked to him to reply.

"Oh, dad, it was lyin' doon in the close; it couldna walk, and some big boys were tormentin' it, so we were gein' it a wee rest—just till the mornin'."

Dadda looked closely at the little terrier, with its coat and legs all splashed with mud, and saw that one of its paws was stained with blood. He lifted up the dog tenderly, carried it to the kitchen, and placed it on the rug before the fire. He gave it some food, and then it lay down as if it could keep awake no longer.

The children were satisfied, and went to bed happy.

The little dog was very lame, and was allowed to stay with the Fultons until it could run about with comfort.

Nell, as the children named it, was given a good bath in the washhouse. She lost her torn and tattered look, and became trim and smart. She and the children were soon fast friends. They loved to gather round the fire and play on the hearthrug.

As the days passed Dadda and Mamma Fulton began to look seriously at Nell. They were very poor, and had no money for a dog license. So they had to make up their minds to send Nell away. They often talked of the matter when the children were asleep without being able to decide what to do.

"I hate tae disappoint the weans," said Dadda Fulton, "but Nell must go."

It was Saturday afternoon. The dinner dishes had been washed and put away. George, Elsie, and John were given their weekly halfpennies and sent out to spend them. Nell was not allowed to go with them, so she curled herself up in front of the fire and blinked at the dancing flames.

Dadda Fulton put on his cap, took her in his arms, and went out. When he reached the closemouth he looked about to see if the children were near. Ah, there they were on the other side of the street looking at the good things in the window of a sweetshop and wanting to buy the lot.

He hurried down the street and was soon out of sight. He walked on for a long time till he reached Glasgow King William's Statue and ran away.

Nell did not waste a minute, but followed him at once. Dadda Fulton tried to slip into the underground railway station, but Nell was too sharp for him. She soon caught up to him and trotted by his side.

The Cross was very busy. Men and women were standing about or jostling each other on the pavement. Cars, vans, lorries, and barrows were passing from every corner.

Dadda Fulton tried to get away from Nell in the crowd, but she kept too close to him. At last, feeling like one who has done something very wrong, he jumped on a car going east and hurried upstairs. When he reached the top he turned and saw poor Nell standing at the Cross and gazing after the car as if she did not know what to do. She was such a forlorn-looking little creature that Dadda Fulton felt very miserable at having deserted her.

He was very quiet that afternoon as he sat in his wooden armchair with his feet on the fender and a newspaper in his hand.

Mamma Fulton had gone out to buy the Sunday dinner.

Suddenly there was a great noise on the stair. He rose and opened the door. In rushed the three children—Elsie crying, John spluttering with excitement, and George carrying Nell—poor, dirty, battered Nell.

"What's this?" asked Dadda Fulton.

"Oh, dadda," began Elsie—

"Elsie was nearly rin ower," cried John.

"Ay, but Nell saved her," said George, with a smile and a pat for the little dog.

When the children were quieted, the whole story was told.

Elsi had been crossing the street, careless of the horse and van coming rapidly towards her. She would have been knocked down had not a little dog given a bark and jumped at the horse's nose. The horse had turned aside and Elsie was saved, but Nell's forelegs were badly crushed.

Brave little Nell! Her glistening eyes showed the terrible pain she was suffering.

It took a long time to put her right again. At first Dadda Fulton had little hope of being able to save her. But she was saved, although she was never as sound in her limbs as before the accident. However, though lame and not beautiful, to Elsie, George, and John she was the dearest little doggie in all Glasgow.

As a decoration for her bravery, a nice blue ribbon was tied around her neck, and this she wore to the end of her days.

There was now no thought of putting her away. A license was bought, and Nell became one of the family.

Donaldsonville, La., Jan. 30.—Made insane by disastrous cane crop losses, Augustin LeBlanc, a sugar planter, 50 years old, committed suicide yesterday, on Souvenir Plantation by drowning.

Binding his ankles with a plough line and tying his wrists securely, LeBlanc, standing on a plank across an old style open sugar kettle used as a water trough for cattle, fell backward into four feet of water. One end of the plough line was attached to a fence and kept the feet up and the head submerged. Le Blanc lost practically everything by a succession of freezing during the recent cold wave.

OUR NEW STORY.

The Times has secured the right to publish the thrilling romance, entitled "The Cablenan", the opening chapter of which will begin on Saturday next, Feb. 3rd. This splendid story is written by Weatherby Chesney, which is sufficient to mark it as first-class. Do not miss it.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10.00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here, send me your address and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 857 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
5—Prostatic troubles.
6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
8—Sediment or cloudy appearance of urine.
9—Pimples in any part of the body.
10—Indigestion or pains in the heart.
11—Pain in the side.
12—Pain in the small of the back.
13—Pain or dragging in the kidneys.
14—Pain or swelling of the joints.
15—Pain and soreness in nerves.
16—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

MORGANSHUSTER CHEERED

London, Jan. 30.—The Persian Committee, composed of members of the House of Commons and other prominent men, gave a banquet last night in honor of Morgan Shuster, the American ex-Treasurer-General of Persia.

Replying to the accusation in the British papers that he lacked tact, Mr. Shuster declared that he had kept on the most cordial relations with the Russian and British Ministers at Teheran throughout. To the criticisms of his course in presenting Persia's case through the newspapers, he said that he had asked the Persians, "whether they preferred their country slain in a dark alley or that the crime should be committed in a public square," which evoked

Quebec, Jan. 30.—Onofrio Ross, who was supposed to be the murderer of an Italian at Bay St. Paul, and who was being looked for by the police to answer for the crime, happens to be the murdered man. ENGLAND'S SOCIAL REFORM.

Whatever may be said of Chancellor Lloyd George's radical political propaganda, which shows forth in such social revolutionary proposals as his national insurance scheme, there is no question that the burning enthusiasm of a social reformer is driving the Chancellor of the Exchequer along to the end that English life be re-created on an entirely new basis. His address before a Cardiff conference of clergymen and lay workers, met to discuss the relation of the church to social questions, reveals the mind and purpose of the Welsh statesman in his social reform legislative proposals. He was not present, he impressed upon the conference, to put forth any plea for any political programme but to help to rouse a spirit that will compel every party in its turn to deal with the social evils of the nation, to create an atmosphere in which it will be impossible for anybody to remain a ruler of the realm unless he deals with these social problems. Which by the way is an admirable statement of what the church's attitude should be toward practical political questions.

Then the Chancellor went on to emphasize the necessity for the community as a community dealing with slum problems, housing conditions, poverty and wretchedness in its many forms. These problems of magnitude could not be left to be dealt with by charity any more than the Army and Navy could be run by voluntary subscriptions. "If you depended for the defence of our shores," he said, "upon mere eloquent appeals to the patriotism and the sympathy and the humanity of the people, you could not build or maintain a navy of Chinese junos, in this country, —an illustration that went home. So in the same way Mr. Lloyd George reasoned that the state must look after the wretched conditions of the unfortunate, and he laid down the creed that it was incumbent upon those who had been blessed by Providence to make sacrifice for others, and that it was the business of the churches to insist upon the facts being known, upon every man realizing his own responsibility, upon every man realizing that he has got to sacrifice in order to help. The Chancellor's concluding illustration was effective. He said:—

"I wonder what would happen if during this Christmas those who have been sitting comfortably enjoying their Christmas dinner found at the height of the festival an invisible hand sliding a panel in the wall and opening a window and showing them another household, of men, women, and children like themselves, no worse, some of them—probably better—in all the essentials of character, huddled shivering in wretched dens. I tell you what would happen. Movement would be frozen in every heart, the conscience of the nation would be roused in a way it has never been roused before, the demand would rise from every quarter in this country that our rulers should do something to rid the land of this pestilence of wretchedness. It is the business of the church to open that window, to keep it open, to keep our eyes steadfast until that spectacle of wretchedness, woe, and despair shall have been transfigured into one of happiness and of hope."

THE WORLD OF FASHION

The Crinoline Model is Not Likely to be Revived.

There are two camps at the present moment in the dressmaking world and we are keenly interested in their fight for a leadership in the world of fashion. There are followers of the crinoline movement, and others of the statuesque line, but in the end the latter will be victorious from mere force of circumstances. There is no room for crinoline in an age when women are working in offices, like men, and must take up as little material place as a man. If she becomes aggressively voluminous in her skirts, she would raise a fresh barrier to her position. On the stage we have a pretty sure indication of the tastes of the day

USEFUL HINTS.

How to Light a Fire Without Sticks.

Take a newspaper, tear it into sheets, roll up like a walking stick, then roll round the hand, and push the end in to keep it a round shape. Four of these rounds will light a fire beautifully without any sticks, with small piece of coal on the top.

Sometimes the Steels of Corsets break through the cloth and cut the underclothing. To prevent this, cut piece of kid from an old pair of gloves, and sew over the top of each steel.

To Make Good Use of Old Kid Gloves.

The top of kid gloves make excellent iron-holders, through which the heat takes a long time to penetrate. Take three layers of kid, then add an outer covering of washing material.

To Soften Butter in Frosty Weather.

Rinse a basin with boiling water, and cover the butter with it. Don't fry the basin, as the steam softens the butter.

When stitching on a machine any material which contains stiffening, rub a piece of dry soap on the material where the needle is to penetrate. You will find that this keeps the thread from getting knotted, and renders the stuff much easier to sew.

When roasting pork, rub the skin well with olive oil before putting in the oven. This simple precaution renders it beautifully crisp and hard, and is much more tempting than the soft, tough skin one meets with so often in roast pork.

THE ONE-INCH BELT

Fashionable Waistband Offered in Many Materials.

The one-inch belt is among the latest novelties shown in London shops. This fashionable waistband can be purchased in various materials and colors with a buckle, which is sometimes considerably wider than the belt itself. Black satin or velvet belts of this type are much in evidence, and they are frequently trimmed with tiny metal buttons, and fastened with a buckle to match. The fringe which is now in vogue is also to be found on some of the new belts. It is used to con-seal the opening in front. The Jaeger cape, with its long tassels, is a popular form of girdle for the one-piece frock. The newest designs from Paris which are a couple of yards long are intended to be passed loosely round the waist either once or twice.

SLEEVE IRONING BOARD

Removably Attached to One End of Regular Ironing Board

An ironing board attachment that is designed especially for the ironing

Board Swings Out of Way

of sleeves of shirtwaists, "nighties," and other garments less frequently mentioned, has been invented by a New Jersey man. Unlike some other devices of the same nature, this one is removable. At the broad end of the big board is a clamping standard, through which a screw runs. Just inside of this standard is a short vertical bar. An iron upright has a flat plate extending at right angles at the bottom and with a hole in it, so that it may fit over the vertical bar. The screw is then screwed down and the upright clamped firmly in position. In the upper part of the upright the sleeve board, a small affair, is pivoted. It can be held out parallel to the main board when in use or swung around out of the way when not required, to save the trouble of removing the whole attachment.

TO CLEAN DECANTERS.

Grate or shave finely some soap, put it with a small quantity of fine ashes from the grate into the decanter; then pour in some warm water and cloudy ammonia, and shake the decanter for a minute or two. Then use a bottle brush which will reach every part of the decanter. When clean, rinse with clear cold water.

"These symptoms led me to believe that kidney disease was the root of all my troubles, so I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box the swelling was gone, my back was well and my heart no longer troubled me. I am now in the best of health, and I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Always strike at the root of the trouble. And in nine cases out of ten all women's troubles start with the Kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney

He was a granduncle of Mayor Bradburn, and was well known to many of the older citizens of Peterborough.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Greatest Invention of Age for Hoarseness Weak Throat

Nothing So Far Discovered Is So Beneficial to Public Speakers, Ministers, Singers and Teachers as CATARRHOZONE.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhozone cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes hoarseness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhozone keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety—unfitness of voice. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhozone, and credit is no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

Singer Recommends Catarrhozone.

"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as CATARRH.

"Being a professional singer, you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill.

"One year ago I read in the 'Progress' a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your God-sent invention, Catarrhozone.

"Believing in the merit of Catarrhozone, I tried it.

"Catarrhozone cured me and has been the means of my success.

"You are at liberty to use my name if it will help relieve some from suffering, and I will always remain.

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him and his testimonial for Catarrhozone is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhozone is to those suffering with throat weakness or catarrh.

Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely to your address by mail if price is forwarded to the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., or Kingston, Ont.

VERY PRACTICAL ARITHMETIC

Mental arithmetic on a melting day—and while the cool river gleamed tantalizingly from the school-room window? No wonder that small minds grew confused under the strain, and small calculators calculated with even smaller success.

"Now, boys," said the jovial dominie, who was himself aching for a swim, "here's your last problem today. See if any of you can get it right. Suppose I have a piece of beefsteak."

The boys supposed it obediently.

"And suppose I cut it into sixteen parts. What would you call those pieces?"

"Sixteenths!" piped a dozen voices.

"Right!" exclaimed the dominie. "And suppose each of these pieces were cut again into four pieces, what would they be?"

A dead, awful silence reigned, while the small brains worked desperately. Suddenly a hand was held up, and one of the lightning calculators cried:

"Hash!"

How a Woman May Retain Her Youth

"The woman who wants to look young must taboo massage creams and liquid rouge. She will only hasten the structure of her face and destroy the fine texture of the skin", said Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, the well-known autnor, to a Chicago Journal representative.

"Reputable physicians have declared that if she indulges in artificial methods she risks losing her health," she continued. A perfectly natural method of treating a bad complexion is by using ordinary mercolized wax, as this adds nothing to the complexion, but removes the latter instead. This wax, obtainable at any drug store, flakes off the sallow or blotchy outer skin in fine particles, gently, without harming the skin beneath, which gradually makes its appearance. The brilliantly beautiful complexion thus obtained is a new one—quite different from a patched-up old complexion. This is one way to retain youthful looks.

APSLEY.

The annual meeting of the patrons of the Apsley Cheese Factory was held in the town hall, Saturday, January 27th. There was a fairly large attendance and arrangements made for milk drawing, manufacturing cheese, etc.

Mr. Harry McIlmoyle was elected president; Robt. T. Hales, secretary treasurer and salesman.

A little excitement was caused by an outsider who undertook to tell the patrons how to run a factory, the argument was continued outside the hall until both parties got heated and it ended in a small sized wrestling match nobody hurt.

The Hall of Wisdom.

Another meeting of importance was held in the hall of Wisdom Saturday evening, very few members turned out. Anvil Jim in the chair. Uncle Billy came up and complained about the janitor not attending to his duties, as the hall was very cold. President Jim apologized and stated he would look after him in the future. There was an excuse this time as he was in a big game of pedro with weather prophet Ben.

Sandy moved that the club should purchase a desk phone for the hall. Treasurer B. F. objected, as there was only $18 in the treasury. Motion lost.

Resolved that at the next meeting all members shall attend and bring an armful of wood from their own pile, or someone else's.

Three applications for membership were received, one from the village of Peterborough, handed to the committee of investigation. Fatty William could not attend, having a contract on hand of more importance, but hopes to attend and report at next regular meeting one month from date.

The anvil chorus was beautifully rendered by Alex. and then Duncan sang the closing ode, accompanied by Uncle Billy on the Jews harp, and the meeting was closed in due and ancient form.

APSLEY TELEPHONE COMPANY.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Apsley Telephone Co. was held in the town hall, Apsley, Thursday evening, January 25th. The attendance was not as large as expected, still a good many came out despite the cold weather. In the absence of the President, D. Brown was elected chairman of the meeting. The auditors' report was read and adopted.

During 1911 the company had built 14 miles of new lines, fully equipped, at a cost of $640.00, and all paid for, with the exception of about $20.00, and rents of phones coming in will soon cover that. As an asset the company has on hand $475.00 in phones and equipments.

On motion Mr. D. Whitmore was elected director in the place of Mr. B. T. Coones, resigned. The other directors were re-elected for 1912. Mr. Levi Bullied was appointed auditor for 1912. As the company had been to extra expense building new lines, no dividends will be paid this year. At the close of the annual meeting, the directors were called for business. On motion Mr. D. Brown was elected president for the ensuing year; Alex. A. McColl, vice-president; Wm. Gallon, Sec.-Treasurer.

On motion it was decided that each subscriber having a phone, have the privilege of calling central once per day free, but if more than once then a charge of 2c for each extra call per day; and also that there must be a stop put to interfering with the line when business messages are going children who make a practice of using the line, one would think, intentionally to annoy. If not stopped the directors will be compelled to remove the phones from such places.

The telephone is a great convenience and it's too bad to make a play toy of it. A call was trying to get through to Coe Hill for a doctor and it was impossible to get the message through for some time.

atic relations with Russia, an act which might result in an uprising of many of the discontented Catholic provinces. This was in a measure effective, but less violent persecutions continued throughout the year, as the criminal prosecution of priests for administering the sacrament.

Despite these conditions, it is pointed out that the church has continued to grow steadily during the past year. There was hardly a month that the pope did not have occasion to create new prefectures, vicariates and dioceses, while the recent rehabilitation of the Sacred College served again to show the full strength of the church. As a consequence, it is predicted in Vatican circles that having thus fulfilled his self-imposed task of observing the year 1911 as one of mourning, Pope Pius will endeavor to more than compensate for it during the coming year by a full resumption of the big religious ceremonies at St. Peter's and the Vatican.

BRITAIN GETS WIRELESS LINK UP WHOLE EMPIRE

SHARES OF THE MARCONI COMPANY GO SOARING—ANNOUNCEMENT SOON COMING.

Enormous Developments Made Possible by the New Arrangement With British Government.

New York, Feb. 1.—The London correspondent of the New York Times cables that he has the best authority for announcing that the negotiations which have been on between the British Government and the Marconi Co., for over a year, rumors of which resulted in wireless shares recently rising from 14s. are now completed.

In fact, the arrangements arrived at between representatives of the British post-office and the Marconi Co. only requires certain formal signatures, which in the case of ordinary business would have been forthcoming yesterday, but in the present instance are delayed by the red tapeism of the Government departments.

Under the new scheme the Marconi Co. will be in a position to make enormous developments. While it is as yet impossible to give details, it can be said that the contract in itself is a system of wireless communication between all the British Dominions throughout the world. Every part of the Empire will be linked by an immaterial chain formed out of the encircling ether.

EARLY DEATH OF RICHESON

Boston, Mass, Feb. 1. INDLY Sheriff Quinn has declared that the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson was dying in his cell. Dr. George A. Sargent said last night that he saw no indications of fatal decline in the prisoner.

"I regard Richeson as a dying man knowing approximately the day of his death." Sheriff Quinn told the members of the city council committee on prisons at the Charles street jail when the committee called there on the semi-annual tour of inspection.

The Sheriff gave that reason for declining to allow any one except the

So AGREED THE PROPERTY COMMITTEE LAST NIGHT.

A Garbage By-law May Be Enforced With a Given Central Area One Year as an Experiment—Difficulty May Be Experienced in Securing Dumping Ground for Ashes, Etc. —Garbage Will Have to be Burned

The City's Property Committee met last night. There were present Mayor Bradburn, Chairman Ald. Geo. [illegible]

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That the chairman and Mr. E. H. D. Hall, be authorized to purchase two brass tablets to commemorate the gifts to the Public Library, by the late Mrs. Nicholls and Mr. Andrew Carnegie. These tablets to be placed in the library.—Carried.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall is chairman of the Public Library Board.

Mr. R. Sheehy was present and again objected to paying $18 a year rental for the vacant land on the water front on which he keeps a quantity of heavy stone. Mr. Sheehy offered that he would not use the place at all had he the opportunity for utilizing the stone, which would cost considerable to remove.

His Worship took exception to Mr. Sheehy's action in not waiting upon the Council until after being billed twice.

Mr. Sheehy replied that he had done so in writing. He would not object to the rent were he using the property in a business way; but he is only keeping the stone there because there is no call for it at present. The present rental would soon eat up the value of the stone in question. $10 a year would, he considered, be a liberal rental, especially as the city is not suffering for want of the lot.

Mr. Sheehy's bill for one year and three months is $22.17. The original rental was $25 a year, but was subsequently reduced to $18 in consideration of Mr. Sheehy not actually doing business on the ground.

His Worship moved, seconded by Ald. Brown, that Mr. Sheehy's account up to December 1st 1911 be $15; and that thereafter the rent be $10 a year with the understanding that should the land be required by the city at any time he remove the stone on one month's notice.—Carried.

GARBAGE BY-LAW.

The Committee here took up the old garbage By-law prepared in Ald. Geo. Elliott's time, and discussed its premises. This measure provides for the collection of garbage and refuse by corporation scavengers. This by-law was not definitely acted upon.

His Worship offered that the committee should first define the limits within which the by-law would be enforced and the method of paying for its enactment.—from house to house or in taxes.

Ald. Duncan inclined to the policy of licencing a couple of men to collect garbage and charge their own fees. This might be done a year on trial. The fees would of course be regulated by the city council.

The Mayor thought that for a trial the garbage might be collected from the centre of the city.—say Smith to Perry streets and the river to Park street,—and the sanitary inspector collect the fees from house to house. It would be necessary, however, first to secure a place on which to dump the garbage, and would also be advisable to ascertain if any one is willing to undertake the removal of same under contract. Garbage and refuse should be removed perhaps three times a week during June, July and August—the hot months — and once a week the remaining months. Committee thought it would be advisable to enforce a garbage by-law for one year, as an experiment in a central district, the following:

From Edinburgh street south to Dalhousie street south from the river on the east and Reid street west.

It was also informally agreed that the cost of removing garbage and refuse from whatever district is eventually decided upon should go on the tax bills.

Medical Health Officer suggested that the garbage will have to be kept separate from the ashes and incinerated. It would be very acceptable could arrangements be made with the Peterborough Lumber Company to burn garbage in their incinerator.

Ald. Duncan was afraid that finding a suitable dumping ground for ashes, tins, etc., is going to prove a difficult problem.

Dr. McPherson advised that were a public abbatoir erected, an incinerator adjacent thereto, would be necessary, and garbage could be burnt in that.

Moved by Ald. Brown and seconded by Ald. Morgan,—that the Mayor and chairman be instructed to enquire as to a suitable dumping ground for garbage and refuse, and ascertain if it is possible to get a contractor for carrying out a garbage by-law within a given district.—Carried.

As to the exact district to be covered, on a year's trial, no definite action was taken pending enquiry as to the size of an area one contractor could satisfactorily handle.

The committee decided that it would be advisable for the city to supply the wagons.

WHO WILL BE SANITARY INSPECTOR.

Moved by Ald. Morgan seconded by Ald. Brown,—that a sanitary inspector be appointed and the appointment be made on recommendation of the Property Committee. And that the applicants for the position be advertised for. Applications to be received up to four o'clock Thursday afternoon next.

TREES FOR PARKS.

Moved by the Mayor, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—that the chairman and Ald. Brown get an estimate for the number of trees required for parks, and the necessary garding and additions therefor.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Brown,—that the milk by-law be printed and each milk vendor be supplied with a copy thereof.

A NEW PLAN TO AFFECT PEACE AMONG NATIONS

German Citizen Has Scheme Which He Hopes Will Bring About Reconciliation Between Germany and England—Will Mean Canada Will Get Greenland

Berlin, Jan. 31.—The recent visit of King Frederick of Denmark, who although travelling incognito, had a very long conference with the Kaiser and the German Secretary of Foreign Affairs, is now said here to be likely to mark the beginning of a new policy of Germany toward the Danish population of North Schleswig.

A German, Robert Stein, is the originator of the plan which the Danish king is supposed to have laid before the Kaiser and the head of Germany's foreign politics.

Mr. Stein, whose plan has been heartily endorsed by Professor George Brandles of the University of Copenhagen, believes to have found a way to bring about a reconciliation between Germany and England, which has created quite a stir in the German press, because it really seems likely to create a lasting harmony between the Powers of Europe, a harmony which will soon be an absolute necessity if Europe is not to run the risk of being overwhelmed by the untold millions of Asia. If England loses India, and Japan and China, after training their armies after German pattern, from an offensive alliance, the doom of Europe is certain unless it stands absolutely united.

Must Find a Way.

In Germany the feeling is annually growing stronger that a way must be found to make Denmark forget her losses of 1864 and that it was a serious blunder on the part of Germany not to allow Denmark to remain in possession of the Danish-speaking part of Schleswig, because this has caused the Danes to hate Germany even now almost fifty years after the war, and the friendship or enmity of Denmark is to Germany of an importance altogether out of proportion to the diminutive size of the little kingdom, first, because Denmark possesses the key to the Baltic, second because Norway and Sweden stand behind Denmark and third because the Danish royal family is closely connected by marriage or blood with the dynasties of England, Russia, Swedes, Norway and Greece and has been one of the principal causes of Germany's isolated position in Europe.

Monroe Doctrine Interferes.

Denmark has more than once been willing to give her possessions in the West Indies to Germany in exchange for Northern Schleswig, but this has been impossible because of the Monroe doctrine, but the plan which King Frederik of Denmark is supposed to have laid before the Kaiser is, that Denmark is to cede her three islands in the West Indies to the United States in exchange for some islands in the Philippines, which she will then in return cede to Germany in return for the northern part of Schleswig.

At the same time Denmark should cede Greenland to Canada or England and in return get several smaller British possessions in Africa, and these are then to be surrendered to the Kaiser in return for a further slice of the Danish-speaking Schleswig.

The plan is almost sure to meet with the warm approval of the German people and its success would only depend on the approval of the United States, and there is a feeling here that America can have no objections, as it would get possession of the harbor of St. Thomas, which is the finest in all the West Indies and which will be of enormous value to the United States, when the Panama Canal is opened. Aside from this, the exchange of possessions would mean an enormous stride forward towards the establishment of universal peace.

SCENE WHEN DRAGON FLAG WAS HURLED DOWN

HOW THE LARGEST PROVINCE IN CHINA PROCLAIMED ITS INDEPENDENCE AND ESTABLISHED REPUBLIC.

Viceroy, Who Had Slain Thousands of Rebels, Joined New Movement —Has Taken From Jail and Made Ruler of Seventy Million People.

Chengtu, Sze. Chuan, Nov. 25. — Yesterday at the soldiers' camp adjoining our premises we saw the dragon flag of old China for the last time. This morning when we arose the flag of the Chinese Republic was flying instead, and most of the troops were going around with a white band on their sleeves, a sign that they had gone over. The majority of the shops had the new flag hung out, and the streets were crowded with a good-natured, merry-making crowd.

For the first time in three months the city was itself again, and the people threw off the gloom that had encompassed them about of late. Every minute or two as we went along the street we saw Chinese attired in foreign dress and minus the queue. More numerous still were those whose means only permitted the purchase of a foreign cap and perhaps a pair of boots.

DISOBEYED ORDERS

On the way to the Imperial City, in the heart of Shengtu, where the Declaration of Independence was read, (we plead guilty to going out against consular colors), we passed a shop that was doing a roaring business in cheap Chinese-made foreign style caps. They were sold out in no time—also the shops that made imitation foreign shoes—and in a week's time there will probably be hundreds of places manufacturing them.

There are one or two so-called foreign tailors in the city, and they will certainly reap a harvest. Just now the unsettled condition of China paralyzes foreign trade, but the first travelers for woollen goods houses that strikes the neighborhood will probably be embarrassed with the plentitude of their orders. We venture to say that the purchase of dress goods materials next year for Chinese use will be 500 per cent. greater than in any previous year.

MISSIONARIES GREET PRESIDENT.

But to get back to the Imperial City. After the declaration of independence was read in the presence of tens of thousands of people, the newly-appointed president, Mr. Pu, held an informal reception in the inner court, and a number of foreigners who ventured over there were rewarded with an introduction to him, and to the vice-president, Chu Tongling (who is also commander of the troops of the republic). The tide of fortune has changed, and Messrs. Pu, Yen, Lah, and others, who a few days ago were languishing in jail, are now at the head of the government of the most populous province in China.

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by all dealers.

HOME RULE IS CHURCH WORK

Strong Resolution Passed at Political Meeting

A LONG STEP BACKWARD

Redmond a Tyrant and a Bigot — Strong Language Dealing With the Matter of Home Rule.

THE following resolution has been received by The Times with a request to publish it. It was passed at a meeting of the Carleton County Liberal-Conservative Association, and speaks for itself:

A Hot Resolution.

The resolution was as follows:

"We, the members of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the County of Carleton, Province of Ontario, in conference assembled, do declare:

"This association views with deep concern and misgiving the attempt now being made by the present British Government, at the dictation of the Irish Roman Catholic priesthood and the Roman Catholic society called the Ancient Order of Hibernians, to disrupt the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to place the Protestant minority in Ireland under the yoke of Rome.

"Realizing as we do the autocratic ambitious and intolerant spirit of the Roman hierarchy in Canada, as instanced in the infamous Ne Temere decree now causing such trouble here, the late assumption of the Eucharistic Congress, with its gratuitous insult to Protestantism as a soulless religion and the general aggressions and demands of the Papacy in defiance to our British liberties, we feel that if the Protestant people of England, Scotland and Wales, at the dictation of the Papist Nationalist agitators betray their fellow-Protestants in Ulster by passing Home Rule, they will be committing a grave crime, not only against Protestant and Papist Ireland, but against the welfare of the United Kingdom and the whole of the British Empire.

"We realize that too much false statement and one-sided opinion in [illegible] broadcast over this country by some secret organization and [illegible]

If Placed End to End—Splendid Additions to Fleet This Year—The Growing Pacific Trade.

FOR some time the development of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a transportation company has been the remarkable rapid extension of its fleet of ocean-going and lake steamships. It is not so very long since the steamships owned by the Company could be counted on the fingers of the hands, but a recent census taken by the steamship department discloses the fact that when the ships at present being built are added to those now in commission the C. P. R. will have a fleet of seventy-five steamships. If all of these steamships were placed end to end they would stretch a distance of nearly four miles.

The greatest development of the C.

SOCIETY IN APPROACHING LEVEL OF PAGAN ROME

DECLARES MEN HAVE LOST THEIR HOLD AND WOMEN GETTING UPPERHAND.

Father Bernard Vaughan Scores Lax System of Divorce and Marriage, Cradleless Nurseries, and Godless Education—Instead of Putting Christ at the Head, He is Given a Back Seat.

New York, Feb. 1.—Father Bernard Vaughan, the noted English Jesuit priest and orator, told an audience that crowded Carnegie Hall last night, that the greatest dangers threatening Society to-day are a lax system of divorce and marriage, cradleless nurseries and a system of education which removes Christ from the rank of head-master to a place in the back seat, and instead of drilling an army is only arming a mob. Only by restoring Christian principles in all things, he said, can society be saved from approaching the low level of pagan Rome in the muddiest stage of its "Muddy Golden Age."

Father Vaughan declared that present day society, "while not yet in the cemetery, is heading rapidly toward it." He instanced as one of the causes of the decadence of the age the careless system of divorce, which, if not improved, he said,

A NEW DECREE

BY J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

In response to an invitation to discuss this question, I may say that the bearing of the latest decree of His Holiness upon the relation of church and state is at least equally worthy of consideration with Ne Temere. The latest issue of "Rome" to reach this country contains the plain authoritative statement of the case of the new Quantavis decree. The latter proposes to excommunicate those who bring ecclesiastics before the courts, either civil or criminal. Had it not mentioned the courts then we would have been left to draw our own conclusions. But having mentioned them, not even the that those who depend upon the courts are directly concerned in the pronouncement. Herein, therefore, lies the great wisdom of the general reference proposed in the case of Ne Temere. A specific reference, such as attaches to a particular bill dealing with one phase (the marriage phase) might very easily be confined to that phase and thus if would leave the Quantavis unprovided for. But a general reference appertains to all the relations between the state and

CITY BOARD OF WORKS IN BRIEF BUSINESS SESSION

The City Board of Works met last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, chairman Ald. Buller, and Aldermen Duffus, Johnston, Anderson, Gillespie.

The Board will supply the tools, supplies, etc., needed at the South City Pumping Station, according to the chairman's judgment.

Chairman Ald. Buller suggested that the South City Pumping Station and plant be insured. The machinery in this building, apart from installation, cost $4,056.05. The chairman was authorized to enquire as to the advisability of insuring this plant, and what class of insurance could be put on with advantage to the city, especially in the case of fire resulting in damage to the motors.

CONVICTED OF GIVING POISON TO HIS WIFE

Allison M. McFarland Found Guilty of Murder—He Loved Another Woman—Wrote Her Many Letters

Newark, N.J., Feb. 1.—The jury in the case of Allison M. McFarland on trial for the murder of his wife by cyanide poisoning, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree just before midnight.

The conviction of McFarland was mainly on circumstantial evidence. His wife met her death on the night of October 17, last, when McFarland was absent from home, by taking cyanide of potassium, which the State allege McFarland had deliberately substituted for headache medicine which Mrs. McFarland was in the habit of taking. McFarland's declaration that he had told his wife about the cyanide and that if she took it by mistake it was by her own carelessness, were greatly offset by more than seventy letters which passed between McFarland and his former stenographer in Philadelphia, Florence Bromley, in order to marry whom the State alleged that MacFarland planned to get rid of his wife.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS THROUGHOUT ALASKA

Cordova, Alaska, Feb. 1.—Heavy earthquake shocks were felt yesterday throughout south-western Alaska and far into the interior. The tremors were felt on the coast as far west as Seward. Fairbanks, 350 miles inland, reports that it was severe in the Tanana Valley.

Four shocks were felt at Cordova, the first and most severe coming at 11.12 o'clock yesterday morning. Three lighter shocks followed at intervals of about an hour. The first shock lasted ten seconds and caused buildings to sway alarmingly. Everyone rushed into the street for safety, but no damage was done.

A wireless message from St. Paul Islands says all are well on Pribiloff Islands. Two weeks ago communication with the island was lost, and it was feared a severe earthquake was responsible, but the message last night said a severe gale wrecked the wireless apparatus.

Heavy rains are falling in the foothills, in unprecedented condition for this time of year.

PUBLIC OPINION

TOO MANY OFFICIALS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see it suggested that a sanitary inspector be appointed for the city. I understood that there already is such an officer. I think, Mr. Editor, we are getting far too many employees around the City Hall. Instead of putting on more men, I would suggest that the present number be reduced. This might be done by giving those we have something more to do. Let the Council go slow in adding any further burdens in the way of permanent officials.

MORE ABOUT DOGS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am very pleased to notice by the letters appearing in your valuable paper, that some of the citizens at least are alive to this beastly dog nuisance. Having been twice bitten by dogs I am a little sensitive on the dog question. As a citizen who is in favor of good civic government and a clean city, I trust that our wide-awake Mayor and business Aldermen will be alive to conditions as they exist in our midst, and will see that our streets are cleared of these mongrel curs. Thanking you Mr. Editor, for your valuable space

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorized capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company' and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,000, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

CANADIAN DEMAND FOR BINDER TWINE

United States Gets Advantage of Canada's Big Market—Unequal Competition has Hurt Home Industry

Last year there were over 537 million bushels of grain tied up in sheaf form in Canada. That is, binder twine was used for the harvesting of more than 537 million bushels of grain. This year the use of twine in this way was still greater, and as Canada's unbroken area of arable land becomes smaller and the growth of grain more extensive with the passing years, one can only guess at the volume of binder twine to be consumed in this country. Yet, with this most notable future stretching out before the binder twine industry, comparatively little of the product is made in Canada. Our market is really supplied by the United States.

Such a condition exists chiefly because of an unequal competition in the binder twine trade between Canada and the United States. The advantages are with the latter country, whose larger and older and more powerful industries have not only absolutely free access to the Canadian market, but also practically monopolize the valuable supplies of raw materials in the Phillipine Islands. Time was when the great part of the binder twine business of Canada was carried on by Canadian manufacturers. To-day, an overwhelmingly large share of this business is in the hands of the so-called Harvester Trust, which does not make a pound of twine in Canada, but sends it from mills located across the line.

Prior to April, 1897, the rate of duty payable on binder twine imported into Canada from the United States was 13½ per cent. At that time the industry was operated under Canadian auspices. From 1897 to 1898 the duty was only 10 per cent, but after January the first, 1898, the rate was removed altogether, and ever since free trade has existed in binder twine between the United States and Canada. The clearest and most forceful story of the effect of that particular reduction in the tariff is contained in the following statement of imports of twine into Canada from the United States since 1896.

1911—26,369,258 lbs.	2,088,423

The marked increase in the imports of binder twine after the removal of the duty, there being more than eight times the influx to-day that there was in the last fiscal year before our market was opened—has been responsible for the closing down of many large mills in Canada, and is one big reason why Canadians have to wait their money in this industry at the present time.

HARDWOODS SCARCE FURNITURE HIGH

Increase in Cost of Furniture Due to Small Supplies of Raw Materials.

While furniture has increased in cost in Canada more noticeably than almost any other manufactured product during the past twenty years, it is worth while observing that furniture in Canada to-day is not as expensive as in the United States, nor has it increased in cost during recent years as rapidly as in the latter country.

The average index price for furniture in 1890 as set by the Department of Labor was 97.4 and in 1909 had increased to 127.6, a gain of 30.2. The average price of bedroom sets in the United States in the same period changed from an index number of 113 to 145; bedroom chairs from 109.6 to 143.8, and kitchen tables from 103.9 to 138.6. This latter item showed in the United States a decided increase last years from 124.7 in January to 145.5 in December. Taking house furnishing goods as a whole in the United States, there was a decrease of only 0.1 per cent. in price, six of the fourteen articles noted by the department having decreased and five increased in Canada last year on the other hand, no change whatever occurred in the prices as represented in household furniture.

The chief reasons for the higher cost of furniture are increases in wages and in the prices of hardwoods. It is sometimes contended that the manufacturer who is helped and whose country's upbuilding is assisted by a properly regulated tariff, takes advantage of these circumstances by retaining old type of machinery and plant. The inference is that such a manufacturer competing with an up-to-date foreign plant uses the tariff to counterbalance the inferior results of his own plant. In Canada, this is not so. Notwithstanding the fact that there has been a marked improvement in the machinery for manufacturing furniture in this country during the past twenty years, which has enabled a finer finish to be placed on goods and more elaborate designs to be turned out with the same or less expenditure, the two factors noted—wages and hardwoods—have counterbalanced the effect of the superior machinery. Mr. H. R. MacMillan, of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, says that whatever can be done to encourage the production of hardwood in suitable localities in Canada should be done at once. Despite these adverse factors, the Government figures show that the average monthly price last year in Canada for kitchen chairs, common spindle, as an example, were $3.94 per dozen compared to an average monthly price in the United States of $5.50. Taking a longer period, the average price for the same article between 1890 and 1909 in the Dominion was $3.40 per dozen and in the United States $3.83.

OLD-TIME BETTING, THAT OF TO-DAY

How the Systems Differ—Kentucky Racing Free From Scandal

Pari Mutuel betting is just now having its first try-out in Canada Strange, perhaps, for book-making has been in vogue for 40 years.

It is believed that an Englishman by the name of Stanton began booking on the New York tracks He made money so quickly that many others were induced to follow It became so popular that it monopolized speculation on the running turf, the pool selling and the mutuels falling by the wayside.

With its growth and popularity, operations in bookmaking became so extensive as to overshadow the sport of racing itself. This aroused antagonism, that led to hostile legislation threatening the very existence of racing.

Within the past two years the real friends of racing set about restoring old-time methods of betting as a substitute for bookmaking. The pioneer horse breeding State of Kentucky, through its State racing commission, abolished bookmaking from its tracks substituting auction pools and mutuels in its stead. The result has been that Kentucky racing is free from scandal. The experiment has been extensively tried, and it is now more than probable that this method of betting will restore the sport to its old time standing in the entire country.

The distinct feature of this betting is that the public make their own odds. Another feature is the absolute fairness of the system. It is not difficult for one to understand its methods.

It is a method in which each backer invests what he pleases on the horse of his choice. The whole amount bet on all of the horses is aggregated on a pari mutuel after the race to those who have backed the winning horse. Betting is done by purchasing tickets representing the buyers' selection These tickets are sold generally at $2, $5 and $10 each, according to the amount the purchaser wishes to invest. The total amount invested on all of the horses, less the percentage charged by the association, is then divided among the holders of the winning tickets.

The machine registers each and every ticket sold as soon as it is sold These machines show plainly the number of tickets sold on each horse and also the number of tickets sold on all of the horses. The system gives tickets by the purchase of which the bettor can back a horse to win run second or third. The three machines are known by "straight," "place," and "show," thus any purchaser buying a ticket on any horse can tell at the time of his purchase how many tickets have been sold on his horse, as well as the total number of tickets sold on all of the horses.

At the start of each race an electric button is touched on the judges' stand, which automatically closes the machines, consequently when the tickets are printed it is impossible to purchase any more tickets. It will be seen that no one could have any object in view to alter the result of any particular race or bring about what one termed "fixed" races, as there is no division of money other than what the public invest themselves.

A BISHOP IN A DONKEY CART

When he was Suffragan Bishop of West and North-West London, England, the Bishop of Marlborough was one day seen riding in a costermonger's barrow through a London district. He was due to hold a confirmation, but on arriving at the railway-station he found that no conveyance to the church could be obtained. To walk the distance was impossible. The perplexed Bishop was about to abandon the appointment, when the humble costermonger's cart appeared. With sudden decision the matter was arranged, the Bishop scrambled on to the cart, the costermonger whipped up his donkey, and the episcopal chariot rattled through the High Street to its destination.

WATER FOR PRINCE RUPERT

City Engineer Thompson, of Seattle has been engaged to consult with Engineer Davis regarding a new waterworks for Prince Rupert, to cost $400,000. He believes enough water is in Woodworth Lake to supply at least 100,000 people, and if the water from the Shawatian River is drawn from, there is enough water to supply a million people.

CARIBOU IN THE WEST

Caribou are stated to have haunted Lake Athabaska in greater numbers than for some years. It is believed the excessive cold led them to take shelter in the thick timber fringing the northern shore of the lake.

FINDS GOUT MICROBE

Chickens with the gout form a novel exhibit of the Pasteur Institute. The chickens so afflicted are believed to mark a distinct forward step in the study of the germ theory, because Professor Metchnikoff believes he has succeeded in isolating a microbe responsible for this most painful ailment. The chickens were fed up a diet of horseflesh, and this food caused the increased growth of certain microbes in the intestines, and produced swelling of the joints just as occurs in gout in the human being. Prof. Metchnikoff is also convinced that the absorption of poisons from these same microbes of the intestines is the cause of degeneration of the organs of the body usually ascribed to old age.

The Canadian Mineral Rubber Company, of Toronto, have been awarded the contract for paving 30,000 square yards in Victoria. The amount of their tender is $1.15 per sq. There are some eighty-nine streets to be laid.

QUEBEC'S WONDERFUL INDUSTRIAL RESOURCES

The Province Has the Greatest Water Power on the Continent of North America

The Eastern portion of Canada is equipped as no other portion of the Dominion, or the continent, is for the industrial race. It is not generally known, for instance, that Quebec has at its back a single waterfall of far vaster power than Niagara. The minimum at Niagara Falls is 5,616,000 horse power. At the Grand Falls on the Hamilton River, the minimum available is 9,000,000 horse power. These falls have been visited by Mr. A. P. Low, in his capacity of Director of the Geological Survey of the Dominion, and he has officially confirmed the estimate of the almost inconceivable force of nine million horse power, declaring that there can be little doubt that these Falls will some day supply the greater part of the Province of Quebec with power. The Falls have a sheer drop of 312 feet, and a total drop of over 700 feet compared to a drop of 168 feet at Nigara.

The position that Quebec is bound to take, as the premier manufacturing region, of the whole continent is best illustrated by the following comparison of her water powers with those of the other parts of the Dominion, taken from a report by Mr J. B. Challies, C. E., of the Department of the Interior, on water powers in Canada.

Location	Min Flow	Pres nt Dev.
Yukon	470,000	.....
British Columbia	2,065,000	.....
Alberta	1 144,000	1 33
Saskatchewan	500 000	1,330
Manitoba	504,005	15,000
North-West Territ's	600,000	.....
Ontario	3,129,165	331,187
Quebec	17,075,939	50,000
New Brunswick	150,000	.....
Nova Scotia	54,300	13,300
Total	25,692,907	456,887

Is it any wonder that capital is pouring into Quebec for the establishment of every conceivable kind of manufactory? Is it any wonder that since Mr. Challies made the above computation a year or two ago, the development of water power in Quebec has more than quadrupled?

To-day along one single piece of car track on the island of Montreal, the track running from Montreal to the Lachine Rapids—there are no fewer than $80,000,000 of American money invested in industrial establishments. This is only an example of what is going on all over the East. Besides water powers the Province of Quebec has more forest wealth than any other region on the continent, and already employs in the lumber industry no fewer than 40,000 men, all of whom, like those in the factories must be numbered among the industrial and therefore consuming classes Many huge pulp and paper mills are now either under construction or in operation, besides water power in the outlying districts of the Province this industrial activity is attracting people from all over the English speaking world, the consequence being that the population of Quebec is not made up, as many suppose, of French-Canadian farmers, but of a bilingual, cosmopolitan people who are rapidly building up huge industries.

WHAT WILL THE CENSUS SHOW

There are Indications of Great Development in the Maritime Provinces

It will probably take the best part of the next twelve months to classify the census taken this year of manufactories, but it may be taken for granted that a huge total shown in the census for the year 1905 will be far exceeded, in view of the tremendous strides which have been made during the past five years in industrial development. In the Maritime Provinces alone, one sees New Brunswick becoming more and more industrial, while Nova Scotia is affording remarkable illustration of the industrial awakening of the East. From the great basic enterprises such as the iron and steel works at Sydney through all the ramifications of industrial enterprise, its towns and cities are rapidly forging to the front. It is true that the water powers of Nova Scotia are trifling compared with those of Quebec, but look at its coal fields. These comprise no fewer than 725 square miles, and the Dominion Coal Company alone, has to its certain knowledge enough coal in its holdings at Glace Bay to provide for an output of three and a half million tons per year for 1,000 years

At the census of manufactories in 1905 it was shown that Quebec had $251,730,182 invested in industrial enterprises, with 116,748 employes, producing products for the year to the value of $216,479,496. Nova Scotia had $74,599,538 invested, with an output of the value of $31,987,449. New Brunswick had $26,792,693 invested, with an output value of $23,138,951.

These are big figures. They show a total production as far back as 1905 of $270,599,896, enough to buy up the whole of the 1911 wheat crop in Western Canada, and still leave one million of dollars on hand.

THE GROWTH OF CANADA

Industrial Awakening in the East Brings Expansion to Many Industries

Canada, with its seven millions of population, already has a home market for her agriculture and manufactures of one-fifth of that of the United Kingdom. When we come to think that the United Kingdom imports her food supplies from all over the world, and that the foodstuffs that Canada sends her is but a drop in the bucket, it will be realized that Canadian agriculturists have already their own home market, by far the greatest source of wealth.

The purely consuming class—the urban and industrial class—is far greater in Canada than is generally supposed. For instance, the recent census, which, places our total population at just over seven millions shows that two and a half millions of this population, or one-third, or more than one-third are residents of towns and cities of over 4,000 population. An absolutely protected market of two and a half millions of town people, who already afford a portion of the consuming class of Canada is an asset of no mean importance to the agriculturists of the Dominion.

Another noteworthy fact shown by the census is that although the agricultural population of Western Canada has been increasing at a remarkable rate, the agricultural population in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces taking these as a unit, has remained stationary. Yet, despite the fact that the agricultural classes of this Eastern part of Canada have not increased the census shows that of the increase, of 1,720,734 in the population of Canada during the last ten years over one-fifth, namely 371,766, has to be accredited to Quebec Nova Scotia and New Brunswick Practically all this increase in the East has been in the urban or consuming population, comprised in the large towns, which between them shown an increase in population of 316,092.

Now this remarkable increase in the industrial population of Eastern Canada, which has afforded a proportionate increase in the market for the agriculturalists of the Dominion as well as magnificent opportunities for such of their sons as are fitted by natural endowments for industrial careers has largely taken place during the last five years, as is indicated by the fact that according to the Government census of manufactures in 1905, the number of industrial employes in Quebec had only increased by 6000 since 1900, in New Brunswick by 3,000 and in Nova Scotia by 800. Most of the 375,766 increase in population which these three Eastern provinces show, therefore, must have taken place in the last five years.

As a matter of fact, a great industrial awakening is taking place in the East. The [illegible] has uncovered the industrial resources of these provinces. Money is pouring in in a flood from Great Britain, from the United States and from Germany and France for the industrial development of Eastern Canada. Great steel and coal industries are being built up on the very shores of the Atlantic Ocean and during the past five years these industries have begun to compete in the markets of the world.

Great pulp and paper manufactories are springing up in Nova Brunswick and Quebec, and already are exporting their products to all parts of the world. Great mining industries are being established all over the East, and Quebec, whose mining resources have remained almost untouched while those of Ontario have been developing, has now entered in to the van of progress, a result of a complete revision of her mining laws These are only a few of the great basic industries. Hundreds of others are following in their wake. The East, in fact, is taking the place that Nature has fitted her to take—that of a great manufacturing country.

The phenomenal progress of some of the larger cities of the East, and notably of Montreal, is well known But without instancing any of the larger cities, a few examples of lesser known places will illustrate the general progress. Victoriaville Que with electrical power from Shawinigan Falls, increased her manufactured products from $274,000 in 1901 to $500,000 in 1905. Three Rivers, Que with power from natural gas, has increased from 9,000 to 14,000 in population. Fraserville, on the shores of the St. Lawrence, with unlimited water at its back, increased its manufactured products from $2[illegible] in 1906 to $600,000 in 1909. Jacques Cartier Que., with power from Shawinigan Falls, increased its manufactured products from $719,382 in 1[illegible] to $1,000,000 in 1909. Buckingham Que., with natural resources in lumber, phosphate, plumbago and iron increased its manufactured products from $265,900 to $[illegible] in 1905.

As far back as 1905—nearly before the great industrial awakening had begun—over $70,000,000 per annum was being paid out in wages in the factories of Quebec, Nova Scotia and the Maritime Provinces. Since then amount has more than doubled, in other words the amount paid out in wages in these provinces during the past year, must equal an amount sufficient to pay for a wheat crop of 140 million bushels at $1 per bushel.

Considering that factories only form a portion of the urban population. It will be seen that the consuming population of the East is a big factor in the well-being of the Dominion as a whole, and presents as it were, a view of the future for such provinces as Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia whose vast resources, now dormant must inevitably attract and concentrate the industrial classes of the individual would act, as duty to their country, neighbor, God and self only can direct.

WEST BELMONT.

Owing to the bad roads the attendance at the school has been very small during the past week.

Miss Mabel Elliott has returned after a two weeks' sojourn with friends in Campbellford.

A number of friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. Geo. McConnell on Thursday evening last when an enjoyable time was spent in music and games.

Miss J. Barrie and Mr. Bell of Cottesloe, were visitors at our Sunday School recently.

Mr. Percy McNeely of Donegal, spent Sunday at his home here.

A number of people from this vicinity spent an enjoyable evening last week at the home of Mr. Jos. McNeely, Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Buchanan and family visited friends in Dummer on Sunday.

Miss Irene and Messrs. Roy and Arthur Leeper were guests at the home of their uncle, Mr. David Barrie on Sunday.

Mr. John Buchanan of Belmont, visited at the home of Mr. S. J. McConnell recently.

Mrs. Marjory Faux of Norwood, visited friends in this vicinity on Saturday and Sunday.

COTTESLOE.

Jan. 29th, 1912.

The storm, if it continues throughout the night, will no doubt, block the roads. As yet the stage from here to Norwood has not missed a trip.

Rev. Mr. Moore, of Toronto, preached here on Sunday afternoon in the interests of Temperance, taking for his lesson Romans the XII Chapter. This discourse was very educative, and should arouse all persons to have the one aim. A temperance province then a temperance country. And how short a time until our ideal would be realized if each reader and each individual would act, as duty to their country, neighbor, God and self only can direct.

Mr. John Moore is hauling the year's wood to the school this week.

Mrs. John Saunders we are pleased to learn, is recovering.

Mr. Will Barrie is spending the week in the neighborhood.

Miss Lula Bell entertained her young friends to an enjoyable birthday party on Saturday.

The hockey match between Lakefield and Warsaw failed to make itself a reality through the non appearance of the former team.

A number of our young people are anticipating a good time on Friday evening, Forester's Ball, Norwood, being the attraction.

To-morrow, Jan. 30th, is the date set for Mr. Christie's auction sale of farm stock. We hope the weather man will be able to give out an acceptable day.

We have heard, much to the regret of the neighborhood, that Mr. Archie Patterson and family intend leaving or the west in March. Mr Boltin we understand, has rented the farm for a number of years.

First Official Visit.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the new indian agent for Chemong and Hiawatha reservations, paid his first official visit to the reserves last week. An Indian Council meeting was held at Hiawatha, being opened with prayer in the Indian language. Mr. Miller found everything in apple-pie order.

Change of Flagmen.

Mr. Arthur Reid, formerly flagman on the G.T.R. bridge at the locks, has taken the place of Mr. John Landry, flagman at the Reid street crossing, who retires on a pension.

Successful Pupils.

The following were successful pupils at the Conservatory of Music examination held last week: Miss Emma Hooper, junior piano pupil, of Miss McGill. Miss Jean Hill, intermediate piano examination, pupil of Miss Newman. Miss Laura Logan, intermediate violin, pupil of Miss J. Choate.

THE MORNING TIMES

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1912.

A BOUNTIFUL HARVEST.

"As a man soweth, so shall he reap;" and youth is the time in which he must do his sowing if the granary is not to be empty when old age overtakes him, as it surely will if he lives long enough. The making of money and the saving of money, as distinguished from the miserly love of money, should be the ambition of everyone; but it does not necessarily follow that if you make money you will have it in your old age, as many a one-time millionaire has died in the poor house. But if you take advantage of the Canadian Government Annuities system, and out of your wages, salary or income pay the amount fixed to be paid each week, month, or year, or as otherwise arranged, provision for old age may be made with absolute certainty and at much less cost than on any other safe plan. You may lose everything else you own but the Annuity cannot be lost or taken from you by any process of law, no matter how long you may live. Ask your Postmaster for literature on the subject, or write for the same to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa. Letters may be addressed free of postage.

AUSTRALIA'S DEFENCE BILL.

The people of Australia form what is probably the most advanced democracy in the world; certainly the most advanced in the British empire; and yet Australia, governed though it is by the Labor party, is spending far more on national defense than is any other country in the empire except Britain, either in the volume of expenditure or in proportion to population.

For defense purposes, including the naval subsidy of $1,000,000 payable to the British admiralty, says a writer in the Empire Review, the large sum of $11,300,000 is assigned for the current year, and an additional sum of $7,000,000 is set apart for fleet construction. By the end of June next about $15,000,000 out of the $20,000,000 required to complete the first fleet unit of one armored cruiser, three unarmored cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines will have been provided. Various military and naval works such as training establishments, factories for munitions of war, ranges, barracks, and the like are to cost nearly $3,750,000 besides. In all it is proposed to expend a sum of $21,400,000, not including the outlay in connection with wireless telegraph stations, for the protection of Australia. In other words national defense will this year cost almost $5 a head for every man, woman and child in the commonwealth. At the same rate of expenditure Canada's annual bill for national defense would be not far from $40,000,000.

They are not a warlike people these democratic Australians; but they are a proud and self-respecting people, and they don't want to have the whole burden of their defense fall on the mother country. They are determined to do their duty in the matter of empire defense. This spirit is strong in them, not in spite of their democratism, but because of it. They value their national institutions so much that, as loyal and patriotic citizens, they are willing to spend much to ensure their stability.

GOLD BUBBLE BURST.

But the Rush Made Big Money for Liverymen.

Manitonas, Man., Jan 30.—The gold bubble has burst. Experts stated last night that there is not sufficient gold here to make it worth while mining. Others say there is no gold here at all. The end came when the miners had a big indignation meeting and the views of those who had been duped were freely expressed. Statements were made by men who have mined gold in the Klondyke that they were positive there was no use working any of the hundreds of claims that had been staked. Last night the trains into this town were filled as usual with claimseekers and the livery men are all in a fair fortune in taking them miles into the country to stake. From a village of 200 the town has grown to 2000 in two weeks. There are many Americans here.

testant and Imperial false tolerance or indifference, has remained unanswered. As one instance, we may refer to the uncalled-for attack on that distinguished statesman and patriot, Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, in a late issue of The Ottawa Journal, accusing him of being a narrow bigot because he dares to stand for the principles and ideals of a third of the whole Irish people, the most representative portion in wealth, industry, intelligence and progressive ideals. This able, eloquent and forceful leader represents that great Irish community who believe in and practice modern social, political and religious freedom. They are the same people as we in Canada are, the same stock, good Protestants, Anglicans, Presbyterians, Methodists, who are in danger, if Home Rule passes, of being placed as the Protestants of Quebec are, where a Protestant church is alleged to have no status under the law, as the enforcement of the 'ne temere' decree has shown.

"We would also point out that it is not Carson who is the bigot, but his antagonist, Redmond, and the force behind him, who are the tyrants and bigots. To prove this we have only to instance one case, that of the monstrous condition now existing, whereby in the eighty Nationalist constituencies only fifteen elections have been allowed, and that in the remaining sixty-five the whole modern democratic principle of election of representatives by the people is completely superseded, and so-called representatives are forced without any election or even nomination on the part of the people. This is done by the Roman priesthood and the Ancient Order of Hibernians, an Irish-American Papist society. Yet we are told and asked to believe that the people of these sixty-five constituencies are demanding greater powers of self-government.

"Further, we feel that the present British Government in its form, is the best and strongest in the world, and that the attempt to supercede the strongest British central Government with its great Empire and world rulers by crude collections of localisms would be a step towards the disintegration and ultimate destruction of the United Kingdom and of the British Empire.

"We also take the occasion to deny that the Canadian people as a whole, or even as a representative minority, desire, or ever desired, Home Rule for Ireland, or were ever even seriously impressed by the reality of her so-called wrongs. That the very opposite is true, we strongly affirm. All Canadians who know our peculiar political condition are aware that the resolution in favor of Home Rule railroaded through the House of Commons some years ago by a Canadian professional Romanist, was allowed to pass the House of Commons, not through any real or superficial interest in the question, but from the desire of both political parties to retain or secure at the time the hived Irish papist vote. It was a most deplorable incident, and one not creditable to us as a people demanding autonomy, when we appreciate how these very Canadians would have resented the passing through the British House of a resolution favoring the separation of Quebec from the Dominion.

"We desire that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Sir Edward Carson."

Society Approaching Level of Pagan Rome

would be ruinous to the country. Socialism, in its various phases, he also assailed.

"Man and woman are in nothing alike," he said. "Each gives to the other what the other has not. Their union should be indissolute. Careless marriages bring about cradleless nurseries. The man and woman who come together and dictate terms of policy to God, who defy His will and ignore His inspiration, are playing a poor game. You are too heavily handicapped to run a race with God.

"Like decadent Rome, too, we are falling into thriftless lives. We want pleasure and we want it at once. We love pleasure instead of work. Recreation we need, but not dissipation. In the evenings, nowadays, men talk about the sport they have had, when they should say the sport they have not had. In such lives there is nothing uplifting. As a result to-day we are living in an age of suffragettes, because men have lost their hold and women are getting the upper hand.

FATAL BATTLE WITH BANDITS

One Robber, a Canadian, Was the Only One Captured—Two Committed Suicide.

Orleans, France, Feb. 1.—The police [illegible] act of stealing goods from the railroad depot. The thieves when they saw the police, and attempted to board an outgoing train, pursued by the gendarmes and station officials. The police fired at the thieves and the latter returned the fire. A regular fusilade followed. The substation master fell at the first fire, and then a police officer was shot. The train was still moving slowly when the police surrounded one of the bandits, who blew out his brains. A second member of the gang who was cornered was about to commit suicide also when he was brought down by a bullet in the leg and captured. A third bandit also killed himself, while the only remaining one escaped to the open fields.

In reply to questions, the wounded bandit said: "My name is Oscar Wild. I was born in Montreal, Canada, Dec. 27, 1881. I am the son of Francis Harry Wilson, and am a bronze decorator."

Wild, or Wilson, is a thickly-built man, with dark eyes and curly hair. He is said to be the same man who committed the Rue D'Orduer outrage. The two dead bandits were Frenchmen.

This extraordinary affair lasted five minutes, during which hundreds of shots were fired. Fifty men were after the man who was shot and captured. He was placed in jail.

When the train arrived at Etampes all the passengers were searched. One first-class passenger pulled out a revolver and shot himself. It was found afterwards that he was not involved in the Orleans robbery, but was wanted by the police, as he was recognized as a murderer and thief.

SENATOR COX HALF CENTURY

INTERESTING SKETCH COVERING 50 YEARS OF BUSINESS ACTIVITY.

We take the following from the Toronto Globe, which will be read with interest by many in this city and district:

When Hon. George A. Cox, President of the Canada Life Assurance Company, who will be the guest of honour at a banquet, commemorating the completion of his fifty years' service with that corporation at the Toronto Club last night, began the insurance business, he was entered in the Peterborough, of the vaults of Canada Life for inspection. It is dated December 10, 1862, and is a life policy for $1,000, with profits and a bonus payable at death.

A MATTER OF PREMIUMS.

The head office of the Canada Life was in Hamilton when it was issued, and the accompanying documents show that the directors divided up their printing with The Times and The Spectator. The premium on the first policy was $17.70 if paid annually and $9.10 if in semi-annual payments. Mr. Cox chose the double payment. It cost more, but to finance a disbursement of $17.70 all at once at that time was an undertaking a little beyond him. During the whole half century he has paid $9.10 premium each half year, although the "street" is pretty well convinced that it is sentiment, and not the necessity of spreading over his premiums, which prompts him in this. It is, in fact, considered probable that the head of the Canada Life could find $17.70 in his bank account almost any time. This view is emphasized by the evidence that his original policy is still in force. Insurance men will be interested in noting that its cash surrender value is $1,227, the life annuity being worth $169.96, and the amount payable in the event of his death $1,932.51.

PRESENTATION LAST NIGHT.

This is not the oldest policy on Senator Cox's life, it being preceded by one taken out in the Scottish Provident, so that the recipient of to-night's honors has made ample provision for his declining years. That this period is still far removed is evidenced by a snapshot taken of the veteran life insurance man going about his business on a winter's day. He is as active a figure in financial circles as ever.

There were some eighty representatives of the Canada Life from outside points at to-day's meeting and last night's banquet. The Vice-President, directors and principal officers of the company will present the President with a magnificent collection of silverware.

If you are troubled with chronic constipation, the mild and gentle effect of Chamberlain's Tablets makes them especially suited to your case. For sale by all dealers.

How Many Women Keep Young

"A woman may be old at 18 and young at 80," says Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, prominent Chicago clubwoman. "Years don't matter. Didn't Ninon de L'Enclos have a proposal at 90?"

The youth of our women is more lasting than it was a generation ago, because we are becoming acquainted with simple physiological laws. When the first aging marks appear—wrinkles, baggy cheeks, neck and chin—we realize that the cause is a loosening of the skin and softening of the tissue underneath. We know the cause must be removed. Instead of laying on pastes we send to the drug store for an ounce of saxolite and a half pint of witch hazel, mix them and bathe face, neck and hands in the solution. We know this tightens the skin, solidifies the tissue, induces a healthy circulation. We treat causes rather than effects. We use reason—and stay young.

THE CAMERA "SNAPPER"

An insignificant little man in a snuff-colored suit stood penitently in the dock.

"What is he charged with?" said the magistrate.

"He's one o' them camera fiends, your worship," explained the constable.

"But—" [illegible] "that's no reason for arresting him," exclaimed the magistrate. "Fleas are plentiful nuisances in holiday weather. Ha, ha!" No one else said "Ha, ha!" however, so the magistrate frowned sourly. "Do you mean to tell me," he cried angrily, "that you've arrested this poor fellow merely because he has a mania for taking pictures?"

"It isn't pictures he takes your worship," explained the constable stolidly. "It's cameras!"

NOT THE BEST BOY

A boy of tender years was returning from school the other day, crying bitterly.

"What ails you, my little fellow?" asked an old gentleman.

"I-I've lo-ost the p-penny the t-teacher gave for the best boy in the class," sobbed the boy.

"Oh, well, never mind," replied the old fellow. "Here is another one that will take its place. But tell me how you lost it."

"'Cause I wasn't the best boy in the class," replied the boy.

CONFIRMED SPINSTER

BY ARNOLD GOLSWORTHY

People in Bankford wondered why Marion Brett had never married, but only Marion herself knew the reason why. She was tall, and something in the proper look of the village was evidence of the sweetness of her disposition. Yet she lived with her mother in the little red-bricked cottage at the end of the village, and rarely accepted invitations out.

She had not remained single from any other choice than her own, for she had many opportunities of marrying, and, as she was now only six-and-twenty, there was every chance that she would have many more yet.

When the new rector came to Bankford, the gossips declared that they could see at once which way the wind was blowing, and to some extent they were correct. The rector, the Rev. Lionel Kinton, was a comparatively young man of thirty-five or so, tall and athletic, and well endowed with the goods of this world. He received embroidered slippers and tobacco pouches from almost every single lady of his congregation, but not from Marion. Perhaps it was for that reason that he became the more determined to make her acquaintance.

He called upon her mother, and left flowers from his garden and grapes from his hot-houses, and, with all the ingenuity of the ardent wooer, he found opportunities of waylaying Marion on her errands of mercy in the village, so that he might carry her parcels or lighten for her in other ways the burden of her self-imposed labors.

That Marion appreciated these attentions was clear, and gaining encouragement from her repeated protestations of smiling gratitude, Kinton began to think of her as already his. One evening, in her mother's garden, in the shadow of the tall bush of rhododendrons which she loved, he spoke to her of his hopes. The words seemed to come as a shock to Marion. She pleaded that she had no idea that he had been thinking of her in that way. She was very sorry, but she had resolved never to marry for reasons she could not explain—reasons that were sacred. She admitted that Kinton's friendship had been precious to her, and she could only hope that it might continue in spite of her refusal. And Kinton accepted the terms offered, always in the hope that he might one day succeed in breaking her strange resolve.

He learned from her mother that Marion had lost her heart to another man when she had been only eighteen, and although eight years is a long time in such matters, it would seem as if she had not yet forgotten the man she had once loved so well.

Mrs. Brett protested that she never knew why the two young people had parted, and indeed, Marion had never told her. Once it was necessary for Marion to have to admit that she had acted foolishly there was no reason why the admission should be made to anyone but herself. She had repented often of having sent John Paxley away, but her repentance had never brought him back.

John had been her affianced husband, and for that reason she had told him she objected to the marked attentions he seemed to be paying to Janet Wadham, one of her friends. The quarrel had been of the usual trivial nature to begin with, but it was not until John had positively attempted to justify his action that the matter had become serious.

The proud young girl of eighteen would have no suggestion of a divided allegiance, but her mention of her suspicions had cut the young man to the quick. After he had returned to his business in London, he wrote explaining the circumstances, and asking forgiveness; but with the wisdom of eighteen Marion had decided that his contrition was not adequately expressed, and she never answered his letter.

Shortly afterwards Marion received a shock. For reasons that no one seemed able to understand, John had thrown up a good position in the City and had gone to America. She heard of him once through his "people," to whom he had written saying he was going ranching in Texas, and needed a little money to start. Since then all had been silence.

Yet Marion had never ceased to think of John Paxley, and to remember him in her prayers. She had been thinking of him this morning as she came from a round in the village, carrying a rather heavy load of basins which she had taken out that morning full of soup for her invalid poor. Mr. Kinton had helped her to carry her burden then, and she found herself regretting that he was not by her side now, once more to give his welcome assistance.

Thoughts of John Paxley, the man whose life she had ruined by her caprice, sharpened the temper of even Lady Bountiful, and when she reached her mother's cottage, and saw a tramp-like beggar slouching out of the side entrance with a newspaper parcel of broken food, she hurried indoors and spoke sharply to the maid about it.

"I've told you often enough, Mary," she said, as she took off her gloves impatiently and flung them on the table, "that you're not to give to beggars at the door."

"Yes, miss," replied the maid contritely. "I shouldn't have done it but the poor fellow pleaded so hard, and as he asked to see you I thought, perhaps, it might be one of your own cases."

"They all ask to see me. You ought to know that by this time, Mary," returned Marion. "Don't let it occur again."

The girl went away muttering, and Marion, finding that her depressed state of mind was not improved by remaining indoors, called to her mother that she should take a turn in the garden and then go for a brisk walk. She had hardly been in the garden a minute when the rector appeared at the gate. She almost ran to him in her pleasure at meeting him again.

"Do say you've come to ask me to take a walk with you," she said. "I've been down in the village this morning, and have got horribly mopish. I suppose the atmosphere of the sick-room is not conducive to high spirits."

"But the conaciousness of good work done should be," replied Kinton, with a smile. "As it happens, you have guessed the purpose of my errand rightly. I came to ask you to walk over to the White House with me. They're getting the place ready for the new owner, and the gardeners are putting some superb rhododendrons in the grounds leading to the house. As I know they are your favorite flowers, I thought you'd like to come and see them at the first opportunity."

Marion, her spirits returning at the prospect, clapped her hands, and after calling to her mother to say she would be back in an hour or so, set out with the rector for the White House, the name of a somewhat imposing building situated at the far end of the village. The late owner had quite recently died abroad, and there was naturally a certain amount of unhealthy curiosity in Bankford to learn something of the new-comer.

The head gardener at the White House, who was waiting to receive them, might look at the gardens, was quite effusive in his welcome. He seemed to take their visit as a compliment to his professional skill, and became garrulous at once.

"This way, sir; this way, miss," he said, walking a little in front of them, and turning as he talked. "Some of the finest plants I've seen, so they are, and we're hoping they'll bloom this year in spite of our putting 'em in a bit late. The new gentleman that's coming, Mr. Paxley—"

"Mr. Paxley?" interrupted Marion, turning pale.

"Yes, miss," the man went on. "Mr. John Paxley. They say he comes from America, though he's English right enough, same as me and you. He was the old gentleman's nephew, and has come into the property, there bein' nobody else in between, as you might say. He must ha' paid a lot for these 'ere plants; but he's very keen on havin' them this year, 'cause, he told me, he thought they'd please his wife to see 'em there."

Marion clutched Kinton's arm for support, hardly knowing what she did. There could be no doubt that this man was the lover she had sent away; and, while she thought that he might have remembered her as she had remembered him, it was clear that he had not been for long inconsolable. Was it possible that after all he had cared for Janet Wadham, who had caused all the trouble between them, and that he had married her?

Marion, still clinging to Kinton's arm, walked as if in a dream. She heard the talkative old gardener discoursing at length on the merits of his plants, and even arguing with the rector as to whether they needed a special soil for their growth, or whether they could be grown anywhere. But their talk meant nothing to her. She was realising only one thing. That was that she would no longer be able to stay in Bankford when John had come back there to live. Her position would be intolerable. Her thoughts were interrupted as she caught the old gardener's mention once more of Paxley's name.

"They do say," the old fellow went on, "that Mr. Paxley had a pretty rough time in America, and that this 'ere inheritance came to him quite as a Godsend, as you might say. I have only seen him once myself, and that was when he came down from London the other day in his motor-car."

"Mr Paxley been here lately?" queried Marion, making a strong effort to control her excitement.

"Only once, as far as I know, miss," replied the old man. "Some says that he's been here several times lately, but I never saw him myself."

He had been so near her several times, and had never called!

She leaned heavily on Kinton's arm as they walked, grateful for the support he lent her. Once she almost wished he would propose to her again there and then, he seemed so gentle and so sympathetic, and sympathy was what she needed most at the moment. There was something hysterical in her laugh as she said with an attempt at gaiety:—

"How quiet and grave you are this morning. Please don't worry about me. I am quite all right again now. I wish you would talk to me. You must make the most of me to-day because I am going away soon."

"Going away?" he echoed. "Why?"

"I meant to have told you about that," she said, as she turned red at at the thought of her deception. "I—I have arranged to go to my aunt at Bournemouth for a rather long stay, and we shall have to find someone to take my place with our invalids."

Kinton had doubts in his mind as to whether Marion were being entirely frank with him or not; but at the same time he felt satisfied that she had said all she had decided to say upon the matter.

A week later, a cab from the station stood at the door of the red-bricked cottage waiting to drive Marion away. The cabman was making a tremendous effort to drag the three large trunks that formed Marion's luggage down the garden path, and observing to nobody in particular that he did [illegible] how he was going to get [illegible] on top of the cab without [illegible]

[illegible] out just at that moment. She had been taking a tender leave of her mother, and her eyes were a little misty in consequence, but through the mists she could dimly discern at the garden gate the greatly unwashed tramp who had been the recipient of her charity a day or two previously.

"Here, my man," she cried. "Come and help with this luggage. You had much better do a little work for your money than come round begging. I'll give you a shilling when the work is done."

The tramp hurried to the cabman's side, but he did not take his eyes from Marion until she had disappeared again into the house. Then a reminder from the impatient cabman recalled him to himself, and he threw himself into the work with unusual vigor for one of his class. Just before lifting the trunks on the cab he stopped and seemed to be taking a great interest in the address on the labels.

"Don't you bother about that," said the cabman, "You've got no chance of getting the job of unloading, if that's what you want. We're going too far away for that."

Once at Bournemouth, Marion felt that she could breathe freely again. Kinton wrote telling her how greatly she was missed in the village, and she had been able to reply that she missed the village quite as much. At the same time, she was unable to fix a date for her return. It did not seem possible that she would ever be able to go back and take up the old life again after all that had happened.

It was on the fourth day after her arrival that her aunt said to her at the breakfast-table —

"I am obliged to go out this morning, my dear, and I shall not be home till lunch. If a gentleman should call to see me, perhaps, you will tell him how sorry I am to have missed him. I forget his name for the moment—I am so bad at remembering names—but I wrote to him asking him to call this morning, and now I am unfortunately prevented from meeting him after all."

Marion replied a little listlessly that she would convey her aunt's apologies as desired. A little later in the morning the maid came into the drawing-room where Marion was writing, and without preliminaries of any kind announced the gentleman in question. Marion jumped up from her seat with a cry and then stood back as she recognized her aunt's visitor. Eight years had made very little difference in John Paxley. At thirty he was as handsome as he had been at twenty-two, though time had left a deeper line here and there than is usual at so young an age.

"I hope you will forgive this intrusion," he said quietly.

"How do you do, Mr. Paxley?" she said, controlling her emotion with some success. "Will you sit down? Did my aunt know that it was you I was to meet?"

"Your aunt, formerly," he said quietly, "understands. I told her as much as it was necessary for her to know, in order that I might have her permission to call. You see, I have just come back from the States, and—"

"Oh, yes," replied Marion, racking her brain for some topic of conversation that would relieve the torturing tension of the moment, "I heard of your return. I understand we have to congratulate you on having succeeded to the White House property."

"Eh?" he asked, with a slight start, "Who could have spread the news abroad? I was trying to keep it quiet till I had seen you. But you came away from Bankford in such a hurry four days ago."

"It is my turn to be curious now," she said, with a perplexed smile. "How could you have found that out?"

"I will tell you," he said. "I am afraid you will be angry, but I want to throw myself on your mercy. As they say, to know all is to forgive all. You remember that tramp to whom your servant gave some broken scraps and who helped to load your cab? That was myself."

"Mr. Paxley!" she cried, starting to her feet.

"You see," he went on, as if prepared for some such outburst of emotion, "I wanted to see you again"—she was about to interrupt, but he held up his hand appealingly—"and I knew no one in the village of whom I could make inquiries without seeming impertinent. The disguise was as easy one for me—Heaven knows I have had to assume it in grim reality often enough in my wanderings—and it helped me to learn what I wanted to know—that you were still free, and it might be, would be willing to hear me if I spoke again. I arranged this meeting with your aunt, without your knowledge, for fear you should refuse to see me, and—I—I was afraid of that. I have many things to ask your forgiveness for."

Marion had not intended to listen so long, but she found she had grown interested in spite of herself.

"Of course, I am very pleased to see you again, Mr. Paxley," she said, "and your adventures rather amuse me than make me angry. But I do not understand why you have taken the trouble to do all this. Does Mrs. Paxley—"

"Mrs. Paxley?" he echoed, stepping close to her.

"Yes," she replied, haltingly. "I went to the White House a few days ago, and the gardener showed me the beautiful rhododendrons that you have planted because your wife is so fond of—"

"Dear, dear!" he said. "Don't you understand, Marion? I have no wife. Heaven knows, I have never been in a position to keep myself until now, let alone a wife. When I came into this property and was making arrangements, I told the gardener I wanted the rhododendrons because I hoped they would please my wife. I was hoping then, as I am hoping now, that I should marry the only woman I have ever loved. Won't you tell me that I was right in planting them there for—you?"

He held out his hands as he spoke. Marion raised her own as if to take them, and then, telling him he must not mind her foolish tears, buried her face on his shoulder instead.

OBLIGING

In the scramble that followed a premature discharge of dynamite in a building a stout man lost a scarf-pin. After he began to search for it he noticed another man poking around in the dust and debris. He immediately grew suspicious, and at last spoke.

"I do not wish to give offence," he said, "but I must ask you to refrain from assisting me in this search. I appreciate your willingness to help, but as a means of self-protection I long ago made it a rule never to [illegible] stranger to assist me in a search for a lost article."

"Oh, very well," said the stranger. "You have no objection to my looking on, I suppose?"

He sat down on the kerbstone and watched the stout man sift dust and overturn stones. After twenty minutes of painful stooping the stout man found a scarf-pin.

"But it is not my pin," he said dejectedly.

"No; it's mine," said the other man. "I heard it strike somewhere here, boys. That was what I set out to look for, but when I saw how anxious you were for the job I let you go ahead. Your own scarf-pin, if you want to know, is sticking to the flap of your left coat-pocket."

A MISUNDERSTANDING

A Scotsman convicted of drunkenness and unable to pay the fine, was sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment. On the first morning of his captivity the warder handed him a bucket of water, saying:

"That's to wash your cell with."

Returning to the cell shortly afterwards the warder found, to his astonishment, Sandy divested of clothing and enjoying a cold bath.

"Good gracious!" he exclaimed, "what are ye up to?"

"Jist what ye told me to do," replied Sandy innocently. "Didn't ye say it was to wash mesel' wi'?"

MODISH TAILORED SUIT

The coat of this tailored costume is of French design and differs materially from the general run of such garments. Myrtle green zibeline is the material used and the trimming bands, collar and cuffs are of velvet, a shade darker than the material. Note the high waisted effect, which is particularly becoming to a slim figure.

PAPER DRINKING CUP

Has Handle by Which It Can Be Easily Manipulated

In the present crusade for sanitation which is driving state legislatures to wipe out the public drinking cup necessity has mothered several inventions of paper drinking cups, and one of these is credited to a New York woman. The feature of the article shown here is that it has a handle and can be used with more satisfaction than one not so equipped. Take a square piece of paper and fold it diagonally upon itself. Lay it in front of you with the point of the triangle uppermost and turn the other ends in until one completely overlaps the other. Then bend each of these ends back upon itself and hold them together at right angles with the body of the receptacle. Turn down the two points which are still standing up until you have a perfectly straight line across the top, and there you are provided with a paper cup that is quite watertight and has a handle, too.

PENCIL MARKS ON SHIRTS

Difficult to Eliminate by Ordinary Washing Methods.

A habit into which men engaged in the commercial world frequently lapse is that of penciling data on the cuffs of their shirts. Convenient as this may be for the person who scribbles the reminder, considerable trouble is caused by the practice when the shirts go to the laundry, as pencil marks are difficult to eliminate by ordinary washing methods. A simple method adopted with success by some launderers is that of keeping in use a large indiarubber eraser, whereby much trouble has been avoided. The marked cuffs are dry scrubbed with the erasers before the article is sent to the washhouse, because hot water only serves to soak the pencil mark in [illegible]

SECLUDED WOMEN

Curious Experiences in India—How Evidence is Given by Women in Court

Sir Andrew Fraser, ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, tells some curious stories in his book, "Among Indian Rajahs and Ryots."

While hearing a civil case in which a lady of considerable property was required to give evidence, "a day was fixed, and she was brought to Court. She came in a palahi or palanquin, which, despite its name, was nothing else than a very small and uncomfortable box carried on a bamboo pole. One could hardly understand how it was possible for her to be in it without great discomfort. It had been carried into a room of the Zenana and laid down. After all the men had gone away, she had come, attended by her women, and had stepped into it. The thick curtain that covered one side of the box (all the rest being of wood) was then dropped and securely fastened. Her nearest male relative stood by while the box was removed from her room, and walked with it through the streets. When it was brought into the Court, it was laid down, but not opened. I asked the counsel on both sides whether they were satisfied that the lady inside the box was the witness whom it was desired to examine. After conversing with those who had accompanied her, and addressing a question or two to the lady, they replied that they were satisfied. I then put certain questions to her; and she answered them—clear, intelligent answers, in a sweet, low-toned voice. I never saw her; no one in the Court saw her. She returned through the streets to her seclusion in the Zenana, having seen nothing all the time during which she was out of it."

After narrating other official experiences with ladies in seclusion, Sir Andrew Fraser writes:—"I made it a practice as far as possible to take my wife with me to such interviews, so that she might sit on the other side of the purda with the Rani, as she was acquainted with her. This was at least a security that the right lady was conversing with me. To me there was always a feeling of dissatisfaction in that neither of us in the course of our conversation was able to look the other in the face, and receive that light upon our interchange of views which the human countenance so often gives. I recall one case in which that feeling was evidently shared by the lady herself. She turned to Lady Fraser and asked her in a whisper, which I did not hear, whether there was any objection to her slightly putting the curtain aside with her finger, just so far as to permit her to get a view of my face, so as to see whether I was giving kindly attention to the expression of her views. My wife, of course, said that there was no objection; and, although I was unaware of it, the old lady saw my face, and then expressed herself as more confident that I would give careful and kindly consideration to her wishes."

DARING BRIDGE BUILDERS

Bridge Recalled

Notwithstanding the great height at which the men worked in replacing the Niagara Suspension Bridge above a maelstrom from which escape would have been impossible, most of them soon grew unconcerned, and some of them, indeed, vied with one another in reckless daring.

So many valuable tools were dropped from the bridge that some of the more careless were discharged. Consequently, one day, when a man dropped a wrench 200 feet to the water's edge, he foolishly started to recover it by climbing down a hand over hand on a steeply inclined thin wire cable nearly 500 feet long. He had no sooner begun his insane exploit than a rival, not to be outdone, started out of sheer bravado to descend an adjacent rope.

After going a few feet they tried in vain to return, and it seemed to their horrified companions on the bridge above that human muscles could not endure the increasing strain of their long journey. The foreman instructed them how to climb more easily and what to do at the bottom, accompanying his orders with violent abuse, wisely bestowed to divert them from the fright that added to their danger. By nothing less than a miracle both men held on until they had crossed over the water. Then one of them, watching his chance, dropped safely into a tree top. The other finally gave out and fell a considerable distance to the ground. But both escaped practically unhurt.

A FAMOUS MANUSCRIPT

Mr. H. F. Dickens, K.C., tells an interesting story concerning the original manuscripts of his father's famous "Carol." The novelist presented the MS. to Thomas Milton, an old schoolfellow. In 1875 Mr. Milton sold it to Mr. Francis Harvey, a bookseller, for £50. Then it passed into the hands of Mr. George Churchill, an enthusiastic autograph collector. Mr. Churchill treasured it until 1882, when circumstances compelled him to part with it. After photographing every page of it, it was sold to Mr. Bennett, a Birmingham bookseller and curio dealer, who eventually found a purchaser who readily signed a cheque for £1,000 for it. Finally it was bought by Mr. Stuart M. Samuel, of Kensington Palace Gardens, for $1,500, who is said to still retain the precious document.—Tit-Bits.

CHASED BY WOLVES

A story comes from Maple Leaf, a Saskatchewan village, to the effect that William Robinson, returning from a visit to a neighbor, was chased by a band of wolves and arrived home in an exhausted state. Only by throwing off his coat, which delayed the wolves for a few minutes while they tore it to pieces, did he manage to escape.

NEW LIGHT ON COST OF LIVING

Food Products, Not Manufactures, Are the Articles High in Price

Mr. F. W. Field, Editor of "The Monetary Times," Toronto, in a recent article says:

"A significant fact in connection with the volume of talk and discussion that has originated from that hackneyed topic, the cost of living, is that in Canada the chief complaint is made against the high prices of food products, and not so much against manufactured articles. This circumstance is made plain when one begins to seek data regarding the comparative cost to the consumer in the United States and Canada of household furniture, crockery, stoves and other articles of domestic use. While every Government report gives plenty of information about grains and fodder, animals and meats, dairy produce, fish and other foods, there is a remarkable paucity of material showing the cost of certain staple manufacturered products. Those reports, which happen to be more elaborate in their record of the output and consumption of manufacturer, give but few examples in each class of goods. For instance, the report on wholesale prices for 1910, published by the United States Government gives figures relating to furniture under the following heads only—bed room suites, bedroom chairs, kitchen chairs and kitchen tables. The natural deduction from all this is simply that there has been little or no demand for such information, due largely to the fact that no one seems to be greatly dissatisfied with the prices of the common ordinary household article made in the factory. The increasing cost of eating to live, appears to be the backbone of the great economic problem, which is agitating the consumer of the American Continent.

It is sometimes contended that the housewife in Canada, because of our tariff, cannot obtain furniture and other domestic necessities as cheaply as can be purchased in the United States. Those official facts and figures, available, show that in this direction there is little, if any, cause for complaint. Canada has been more fortunate than some countries, for the tendency in the past decade has been one of decline in the prices of bedsteads, crockery, glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware. It is interesting to analyse this situation more closely. Mr. R. H. Coats, in his special report on wholesale prices in Canada, obtained quotations for six representative lines of furniture, viz: kitchen tables and chairs, dining-room tables and sideboards, bedroom suites and iron bedsteads. In all lines of wooden furniture, a steady and pronounced rise occurred in prices during the past twenty years.

In iron and brass bedsteads, on the other hand, there was a pronounced decline in the past ten years. The line quoted was a "continuous pillar bed of shipping weight, about seventy-five pounds. It showed a decline from $9.87 in 1890 to $3.60 in 1909. [illegible] manufacturer in this line of this article in Canada has reduced the cost both of brass and iron bedsteads.

The general tendency in crockery and glassware, table cutlery and silver plated ware was downward.

There was an advance of from 12 to 15 per cent. in pails and tubs compared with 1890, and of approximately 30 per cent. compared with the low years, 1896-1897. The most extraordinary advance, however is shown under the heading of brooms, which, in the closing days of 1909, had considerably more than doubled, as compared with the prices ruling in 1890. This, however, was largely accounted for by the scarcity of broom corn last year following a failure of the yield in the United States, the cost of broom corn to the manufacturer having advanced from $8-$10 to $30-$34 per ton. Apart from this advance, the price of brooms was fairly stationary during the decade from 1900 to 1910.

The question of raw materials to manufacturers has been a prominent one in many countries, but Canada probably has felt this phase of the question less than a good many nations. Commenting on this, the London Times said, two years ago: "The steady advance in the cost of raw materials, which is becoming a very serious matter, is due to a number of causes, chief among which may be mentioned the comparative smallness of the production, the great increase in the consumption, the high cost of labor in the producing districts, and the effect upon production and wholesale distribution of artificial restrictions." This fact has affected the cost to the consumer of a large number of articles. Too often the comparatively high price of a manufactured article is due to the desire of the manufacturer to create or maintain large profits. Aside from the question of wages, freight rates, the increased cost of factory sites, and many other important considerations, the factor of raw material is vital and has a tendency to fluctuate more widely than manufactured articles. On summing up the averages of wholesale prices noted by the Dominion Department of Labor, it is seen that in 1890, raw materials were 13.6 points above the average for the base period, 1890-99, while manufactured articles were only 9.6 points above that average. In the recession which followed until 1897 raw materials fell 23.2, while manufactured articles advanced only 26.4 points. Between 1900 and 1910, there was a gain of 4.8 points in raw materials and 2.3 points in manufactured articles. The statistics for 1910 show prices of raw materials at 42.6 per cent. above those of the base decade, and the prices of manufactured articles 17.1 per cent. above those of the base decade."

APSLEY TELEPHONE COMPANY.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Apsley Telephone Co. was held in the town hall, Apsley, Thursday evening, January 25th. The attendance was not as large as expected, still a good many came out despite the cold weather. In the absence of the President, D. Brown was elected chairmain of the meeting. The auditors' report was read and adopted

During 1911 the company had built 14 miles of new lines, fully equipped, at a cost of $840.00, and all paid for, with the exception of about $20.00. and rents of phones coming in will soon cover that. As an asset the company has on hand $475.00 in phones and equipments.

On motion Mr. D Whitney was elected director in the place of Mr. B. T. Cooney, resigned. The other directors were re-elected for 1912. Mr. Levi Ballard was appointed auditor for 1912. As the company had been to extra expense building new lines, no dividends will be paid this year. At the close of the annual meeting, the directors were called for business. On motion Mr. D. Brown was elected president for the ensuing year; Alex. A. McColl, vice-president; Wm. Gallon, Sec.-Treasurer.

On motion it was decided that each subscriber having a phone, have the privilege of calling central once per day free, but if more than once then a charge of 2c for each extra call per day; and also that there must be a stop put to interfering with the line when business messages are going children who make a practice of using the line, one would think, intentionally to annoy. If not stopped the directors will be compelled to remove the phones from such places.

The telephone is a great convenience and it's too bad to make a play toy of it. A call was trying to get through to Coe Hill for a doctor and it was impossible to get the message through for some time.

APSLEY.

The Hall of Wisdom.

Another meeting of importance was held in the hall of Wisdom Saturday evening, very few members turned out. Anvil Jim in the chair. Uncle Billy came up and complained about the janitor not attending to his duties, as the hall was very cold. President Jim apologized and stated he would look after him in the future. There was an excuse this time as he was in a big game of pedro with weather prophet Ben.

Sandy moved that the club should purchase a desk phone for the hall. Treasurer B. F objected, as there was only $18 in the treasury. Motion lost.

Resolved that at the next meeting all members shall attend and bring an armful of wood from their own pile, or someone else's.

Three applications for membership were received, one from the village of Peterborough, handed to the committee of investigation. Patty William could not attend, having a contract on hand of more importance, but hopes to attend and report at next regular meeting one month from date.

The anvil chorus was beautifully rendered by Alex. and then Duncan sang the closing ode, accompanied by Uncle Billy on the Jews harp, and the meeting was closed in due and ancient form.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10.00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out. I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine, and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms numbered"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 357 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

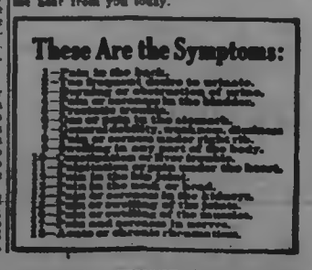
DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:



OUR NEW STORY.

The Times has secured the right to publish the thrilling romance, entitled "The Cableman", the opening chapter of which will begin on Saturday next, Feb. 3rd. This splendid story is written by Weatherby Chesney, which is sufficient to mark it as first-class. Do not miss it.

WEDDING BELLS.

Young—Anglesey.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a very interesting event, when Miss Nora Anglesey, of 149 Rubidge street, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. C. Young, of Young's Point. The bride, who was given away by her brother, was becomingly attired in blue silk de chene and a black picture hat, while the bridesmaid wore pink silk de chene and a black beaver hat, trimmed with roses. The groom was assisted by the bride's brother, Mr. J. J. Anglesey.

After the ceremony a dainty repast was served at the home of the bride's mother, 149 Rubidge street. The bride was the receipient of many costly presents, testifying to the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. The happy young couple left in the evening amid showers of hearty wishes and congratulations, for their home in Young's Point, where they will reside in future.

W. T. STEAD IS THE AUTHORITY BUT HE DOES NOT GIVE ANY NAMES.

Saved Them From Popery Also From Knaves and Knavery, Slaves and Slavery, Brass Money and What Not.

Mr. W. T. Stead, the editor of the "Review of Reviews," who is a whole-hearted, if somewhat eccentric, Radical, writing in his magazine just one year ago, under the heading "Will Ulster Fight?" made some remarks which are not without interest at the present juncture.

"The blatant remnant of blaspheming fanatics," said Mr. Stead, "which is to be found in Belfast and the county of Antrim, has been making itself ridiculous by swearing that Ulster will never, never submit to Home Rule. Even after Home Rule has been decreed by King, Lords, and Commons, these devoted 'loyalists' now declare that they will import arms from Germany to shoot down the King's soldiers, rather than obey the law of the land. As everyone knows, they have no authority to speak on behalf of Ulster, for there are as many Nationalists in Ulster as there are Unionists. The majority of Ulster Unionists are too sane and law-abiding to countenance these fruitements to civil war. But it is necessary to demonstrate the worthlessness of their braggadocio. It will suffice simply to reproduce these truculent gentry drink with enthey hold in the North of Ireland. Here is the precious toast, which thusiasm at every festive gathering sometime even takes precedure of the toast to the King:

The Toast.

To the glorious, pious, and immortal memory of King William not forgetting Oliver Cromwell, who saved us ifrom Pope and Popery, knaves and knavery, slaves and slavery, brass money, and wooden shoes. And all who refuse to drink this toast may they be rammed, crammed, stammed and damned into the great gun at Athlone, to be blown over the hills of damnation. May their teeth be converted into paving-stones, to pave the way of the croppies into hell, and their blood into train oil to light their souls to damnation. May I be at the end of the gun with a fiery flambeau, to send them burning around the earth, the moon, the stars, and the sea, like flies round a sugar-cask on a hot summer afternoon. May they be blown against the rock of blastation, and come down in ashower of inhere the famous Charter Toast which numerable pieces, and may those pieces be picked up and made into sparables to mend the soles of the Orangemen's boots to walk on the Twelfth of July."

"What," asks Mr. Stead, "can any civilized man think of the trousered bipeds who cheer such sanguinary sentiments, but that they should doff their trousers and display themselves as the Yahoos that they are? And it is these savages who are threatening the British Empire with armed revolt."

LOVERS' QUARRELS

It is Wise to Avoid All Jars And Discords.

To quarrel, and "make it up again" is said to be one of the usual accompaniments of courtship, and the "making up" is believed to more than compensate for the preceding unpleasantness—a quarrel between two people who love each other and are supposed to be in perfect harmony with each other.

It is a time-honoured tradition, and as such is frequently allowed to pass unchallenged.

But is this always the truth? In too many cases, alas! does not the opposite to this take place?

Frequent quarrels, engendering angry words between lovers, have a petrifying effect on love and finally destroy it altogether. The tendency to have "words" over things a little contrary to one's own wishes should immediately be checked.

If a pair of lovers perceive that they are drifting into frequent misunderstandings and petty disputes, they should reflect as to whether they are not each to be blamed, and resolve that in future they will try to prevent it.

"To bear and forbear," is an excellent motto for engaged couples as well as for married folk.

Hard, bitter words, spoken in the heat of anger, are apt to sink deep into the memory and to be remembered long after the trivial cause of the quarrel is forgotten.

Such small things, too, first arouse the discord, and the result may, and often does, estrange the two for life. This, too, when the lovers are completely suited to one another, and a lifetime of unhappiness for both follows.

"There comes a mist and a blinding rain,
And life is never the same again."

The lovers who wish to have nothing but happy memories of their courtship will not let the mist of misunderstanding cloud their love, or the blinding rain destroy the fair flower of love that have been fortunate enough to gain.

A touch of humor is a saving grace in some women. As a sex, women are said to be deficient in humor. "They are so deadly in earnest," men say, and there may be some truth in this. But seeing the humorous side of a trivial dispute has often prevented its developing into a serious quarrel.

This, and a sense of proportion, has checked many a man from returning angry words in a fit of petulance over some supposed grievance, to those uttered by the woman he loves.

Men hate scenes, too, and are too ready to hold out the olive branch if a quarrel is threatened.

Women, alas! revel in them, and will not always accept the olive branch in their keen sense of the dramatic, and the desire to air their independence and petty tyranny over the man who loves them.

"Making up" may be sweet, but the woman will prefer a love idyll free from all jars and discords with no aftermath of angry words which can [illegible]-based fr[illegible] any other body. It will define "the state" once more and in defining it and its powers by so doing demonstrate once more for the benefit of our lawgivers their powers and privileges. Some may think this unnecessary and that the time is past for such a definition and that it has arrived for action. One must admit the strength and reasonableness of this contention. But differences of opinion having given rise to an old claim, it is better to settle the claim in a clam and determined manner than to fix to measures of a more violent sort.

To dispose of all doubts the editor of Rome says in referring to the decree: "It refers strictly and exclusively to private individuals and to Catholics: 'We enact and ordain,' says the decree, 'that all private persons, whether of the laity or of the sacred order,' etc. • • • • Moreover, the Quantavis Diligentia applies everywhere — except in Germany • • • • For the document sets forth that excommunication is inflicted only on Catholics acting as private persons who bring charges before lay tribunals without any permission of the ecclesiastical authority • • •"

At first it was argued that the decree applied only to those in authority, but even Archbishop Walsh of Dublin, admits that "The recent motu proprio decides that the provision in question applies to the case even of private individuals bringing ecclesiastics before a lay tribunal."

This decree has been well named, "The thunderbolt from Rome." The Ne Temere is really child's play in comparison. The Quantavis seeks to establish the old immunity of the priests, in a word to restore their ancient power and to enable the church to override or ignore the state altogether. For if it can claim immunity in one thing so also is another. Hence the value, the priceless value, of a general rather than a specific reference. Up to 1907 the people were doing nicely, but since the decrees began coming fast and thick and hard, times have changed. The old battle for liberty is on again. It is, of course, idle to say that since it mentions Catholics only therefore the decree applies to them only. It is just as absurd to say that because Ne Temere applies to the Catholic wife or husband, therefore it does not affect the Protestant husband or wife. Such a thing would be impossible. Moreover, Ne Temere admittedly applies to fallen-away Catholics (Protestants), because it is claimed that once a Catholic always a Catholic. So the Church claims with respect to marriage and so also with all other situations. Can the law (the state) not protect these people then? That evidently remains to be seen. It is so also with the Quantavis (Privilegium fori). Can the church defy the state in this particular also?

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal for you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

C.P.R. FLEET A WONDER

P.R. fleet has been on the Pacific Coast where the Company has been adding new boats at the rate of two each year. Of the famous "Princess" boats alone there are now nine operating on the Pacific coast and these will shortly be augmented by two more of the same class of boats—the "Princess Patricia" and the "Princess Sophia." The former of these is already on its long trip round Cape Horn to Victoria while the latter will leave Britain in a few weeks on the same journey. When these two boats are put into commission on the Pacific coast they will bring the number of new boats added to the Pacific coast fleet since 1910 up to five, the other three boats being the "Princess Adelaide", "The Princess Mary" in 1910 and the "Princess Alice" in 1911.

But the "Princess Patricia" and the "Princess Sophia" are not the only boats being added to the fleet this year by the C.P.R. Two more boats are now under construction on the Pacific coast itself, one a twelfth "Princess" and the other a tug. Altogether this will bring the number of C. P. coast service ships up to twenty-five.

For the ocean service on the Pacific the C. P. R. is building in Britain two monster "Empresses" which will make six boats operated by this company between Canada, Japan, and China. These new "Empresses" are are to be called the "Empress of Russia" and the "Empress of Asia" and they will be the fastest and most luxurious boats on the Pacific.

Another development of the C.P.R. shipping on the Pacific Coast has been the adoption of oil fuel on these Princess boats. It has been found that the oil not only makes efficient fuel, but that it does away with the smoke and dirt resulting from the use of coal, so that the railway is rapidly equipping its boats for oil burning.

With its 75 steamships the C.P.R. carries a staff of 12,000 employees, and the amount of coal burned on each day is about 3,000 tons.

Ald. Duncan reports that this event was truly a brilliant and enjoyable function.

EARLY DEATH OF RICHESON

members of the council an opportunity of visiting Richeson in his cell. Several guests of the councilmen who accompanied them on the trip, wanted to see the condemned man, and the sheriff promptly told them that Richeson's condition was such that he feared the presence of a large number would greatly unnerve him, and possibly cause a collapse. He also said that the responsibility of delivering Richeson to the State Prison was on him and that he and he alone would be blamed if anything happened to hasten his death.

Dr. Sargent, the jail physician said last night that he attended Richeson in the morning and that at that time the condemned murderer did not look to him like a dying man. "I see no reason why Richeson should not live until May 19th," Dr. Sargent added. "There is nothing new in his condition."

President Collins of the city council and Councilmen Smith, Attridge, McDonald and Ballantyne were the members of the Prison Committee, who were allowed to see Richeson. After a very few minutes in his cell, some of the members expressed a belief that he would not live to be executed as he has failed considerably since he was sentenced to die on May 19th.

Richeson occupies cell No. 21 on the second tier of the east wing. Sheriff Quinn is taking absolutely no chances with Richeson. He is being guarded 24 hours a day. His guards work in short shifts and they are ordered to keep him in sight every minute. The negro Butts, who is waiting trial for murder, is in the same cell with Richeson.

Before entering the cell, Sheriff Quinn requested the councilmen to say nothing to Richeson about the action of the Governor's council in the Phelps case. Richeson has not been informed Quinn said, that Phelps's sentence had not been commuted.

Richeson was asked if he had any complaints to make of the treatment he received. He said he had not, that he held the sheriff and his guards in the highest esteem, and believed they were doing all they could for him.

Richeson said he had not being doing much reading lately, but proposed to read quite extensively in the near future.

On the table in his cell were a Bible, a volume of Shakespeare, two volumes of the "Life of St Ignatius" and "Holy Living and Holy Dying."

Richeson spends the day walking up and down his cell, with his hands behind his back and his head bent forward. He is haggard and pale, has lost much weight, but does not seem to be disheartened.

FORECAST OF THE LIBERAL'S NEW IRISH HOME RULE BILL

Annual Subsidy of Ten Million Dollars for Fifteen Years--Control of Constabulary for Twelve Years--Determined Speeches by Belfast Delegates

London, Feb. 2.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a forecast of the Home Rule bill. This provides that the Irish Parliament shall have full control of Customs and excise, and provision will be made for the continuance of complete free trade between England and Ireland.

Ireland is to receive for 15 years an annual Imperial subsidy of $10,000,000, after which she will make contributions to the Imperial expenditure based on a percentage of her revenues.

The Irish Parliament will consist of two houses—a Legislative Council of about 50 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 162 members. The Council will have a suspensory veto on legislation. In the event of a disagreement between the two Houses, after the second rejection of a bill by the Council it will be submitted to the two Houses deliberating and voting together, and adopted or rejected according to the decision of the majority.

Ireland will continue to be represented in the Imperial Parliament, but in greatly diminished numbers. The Irish Parliament shall have no control with respect to the navy, army, or militia, foreign policy, coinage, military camps, or coast lighting, and will be forbidden to establish or endow any religion or deal with any religious matter.

According to the forecast, it is understood that the Irish Constabulary will be controlled by the Imperial authorities for a period of 12 years.

"DUBLIN PARLIAMENT WE WILL NOT HAVE"

Belfast, Feb. 2.—Speaking at the Presbyterian Convention here yesterday against the adoption of home rule, at which 25,000 Presbyterians crowded a dozen halls and churches in various parts of the city, Sir William Crawford said: "I have no doubt we shall have promises of freedom and toleration for all men from the Nationalist leaders when the provisions of the bills are revealed, but let none of these guarantees and promises deceive you. A Dublin Parliament we will not have. Its laws we will not obey. Its demands for money we will throw into the fire. Our Nationalist countrymen may, if they so desire, establish their claim to manage their own affairs. They will not manage our affairs. Let an Irish Government be formed. Let it send its officers here to take taxes by force. We shall not pay. Our decision is final and unchanging. We trust in God our Father, and our duty is clear."

Mr. J. R. Fisher, editor of the Northern Whig, said if Irish Presbyterians were expelled from the shelter of a united Parliament it would be a case of Rome on the rates, Rome on the taxes, Rome in the schoolroom, State Rome law courts, and Rome everywhere.

TO END PEACE ERA NOW ON

German War Party Favor Immediate Hostilities With Britain

SOONER THE BETTER

London, Feb. 3. THE Die Poste, organ of the great war party in Germany is urging the Emperor to end the present intolerable conditions between Great Britain and Germany at once, by war. The country, it says, cannot much longer keep up the present pace in the way of battleship construction, and it will come to a point sooner or later when war must come in order to relieve the awful strain. Only the diversion of a great war can arouse the best powers of the nation and subjugate the inferior qualities which find expression in the Socialist election victories. Germans have never thrived while enjoying even less peace. The German nation never yet refused loyally to follow the kings and emperors and especially along the paths that led to heights. Even though four million misguided citizens voted for the party which would dethrone the kaiser and destroy the monarchy, the kernel of the nation remains true to the sovereign.

"Let them not be in doubt on that score" says the De Poste. "Let them know that the shadows will disappear the moment he calls upon his people for great political deeds. That it may happen soon is ever the wish on the kaiser's birthday."

MANY MOVEMENTS MORE IMPORTANT THAN SUFFRAGE

Col. Roosevelt Heartily Approves of Votes for Women, But Thinks Other Agitations and Motherhood Are of Great Benefit

New York, Feb. 2.—"The exercise the suffrage can never be the most important of the woman's rights or women's duties," says Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in an editorial in a current issue of the Outlook.

"The vital need of women," he continues, "is to war against vice, and frivolity, and cold selfishness, and timid shrinking from necessary risk and effort. I am glad that the good, wise, and brave mother should have the ballot. I am especially glad its possession shall add to the dignity of her position in the eyes of man. The advocates of women's suffrage will necessarily remember that the highest type of the women of the future must be essentially identical with the highest type of the women of the present and the past—the wife and mother who performs the most important of all social duties with wisdom, courage and efficiency. I believe in the movement for women's suffrage, and I believe that it will ultimately succeed and will justify itself. But I regard it as of far less consequence than many another movement for the betterment of present day conditions are affecting both men and women."

PETERBOROUGH DEFEATED THE TRENTON JUNIORS

The Semi-Final Game Was Won by Peterborough by a Score of 12 to 5.

In the first game of the semi-finals the Peterborough Jrs. defeated Trenton last night at Brock St. Rink before the largest crowd of the season, including a good representation of the fair sex. The game was fast and clean throughout, featured by good combination by both teams. Trenton proved to be a fast bunch and made the locals go the limit. Armstrong, at cover point, was a marvel of speed and defence and played an excellent game. He was ably [illegible] between them—Young, in goal, had a busy time of it and acquitted himself well, making many good stops. The home team checked hard and put in some good combination. Dennison made several brilliant rushes and played a good defence, as did Milloy. Dwyer, in goal, stopped many hard shots. Weir at rover was all over the ice and scored three goals during the game. Hall was a little off color and did not play up to his usual standard. Clancy on the wing made some good rushes and scored three for the homesters.

The game started sharp on time and after the Petes had threatened Trenton's goal, Armstrong secured the rubber and carried it down, notching the first tally from left wing. Weir got it back about a minute after and the score was tie. Trenton scored their second goal five minutes later. The homesters evened matters in about ten minutes. Clancy notched another in two minutes, putting the Petes one to the good. Dennison made a brilliant rush at this juncture and shot, striking the goal tender, Hall scoring on the rebound. Clancy notched the last tally of this half two minutes later.

The second half opened lively, both teams putting forth their best. Weir secured the first for the Petes on a rebound in half a minute. Trenton scored shortly after. Armstrong [illegible] in one minute, making the score 4-3. The Petes took a brace and Wir scored in five minutes. Hall repeated a few minutes later. Dennison secured the puck at his own goal and went through the bunch and Kennedy scored on the rebound. Hall got the next from a scrimmage in front of the Trenton goal. Clancy secured and after a nice rush notched another. Trenton tied preceptibly at this point and the homesters were all over them. Kennedy notched the last tally, making the score 12-5.

A RETIRED POLICEMAN IS AN HEIR TO EARLDOM

London, Feb. 3.—A Sydney, N.S.W. dispatch to The Daily Mail, says Jekyl Chalmers Duff, a retired policeman, who is the claimnant of the Earldom of Fife, was playing chess when reporters saw him at his house in Melbourne. He expressed no surprise that his name had been mentioned in connection with the Earldom, as he is well acquainted with the history of his own family. He appeared to realize that there is probably no estate attaching to the Earldom.

Duff was not at all excited at the prospect of becoming Earl of Fife. He declared that if his title were not acknowledged he would be content to remain in Melbourne.

MIDLAND WRECKERS DREW LARGE SUM

Contract Was Jumped from $500 to $4,000 Without Apparent Reason.

Ottawa, Feb. 2. — The Public Accounts Committee this morning investigated the granting of contracts for ice-breaking in the Midland harbor. The contract was given without tender in 1906 to the Midland Wrecking Co. for $500. In 1906 the bill for $600, but as it was not authorized, payment was refused. In 1907, without any apparent reason, the contract was jumped from $500 to $4,000, no tenders again being called. It was shown that the contract was let at the request of the solicitor of the company, Mr. Grant, who wrote saying that the work should be done.

The investigation will be continued by the committee. W. H. Bennett conducted the inquiry.

WRECK OF A SUBMARINE

Collided With a Gunboat and Sinks Like a Stone

Portsmouth, Feb. 2.—The total loss this morning of the British submarine "A 3" with the whole of her crew after collision with the gunboat Hazard, adds another to the long list of similar accidents which have in recent years thrown the British navy and nation into mourning.

The crew of eleven men on board the little vessel, which is one of the older class, was composed of volunteers from the men of the fleet, as is the case with the complements of all submarines. The men in spite of the hazardous nature of the service like the work and volunteer in large numbers to be detailed to the submarine flotillas.

FOURTEEN LOST.

[illegible] constantly go out for diving and torpedo practice in the roads and a number of fatal accidents have occurred in the vicinity.

Besides the regular crew of ten men and a lieutenant who were on board the "A 3" the Admiralty states three other lieutenants were on the vessel going through a course of instruction and were in the submarine when she sank, making a total of fourteen deaths.

THE JESUIT OATH

Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Toronto, has sent the following reply to F. V. Sullivan, solicitor for the Society of Jesus, Jesuit oath was no longer in use, which appeared in The Star:

"Very respectfully, and candidly, I wish to answer the priest who wrote in your issue of yesterday regarding the Jesuits. How if the Jesuits are not what they used to be, and if they are different in different countries, and if their crimes of the past are not now possible, and if their doings in South America are not possible in Canada, then let this priest come forward and make the statement that Jesuitism has changed in doctrine and spirit and not merely in circumstances. But his statement to be of value must be over the signature of the Pope, for Cardinal Manning says 'No priest can be held to his word unless it be approved by the Pope.'"

BRIBED TO BETRAY DARROW DETECTIVE IN HIS OFFICE

Chief Brown Declares That He Paid For the Information---Franklin's Story by Dictograph

Los Angeles, Feb. 2.—That the confession of Bert H. Franklin was recorded by the dictagraph and that Clarence Darrow was betrayed by his own men because of his alleged tightfistedness were two developments in the Darrow bribery case to-day.

The feature that has caused most alarm among Darrow's friends is the statement by Chief of Detectives Browne that Darrow's office was filled with agents of the State during the preparation and preliminaries of the McNamara trial. Browne said "Now that the case is practically over as far as this office is concerned it will do no harm to say that several of Darrow's supposedly trusted men came to me for money. I slipped them some, but asked no favors. Pretty soon these men began giving me information. Later, they would come across with more."

DISCOVERED TO BE A SPY.

Browne said that he allowed the defence to think from the start that he was blind to many of their games, [illegible] as well as in Darrow's office.

It was learned to-day that Darrow's defence will be that Franklin was discovered to be a spy and accordingly the alleged bribery was framed up to get him into trouble.

Darrow has issued another statement asking the public to "withhold judgment" until the case was settled, when, he says, "my reputation will be re-instated in the minds of the public, if that reputation is now wabbling."

THE JESUIT OATH.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—When the Rev. Mr. Johnston gave the original Jesuit oath objection was taken, and a member of the society published the revised oath. In Thursday's Times you publish a copy of the original Toast given in some parts of Ireland years ago. As the revised oath has been published I think it only right that the revised Toast should be published which is, "That we may live to see the Pope stuck in a whin-bush and the Devil pelting Priests at him", which is a great deal shorter and more appropriate for the present time.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The suggestion made at the last meeting of the City Council that all the fees earned by the police hereafter, and payable to them as witnesses, for mileage or otherwise, in the making of arrests, be turned over to the city.

Now, Sir, be the amount large or small, this should be done. Every police officer is paid for his full time and anything that he earns belongs to the city. Mr. Gordon, you go straight ahead with this matter, and you will earn the gratitude of the people.

APPEAL TO THE WOMEN.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—We would like to call the attention of the women of the city to the meeting to be held on Monday night in the lecture room of the Public Library. It is hoped that a very large number will be present to hear the plans of the Peterborough Health Association and also to join the Women's Auxiliary now in process of formation. On Tuesday evening Dr. Porter stated that one person dies in Canada of consumption every hour of every day and two every hour of every night. If this be so and Dr. Porter is an authority on this subject then nearly 9 per cent of our entire population pass away every year. It is also stated that there are about seventy victims in various stages of the disease at present in the city and its immediate neighborhood. To reach these people with help and to educate them to the proper care of themselves is the object of the Peterborough Health Association. In this work every citizen should be interested. A district nurse seems to be a necessity. We appeal to the women of the city to come out and help us in this crusade.

Signed on behalf of committee,

Elizabeth Keadrey, Convenor.

Edith Travers, Secretary.

THE DOG QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—This dog afair is becoming a serious matter and ought to be looked into. Yesterday afternoon while looking out of the Post Office window for only six minutes I saw 160 dogs pass. This means there would be 1800 every hour. Now Sir, taking the laboring man's dog at 10 hours. It means that 18,000 dogs pass that office every day. Think of the danger as men, women and children are going to post their letters. Now Sir, this presents a most serious situation when you consider that

DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION

Boy had his Leg Badly chewed by a "Tame" Bear.

During the exhibition in September last, little John Bolton came in contact with a "tame" bear which was doing stunts at the afternoon and evening performances during the fair, and had his leg so badly bitten that he was laid up in the hospital for six weeks. It was during the night performance that the accident, or whatever it may be called took place, and the little fellow was hurried away to the hospital, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. Greer. The matter was apparently not allowed to get into the papers at the time.

Mr. John Bolton, father of the injured lad, claims $500 damages, and has issued a writ against the directors for the amount. The directors are endeavoring to make the parties who own the bear a party to the suit.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilcox, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that equals it." For sale by all dealers.

BOGUS CHEQUE ARTIST

Toronto Banks Victimized by Clever Western Sharper

By means of the old rubber stamp trick, a Vancouver swindler victimized three Toronto banks to the tune of $2,537. The discovery was made when one of the cheques for $845 was returned to the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. It did not take long for the bank officials to realise that a forger had been at work. Braid & Company bank with the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and the cheque in question was made payable at the Bank of Nova Scotia. The next day two other cheques, one for $847, and the other for $845, drawn on the same bank, reached Vancouver from Toronto, where, like the first, they had been cashed.

The artist provided himself with printed private cheques bearing the name "Wm. Braid & Company, Limited," and drawn on the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. Each was signed by "Wm. Braid, manager," and countersigned by "Lional Hilary." The forger was slightly in error, as the name of the Vancouver company is "Wm. Braid Company." He, however, dispelled all suspicion by using a forged rubber stamp acceptance of the Vancouver branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. All three cheques were made payable to C. W. English, presumably an alias of the man who cashed them at three separate banking institutions in Toronto. It was natural that the forgeries could not be detected until they reached the bank's branches at Vancouver for presentation to the Bank of Nova Scotia. The culprit had at least a week's start of the authorities.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL

Canadian Cities are Appreciating the Value of Civic Beauty

Several Canadian cities are realising to some extent the need to make themselves beautiful. Among these, St. John, N.B., and Lethbridge, Alta., recently gave evidences of that.

In Lethbridge many people turned out, a few nights ago, to hear an address on "The City Beautiful," and they were advised to "get a good landscape gardener to plan things."

In St. John the Daily Telegraph recently gave a long editorial in which it said that a requisition of civic well-being is "a condition of things which will ensure that the maximum of beauty be introduced into the life of our city."

"In the rush of modern life," continues the editorial, "its opportunities are easily forgotten. Our homes become merely refuges from our work, and our places of work represent the irreducible minimum of everything which is not directly of value in the making of fortunes."

The Telegraph makes a strong appeal for heeding the impulse toward beauty, and in conclusion it says: "Surely the city beautiful will have its followers and golden money will not destroy all memory of the Golden Fleece. St. John can become in time a city, not merely an aggregation of streets, 'where wealth accumulates and men decay,' but a place where true men and women may dwell in prosperity, cultivating those precious things in life which enshrine the best thought and the best expression of the world—fine books, fine buildings, fine music, fine paintings."

"AN AXE TO GRIND"

This phrase has frequently been attributed to Benjamin Franklin, but it was first used by Charles Miner—born in 1780, died in 1865—and occurs in an essay entitled "Who'll turn the Grindstone?" originally contributed to the 'Wilkesbarre Gleaner,' a country newspaper published in the interior of Pennsylvania in 1811.

The author says that when he was a little boy he was accosted one cold winter morning by a man with an axe on his shoulder.

"My pretty boy," said he, "has your father a grindstone?"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"You are a fine little fellow!" said he. "Will you let me grind my axe upon it?"

Pleased by the compliment of "fine little fellow," the gentleman's bidding was done by the boy, water being procured for him and the grindstone kept in motion until the boy's hands were blistered, the smiling gentleman keeping up his flattery meanwhile. Before the grinding was done the school bell rang, and after the axe had the proper edge on it the man ungraciously exclaimed:

"Now, you little rascal, you've played the truant; cut to school, or you'll rue it!"

The author says that he felt very much wounded and never forgot the incident, and ever afterwards when he saw one person flattering another he said to himself, "That man has an axe to grind."

TRAIN STRUCK A DEER

The afternoon train to Gravenhurst ran into an injured deer, but the train crew were unable to tell what had happened beyond the fact that they had run into something. A search on the following day result d in finding the injured animal, which was speedily put out of its misery. It dressed 240 pounds.

UNDERTAKERS' MUTES

The undertakers' mutes of Paris are on strike. These worthies complain that they have to wear the same sable livery winter and summer, and that the thick material and the black oilcloth hats are unbearable in the long processions on foot which obtain during the summer months.

Squirrels

John Loisch, of Hespeler, while hunting black squirrels, of which he obtained several good specimens, also shot a flying squirrel which he has had mounted.

BLACK AND BLUE

"Your husband is not looking well to-night, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking?"

"It isn't that so much, it is his originality. Why, that man is struck by so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises."

ROYAL SALUTES

The Much-Esteemed Greetings of Royalty—Interesting Side Lights on Court Etiquette

Of the various salutations that pass between sovereign and people, the most popular is undoubtedly the hand-shake. It is pleasant to have felt the grip of a king—an experience to remember and make much of.

A North-country miner, whom the King had decorated and shaken hands with for some deed of heroism, was welcomed on returning home by a crowd of his friends. They were surprised, however, when he persistently ignored their hands proffered in congratulation and kept his own at the bottom of his trouser-pocket.

"How's this mate?" said a friend. "Hast turned proud?"

The miner cautiously drew his right hand from his pocket, regarded it a moment in admiration, and then returned it decisively to the depths it came from

"Na, na lads!" he exclaimed, with a sly twinkle in his eye. "Ye canna expect it; I've shaken hands with the King!"

The value of the "big man's hand-shake" is thoroughly understood in America. A political "captain" will stand for hours shaking hands with the endless file of his supporters. The President himself is not exempt. On the occasion of the Inauguration Ball at Washington, Mr. Taft went through the ceremony, it was calculated, just 4,000 times.

To those versed in Court Etiquette, another form of salutation, that of kissing the Royal hand, sometimes proves a veritable trap. The poet Lee, describing his presentation to Queen Victoria, tells how he unwittingly grasped the hand which the Queen held out to him. He noticed a look of surprise on her face, but did not realize till afterwards that her Majesty intended her hand to be kissed.

This rather formal mode of salutation, though it enters into many Court ceremonies, is not in this country carried to such an extreme as at Madrid, one of the most conservative Courts in Europe. When the second of the young Spanish princes was born, the little Prince of the Asturias was just twelve months old. But already he seems to have been instructed in Court etiquette, for on his baby brother being shown to him, he immediately held out his hand for the infant to kiss!

When king meets king, the usual greeting is a kiss on both cheeks. The two monarchs embrace by lightly holding each other's shoulders, and saluting first on one cheek and then immediately afterwards the other.

The raising of the hat and bowing, which are the only forms of salutation that the ordinary mortal can expect to receive from Royalty, are most fatiguing operations, if long continued.

Queen Victoria never spared herself in this respect. Even in the Diamond Jubilee procession, when seventy-eight years of age, she bowed almost continuously for by far the greater part of the route.

That the youngest members of the Royal Family are brought up in the same tradition is shown by an incident which occurred later on that [illegible] crowd round Buckingham Palace was thickest, the two eldest children of the present King appeared at the open nursery window. Prince Eddy, the elder, who was three years old within a day, in response to the cheers of the spectators, gravely raised his hand to his forehead and saluted.

This action wrought the enthusiasm of the crowd to a high pitch, and the acclamations were so long continued that the little Prince concluded that something more was expected of him. Straightening himself, therefore, he again saluted, but this time with both hands at once!

BRAHMS AND THE SARDINES

Mme. Liza Lehmann is one of the world's leading composers, although she first achieved fame and popularity as a singer. Randegger was her teacher, but she received many useful hints from Jenny Lind in her earlier days. After her marriage in 1894 she devoted herself entirely to composition. Mme. Lehmann tells a quaint story of Brahms. She was staying with Mme. Schumann at the time at Frankfort, and while she was there Brahms came for a short visit. Naturally her excitement at the prospect of meeting one of the world's most famous masters was great. On the morning of the first day of his visit the breakfast menu included sardines, which were served in the tin containing them. Brahms devoured a number with gusto, and then, to his youthful worshipper's amazement and horror, coolly took up the tin and drank the oil!

THE GENTLE CYNIC

Hope springs as eternally as a wasp from a mouse.

A man is apt to feel that his hands are tied if he hasn't a free foot.

Man wants but little here below, but he frequently wants a fresh supply of it.

Laurels that are rested upon soon wilt.

Silence is the sauce that softens the spice of life.

One good turn is apt to make us expect another.

THE SUPREMACY OF BRIDGE

Reviewers of the social "seasons" just closed agree that its outstanding feature is the conquest of German society by the seductive game of bridge. From a monopoly in the hands of a few privileged folk, who knew it from English visits, bridge has now become the property of German society generally. It has invaded all branches of the smart set, including royalty, the army, and the aristocracy. The theatres reveal unmistakable evidence of the bridge plague. Several of the season's plays introduce games, and the dialogues of a dozen others tell of it conspicuously. Henceforth the national game of "skat" seems likely to have to fight for its existence with all-conquering bridge.

AN EXCITING PRESENT-DAY ROMANCE

"Yes," said Scott. "I understood that it was merely a case of professional jealousy. They've been boxed up together on that schooner for eighteen months, you see, with nothing to do at sea except quarrel, and nothing to interest them in the show they give when they're ashore. Come over with me to-night, and make Val B. Montague's acquaintance."

Scarborough did not answer. A message was coming through at last. The ribbon of paper from the siphon-recorder showed an irregular, wavy line now, and he tore off the message in the hills and valleys of the Morse code as the instrument passed it through.

"Page, Calneias, Ribeira Grande. Danger —circus.

That was all. It was obviously not the message for which he was waiting; nor was it, at first sight, either interesting or intelligible unless one happened to know the code by which those two words "danger circus" were to be interpreted. Scarborough did not know the code himself, because of the person to whom it was addressed, the cablegram interested him profoundly. Had he been able to foresee the difference which its receipt would presently make to him, his interest would perhaps have been greater.

"Anything?" asked Scott listlessly.

"Private message, in code," said Scarborough, and Scott returned to his novel with a grunt.

Scarborough sent the message through to the Post Office for delivery, and then rose and went to the window. Through a break in the mist he could see about a mile away a white-washed house, built in the shelter of two great masses of grey volcanic stone that projected curiously from the side of a green hill. The two rocks were called, in Portuguese, As Chinelas,—the slippers,—from a resemblance, not however very striking, which they were supposed to bear to a pair of rather down-at-heel slippers. The white-washed house took its name from them.

It had been in the possession, for the last two years, of an Englishman, who, having come to the Azores as an invalid seeking for health, had not found that for which he sought, but had stayed, because the place had suited him. His daughter kept house for him at the Chinelas; and in this fact was the explanation of Scarborough's interest in the message which had just passed through his hands.

Scott broke suddenly into his meditations.

"You haven't said whether you'll go with me to the circus to-night," he remarked. He did not believe in leaving matters of real importance unsettled.

Scarborough started. The cablegram had coupled the word circus and danger. A coincidence, of course. It could be anything else, and yet Scarborough felt a sudden misgiving. Was danger coming to Elsa Page? Oh, nonsense! code messages often combine words curiously. It was nothing but a rather queer coincidence!

"Can't," he said. "I've promised to play chess with Mr. Page to-night."

Scott pursed up his lips, and looked at his friend doubtfully.

"Oh, ah! um! At the Chinelas!" he remarked slowly. "Do you care much for chess?"

"Loathe it!" admitted Scarborough, with a laugh.

"So I thought. And yet you play at the Chinelas every second night or so. Bit risky, isn't it?"

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing. You know your own business best, of course. Miss Page is a nice girl; pretty too, but—" he broke off.

"But what?" demanded Scarborough, with a quick flash of anger. "Do you criticize her?"

"No," said Scott. "I believe she's as nice a girl as you think she is. And that's giving her high praise, you know."

Scarborough waited a moment, and then said:

"Well? Go on."

"I don't like her father," said Scott, with decision.

"Confound you, did she ever ask you to?"

"She will ask you to, if he becomes your father-in-law," was the retort. "And you won't be able to do it gracefully. The man's a wrong-un, and you know it as well as I do."

"I know nothing against him," said Scarborough hotly, "nor do you."

Scott nodded calmly. "That's true," he admitted, "nothing definite, that is. But, like you, I've spent odd half hours in his company; not as many as you have, but enough to make me back my opinion with perfect confidence. A man who shakes hands in the way he does, for one thing, can't possibly be straight. But don't lose your temper, old man. The daughter isn't the father, and I'll admit that it's none of my business in any case. To change the subject, look at the recorder. There's something coming over, isn't there?"

Scarborough went to the instrument and read the message aloud:

"Courier arrived in London this morning with important despatches from Berlin. It is officially announced that His Imperial Majesty will be present in the Hohenzollern during Cox. a week, and that the Meteor will be entered for the principal race."

"Rather cryptic!" said Scott. "What does it mean, in plain English?"

"It means," said Scarborough, "that his Imperial Majesty has thought it prudent to simmer down, and that there is not going to be a European war after all."

He sat down at the table and sent on to its destination this message which seemed to speak only of sport, but which would cause many an anxious diplomat to sleep more easily that night than he had slept for a week. Then he turned to Scott.

"Our watch is over," he said. "I can hear Mason and Davitt coming to relieve us. You are going to the circus?"

"Yes. Let me book a seat for you?"

"Yes, please, afternoon performance to-morrow, two seats."

"Two seats!" echoed Scott. "For yourself and—"

"Miss Page," said Scarborough, and Scott laughed shortly.

CHAPTER I.

A Message in Code

Horace Scarborough was sitting in front of the siphon-recorder in the Instrument Room of the cable station at Ribeira Grande. The faint whisper of electrical apparatus was round him, and the afternoon mist of the Azores had crept in to the room and chilled the air. He had been on duty for nearly eight hours; but though he was tired, he was hardly conscious of the fact; for the strain of watching for a message, expected but long delayed, had braced his nerves and driven away all thought of fatigue.

The message for which Scarborough was watching meant peace or war amongst the nations of the world.

For international politics had reached a crisis. A certain diplomatic "note" had been presented, and the answer was expected hourly. If the issue were peace, the public would probably never know that there had been a crisis at all. But the servants of the great cable companies necessarily have greater and earlier knowledge than the rest of mankind; and it is by no means the fact, as many suppose, that the most important news always passes through their hands in unintelligible cipher. Diplomacy is a shy monster, hunting by tortuous paths, and loves to shroud its tracks in obscurity; but sometimes even diplomats speak out, and when they do, their words are apt to be momentous.

In every Chancellery of the world anxious men were waiting for the answer, which an Imperial courier was bearing post haste to the court of St. James's.

Scarborough glanced for the fiftieth time at the ribbon of paper which came from the siphon-recorder, and saw that it registered a plain straight line. Nothing was passing over the cable just now.

He dropped his chin on his hand, and stared at the instrument as though by staring he could force the news from it. There was no hint of impatience in the attitude or movement, rather of a strong patience that would be likely to win its way in life by meeting adversity with a square front, and then calmly wearing it down. He was about twenty-five. The lines on his face were deep for a man of his years; but they were lines graven by character, not by experience—by a grave habit of thought, rather than by any knowledge of suffering in the past. He looked like a man who might take life hardly, because he would shirk none of its responsibilities; who would fight, if he had to fight, bravely and victoriously; but who, as yet, had not been called upon to show the grit that was in him. When he smiled—which was often—the lines vanished, and humored boy.

But though his nerves were tense with excitement now, he had not been able to interest with his own eagerness the man who was on duty with him. A luxuriously elaborate yawn, from a wicker chair behind him, echoed round the walls of the Instrument Room, and caused the quick smile to show itself on Scarborough's face. Scott, the man in the chair, was supposed to be sharing his watch; but he was one of those who take life easily, and his method was to read a French novel in a big chair until Scarborough should give him the word that the instruments were talking. Then he would rise slowly, stretch himself, and take his share of the work.

"What a phlegmatic beggar you are," said Scarborough. "Enormous issues are being decided, and the news may come at any minute, and I don't believe you're even interested!"

"Right. I'm not," Scott answered cheerfully. "Don't care for politics. Don't understand 'em, you see. Don't fathom what there is to worry about."

"A European war is generally counted a pretty important thing," said Scarborough dryly.

"Oh, yes, if it comes off! But it won't. Let's talk of something interesting. Going to the circus?"

Scarborough laughed.

"What circus?" he asked.

"There you are!" said Scott triumphantly. "You're just as ignorant as I am, in your own way. My ignorance embraces European politics—as admittedly unsavory muddle; yours concerns the things that are taking place under your nose. What circus? Val B. Montague's American Circus Combination, of course. The whole island of San Miguel is placarded with it—pictures of beautiful ladies on bare-backed steeds, balancing at extraordinary angles. It's the most exciting thing that has been in the Azores for a year. I went across to Ponta Delgada to see it yesterday."

"Oh? Good show?" asked Scarborough carelessly, keeping his gaze fixed on the ribbon of paper which came from the siphon-recorder.

"Pretty fair," said Scott, whose novel had bored him, and made him want to talk, even though he failed to interest. "There's a nice little girl who calls herself Mademoiselle Mona de la Mar, and does the bareback business not like the pictures, but decently enough, and there's a very English looking cowboy who shoots glass balls and things with very moderate success. 'Tisn't a bad show though, on the whole, and Val B. Montagu is beautiful."

"What does he do?" Scarborough asked next.

"Nothing in the ring. But he runs the whole show none-the-less and, prevents breaches of the peace amongst his troupe. No easy job that, I gathered. They've been touring the Atlantic Islands and the West Coast of Africa for a year and a half in a two-hundred-ton schooner, and the clown hasn't murdered the ring-master yet, though Val B. seems to be very much inclined to offer odds that he will very soon. Fine fellow, Val B! Took my whisky and soda with the air of conferring a favor on me, and was graciously pleased to say that he would come over here on Tuesday to have dinner with me, if his children—that's what he calls the troupe—did not need him. I fancy he's nervous about the clown and the ring-master."

"What's the trouble between them?" asked Scarborough, more for the sake of continuing the conversation than because he cared. "Is it Mademoiselle—"

"No," said Scott. "I understood that it was merely a case of professional jealousy. They've been boxed up together on that schooner for eighteen months, you see, with nothing to do at sea except quarrel, and nothing to interest them in the show they give when they're ashore. Come over with me to-night, and make Val B. Montague's acquaintance."

THE CULINARY ART

A NEW RICE PUDDING

Wash a cupful of rice, and put it on to boil in a cupful of boiling salted water. Let it boil for ten minutes, then pour in a pint of milk, and let it cook for half an hour without stirring. Take the saucepan from the fire, stir in a heaping tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of marmalade, and two eggs well-beaten. Turn the pudding into a buttered dish, and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

TO COOK TROUT.

If you would like to serve trout in perfect condition, proceed as follows: Place the fish on a dish, pour over some melted butter, and let it soak for a few minutes; then dust with pepper, and cook slowly on a gridiron over a clear fire from ten to fifteen minutes, according to the size of the fish.

A CHEAP DINNER.

Wash half a pound of rice in several waters, put it in a saucepan with plenty of boiling salted water, allowing it to boil up; simmer for five minutes, then drain it. Put it back into the saucepan with a cupful of new milk, the same quantity of boiling water, and cook until tender. Stir in a heaped tablespoonful of grated cheese, add salt and pepper to taste. Grease a pie-dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, and put in the cooked rice. Scatter another tablespoonful of grated cheese over the top, dot with bits of butter, and bake in hot oven for twenty minutes.

THE BOILING OF A HAM.

If a ham is boiled according to the directions given as under the result should be found quite satisfactory:—Wash and scrape the ham well, and put it on with cold water, 1 teaspoonful of vinegar, and half a dozen of cloves. Allow half an hour to each pound of ham. When ready allow the ham to cool in its own stock, which improves the flavour very much. Next skim over it a good quantity of browned bread crumbs, or if preferred glaze it.

Mr. Finnie's Mistake.

The other evening, while Mr. Edward Finnie, nightwatchman, was making his rounds, he dropped into the Boston Cafe, where he was accosted by a young man, who said he was an old acquaintance, and invited Mr. Finnie to join him in a light lunch. While they were thus engaged they got into a general conversation at the expiration of which, Mr. Finnie, again questioned the supposed stranger as to his identity, and was delighted to learn that it was none other than his own son, George Finnie. He had just arrived from the West, on the midnight train, after an absence of seven years.

THE MORNING TIMES

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1912.

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT.

That there is a well-organized campaign in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt's re-nomination in the coming Republican convention, there seems to be no doubt. The former president himself is so silent concerning the activity of his friends that but one construction can be placed on his attitude—that he is not unwilling to again take up his residence in the White House.

Four years have brought about a remarkable change in Colonel Roosevelt's attitude. Four years ago he was exerting every influence at his command to promote the candidacy of Mr. Taft. But for the dominating Roosevelt influence through official patronage, it is doubtful whether Mr. Taft would or could have been nominated, and he owes his success to the Roosevelt influence.

Now, four years afterwards, the former president and his protege seem to have parted company. And yet President Taft has pursued the "Roosevelt policy" throughout his three years of office. He has accomplished more in those three years than Mr. Roosevelt accomplished in the seven years of his presidency. He has done it with much less of spectacular display, with much more of moderation in language and vastly less of that vehemence in denunciation of vested rights which approaches perilously close to demagogy.

The antagonism of Colonel Roosevelt to President Taft can be explained by no well-founded accusation of delinquency on the part of the latter. It can readily be accounted for by the vaulting ambition of Colonel Roosevelt. When he first assumed the presidential function on the death of William McKinley Mr. Roosevelt declared publicly that it was a wise public sentiment which forbade more than two terms to a president. Colonel Roosevelt served nearly the full term for which his immediate predecessor was elected. Then he was successful in the ensuing campaign. Actually he had two terms in the White House, although only one of them was elective. The very fact that his friends are declaring that the third term argument cannot be urged against the Roosevelt candidacy this year, since he was only once elected to the presidency, and the further fact that Colonel Roosevelt appears to accept this view indicates an obliquity in his character quite at variance with his fulminations against double-dealing and hair-splitting.

Meantime the friends of President Taft are not dismayed. President Taft may be a victim of the Roosevelt demand for a square deal in all matters but politics, but it is unlikely that the great body of American people will accept the logic which concedes Roosevelt but a single term in the presidential chair.

IT ALL STARTED WITH LA GRIPPE

AND THE CURE WAS QUICK AND SURE WHEN HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Aged New Brunswick Man Tells How His Diabetes and Bright's Disease Vanished Before Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lower Aboujoggin, Westmoreland Co., N. B., Feb. 2—(Special)—"I had a severe attack of La Grippe, which developed into Diabetes and Bright's Disease, but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. Yes, I am seventy years old, but I am in good health again and I hardly need to tell you I am well satisfied with Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Such is the story of Damien Boudreau, one of the oldest and most highly respected inhabitants of this place. It shows what a boon Dodd's Kidney Pills are to the old folks. They cure the Kidneys, clear the dregs of disease out of the blood and make the old feel young.

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the Kidneys. Good Kidneys mean that there can be no impurities left in the blood. And the man or woman who has good pure blood can laugh at nine out of ten of the ills to which the flesh is heir. They are the one sure cure for all diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases such as Rheumatism, Backache, Dumness and Heart Disease which are caused by impure blood.

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal for you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

THE DYMENT STRING

Death of John Dyment Will Not Interfere With It

The lamented death of John Dyment will not interfere with the continued interest of Messrs. Simon and Albert Dyment in their breeding and racing ventures. They have at Brookdale Farm a band of highly-bred brood mares, and the stallions Red Fox and Tongorder. The latter is the good Order horse that won so many high class races for the orange and green, while Red Fox is a son of the mighty Flying Fox, and the only one on this continent. He is a picture of a horse, and, though he came out here with the reputation of possessing a bad temper, he is now an animal of admirable disposition, and anybody can handle him without difficulty. In the Argentine Republic Jardy and Val d'Or, two sons of Flying Fox, which cost their owners $150,000 and $140,000 respectively, have been most successful sires. The horses in training at Brookdale include two slashing King's Platers, Hersey, by Sain, and Tropaeolium, by Nasturtium.

LEARNING TO SKI

The Duke of Connaught Takes Interest in the Pastime

H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught has spet most of his spare time of late learning to ski. Almost every afternoon sees him on the hills of Rockcliffe Park, accompanied at first by two aides, one on each side, and later, as he became more proficient, with only the Princess Patricia, who became an adept at the sport in Europe. The latest exploit of the Princess Patricia is to ski down the ice-built toboggan slides at Rideau Hall without falling. It is a proof of her courage and perseverance that it was only after four unsuccessful efforts and a stiff neck that she finally achieved the descent safely.

No man ever saw his Father by climbing over his brother.

Scientific Wrinkle Remover Easily Made

(From Ladies' Favorite Magazine)

A few dermatologists have long held the secret that a certain product, known to the drug trade as saxolite, had the property when used in solution, of instantly reducing wrinkles. Any one can readily make this same solution by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. Bathe the face in this and note the immediate transformation! The skin tightens, becomes firmer — deepest wrinkles at once begin to smooth out. This action will of course also reduce hanging cheeks or double chin.

When the hands show signs of aging, the skin becoming coarse, creased or flabby, bathe them in the solution. Since the recent publication of this formula, men and women all over the country have taken advantage of the information, according to reports, with most satisfactory results.

Dermatologist Gives Complexion Secret

"The great secret of keeping the face young is to keep off the dead cuticle," said Dr. J. Mortimer Mitchell, the noted English dermatologist, now visiting this country. "It is well known that the surface skin is constantly dying, falling off in imperceptible particles, except in some diseased conditions, when the same appear like dandruff. But the particles do not drop off immediately they die, being held for awhile by the live skin.

"To have the dermatological surgeon peel off the entire cuticle at one time is a painful and expensive process. The same result is obtained by applying ordinary mercolized wax, as you would cold cream. This is both painless and inexpensive. The wax, procurable at your drug stores, hastens the natural shedding process. It gradually absorbs the dead and half-dead skin, revealing the new, healthy, youthful-looking skin beneath."

HIS BALANCE

"Who is he?" said a passer-by to a policeman who was endeavoring to raise an intoxicated person.

"Can't say," replied the policeman. "He cannot give an account of himself."

"Of course not," said the other; "how can you expect an account from a man who has lost his balance."

TOO BAD

Mrs. Duck:—"Is Mrs. Cochin so very poor?"

Mr. Rooster:—"Yes, she has to scratch for a living."

A STRONG RESEMBLANCE

Lady:—"What have you got in the shape of cucumbers this morning?"

Greengrocer:—"Nothing but bananas, ma'am!"

WHEN TO MARRY

January's brides are likely to become widows early.

February brides will have very happy married lives.

March brides will probably make their homes abroad.

April's brides will have lives of change, and experience many ups and downs.

May brides will entertain many strangers.

June brides will find life a long honeymoon.

July brides have fallen upon stormy times.

August brides are lucky in having a real friend in their husbands.

September brings a smooth and serene future to its brides.

October only gives a future of toil and hardship.

November brides will be happy, and those who, according to the rhyme, marry "in December's cheer," will find that "Love's star burns brighter from year to year."

CHIC THEATRE CAP FOR YOUNG GIRL

Theatre caps will be popular as ever, and even more, 'tis said, for young girls, and a charming model is shown in above sketch. The design is extremely simple and may be readily followed by the clever girl. White lace and large pink velvet roses, with natural foliage, is a pretty and youthful combination.

USES FOR SALT

A pinch of salt on the tongue, followed by a drink of cold water, will cure sick headache.

It hardens the gums and makes the teeth white.

By adding a little salt to the water, cut flowers may be kept fresh much longer.

By using very fine, dry salt as one would snuff for colds, hay fever may be relieved.

A shallow teaspoonful of salt dissolved in a cupful of hot water will revive an unconscious person quicker than brandy or whiskey.

Salt and pineapple juice will cure mild cases of gastritis.

Salt added to water in which coloured glasses are washed will prevent fading.

Smooth flatirons by rubbing over dry salt.

CONCLUSIVE PROOF

Pat was patriotic to a degree, and refused to believe that the ancient Egyptians were wiser than the ancient Irish.

"But the Egyptians used electricity," he was told. "Wires corresponding to modern telegraph wires have been found in Egypt."

"I don't dispute that," answered Pat calmly, "but that fact that no telegraph wires were found in Ireland is proof positive that the ancient Irish used wireless telegraphy."

A FAMOUS HORSEMAN

James Newsome Was the Grand Old Man of the Circus World

Mr. James Newsome, the grand old man of the circus world, died at Cleethorpes, England, in his 87th year, and was said to be England's oldest equestrian and horsebreaker. Mr. Newsome was the descendant of a long line of brilliant riders, indeed he claimed to be one of the family of Temple Newsome, near London, though it was comparatively late in life before he became aware of this.

He was born at Newcastle, and at 13 years of age was apprenticed to Mr. William Batley at Astley's, where he quickly became one of the cleverest as well as one of the most daring riders in the Batley retinue. At the age of 2 he fell in love with Mlle. Hutus, the principal dancer at Astley's, and the union formed by their marriage only terminated about six years ago, when Mme. Newsome died at the age of 79.

The fame of the happily mated couple noised abroad, and managers and proprietors came over from Paris and elsewhere to see the two stars. A three years' engagement at the Cirque du Champs Elysees in Paris followed, and so successful did their performance prove that their contract was renewed for another three years. A tour through France, Holland, and Germany, followed the Paris engagement.

Mr. Newsome returned to England about 1852 and launched out on his own behalf, opening his first circus at Vauxhall Gardens. The following winter he had a spell at Drury Lane, and then with two others commenced to tour the country.

He soon became sole proprietor, and for 40 years Newsome's Circus was known throughout Great Britain. Mr. Newsome paid one jester in those days $400 a fortnight, and for one scene in "Dick Whittington" he paid $20,000.

ted at the cost of $40,000, but in consequence of some litigation over this Mr. Newsome found himself a ruined man, and, though now getting old, he went back to the ring.

Then at the end came disaster. A fine circus he had built at Edinburgh was burnt down. Another was erected at the cost of $40,000, but in consequence of some litigation over this Mr. Newsome found himself a ruined man, and, though now getting old, he went back to the ring.

He by no means escaped scathless during his long list of brilliant achievements. He had one leg broken, a shoulder dislocated, and several ribs fractured, while he has been carried out of the ring as a dead man on several occasions. But his marvellous vitality always carried him through.

One of his most cherished possessions was the letter containing a glowing tribute from the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, who expressed amazement that Mr. Newsome could break a very vicious horse without resorting to the slightest illusage.

RACING IN THE STATES

Horse Review Says the "Thoroughbred Brand is Disappearing

The following from the "Horse Review" will be read with [illegible]

[illegible] Thoroughbred

Says the "Review": Thoroughbred racing in America, worthy of the name, is now restricted exclusively to the state of Kentucky, where meetings are few and purses and stakes of minor value. There are some "merry-go-rounds" still running in out-of-the-way places, such as Jamestown, Va., etc., but they are hanging on by a mere thread, which at any moment is apt to be severed. There is the iniquitous "sink" at Juarez, Mexico, just across the border from El Paso, Tex., but word comes that "the game" there is bound to die a natural death and cannot last indefinitely. The recent attempt to establish so-called "racing" upon a large scale in the City of Mexico, in which project a syndicate of American gamblers was interested, has proved a failure. The similar project now under way at Havana is considered by those "in the know" sure to meet the same fate. In other words, "Last Chance Junction" is rapidly being reached.

INTERNATIONAL COCK MAN

Hamilton Sports Cleaned up by Buffalo Birds

The days of cock fighting are proscribed but they are not over by long odds. Recently a big international main was held across the border in New York State between Hamilton and Buffalo birds. The large contingent of sports from the two cities had a bet on the main of $5,000 besides $100 a side on each of the battles. The Buffalo main cleaned up with seven wins on the ten fights and amassed the main stake and $400 on the side bets besides other pickings.

THE IMMORTAL WILLIAM

A motorist was stopped by a policeman, the light on his car being insufficient. He gave his card to the constable.

"G. B. Smith," read the man in blue. "Go on with you!" he exclaimed, "I want your proper name and address. We've too many Smiths about here. Now, look sharp!"

"Then," said the motorist, "if you must have it, it's William Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon."

"Thank you, sir," replied the policeman. "Sorry to have troubled you." And he carefully entered the particulars in his book.

GOOD GOLF YEAR

Revival of H. H. Hilton and Harry Vardon a Feature of Season 1911.

There can be no question that the outstanding feature of last year's golf was the renaissance of Harry Vardon and Mr. H. H. Hilton. That they should regain the place they once held in the golfing world is not, perhaps, remarkable in itself, but the fact that their revival should have occurred in the same year is certainly a curious coincidence. For both seemed to have reached the zenith of their careers about seven years ago.

Vardon, of course, won the championship in 1903. At the same time he was in wretched health, and it seemed impossible that he could ever win again. It was about this period, too, that Mr. Hilton began to lose his old skill. In 1904 we seemed to be justified in thinking that the greatest of professionals and one of the finest amateurs had lost their powers.

The return of both men was as unexpected as it was dramatic. Of the two revivals that of Mr. Hilton was probably the more wonderful. He showed signs of regaining some of his old skill last year, and assiduous practice and strict training this season inaugurated such a spell of triumph as has seldom fallen to the lot of any amateur golfer.

Sam Langford, the Boston "Tar Baby," who has been matched to box McVey again in Australia. He has two victories to his credit over Jim Flynn.

FRENCH RACE TRACK

Large American Contingent is Helping on the Sport

"There never was a time when there was such a clean bill of health in the training establishments of France. A great year for racing is anticipated there, and this is reflected by the large attendance at Nice races. The stakes for the jumping events filled remarkably well and the early entries for 'the flat' are excellent." Thus spoke John S. McDonald, well known in American, English and French racing circles, and who has returned to London from Paris and Monte Carlo, in a chat on the prospects of racing in France.

"Indeed," added Mr. McDonald, "there are increased entries in every quarter, and on every hand I noted progress and improvements on every one of their already superb tracks. The large American contingent promises to materially increase the revenues derived from the pari-mutuels and at the turnstiles.

"The uniform courtesy extended to foreign horsemen by the French administration of racing is extremely gratifying to those who desire to race in France. It appears to be a pleasure to the officials to give all the necessary information and assistance to strangers and this certainly looks good for the sport on the other side of the English Channel."

A GREAT SIRE DEAD

Gallinule Was One of the Most Noted English Stallions

Gallinule, whose death has just occurred, was one of the greatest English stallions of all time and the most successful of modern times, with the exception of St. Simon. The son of Seonomy—Moorhen was not born in the purple. His breeder was a sporting tenant-farmer of Lincolnshire, named John Hill, who in his highest flights of fancy could never have dreamed of the fame the horse was destined to achieve. In fact, long before he had a chance of showing what he was made of Gallinule was sold at auction and did not realize half the sum the breeder expected. Later, Mr. "Abingdon" Baird paid $25,000 for the horse, who proved a bad bargain, for he never won a race for his new owner.

It was at the stud that Gallinule became so famous, and his progeny included Pretty Polly, Wildflower, Santry, Slieve Gallion, White Eagle, Game Chick, Santry and Lesterlin. Altogether Gallinule's get won $1,284,000.

A BOXING FIASCO

An English Paper Refers to the Storbeck-Moran Bout

Many lessons may be learned from the contest in England between Fred Storbeck (South Africa) and Frank Moran (United States). First of all the bout was quite unpretty because of the crudeness of the two exponents, who did little beyond punch in unpolished fashion. Moreover there was a distinct suspicion that the South African, who was well ahead on points when disqualified, went to the floor of the ring twice without being hit. This sort of thing, suggestive of cowardice, is not forgivable, but the two boxers were so clumsy of movement that it may be Storbeck's seeming misdemeanor was merely the consequence of inability to move rapidly and retain his equilibrium. On one occasion, however, when, from a crouching position, he merely bent his knees and placed his gloves upon the floor, Storbeck might have been disqualified without any undue harshness on the part of the referee. The striking of the blows after the ringing of the bell at the end of the seventh round was due to two things—Storbeck's eagerness to win and the Christmas-toy nature of the gong. The Ring officials should learn the lesson of this fiasco and obtain a gong that can be heard above the murmur of excited onlookers.—English Exchange.

Mr. C. W. Cartwright, of Hamilton, President of the O.C.A., who is taking a prominent part in the reception to the Scottish curlers.

A Bright Young Life Ended.

There passed away at the family residence, 241 Dundas street, on Tuesday evening last, Neal Leslie Smeaton, aged 21 years and five months. The deceased young man was well known and very popular amongst his friends and acquaintances. The funeral will take place to-morrow, Friday, 2nd inst., at 2.30 p.m. to the Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Mr. Grobb, of All Saints' church, will officiate.

RISES TO FAME IN HIS EIGHTIES

To one out of the great Engli... painters of the nineteenth century has to be added a name which will sound unfamiliar to the ears even of those who may claim to be well informed. Walter Greaves has opened his exhibition of "Old Chelsea, Cremorne, The Thames Battersea, Carlyle, etc." to the public at the Goupil Gallery; and before these pictures will have made room for their successors Mr. Greaves will have risen to well-deserved fame. And none too early, for the artist whose unsuspected gifts are now so suddenly revealed, is in the eighth decade of a life of struggle and hardship. The title of his exhibition proclaims Mr. Greaves a pupil of Whistler; and the first cursory glance around the gallery would leave no room for doubt, even if "pupil of Whistler" were not expressly stated on the title-page of the catalogue. "The master" would not allow his two pupils, Mr. W. Greaves and his brother, to exhibit without his permission and without an express mention of their pupilage. To this latter condition Mr. Greaves modestly adheres even now, so many years after Whistler's death. The interest of his display at the Goupil Gallery, apart from the admirable painting qualities of Mr. Greaves' work, lies in the problem: How much of the astonishing talent shown in these paintings was due to Whistler's teaching, etc... One trembles to utter [illegible] Greaves himself, whose worship of the master, according to all accounts, amounted almost to self-effacement. It would be vain to expect enlightenment. But there is the evidence of his work. "Passing Under Old Battersea Bridge," the most "Whistlerian" perhaps of all his works, so like the master's "Nocturne" at the Tate Gallery in arrangement and in the manner of applying the paint and especially of indicating the figures, bears the date 1862, and thus antedates Whistler's picture by over ten years. And then we have Mr. Greaves' own statement, made in all modesty, that he and his brother painted the Thames and Cremorne Gardens, both day and night effects, before they knew Whistler, which would be in the early fifties. Thus, while Mr. Greaves' "Carlyle," his "Portrait of the Artist," and other pictures, are clearly painted in imitation of "the master," one is forced to the conclusion that Whistler himself may have benefitted to no small extent by the example of his pupil. With all his veneration for his master, Mr. Greaves never was a slavish imitator. There are in his pictures, in addition to their Whistlerian characteristics, certain qualities which are quite personal, and others which connect him with the masters of the Dutch school, especially the clearness and precision of his statement, without undue insistence on outline. His manner of painting architecture is something between the crispness of Van der Heyden and the mellowness of Matthew Maris in the mood in which he painted his "Souvenir of Amsterdam." In everything shown at this surprising exhibition—even in the "Hammersmith Bridge on Boat-Race Day," which he painted at the age of sixteen—Mr. W. Greaves proves himself a great artist and an admirable craftsman.

FREE LOVE LEAGUE

A Peculiar Society of Women With Headquarters in Milan

Many fashionable ladies of Bucharest (Roumania) have recently received invitations to join a society known as the "Women's International Free Love League." The league undertakes to put them into communication with kindred spirits who will supply the deficiencies of husbands who fail to understand the complex natures of their wives. The league's motto is "Equal Rights for All," and ladies are assured that the heads of the league will be in a position to put them into communication with their affinities. Ladies are asked to subscribe to the funds of the league whether they are in immediate need of its services or not, as it is impossible to know when such a need may arise. A husband of one of the ladies who received the league's circular put himself into communication with the police. The police traced the circulars to Milan, where it was discovered that a certain Hungarian and her Italian husband were the founders of the league. The woman, questioned by the police, said that the league had thousands of members in every country of the world. She explained that the consolation offered to the ladies was of an entirely spiritual nature, and that her object was merely to supply the demand for sympathy caused by the brutal obtuseness of most husbands. The police declined to take any action against the league.

THE RUNNING AT POWDERHALL

Longboat Set Too Fast a Pace in the Beginning—The Indian Pleased the Spectators

The Powderhall Marathon is described by the Sporting Life as follows:—

"The pace was a cracker from the outset. Longboat broke away in the first mile, run in 4 min. 54 sec., 16 sec. faster than Bouchard's time last year. Two miles in 10.7 was astounding for a Marathon—27 secs. ahead of Needless to say, by this time Longboat was out on his own, and he kept clear of his field for a full hour without any signs of flagging, but then he began to slack. At ten miles, it may be remarked, he was out a second ahead of last year's leader's figures, and from then he dropped gradually behind till at 15 he was 1 min. 37 secs. behind, but still well ahead of his field. The effort had been too much, however, and as the lapped men overhauled him again and went away, cutting down his lead only too decisively, the Indian faltered and finally stopped. He had set out to break up his field—but neither Holmer nor Kolehmainen was to be taken along at a pace which they knew would crack them, and so the Indian only beat himself.

"Now Cameron and Kitchener alternates in the lead, the Finn and Holmer lying close up, but not till the last five miles was entered upon did they start racing for the lead. When they did make for the front it was a race in very truth. Kolehmainen plodded away at a speed which has seldom been seen in a Marathon finish. Holmer hanging doggedly to his heels, sometimes a little too close it would seem, but it was keenness, nothing more, which was at the bottom of his fault. Lap by lap they ran stride for stride, and then at length came the welcome signal that the last stretch was entered. It was anybody's race, but the Finn's stamina told, and he struggled home just a couple of strides to the good. And the last 385 yards occupied 71⅘ secs. as against 93 4-5 secs. last year, which again speaks for itself.

"Cameron and White did excellent performances, but they were overshadowed by the leaders, who are marvels. And Tom Longboat has shown Britishers that he can do the performances with which he is credited. If any race would draw the public now it would be an hour race between the great Indian and Saturday's winner, or even a 15 miles, but the honor would show whether in Longboat the Indian people have not a man who could place Deerfoot's figures in the rear."

The race was witnessed by 14,000 people. The track was heavy. Result, 26 miles, 385 yards.

An artist who had painted a portrait of a gentleman who was fond of good living, summoned one of the household servants of his subject to see the picture before it was sent home. The canvas was displayed on an easel, and the servant came to view it.

For a long time he gazed upon it with evident admiration, but at last found words to express his approval.

"There's no doubt that the portrait represents my master," he said.

As he approached closer to the canvas to get a better view, the painter shouted "Take care, he's not dry."

The man turned with a comical look on his face and said, "Ah, then, I've made a mistake, and you've made a mistake. It can't be my master; he is always dry!"

MR. CODY'S AERO-BUS

Room for Five Passengers and Man With Machine Gun

Mr. S. F. Cody, having had his [illegible] him some little ago, has rebuilt his old machine which he used at an aviation meeting in 1910, and has so improved it that, in a trial, it gave promise of some brilliant performance. When at Doncaster it became famous as the largest aeroplane in the kingdom, but, on the few occasions that it flew, it travelled neither high nor fast.

For the past year or so the old machine has been packed away in a dismantled condition, but Mr. Cody has now renovated it and installed a new motor, an Austro-Daimler, of well over 100 horse-power. The engine appears to be more in keeping with the huge framework, and in yesterday's trial, although only half let out, it gave a pace that left the Army Aircraft Factory's latest production hopelessly in the rear.

Mr. Cody calculates that the extra power will enable him to carry five passengers and enough petrol for a four hour's flight. He has already made the necessary seating accommodation. Another idea which he intends to develop is to construct a platform under the bottom plane, whereon, in lieu of the passengers above, a man may lie fully extended and manipulate a machine gun that will command everything in front of and below the biplane.

GREAT TURF WINNER

The Splendid Record of the Dead Horse Isinglass

The death of Isinglass removes the greatest winner in the history of the turf in this country. A son of Isonomy and Deadlock, he was 22 years old and owned by the late Mr Henry McCalmont. In twelve starts he won eleven races, and was only beaten once, when he was giving Raeburn ten pounds in the Lancashire Plate. His successes included the Two Thousand, Derby and St. Leger, and his earnings amounted to the record sum of $280,675. In the stud his fee was $1,000, and his earnings since his retirement from racing reached another large fortune. Donovan, Rock Sand, Bayardo, Sceptre, La Fleche and Flying Fox were in that order the next largest winners on the English turf, and all of them surpassed the $198,500 won by Domino, the leader among American racehorses.

"DEI GRATIA" ON COINS.

The words "Dei Gratia," which were omitted from Canadian silver coins struck last year, are to be reinserted, according to a new procalmation, by order in Council. The coins hereafter minted will bear above the effigy of his Majesty King George, the inscription, "Georgius V., Dei Gra. Rex et Imp. Ind."

Three additional propagating ponds will be constructed at Brantford during the present season. The three existing ponds will be stocked with parent bass. The first experiments with a leased pond were so successful that twelve acres have been secured by the Ontario Government for a provincial hatchery.

AUSTRALIA'S DEFENCE BILL.

The people of Australia form what is probably the most advanced democracy in the world; certainly the most advanced in the British empire; and yet Australia, governed though it is by the Labor party, is spending far more on national defence than is any other country in the empire except Britain, either in the volume of expenditure or in proportion to population.

For defense purposes, including the naval subsidy of $1,000,000 payable to the British admiralty, says a writer in the Empire Review, the large sum of $11,300,000 is assigned for the current year, and an additional sum of $7,800,000 is set apart for fleet construction. By the end of June next about $15,000,000 out o. the $20,000,000 required to complete the first fleet unit of one armored cruiser, three unarmored cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines will have been provided. Various military and naval works such as training establishments, factories for munitions of war, ranges, barracks, and the like are to cost nearly $3,750,000 besides. In all it is proposed to expend a sum of $21,000,000, not including the outlay in connection with wireless telegraph stations, for the protection of Australia. In other words national defence will this year cost almost $5 a head for every man, woman and child in the commonwealth. At the same rate of expenditure Canada's annual bill for national defence would be not far from $40,000,000.

They are not a warlike people these democratic Australians; but they are a proud and self-respecting people, and they don't want to have the whole burden of their defence fall on the mother country. They are determined to do their duty in the matter of empire defence. This spirit is strong in them, not in spite of their democratism, but because of it. They value their national institutions so much that, as loyal and patriotic citizens, they are willing to spend much to ensure their stability.

GOLD BUBBLE BURST.

But the Rush Made Big Money for Liverymen.

Minitonas, Man., Jan. 30.—The gold bubble has burst. Experts stated last night that there is not sufficient gold here to make it worth while mining. Others say there is no gold here at all. The end came when the miners had a big indignation meeting and the views of those who had been duped were freely expressed. Statements were made by men who have mined gold in the Klondyke that they were positive there was no use working any of the hundreds of claims that had been staked. Last night the trains into this town were filled as usual with claimseekers and the liveryman made a small fortune in taking them miles into the country to stake. From a village of 200 the town has grown to 2000 in two weeks There are many Americans here.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10.00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of backache, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 607 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who send you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. CAREFUL HORSES

Some Remarkable Cases of Equine Sagacity Have Been Recorded—Horses that Saved Children

There have been many instances recorded in which horses, when going at a rapid pace have stepped aside to avoid stepping on a child who happened to be in the way, but some critics have seen in this merely the nervousness that shies at a piece of paper or other moving object on the road. Any such explanation as nervousness, however, must be eliminated from such an instance as the following, recorded in "Our Dumb Animals," as told personally to the editor by the person who was the small boy of the story.

"From my earliest recollections my father was fond of horses, and he usually kept from one to five in his stables. They were well cared for, and in return he expected good service and speed. We had one horse, 'Fan,' who was the pet of the whole family, and was considered so safe that I, a little fellow in kilts, was allowed to play around her head and heels without restraint.

"One day I was playing in the yard as usual, while old 'Fan' was being hitched up. When all was ready, father jumped into the wagon, gathered up the reins and gave the word to go. But the horse moved not a muscle. He then lightly touched her with the whip; old 'Fan' merely pricked up her ears, but would not budge. Just then my father, a little out of patience, gave the horse a sharper stroke. What was his amazement to see 'Fan' lower her head, carefully seize with her teeth a small bundle which was directly in front of her, gently toss it to one side, then start off on a brisk trot. As the small bundle proved to be me, it is needless to say that after that old 'Fan' was more petted than ever before."

A further instance was observed in Bedford, Pa., and recorded in the Pennsylvania "Hawkeye." A little girl with her doll in her arms fell under the feet of a passing horse. But the horse moved back away from the child, being careful not to step upon her as he did so, and then, putting his head down, grasped her skirts firmly with his teeth, lifted her clear off the pavement, and set her gently upon the curb, stepping back then upon and looking at her with evident satisfaction.

MARRIAGE TANGLES

Some Queer Relationships are Not only Possible but Actual

Considerable amusement was caused in the British House of Commons when a member asked the Secretary to the Treasury "whether a woman who was legally married and subsequently left a widow, on the death of her husband, was entitled to be treated as the widow of her late husband for the purposes of the death duties, in spite of the fact of her having been the daughter of her late husband's deceased wife's sister?"

"Speaking generally," replied the Secretary, amid loud laughter, "if the marriage was valid in this country the answer is in the affirmative."

When the laughter had subsided, the member asked, "Can the right hon. gentleman say what the relation of the husband and wife was being married—"

After another burst of laughter, the Secretary replied: "I must have notice of that question."

This may have been an imaginary case, but there are in real life many marriage tangles which put the one quoted completely in the shade. In fact, it requires a more than ordinarily nimble mind to sort out the confusion of relationships which may follow such an everyday event as a marriage. It is not so long ago since a problem of this kind was considered at the Central Criminal Court, of London, Eng., with exceedingly curious results.

A woman married a man we will call Brown, and some years later he divorced her. She married again, but the King's Proctor interfered in the matter of the divorce, with the result that the decree was set aside. The woman, finding her second marriage was illegal, refused to live with her second husband and went abroad. Hearing that her first husband had now died, she married again; but her original husband came on the scene, and the woman found herself in the dock charged with bigamy.

The tangled webs of kinship were further involved by the woman's mother, thinking her son-in-law was dead, marrying his father. Thus, when the original husband turned up, he found that

His wife was the wife of two other men.

His father was his father-in-law.

His mother-in-law was his step mother.

His wife was his stepsister.

A BOUNTIFUL HARVEST.

"As a man soweth, so shall he reap;" and youth is the time in which he must do his sowing if the granary is not to be empty when old age overtakes him, as it surely will if he lives long enough. The making of money and the saving of money, as distinguished from the miserly love of money, should be the ambition of everyone; but it does not necessarily follow that if you make money you will have it in your old age, as many a one-time millionaire has died in the poor house. But if you take advantage of the Canadian Government Annuities system, and out of your wages, salary or income pay the amount fixed to be paid each week, month, or year, or as otherwise arranged, provision for old age may be made with absolute certainty and at much less cost than on any other safe plan. You may lose everything else you own but the Annuity cannot be lost or taken from you by any process of law, no matter how long you may live. Ask your Postmaster for literature on the subject, or write for the same to the Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, to whom all letters may be addressed free of postage

Teams Had Banquet.

The Armature and Meter Department hockey teams of the C.G.E. held a banquet at Coleman's on Wednesday night. Mr. J. A. Parry made an ideal chairman, and the event was a success. Mr. Nicholls presided at the piano.

Mr. J. W. Buyers, postmaster of Buyersville, has been superseded in that office by Mr. Albert E. Saunders of the same place.

IT ALL DEPENDS

"Could you love me, darling?" he whispered, with a tender, pleading look in his eyes, "if I had only one coat to my back?"

"I could," she replied, softly, as she nestled in his great, strong arms, "if I knew you had sacrificed the others to buy me a new dress."

MOVING DAY

The following incident occurred a short time ago. It was moving day at the office, and Mr. Jones had just moved into a new room which had not been used for a long time. The dust had not yet settled, and things were not straight when Mr. Smith, feeling pleased with himself, enters the room and remarks:

"Great Scott! Mr. Jones, this room is full of microbes."

Mr. Jones:—"Yes, I know it is; there's a big one just entered."

STRAINING HIMSELF

Percy:—"What do you think about your doctor's advice to take physical exercise, dear boy?"

Cholly:—"I'm cawwying a heavier walking stick, and I wear a larger button-hole bouquet."

RAILWAY MANNERS

First Passenger (irritably):—"Where are your eyes?"

Second Passenger (pleasantly):—"In my head."

First Passenger:—"Well, can't you see my feet?"

Second Passenger (more pleasantly):—"No, you have shoes on."

WASTED ENERGY

Flushed and breathless, the well-dressed young man picked up the hat he had been chasing down the street, and leaned against a lamp-post to rest.

Another, also breathing heavily, came running up and took the hat out of his hand.

"I'm much obliged," he said.

"For what?"

"This is my hat."

"Where's mine, then?"

"Hanging behind you at the end of a string."

A Curious Runaway.

In attempting to stop a runaway steer, which with three others was being driven to the market yesterday morning, a milk vendor turned his horse across the roadway in order to stop the mad career of the steer, and received a broadside from the animal's heels as it was passing, knocking him off his rig. The animal continued its course north, on Water street, and was eventually caught.

Lindsay Loses Lawsuit.

In June last Mr Samuel Walker fell on the sidewalk in Lindsay, and suffered injury. He claimed the sidewalk was out of repair and that a plank had been off for over a month. It was shown that eight years ago the Town Engineer had reported a new walk necessary, but nothing was done. The defendants contended that the plaintiff, knowing the condition of the sidewalk was guilty of contributory negligence, but the Judge held that he had taken due care. Judgment was given on Thursday, giving damages to the plaintiff of $300.00 and costs.

Family Deported.

Mrs. Whittaker, who was arrested at the home of a Smith farmer named Heard some time ago by County Constable Cochrane, was deported yesterday, along with her two little daughters. It will be remembered that Mrs. Whittaker was sent out of Lakefield for keeping a disreputable house, and leaving one of her children there, she went tramping about the country, finally winding up at Heard's. When arraigned before Magistrate Edmison, she asked to be deported and the necessary arrangements were made. She left the city on the noon C.P.R. train en route for England.

THE DAN SPENCE COUNCIL

Interesting Meeting of Royal Templars of Temperance.

A very interesting meeting of the Dan Spence Council, R. T. of T., No. 26, was held Thursday in the Knights of Pythias' Hall.

There was a good attendance over which the past Council presided.

All officers were installed and four new members initiated, after which the new select councillor, Brother G. P. Russell, occupied the chair and conducted the business part of the meeting.

At the conclusion of this an appropriate program and social time were enjoyed. Past Councillor Brother Carey gave a brief address, urging all officers and members to be earnest and sincere in their efforts to uphold the good reputation of the Lodge, and help on in the temperance cause.

Sister V. Merrill gave thrilling temperance recitation; Sister E. Kemp, a vocal solo, which was beautifully rendered; Sister L. Smith delighted the company with a well rendered instrumental; Brother C. Doucette gave a recitation in his usual pleasing and dramatic manner.

Refreshments were then served and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

The next meeting of the council will be held on March 7th. All members are requested to be present.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO START BIG CAMPAIGN

The Church of England Will Hold a Special Conference in Peterboro.

The Church of England Sunday School Commission of Canada has decided to hold a three weeks' campaign in Toronto, starting on the 25th of this month. Each of the Anglican churches of the Synod of Toronto will be visited in turn by the organizing Sunday school secretary of the Anglican church, Rev. R. A. Hiltz, and special Sunday school teachers' and officers' conventions will be held all over the city. The aim is to stir up the Sunday school workers, and to secure greater efficiency in the Sunday schools of the city.

Special conferences will be held not only in Toronto, but also in Brampton, Alliston, Barrie, Orillia, Oshawa, Tavistock, Peterborough, Haliburton and Aurora. This is only part of the extensive Sunday school improvement campaign being carried on at the present time all over Canada and Halifax to Vancouver.

every man sees from his own point of view. I will illustrate: On one occasion a cross-eyed teacher said in his school—"The boy that I am looking at come to me." And there were 22 boys who walked forward. Hence should any such person be looking out the post office window for six minutes, to him, to all intents and purposes—as far as the impression on his nervous system is concerned there would pass 22 x 180 namely 3,960 dogs. This matter to be remedied must come before the City Council, consisting of 10 Aldermen and the Mayor. If these 10 gentlemen should have the vision of the teacher they would see 39,600 dogs in the six minutes. The Mayor should at least see as many as the Aldermen combined, which would bring the total number of dogs viewed by our City Council up to 79,200 in the short space of six minutes.

I am serious about this matter. It is not only a civic question but a religious matter. I heard the Pastor of Charlotte St. Church read one Sunday "Without are dogs". Now I would like to know whether this means that dogs should be outside our homes or outside our city? If it means the latter then our new Council have their work cut out for them. I want no higher critical views on this matter but the real old interpretation.

Last week a citizen saw a dog come down George St. panting, he turned aside but was too late the dog panted him and he is now looking for a receipt (re-seat).

If the City Council refuse to assume any responsibility, can we not have a papal decree? and then the dogs would be thoroughbred. The mixed marriage matter would be a thing of the past. I hope Mr. Editor we will hear more of this.

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It seems to many of us that there is only one wise way to settle this marriage question to the "reasonable" satisfaction of all Canadians, of whatever creed.

Now, the question of the validity of the marriage tie is the most important of those at present agitating the public mind. Bi-lingual schools, reciprocity, free trade, protection, railway development and other issues are each and all of consequence, but add them altogether and the importance of the results fades into insignificance before this great question, upon the settlement of which the security and honor of the home are based. Would it not be wise if we should follow the example of France in this one thing, and make a civil marriage before a magistrate the "legal" one? Then each couple could get their priest or parson to perform the religious ceremony also. But upon the civil marriage the legitimacy of the children and the law of inheritance should rest. The civil marriage must be "obligatory" to Roman Catholics and to Protestants alike. The civil marriage must be the one the State will recognize.

This is the only way to settle this question amicable in a country like Canada, where both Roman Catholics and Protestants are so strong in numbers, so aggressive and so loyal to their respective faiths. Let the Parliament of Canada, in Ottawa assembled, pass a law to this effect, and let Roman Catholic and Protestant ecclesiastical dignitaries loyally support it; and instead of doubt and continued uncertainty, security and peace will result.

A NIGHT IN SCOTLAND

Interesting Lecture Last Night by Prof. Morison.

One of the most enjoyable, at the same time instructive, addresses given in Peterborough for sometime, was delivered last night in the Y.W.C.A., by Prof. Morison, of Queen's University, Kingston. The subject of the address was "A trip through the Highlands of Scotland," and was illustrated with lantern views.

The address was based on a trip made last summer by the learned Professor through the Highlands, and he was therefore able to speak from personal experience.

The large audience was delighted with the lecture, and gave expression to their feelings by unanimously passing a vote of thanks.

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of young married people usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for glasses. Some were near sighted, some dev'l on account becomes of eye strain. Some did not require glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate, timely attention saves your child much misery and yourself future regret. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

PROTESTANT ULSTER WILL NEVER GIVE IN TO ROME

Sir Edward Carson Says Opponents of Home Rule Are Longing for Battle

London, Feb. 5.—Sir Edward Carson was last night a guest at the dinner of the Imperial and Constitutional League. Replying to the toast proposed by Viscount Castlereagh, he said he was glad to be able to fulfil the engagement through the somewhat belated reluctance of Churchill. (Laughter.) Had events taken another turn he might still be in Belfast, but the First Lord of th Admiralty found discretion the better part of valor. (Laughter). Following upon the recent outburst of Imperial loyalty at the Canadian elections, he hoped they had shown no mean contrast within the last few months in Ulster. They were filled with hope, he proceeded; they were ready for battle, longing for it, and they were going to win (Prolonged cheers).

MEAN TO FIGHT.

The men of Ulster mean to fight to preserve the constitution so little regarded by the Radicals. There is only one democracy in Ireland, that of Ulster, and those men are prepared never to surrender those great liberties which they have inherited, not from Fenians, but from their Scottish, and English forefathers. The men who had built the Empire were men who were now determined in Ireland to maintain it, and didn't believe England had become so decadent that she could afford to shoot down her own supporters in order to gratify the wish of transvaal brigades, who shot her own sons in South Africa. (Cheers).

AUSTRALIA'S MESSAGE.

Sir Edward received the following telegram from Melbourne meeting—"6,000 loyal citizens assure you moral and material support of the majority of Australians in defence of religious and civil liberty and a united Empire. Australia is unchanged since 1906, when 100,000 electors addressed the Crown against Home Rule. Hold the fort, brave Ulster. No surrender.

NO FISCAL AUTONOMY.

London, Feb. 3.—John MacKinnon Robertson, member of Parliament and ... at an Irish meeting in London last night, ... the anxiously-debated question whether, under Home Rule, Ireland would control the Customs and excise. Mr. Robertson said that to give Ireland complete and absolute fiscal autonomy would be tantamount to separating her from the Empire. There was no hope, he declared, of carrying the Home Rule Bill on such a footing as this and he trusted that the Home Rulers would realize that fiscal autonomy was outside of practical politics.

The Times differs with the Daily Chronicle's forecast of the Home Rule Bill published Friday morning, which said the Irish Parliament would have full control of the Customs and excise. The Times declares the Imperial Government will retain control of the Customs.

ARMED TO THE TEETH.

London, Feb. 3.—The Tory Post this morning out-distances all recent prophets of trouble at Belfast on February 8th, when Winston Churchill, John Redmond and other prominent men will speak in favor of Home Rule. It asserts that from 60,000 to 80,000 Ulster Unionists will assemble. These men will be animated by intense hatred of what they regard as the treachery of Mr. Churchill and Lord Pirrie, who was Lord Mayor of Belfast in 1906-7, in supporting the Home Rule cause. Thirty thousand of these men, The Post says, will be armed with revolvers and the majority will also carry clubs.

The anger of the Ulster Unionists, says The Post, does not embrace John Redmond and Joseph Devlin, M.P. for West Belfast, who have always been Irish Nationalists, but Mr. Churchill and Lord Pirrie are regarded as having sold the pass.

The Post says the Government is aware of the truth of the foregoing statement, and realizes that 7,000 troops will be necessary to preserve order, but none have yet been ordered to Belfast.

"TWILIGHT MUSICALE"

Delightful Function on Saturday afternoon in the Conservatory.

The "Twilight Musicale" on Saturday in the Conservatory of Music was largely attended, many of those present having to stand during the entertainment. The vocal numbers by Miss Chalmers and Miss Brock were very fine, and were laudly applauded.

Judge Huycke, by request, stated that in future the Women's Art Association, under whose auspices these delightful musicales are given, will not issue invitation, the function being open to all who care to attend. The next would take the form of "An Irish Evening," and would take place about St. Patrick's day. He also eugolized Mr. Gliddon and the splendid orchestra of the Conservatory. The following was the programme:

Selected—Conservatory of Music Orchestra; solo—"When the Roses Bloom Again," "My Ship," Miss Chalmers; selected—Conservatory of Music Orchestra; solo, "My Ain Folk," Miss Brock; Selections from the opera, "Roy Roy," Conservatory the Night," Miss Brock and Miss of Music Orchestra; duet, "Calm as Chalmers; selected, Conservatory of Music Orchestra; God save the King.

LOST AN ARM

Cambray, Feb. 4. A terrible accident occurred here Thursday when Mr. Angus Gillies had one of the arms cut off above the elbow. The injured man was feeding a straw cutter at his home near Eaton. Something went into the machine which he tried to pull back, and in endeavoring to do so his mitt caught in the machine and drew his arm in above the elbow before it could be stopped.

Dr. Ray, of Cambray, and Dr. Grant, of Woodville, were summoned, and did everything possible to alleviate the suffering of the injured man. Mr. Gillies, who is 45 years of age, has a family, to whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

A very pleasant evening was spent by the Foresters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Naylor. After a sumptuous repast an excellent programme was rendered. Rev. Mr. Howard acting as chairman.

BUY OFF THE WELLINGTONS

London, Feb. 4.—An attempt is contemplated in Belgium to rid the treasury of its obligations towards the heirs of the Duke of Wellington. After the battle of Waterloo, William king of the Netherlands and afterward of Belgium, expressed his gratitude to the Iron Duke by conferring on him the title of "Prince of Waterloo" and transmitting to all his direct heirs a revenue of 20,000 florins, representing at that time the gift of a large tract of woodland. After the revolution which severed the Netherlands and Belgium in 1830, this obligation was transferred to the Belgian state. The value of the land grant having enormously increased since then through sales of wood and cultivation, the annual amount paid to the present Duke of Wellington now comes to about $42,000. It is proposed to approach the Wellington heirs and negotiate an arrangement which would extinguish thereby the obligation by the payment of a lump sum to the present duke.

BIG CAMPAIGN RE NE TEMERE

A General Marriage Law is Vigorously Demanded

PROVINCE-WIDE MEETINGS

Followed by Conference in Toronto in March—Petitions Will Go to Premier Whitney.

Toronto, Feb. 4.—Sir James Whitney and his colleagues in Queen's Park will be beseiged by a deputation representing the Evangelical Alliance and flooded with petitions signed by hundreds of thousands of Ontario citizens requesting that the Ontario Legislature champion the "Ne Temere" issue. Dr. N. W. Hoyles, president of the Alliance, and Rev. E. D. Silcox, secretary, were appointed at a meeting yesterday to have an interview with Sir James and arrange an appointment at an early date to receive the representation. It was also decided to hold public meetings throughout the province at which delegates will be appointed to a large meeting to be held in Toronto.

ONE MARRIAGE LAW.

"We don't care a button about the "Ne Temere" decree," said Rev. E. D. Silcox. "What we want is one marriage law for the whole Dominion. If the courts decide that the Parliament of Canada has jurisdiction to enact such a law, then the Evangelical Alliance will approach the Dominion Government and ask it to give such legislation.

"There is a question now as to whether the Dominion Government has such jurisdiction. I think we shall know something about the matter soon, because it is probable that the Senate chamber may take the question up shortly. If they decide that the Federal Parliament has jurisdiction, that might be sufficient. There is a possibility, however, that the question may be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada. One marriage law for the whole Dominion is what we are after," repeated Mr. Silcox, "so that there can be no misunderstanding hereafter."

ALL CHURCHES ACT.

At the conclusion of the meeting Rev. E. D. Silcox, secretary, handed out the following statement to the press:

It was decided to arrange, as far as possible, for similar meetings to be held in all the centres of population, and that at these meetings delegates be appointed to attend a conference to be held in Toronto about the first week in March, this conference to be held in the afternoon preceding the evening when a mass meeting is to be held in Massey Hall, of which more definite notice will be given.

"It was also decided to wait upon the Provincial Government as soon as convenient to Sir James Whitney, presenting the petitions thus far sent in, and to impress upon him the importance of the question, seeking his advice in the matter, which we feel confident he will cheerfully give.

"We cherish the hope that all those throughout the Province, having received blank petitions will get them signed, and if any pastor or congregation has not received these and will write to me at once, I shall be only too glad to forward as many as may be required."

NO FISCAL AUTONOMY

John MacKinnon Robertson, M. P., Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade, said that to give Ireland complete and absolute fiscal autonomy would be tantamount to separating her from the Empire. There was no hope, he declared, of carrying the Home Rule Bill on such a footing as this, and he trusted Home Rulers would realize that fiscal autonomy was outside of practical politics.

Repeal Embalmers' Act

Toronto, Feb. 4.—It is freely taken for granted that the present embalmers' act, passed at the last session of the legislature, will never be enforced. The act was to have come into force at the beginning of the year by the government appointing a board of examiners to issue certificates to all those who wish to enter the embalming business and who pass a prescribed examination. Embalmers now in business are not to be required to pass the examination. No action has yet been taken by the government to appoint such a board. Since last Christmas numerous representations have been made to the government, chiefly on behalf of the rural undertakers protesting against the enforcement of the act. The Canadian Press is informed that it is probable that a bill will be introduced in the legislature this session to repeal the embalmers' act of last session.

TROOPERS GO TO BELFAST

Belfast, Ireland, Feb. 5.—The Lord Mayor of this city has sent a requisition to the Parks Committee to provide accommodation for 5,000 troops who are to concentrate here on February 8, the day of the Home Rule demonstration at which Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, are to speak.

EXTENSION OF PARCELS POST

Postmaster-General Pelletier Gave His Views to the House

AS TO CABLE RATES

Will Work for a Reduction on Tolls Between Britain and Canada — New Postmaster-General Makes Important Announcement.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The House had a strenuous week of it and this week promises to be equally so. A few days ago Hon. L. Pelletier made a vigorous statement to the effect that the government proposed to consider the extension of the parcels post systems and the reduction of cable rates between Canada and Great Britain. He announced that he had no objection to the adoption of Mr. Maclean's amendment and commented upon Hon. Mr. Lemieux's admission that the late government might have improved the parcels post system.

The postmaster-general thought improvements were possible. The postoffice was now doing the unprofitable part of the parcel cartying business, and he did not think that that state of affairs should be allowed to continue. Although the government had not considered the subject, Mr. Pelletier was inclined to think that the rural free mail delivery system should be extended.

"We are not satisfied with cable rates," said the postmaster-general. "We expect better rates, and we are going to get them." He believed that considerable reduction could be made in the tolls on messages between Canada and Great Britain.

Amendment adopted.

M. Lalor (Haldimand) pleaded the cause of country merchants who might, he feared, be injured by a general parcels post system, and Mr. Henderson (Halton) urged that a reduction in rates on drop letters in rural districts would be a benefit. Other speakers were Messrs. McCraney (Saskatoon), Turriff (Assiniboia), Emmerson (Westmoreland) and Lemieux. The ex-postmaster-general did not think Canada was yet in a position to adopt a parcel post system like that of Great Britain and other European countries. Yet he thought that a bold policy might be inaugurated, and that the postmaster-general might avail himself of the rural mail delivery routes to commence a limited parcels post service. He would find himself opposed only by the express companies, to whom Canada had been too good.

The amendment was adopted, and the house was then moved into committee of supply to consider estimates for harbors and rivers in New Brunswick.

DR. MERCHANT'S REPORT READY FOR LEGISLATURE

Investigation Into Bi-lingual Schools Averages Two a Day—Visited Sudbury District This Week—"Report" Has Not Yet Been Begun

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Dr. Merchant, who is compiling the highly important document on bi-lingual schools for the Ontario Government, spent the past week in the Sudbury district examining pupils in the French-Canadian school sections, and inspecting the work done by the teachers.

It is learned definitely that the famous "Merchant report" which figured prominently in the recent Provincial elections, has not yet been commenced nor will it be for several weeks. Dr. Merchant's plan is to secure first hand all available information and to cover in person every district that can possibly furnish material evidence one way or the other. His tour has been most ardous and the strain upon him likely will require a long holiday when his report is fyled.

FACES WINTRY DISCOMFORTS.

Driving from school to school even in the bitterest wintry weather, he has probed into conditions in the most remote parts of the Province, from the Rainy River district eastward to Montreal and through Essex and the longer-settled parts of Ontario, where French population is heavy enough to secure a special system of instruction.

Dr. Merchant thus far has been able to cover an average of two schools each day. His proceedure is after the manner of a regular school inspector, except that he enters much more minutely into the work of the pupils and teacher, questioning the boys and girls at length, observing their aptitude under ordinary class conditions with the particular object, of course, of ascertaining their standing in English.

PUPILS SUBMITTED TO A TEST.

In most cases Dr. Merchant submits the pupils to a special test of his own preparation, and upon this and the general class work he makes copious notes which will be concentrated into the final report. These thorough methods of investigation have necessarily taken a long time—and, contrary to reports, no conclusion or opinion on the matter has been submitted by Dr. Merchant to any official quarter.

It is expected, however, that the report will be submitted in time for the present session, so that action may be taken.

MR. J. H. M'CLELLAN AND THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Presented His Excellency With Beautiful Picture of Queen Victoria.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was the recipient on Friday of a unique gift from the Superintendent of the Trent Canal, Mr. J. H. McClellan, of this city. Some time ago the Belgian Minister of Public Works, was the guest of Mr. McClellan on a trip through the ... and ... him on that occasion the Belgian Minister on his return home sent to Mr. McClellan a fine and rare steel engraving of the late Queen Victoria, executed by a Belgian artist when she was still Princess Victoria at the age of seventeen. Mr. McClellan came to Ottawa intending to present the engraving, which has an histroic interest, to the National Museum, but on the suggestion of Col. Hughes, it was decided to give it to his Royal Highness, as being of special value to him. The Minister accompanied Mr. McClellan to Rideau Hall, where the presentation was made. His Royal Highness was greatly interested in the engraving, the portraiture being one he had never seen before. It will be hung in a prominent place in Rideau Hall.

ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY SCHOOL'S NEW HEAD

Mr. Keyes, of Normal School Staff, Becomes Superintendent.

Yesterday Mr. S. Keyes, one of the staff of the Normal School, was installed as Superintendent of St. Paul's Sunday School, taking the place of Mr. Wm. Madill, who has ably and acceptably filled the position for the past eight years.

Mr. Madill, in introducing Mr. Keyes to the teachers and scholars, said that he was being succeeded by a gentleman who would without a doubt, satisfactorily fill the office of Superintendent. He bespoke for him the hearty support of the teachers and scholars.

Mr. Keyes, in a few words, thanked the teachers and scholars for the honor conferred on him. He would strive to merit their confidence, and would do his best to promote the growth and influence of the school. He was pleased to learn that Mr. Madill had consented to act as Assistant Superintendent so that they all would have the benefit of his advise and help.

A feature of the occasion was the presentation of a large and handsome picture by Rev. Mr. Macdonald, the missionary sent by St. Paul's church to Corea. The presentation was made by Mr. King, on behalf of Mr. Cowan's Bible Class.

A cordial vote of thanks was extended to the class for its beautiful gift.

License to Spear in Lake Simcoe.

Beaverton Express: For some years past there has been an impression abroad that the present restrictive methods of winter fishing were not as satisfactory as might be, and gave rise to much duplicity on the part of those who largely live during the winter season from the results of the fisheries. Major Sam. Sharpe, M.P., the energetic representative for North Ontario, has taken the matter in hand and in a letter to The Express in reference to the matter says: "I have been requested by a number of Thorah and Mara people to try to obtain the right to spear fish in Lake Simcoe. I waited on the Department of Fisheries in the matter, and they will issue a permit to the Ontario Government to issue licenses to the people to spear fish during winter months." No doubt this privilege will be most acceptable to many who are interested in this calling and will be rapidly taken advantage of.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

WHO SAID DOGS?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—This dog noise that has been ... the appearance of the people on the streets that it is getting on their nerves. We have had the bike face, the auto face, the biplane face, the pie-face, and the dog faced man, and now, Mr. Editor, are we in line for a dog faced community? I am a victim. I think of dogs by day and dream of them by night, and have also got the counting habit one sleepless night a short time ago. I counted one million dogs and saw another million approaching very rapidly, which latter million were going to devour me. In the legion of canines that were approaching me there were dogs in arms, dogs led by strings, dogs in the air, on house tops, and in windows, from all quarters of the compass. Just then a kindly voice asked what the trouble was. I then turned over, and by so doing, missed the horrible fate that I felt sure was awaiting me.

Now, Mr. Editor, with conditions as they prevail in our midst, is it any wonder that our good friends from across the sea, after viewing the strange and mysterious marks in the snow made by our wolf-like dogs, tell wonderful stories of the number of bears to be captured in our streets, when writing to their friends at home. Up-to-date committees throughout our fair Dominion are trying to remove these false impressions by banishing the dogs from the public thoroughfares. Why not our smart city fall in line and help the good work along.

Interested.

York man, so that for the price of one garment the owner can have three—if they can all properly be called garments. The article is sleeveless and is of knitted material and in two parts. One part consists of a wide girdle that fits around the waist to a point just below the bust. The other part consists of a portion that extends down the back to meet the top of the girdle and has two flaps that come over the shoulders to meet the girdle in front. Along the upper edge of the girdle and the lower edges of the scarf are strips of other material to which hooks and eyes are sewed so that the whole hooks up together into a single garment. The inside edges of the scarf are equipped likewise to close the latter across the chest, either when it is used as a sweater or a scarf. When used as a shawl it can remain open.

COLORS OF BRIDES' DRESSES

White so Common Now, Is of Comparatively Modern Origin.

The majority of brides choose white, when selecting their wedding-dress, because it is the conventional color, and many persons are of the opinion that it has always been favored. As a matter of fact, it is of comparatively modern origin, and in most Eastern countries pink is the bridal colour.

During the Middle Ages and in the Renaissance period brides wore crimson to the exclusion of all other colors. Most of the Plantagenet and Tudor Queens were married in that vivid hue, which is still popular in parts of Brittany, where the bride is usually dressed in crimson brocade.

It was Mary Stuart who first changed the color of the bridal garments. At her marriage with Francis II. of France, in 1558, which took place before the altar, but before the great doors of Notre Dame, she was gowned in white brocade, with a train of pale blue Persian velvet six yards in length.

This innovation caused a great stir in the fashionable world at that time. It was not, however, until the end of the seventeenth century that pure white—the color worn by Royal widows—became popular for bridal garments.

CHAPTER II.

"I love him, and I have to lie to him still."

Two hours later Scarborough set out for the Chinelas to play chess with Mr Page as he had promised. As he walked he again thought of those two words in the cable message which had passed through his hands. Lovers are fanciful. Was it possible that they were not code words at all, but that the reference was to a real danger that was coming near to the girl whom he loved? Scarborough framed the question in his mind, and then laughed out loud at the absurdity of it. There could be no connection between Elsa Page and Val B Montague, with his troupe of quarrelsome and probably tenth-rate actors. Of course the message was on code!

But when he was shown into the drawing-room of the Chinelas, and Elsa Page hurried forward to greet him, he saw at once with the quickness to apprehend [illegible] she was in trouble.

"I would have sent to tell you not to come," she said, "but I have no news paper."

"Is anything wrong?"

"Father's gout is very painful to-night, and he doesn't feel equal to chess. He asked me to make his excuses for him."

"I'm sorry," said Scarborough. "But there's something more, isn't there?"

"Something more?"

"You are in trouble? Something has happened?"

Elsa looked at him for a moment without speaking, and a hint of distress showed itself in her eyes; but she shook her head.

"No," she said steadily. "Nothing has happened."

Scarborough watched her as she took up a piece of fancy-work and fingered it aimlessly, and he knew that she was not speaking the truth. Yesterday when he had left her she had been happy and natural, and to-night he had meant to ask her to be his wife. But to-night she was different. There was a constraint in her manner, there had been almost a coldness in her greeting, and he no longer felt his yesterday's confidence in the answer which she would give him, if he said the words he had come to say. Between to-night and yesterday something had happened, though she denied it. And that something had spoiled the understanding which had been between them.

He came a little nearer to her.

"Elsa," he said gently.

She was not crying, but a shiver shook her, and then left her calm. She took her hands from her face, and raised her eyes to his with a grave look of questioning.

She was not one of those women whom men, at a first meeting, called handsome. Amongst a group of other girls, she might conceivably have been overlooked or unnoticed; and yet she was, in her own dainty way, beautiful. There was no luxury of coloring, but the delicately-modelled features were perfect; her figure was slight, but the curves of it were exquisitely proportioned. She had the daintiness of carved ivory. Here was not the kind of beauty which compels instant attention; but it was the kind which wears well. In old age she would still be beautiful, when the merely handsome, or the merely pretty, would have faded to the merest commonplace.

"Elsa," said Scarborough again.

"I have not given you the right to call me that," she said.

"I came to-night to ask you to give me the right."

She covered her face again.

"Don't, don't!" she cried.

He came closer to her, drew her hands away from her face and took one of them in his.

"Elsa, I love you."

"Don't!" she cried again.

"What's the use of saying 'don't,' when I do?" he asked, smiling; for she had not drawn her hand away.

"I mean, don't say it!"

"Not when it is the truth? Elsa, will you be my wife?"

The hand was drawn away now, slowly; but there was no hint of yielding in the voice, when she answered:

"No, Horace."

He let her hands fall, and stood for a moment without speaking. He did not plead with her. He knew that she was not one of the sort who say 'no,' because they want to be persuaded to say 'yes.' And even had there been the least likelihood that pleading would make her change her mind, Horace Scarborough would not have pleaded. He was not of the kind who plead.

"You call me by my Christian name," he said presently. "You have never done that before. Why do you do it now?"

"May I not? You called me Elsa."

"I was asking for the right to do so always. You will not give me the right."

"I will—Horace," she said slowly.

He made as though he would go to her again, but checked himself. He did not understand her, but her refusal of his offer had been definite. She must explain.

She came and put a hand upon his shoulder, looking up into his eyes.

"I will not have you for my husband," she said "but I want you for my friend. So I want to be allowed to call you Horace, and I want you to call me Elsa. Other people call me Miss Page; but I should like to feel that to you I am Elsa—only Elsa—do you understand?"

"Yes, I understand!" he said bitterly. "You are giving me one of the privileges of a lover, and refusing all others. I understand all but your motive. If you were a flirt, I could understand that too, but you are not. You are not the girl who offers an inch, and means an ell to be taken. Why do you offer me the inch?"

She shrugged slightly, for the resentment in his voice hurt her. After a brief pause she said:

"Suppose it is because I hate to hear the name Miss Page on your lips! Suppose that every time I hear it I feel a rush of shame. Won't you spare me that? Won't you be willing to take my inch?"

"Though I am never to have the ell?"

"Though probably—you are never to have the ell."

"Elsa," he cried, almost fiercely, "you say things which I find it hard to understand. You refuse me, and then qualify your refusal with a "probably"; you say that you feel a rush of shame when I call you by your father's name, and you ask to be only Elsa to me. What does it all mean?"

"It means, Horace, that I want a friend," she answered simply.

"Are you in any trouble?" He thought of the cablegram, and added—"or danger?"

"I am in trouble. I don't think I am in danger."

He came to her and took her hand again.

"Forgive me," he said gently. "I'm a brute to bully you. I will ask no more questions. Tell me as much or as little as you like, but let me help you if I can."

A look of relief passed across her face, but immediately afterwards it vanished, and she shrank back from him. For a brief moment she seemed to struggle with herself. Then she looked into his eyes.

"On my conditions?" she asked gravely.

"On your conditions," he answered.

She rose and went to the window. The night was dark, and she could see nothing, and the cold mist rolled in and made her shiver again. She turned suddenly to the young man.

"Will you take me to-morrow to see the circus which has come to Ponta Delgada?" she asked.

Scarborough thought again of the cablegram, and he feared for her—feared for the danger which she could not tell him of, but which seemed, in spite of her denial, to threaten vaguely but ominously.

"Why do you want to go?" he asked.

"You said you would ask no more questions," she reminded him. "I cannot tell you my reason."

"I beg your pardon. I forgot. Yes, I will take you. I have already booked two seats."

"Thank you," she said, and then added simply: "I must go back to father now. He is waiting for me."

Scarborough accepted the dismissal. She went with him to the door, and stood watching him as he rode away. She has said that she must return to her father, but instead she stood looking out into the night, and a great longing came upon her to call this young man back to her side, and bid him tell his love again. For she loved him. But for one thing, she, too, might have avowed her love, and not been ashamed. But there was something which she did not know of, a secret in her life, which made that impossible. [illegible] a great bitterness against the fate which denied her thus the right to love.

Two years ago she had been a happy and careless child; then the cloud came suddenly, and darkened everything. She had come "out" to the islands with her father, who was, so the world said, a fugitive from English justice. But she believed then that the world was wrong.

She had landed in San Miguel, burning with a generous indignation at the injustice of men and full of enthusiasm for the fight which she and her father would win together. The cloud which had come over the brightness of her young life was black, but she believed that it would soon be dissipated. The truth would be known, and meanwhile exile in her father's company was no real hardship to a girl of seventeen.

But two years had passed, and the cloud showed no signs of lifting. Moreover her father, so far as she knew, had made no effort to escape from under its shadow, had been contented to live in the gloom, and seemed to have lost all longing for the light of day and truth.

He had sunk, with seeming content, into the role of confirmed invalid, nursing his gout and spending his days in profitless study of the philosophy of Herbert Spencer—profitless, and even criminal; for meanwhile he did nothing to remove the stain which lay upon his name.

It was this—the mental apathy which disguised itself in fruitless intellectual labor—which Elsa did not understand. It was this which almost, in spite of the loyalty of her love, caused her to doubt. The facts, as she had been told them, were these:

The firm of stockbrokers in which her father was the junior partner had failed, and failed disastrously, for its operations had not been honest. Its bankruptcy was fraudulent, and a criminal prosecution followed. The junior partner was out of the country at the time, touring in portugal with his daughter. An attempt was made to secure his return by extradition, but the proceedings broke down upon a legal technicality. He waited in Lisbon until the clamor of the courts at home was over, and then changed his name, and went quietly to the Azores with his daughter. He posed, so long as there was need for posing, as the innocent victim of an unscrupulous partner. He never denied that the bankruptcy was fraudulent, but he asserted that his hands were clean of the fraud. That the active management had been out of his hands, and in those of his senior partner, for the last two months before the crash, was a point which told strongly in his favor. Many people, therefore, whose commercial standing made their opinion of value, believed him, and considered him to be what he said he was, an innocent victim.

There were some, however, who declared that the truth was exactly the opposite.

Elsa had known all this, and had waited, at first patiently, but latterly with a growing impatience, for the time when [illegible] should have the necessary proofs in his hands, and should return to face his accusers, and vindicate his innocence. That he no longer seemed anxious to do so was a thing which she could not understand. But slowly the conviction had been forced upon itself upon [illegible] that [illegible] to go back, and for that [illegible] she almost began

[illegible] And even when you tell me of your love, I have to lie to you, and play a part."

a great sob shook her. She turned, and went slowly to her room. Her father wanted her, and was waiting; but she could not go to him to-night.

OVERBID

Mrs. Munck:—"Dollie, why don't you practise your music? I said I'd give you a penny an hour to do so."

Dollie:—"Yes, mother, but father promised me 5 cents an hour if I sit still on the piano-stool."

AN INDUSTRIOUS HEN

"Is that hen of yours industrious?"

"Well, rather. She tried to do two days' work in one to-day."

"How so?"

"She laid a double-yolked egg."

A TRIUMPH

"Do you think it is becoming?" she asks, appearing in her newest gown.

"Don't bother about that!" gushes the friend. "It is perfect! It is simply delicious! My dear, it makes you look absolutely helpless."

HIS SORT OF DONKEY

"I see you advertise for a donkey," said a man who looked as if he had something to sell.

"Oh, yes," said the busy man, stopping his work for a minute to look up, "but I want one with four legs."

PICKED BEFORE RIPE

"Do you call this a band of picked musicians?" said the hotel manager to the leader of a band.

"Ach! dot vos so. I pick 'em mineself," replied the bandmaster.

"Well, then, you picked them before they were ripe."

A DRY TOWN

A tourist, while travelling through Arizona, noticed the dry, dusty appearance of the country. "Doesn't it ever rain around here?" he asked one of the natives.

"Rain?" The native smiled. "Rain? Why, say, pardner, there's bull-frogs in this yere town over five years old that don't [illegible] any other."

DISILLUSIONED

The young man sat beside the beautiful maiden on the sofa.

"Miss Nora," he began hesitatingly, "may I ask you not to call me 'Mr. Durand'?"

A rosy blush crept to the girl's cheeks, and she cast her glorious eyes down at the carpet.

"Well," she stammered, "our acquaintance is so short. Why should I not call you that?"

"Because, Miss Nora," answered the young man, "the fact is, my name is not Durand, my name is Dupont."

NOT OUT?

A match was in progress between a well-known Surrey village team and a team from London. The village parson was batting, and the village barber was umpire at one end.

The parson hit a ball towards mid-on and went for a run. The ball was fielded smartly, and the parson seemingly run out.

But, to the astonishment of the London team, the umpire said "not out."

When the parson got a chance he said to the barber, "That was a close shave!"

"Yes," said the barber; "and if you wasn't in the habit of having a shampoo, I would have said, "Next gentleman, please."

WHAT'S THE USE?

In one of the council schools there was a little girl who was well up in most of her studies, but she disliked geography, and it seemed impossible to teach the study to her.

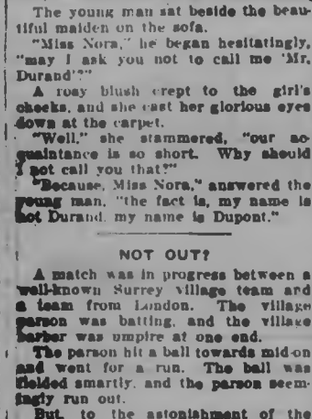
One day her teacher sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lessons. The next day showed no improvement, however.

"Did your mother read the note, Rosie?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.

"What did she say?"

"My mother said that she didn't know geography and she got married, and my aunt didn't know any and she got married, and you know geography and you didn't get married!"



HUBBY'S DISAPPOINTMENT

Wife—"Would you be happy and miserable if I were dead?"

Husband—"No, not a bit, my dear."

Wife—"Then I won't die."

Fire Record For January.

GOING AWAY

A Domestic Sketch with Mr. and Mrs. Brown as the Characters

"William," said Mrs. Brown, as they sat before the fire—"William!"

Mr. Brown obstinately refused to bring down the newspaper behind which he sat.

"William," said Mrs. Brown, [illegible] to go and stop with [illegible] for a week."

"Very well, my dear," said Mr. Brown immovably. "When do you start?"

"Do put that paper down and listen to me!"

"Can't I hear just as well with the paper up?"

"Don't be silly! You don't care a bit!"

"Well, you don't want me to object, do you?"

"When do you start?" he asked pleasantly.

"Do you think you really could manage without me for a whole month?" asked Mrs. Brown.

"I'll try," replied her husband.

"I'll go, then," said Mrs. Brown; and went to make arrangements for packing.

Next evening they referred to it again.

"And you don't mind my leaving you in the lurch, William?"

"It would be no good if I did," he said.

Mr. Brown had been married three years.

"But, William, if you don't want me to go—"

"Haven't I said that I'm only too pleased that you've the chance of a change?"

Mrs. Brown waxed suspicious.

"When I've gone he'll ask in his bachelor friends, and they'll smoke in the drawing-room!" she mused. "What a thought!"

Aloud, she said:

"William, I'm starting on Thursday at ten o'clock. Now, while I'm away, remember—you mustn't go into the drawing-room with your muddy boots, or—"

"Draw up a set of rules, my dear," suggested Mr. Brown, "and I'll learn 'em in the train on my way to the city."

"William, don't be silly! And if you even dream of eating cheese before you go to bed—"

"The dream comes afterwards, Delia," Mr. Brown pointed out, "not before."

"After all," she said, coming over and sitting on his knee, "there's no place like home, is there? And men are so helpless!"

And Mr. Brown smiled.

THE DAN SPENCE COUNCIL

Interesting Meeting of Royal Templars of Temperance.

A very interesting meeting of the Dan Spence Council, R. T. of T., No. 26, was held Thursday in the Knights of Pythias' Hall.

There was a good attendance over which the past Council presided.

All officers were installed and four new members initiated, after which the new select councillor, Brother G. P. Russell, occupied the chair and conducted the business part of the meeting.

At the conclusion of this an appropriate program and social time were enjoyed. Past Councillor Brother Carey gave a brief address, urging all officers and members to be earnest and sincere in their efforts to uphold the good reputation of the Lodge and help on in the temperance cause.

Sister V. Merrill gave thrilling temperance recitation; Sister E. Kemp, a vocal solo, which was beautifully rendered; Sister L. Smith delighted the company with a well rendered instrumental; Brother C. Doucette gave a recitation in his usual pleasing and dramatic manner.

Refreshments were then served and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

The next meeting of the council will be held on March 7th. All members are requested to be present.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE MORNING TIMES

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1912.

ANGER SHORTENS LIFE.

When we are pleased, the pulse is strong; when we are displeased, it is weak. The same holds for breathing. If an experience is pleasant, we breathe more deeply; if unpleasant, less deeply. In joy we breathe in great breaths; in sorrow our breathing is short and weak. When we are pleased we are stronger muscularly—we can put out more strength — than when we are displeased. We feel stronger, and are stronger than usual, when we are heartily and justly angry (pleasant anger). Grief bows us down, grief crushes us down and leaves us physically weaker than ever.

Thus says Dr. E. B. Tichener, in his "Primer of Psychology;" and his views are partly borne out by Dr. Maurice de Fleury, the well-known authority on brainstorms.

His view is that every time we are angry our vitality shrinks so much in proportion for every outburst. In fact, Dr. Le Fleury asserts that each bout of anger, each rush of evil passion, cuts off a certain portion of the life. "Every time a man gets angry" he says, "he shortens his life by so many minutes, or days—perhaps even years. A great deal depends on the intensity of the anger."

COLECHIN'S CREDITOR

A Laughable Story of a Man Who Met His Match

Mrs. Colechin rushed excitedly into the kitchen, where her husband sat over his breakfast, with a telegram in her hand.

"Sam!" she panted; "Uncle Ned—is in England—just sent this—from Liverpool. Something to do with selling his silver mines."

Mr. Colechin stared vacantly at his wife a moment, and then jumped excitedly from his chair.

"Then he—he'll be in London by mid-day!" he gasped. "He's going to see his niece's husband—the stingy old rat, with his one letter a year and not so much as a tenner postal order in it! I'll rush off first and see our foreman about having the week off; then I'm bound for Euston. Meanwhile you see about setting the spare room straight, Mary; and have a nice bit of dinner ready for him—understand?"

"But, Sam, he's practically a millionaire; he'll be putting up at one of the big hotels!"

"He's coming here! He's got to—if I have to drag him! If I can't convince him he's got a duty to his downtrodden, poverty-stricken relations—well, I ain't his nephew-in-law, that's all!"

. . . . . .

When old Mr. Flinders stepped out of the railway carriage at Euston he found his niece's husband waiting with outstretched hand.

"Samuel Colechin, I guess!" exclaimed the man from Nevada cheerily. "It was real bully of you to come and greet me! Perhaps you can put me on to a decent cheap hotel, right now."

"Hotel—pooh! You're not going to a hotel; you're a-coming home to Mary and me!" retorted Mr. Colechin, determinedly.

"Wall—wall, Samuel, I guess you know best; it'll be a save, anyhow. Do we take a car?"

"Car!" echoed Mr. Colechin; "not me. We'll take a cab, it's more private, as I want a talk with you, and—and it's quicker."

"I've had a bully passage," replied the old man, in answer to a solicitous inquiry; "I won a wager of fifty dollars on the boat, so my fare didn't cost me a cent."

"Thought it cost about $125 to come over!" said Mr. Colechin, alarmed by his relative's saving propensities.

"That's first cabin," explained Mr. Flinders. "I came second—I had to; all the steerage was booked."

Mr. Colechin gasped and was silent.

"Wall, how do you prosper, nephew?" inquired the cheery traveller at length.

"Very bad!" snapped Mr. Colechin. "It's a fight against overwhelming odds for the likes o' me. Trade's shocking for us poor beggars. If I could [illegible] with sufficient faith, [illegible] I'd be my own boss and never without a job in the shop, I'll warrant."

The old man seemed to miss the point of the suggestion, and by this time the cab had pulled up at the Colechin domicile. Mr. Flinders put his hand in his pocket when they descended.

"That's all right, uncle!" suggested the other feebly.

"Very good; I guess you understand the customs o' this country better than I do."

Mr. Colechin paid and said things to himself.

. . . . . .

Uncle Flinders was thoroughly enjoying his week with his relations, he declared. He insisted on being taken to all the show places of the metropolis, and wound up each evening with a theatre or music-hall, but at the critical moment Samuel always had to pay; the old man would put his hand in his pocket, and then exclaim: "I'm fair muddled with your English coinage and customs; you settle this time, nephew."

Samuel thought of Saturday coming along without wages; of the bills run up with trades-people during the week for extra luxuries for the visitor; of the money he had borrowed for the same purpose.

"He may 'part up' when he's going," said Mr. Colechin to himself, "but then again he may not." With a brilliant inspiration born of desperation, he sought out Mr. Tom Dirk, the young man who was "keeping company" with his daughter Lucy, and confided in him the story of Mr. Flinders' meanness and hard-heartedness, concluding with:

"Now, we must touch him somehow, Tom, and I want your help. Supposing I owed lots and lots of rent—more than we do owe, I mean. What would happen?"

"You'd have the 'bums' in."

"Quite right; and if such a thing happened in his niece's own home, and he hasn't a heart of concrete, he'd pay 'em out. Now, in consideration of what I may be able to do for you and Lucy, young man, I want you to be a bailiff for once—to-morrow afternoon when Uncle is packing his trunk. There'll be no one else at home; I'll arrange that."

"It's a ticklish job," said Mr. Dirk, scratching his head doubtfully; "but I'll take it on, old man, if you like. And about that big bill at the grocer's," he added. "The manager ought to call before taking proceedings; I shouldn't wonder if he came soon after the bailiff."

"You can't be both!" retorted Mr. Colechin.

"No, but I have a friend who'd oblige me," said Mr. Dirk, with a grin.

. . . . . .

Mr. Flinders was sailing on Saturday, and he spent the whole of Friday afternoon in making his final arrangements. Mrs. Colechin and Lucy went out shopping, and Sam discovered later that he, too, had an appointment to keep. Uncle Ned would not hear of him breaking his word, and volunteered to keep house until his return.

Mr. Colechin was rather a long while gone, and on his arrival the old man greeted him with an expression of gravity and concern.

"Sam," he said, "you've been getting yourself into trouble, I guess."

"I have, sir—I mean, have I?" jerked out Mr. Colechin awkwardly.

"There's been a man to take possession of your goods, likewise the proprietor of a store where you owe a long bill, Samuel."

"I'm sorry, uncle," was the contrite reply, "that our struggles should have come to a climax during your visit. I was expecting ruin, but I hoped to stave it off till you had gone. Are they—still waiting, Uncle?"

"No, they are gone. That's the part that is troubling me; they will never collect another account, I'm afraid."

"What—what did you do?" asked Mr. Colechin, with a vague suspicion of something wrong.

"Why, [illegible] in Nevada; [illegible] the tricks of sheriffs and [illegible], so when that chap said he'd come to take possession for fifty dollars' rent and followed me upstairs, I—I forgot myself, and—well, when I'd done with him, I dropped him out of the window."

"You what?" shouted Mr. Colechin.

"Number two, the 'counter jumper,' wasn't so foolhardy. We had a game of American football down the steps. I guess he's now putting out a contract for sticking plaster and raw beefsteak."

. . . . . .

Uncle Ned went away early the next morning; Mr. Colechin pleaded a bad bilious attack and refused to leave his room even to bid farewell to the visitor.

Later in the day Tom Dirk came in smiling, with Lucy hanging on his arm, looking as fit as the proverbial fiddle. To Mr. Colechin's look of astonishment, the young man answered by putting his finger to his lips and making motions in sign language.

"I'm sorry for your sake it didn't come off," said Mr. Dirk, when at last the two men were alone, "but I didn't get a chance to work our dodge. As soon as he opened the door he recognised me."

"Recognised—you?"

"How was I to know he'd been questioning Lucy and that she'd shown him my photograph?"

"Well?"

"Oh, he was awfully decent! Asked me a lot o' questions, and wound up by giving me a hundred dollars to start a home with and a bit of advice."

"What advice?"

"Well, if you must know, he said: 'Beware of Colechin; he's a sponger. I could tell it the moment he started pumping me and pitching his tale o' trouble. I plumbed him up and made him show his coin, and—' All right; don't look at me like that; I'm only telling you what he said."

HE WAS TOO LATE

The reporter from the local paper called at the home of the bride's parents the day after the wedding. The bride's mother met him at the door.

"Good morning, Mrs. Brown," smiled the journalist. "I have called to get some details of the wedding."

"Oh, pshaw! that's too bad!" replied the matron, in dismay. "They're all gone. You ought to have come last night. They ate up every scrap!"

ALL shares common shares, fully-paid, non-assessable. Treasury Stock 500,000 shares, to be sold for the benefit of the Corporation. Only 100,000 shares will be sold at $1.00 per share at this offering. The subscription books of the Corporation will close promptly at NOON, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1912. 20 per cent. of each subscription must accompany same, balance due and payable in four equal monthly payments of 20c per share each. Subscriptions will be filled in the order received. Over-Subscriptions may be filled at $1.25 per share at the options of the subscriber for the next 50,000 shares. $1.50 for the next 50,000 shares, or any part thereof. The right is reserved to reject any or all subscriptions.

CAPITAL.

The American Chemicals Corporation is incorporated for $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par. value of $1.00 each. All shares common shares, fully paid, non-assessable. 500,000 shares in Treasury, 500,000 shares issued for inventions, processes and trade secrets.

PURPOSE.

The American Chemicals Corporation owns and controls inventions, formulae and secret processes for the manufacture of nitro-celluloss products or plastic material, better known as Celluloid, Fiberloid, Viscaloid, etc., for use in the arts and trades.

REDUCED COSTS.

Exhaustive tests prove that the American Chemicals Corporation can manufacture this staple article of commerce for half the present cost of production.

CONTROL MARKETS.

The American Chemicals Corporation can control the world's markets of its industry by its superior product and low cost of production.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

No more profitable investment can be had than that in a corporation controlling the world's markets in any industry.

Plastic-material manufacture such as will be conducted by the American Chemicals Corporation has always been a very profitable industry.

100 PER CENT. SUCCESSFUL.

Every factory producing plastic material has been an immensely profitable enterprise. There has never been a failure.

PAST PROFITS.

Court records for State of Massachusetts show that $4,000.00 invested in this industry in 1885, paid 500 per cent. profit each year and in September, 1911, had a market value of $500,000.00 (the manager of the American Chemicals Corporation was Chief Chemist of this Company.)

American Chemicals Corporation should do as well, possibly better, as American Chemicals Corporation tests prove that it can manufacture a much superior article at less than half the present cost.

Mr. J. G. Jarvis, the first manufacturer of plastic material in America, has accepted the presidency of the American Chemicals Corporation. Mr. Jarvis began the manufacture of plastic material in 1873 and has been identified with its production ever since. He is now Manager of Parsons & Parsons and Parsons & Jackson, Manufacturers of Celluloid Products, with factories at Cleveland, Ohio and Hamilton, Ontario.

GENERAL MANAGER.

Professor O. W. Pickering, who was Professor of Chemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass., before actively engaged in plastic material manufacturing, has accepted the general managership of the American Chemicals Corporation. Professor Pickering has been identified with plastic material manufacture for the past twenty years, and is acknowledged the leading expert in plastic material chemistry. Very many of the improvements and cost saving devices of the industry are the result of Professor Pickering's invention and research.

OUTPUT.

The American Chemicals Corporation factory will have an initial production of 4000 pounds per day. This production should give a profit of more than 50 per cent. a year on the par value of its stock.

PRODUCTION AND PROFIT.

4000 lbs. daily selling at 90c lb.	$3,600.00
4000 lbs. daily cost at 30c lb.	1,200.00
Daily Profit	$2,400.00
Monthly Profit, 25 days	62,400.00
Yearly Profits	$748,800.00

More than 74 per cent. on the par value of entire capitalization.

Factory production should be doubled after first year.

DEMAND.

The demand and consumption of plastic material exceeds supply. The four factories in this industry in America output 60,000 lbs. daily. Increasing demand and new uses have required an increase of 100 per cent. yearly, for the past six years. New uses demand even a greater increase in the future.

PRODUCTS.

Professor Pickering has perfected an imitation of Ivory for Billiard Balls, Piano Keys, and the Arts, equal to real Ivory; a reproduction of Linen for Collars and Cuffs, almost impossible to detect; Sheets for Auto Windows and Wind Shields, as strong as metal and clear as glass.

NEW USES.

Mr. Jarvis has perfected a material with the tensile strength of metal and without its friction, for gears and bearings for Autos and other fine machinery.

BY-PRODUCT.

In addition to plastic material, Professor Pickering has perfected a lacquer for metal and wood that is superior to anything ever produced. Manufacturing cost less than 20 per cent. of present of inferior articles. Brass bed manufacturers, silversmiths and chandelier makers have been anxiously awaiting the perfection of such a lacquer for years.

MARKET.

The market for the products of the American Chemicals Corporation is assured by the association with it of Messrs. Jarvis and Pickering, who have grown up with the industry, and whose repute among the users of this material is such that already offers for the entire production of the plant could be booked at highly profitable prices from their immediate friends in the trade.

Having investigated every detail of the American Chemicals Corporation and its industry, we unhesitatingly advise the purchase of its securities, and fully believe investors will find it the most profitable investment on the market.

Respectfully,

JAMES F. GALLAGHER & COMPANY

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

WITH THE CURLERS OF OLDEN TIMES

The Game Dates Back to the Fifteenth Century—Stones Were any Shape and Size

London Referee:—Well, "the best game in the world," I am told, is curling, which certainly I should not have guessed. How many Referees, I wonder, know anything about this pastime, of which its eulogist spoke in superlatives? Having an inquiring mind, I took the opportunity of reading it up in the Badminton volume on "Skating, figure-skating, curling," etc., to see if I could ascertain wherein the fascination lay, for I have only seen it once or twice, and was not specially struck. A few years ago golf was not better known than curling is at the present, and one can never tell what game may come and catch on as golf did. The writer from whom I sought to gather instruction does not, however, much anticipate a boom. For one thing, of course ice is a necessity for the curler, and of late years, at any rate, long periods of frost have been rare. A good many winters have passed since we saw ice in the Thames about the London bridges. Apart from this, the authority declares that "the game is so radically and essentially Scottish that it cannot, like golf, throw off its nationality and adapt itself to the language and manners of any other country." He therefore fears that curling will not become universal till "Scotch is the one tongue and the human race one great Scotch family," which he regards as "a desirable but not a probable occurrence." The business of the game has to be conducted, therefore, in a phraseology the meaning of which most people who only speak English would have to guess. What would the mere Englishman suppose he was expected to do when told to "scoop him up," where are you when "awa' to the cauld-neuk," and how are matters progressing when you go "snoovin' up th' howe"?

Curling is supposed to go back to the fifteenth century, and the stones were any shape or size, it appears. There is an illustration of one that weighed 117 lb.—that is, 8 st. 5 lb., as heavy as a powerful jockey. Early in the nineteenth century, however, the round stone now in use was adopted, and the rule at present is that "no stone, including the iron handle, shall be of greater weight than 50 lbs., of greater circumference than 36 inches, or less height than one-eighth part of its greatest circumference." The best, it is further stated, are made with one side prepared for keen ice, the other for ice that is dull or soft. I am not going to describe the method of playing in detail, though it is probable that the reader does not know anything about it. The rink from the back end of the crampit—the foot iron from which the player delivers his stone—is 42 yards long, and at each end, four yards from either base, are two circles, the inner 4 feet, enclosed by another of 7 feet. Put briefly, the game resembles bowls more nearly than any other. Each side is commanded by a captain, who is called a "skip" and most important features are the little brooms which all the players carry, and use vigorously when ordered to do so by the skip, so as to smooth the ice for the passage of a stone which does not seem to be going so far or so fast as is desirable.

The great question remains: What chance there is of "the best game in world"—if the enthusiast quoted be correct—being adopted, as golf has been, and one is inclined to agree with the writer, and suspect not much. According to the book from which I am drawing information, William the Fourth had several pairs of curling stones sent to Bushey Park. There is, however, no record of play. In 1842 a glaciarium, with a view to the introduction of curling, was constructed in London; in 1873 one was made in Manchester, at a cost of £30,000, and in 1879 one at Southport, on which £20,000 was spent. Many matches took place here, but there was not enough patronage, and the man who started it lost his money. Various futile attempts were, however, made to interest men in golf before the game suddenly became the vogue. Possibly, though I should not care about investing in glaciarium shares, the same may happen with regard to curling. When my author wrote, nearly twenty years ago, there were no fewer than 431 county clubs in Scotland, with a membership of 18,800; in England there were 23, with 1,607 members, and quite 200 clubs elsewhere—90 in Ontario, with over 3,000 members. Altogether there were nearly 30,000 curlers who belonged to clubs, and doubtless many who did not. It would be interesting to know whether the number has increased, and if so to what extent.

There is, by the way, unconscious humor in one of the stories related by my author. "Curling," he says, "has an excellent effect on the temper; it clears the brain and warms the heart," and this declaration immediately follows the anecdote, which is of a curler who noticed his cat busily "washing her face, and passing her forepaw over her ear—a sure sign during frost of an approaching freeze, and, "irritated beyond endurance, seized his poor cat by the hind legs, rushed to the door, and dashed out her brains on the doorpost, exclaiming, 'I'll elarn ye to set there and mak' thow'." This hardly seems much proof of good temper and warm heartedness.

AN AVIATION JOKE

An aviator descended in a field and said to a rather well-dressed individual: "Here, mind my machine a minute, will you?" "What?" the well-dressed individual snarled. "Me mind your machine? Why, I'm a United States senator!" "Well, what of it?" said the aviator. "I'll trust you."

SHE WAS NOT SURPRISED

As a train was approaching a station the other day it parted in the middle and, of course, the communication cord snapped, the end of it striking an old lady on her bonnet.

"What is the matter?" she exclaimed.

"Oh, the train has broken in two," replied a gentleman who sat opposite.

"I should think so, too," responded the old lady, looking at the broken cord. "Did they think a bit of pudding-string like that would hold a train together?"

REWARD OF SUSAN

A Story of Maternal Heroism That Had Unexpected Developments

The baby was dying.

He lay in his cot, with the blue of his eyes showing through the closed, heavy lids, with a waxen pallor on his cheeks, drawing wheezing breaths which stabbed the heart of his mother who bent over him.

Sue Giles went to the cottage window in despair. Before her stretched the moor—wild, rugged, almost purple against the flaring western sky. Then she glanced at the clock. It wanted half an hour before the six-forty stopped at Barleycombe, and it took Ben, her husband, twenty full minutes to trudge the mile to the lonely cottage down the line.

There were no neighbors nearer than Barleycombe. Yet the doctor ought to be summoned—must be summoned. And Dr. Kent lived two and a half miles down the line, in the opposite direction to Barleycombe, nearer Lakehampton. The railway ran past his garden, half a mile after Archer's tunnel and the cutting, and it was the nearest route. She had often trudged there and back.

But to go meant to leave the baby alone. To stay meant— She glanced at the child once more, shaking her head and repressing a sob.

Ben was Barleycombe's solitary porter, and his lantern, ready-trimmed for the nine-fifteen, stood in the corner. Sue lit it, scribbling a note to her husband, and laying it on the dresser. "Gone for doctor. Baby's queer. Mind him," were her simple directions.

Then she kissed the baby very lightly, for he seemed asleep, and slipped to the door.

It seemed terrible to leave the child alone. But she comforted herself, as she hurried on, that he was too young to walk, that the fire was safely guarded, and that before long Ben would take her place.

It was weary walking, plodding over the heavy ballast beside the permanent way. She dared not run, for she was not strung; but she pressed on, mutely praying, passed the signal, her face to the glowing, fiery sunset. She reached the stunted bushes round Wolf's Hollow, left them behind, and crossed the trestle bridge over the babbling Axe.

Now she passed Highwayman's Oak—a landmark to stragglers lost on the moor—and now the mouth of Archer's tunnel, black and grim, was before her. She had always feared its depths and its darkness, had usually climbed the hill and plunged into Archer's Wood, to descend the steep sides by the jaws of the cutting a quarter of a mile on, in preference to the more direct route which the tunnel's grimy, slimy, reverberating hollows afforded.

But she could not think of herself now. The tunnel was the quickest, and therefore the only way, and she chose it without pause or hesitation.

It was long, and the lantern's feeble rays seemed swallowed up, mocked at, in the gloom. The light from its mouth faded. Pitch darkness settled down before and behind her. But she had forgotten herself; she was only counting her steps, longing to reach the doctor's garden, praying to find him in.

She crept on, deeper into the blackness; it grew stronger, and the air sweeter. She trudged on round the curve of the line, and presently the arched opening of the tunnel's mouth showed up like a bite taken out of a huge slice of black bread.

Only the cutting now, she rejoiced, quickening her steps; only the cutting—half a mile of level road—and her journey was done. Dr. Kent would get out his trap, the old grey cob would be coaxed into his ambling canter, canter, and—

She tripped, stumbled a few paces, regained her balance, the lantern swinging. Without stopping, she looked over her shoulder. Once more her foot found an obstruction; she turned her lantern forward with a scream of horror.

For fifteen yards ahead of her, rails, sleepers, the ballast path she trod, were obliterated in a pile of rock, on which the ferns and wildflowers still grew. One glance told her what had happened. She remembered such an occurrence before. The face of the cutting had slipped. Stress of storm, beating rain, and the constant vibration of passing trains had loosened its foundations, letting down tons of red rock, of red earth and loose stones, in piled confusion on the rails.

But though she had stopped, the delay was but momentary. The subsidence was an obstacle, no more. Nothing short of the will of Heaven should prevent her reaching Dr. Kent. She clambered up the fallen rock, sending a volley of stones which turned beneath her feet down the steep sides of the mass, catching at ferns and roots to aid her ascent, crawling almost on her hands and knees over the litter, which stood seven or eight feet high at its summit.

The thought of her baby—only that. Only that till the summit was reached, the descent before her, the difficulties surmounted.

And then she thought of the six-forty! It stabbed her to think of it; it set her trembling, shaking, her lips quivering, her forehead damp—this sudden remembrance.

The six-forty with its five-mile run before it, its clear road, its passengers, its huge speed, its tearing whistle as it slid into the tunnel, the roar of it as it shot into the open of the cutting.

She saw the end—saw the engine rolled over with a shriek of escaping steam; saw the coaches piled one upon another; heard the screams, the groaning and the moaning of the passengers; saw red fire creeping over the ruins; quaked at the thought of imprisoned men, women, children—babies like her own!—being roasted as the debris of the wrecked train fed the flames.

And in fifteen minutes—fifteen minutes at the most—it would be due!

She could save it—might save it—if she turned her back on her errand, faced the tunnel once more, chanced meeting it there and her death!

But even if she won through, even if her lantern brought the train to a standstill, a precious half-hour would be lost. It meant death to her baby. She could not doubt that. She had seen Death come to a little brother, to babies of others innumerable, and she knew his approach.

Her baby!

She began to clamber down the steep sides of the fall. The mother in her kept on. What matter if the whole world perished if her baby lived? She had come so far to save her child—

She paused. Why, she could come back! Supposing she ran to Dr. Kent! There would be time. She would come back! She would stop the train when her errand was done.

But as she struggled on, the hot argument of her heart died down. She began to feel chill. She knew there would not be time it was one of the other; she knew that.

But still she kept on her way. Her baby—her baby! Why did Heaven ask this thing of her? And as she reached the level ground on the other side of the fallen mass, she fell on her knees, shaking with sobs, crying out:

"Ah, them people! Ah, them people!"

She sank down, throwing out her arms, letting her head fall on them, weeping piteously, moaning.

When she struggled to her feet, she stared dismally down the cutting, and her lips moved.

"Oh, Heaven, save my baby! I can't!"

She turned her back on her destination, feverishly began to retrace her steps, fought her way over the slipping debris with fierce energy—the energy of a mind made up.

Down the other side she scrambled with a slither of pattering stones, along the littered permanent way to the ballast, free from the fall, nearer the tunnel.

Then she darted into the darkness, running panting, her heart burning and her breast torn with each wild breath. She passed the middle of the tunnel, where the walls ran water, and drip-drip it fell in melancholy cadence from the roof. She was nearing the other end when first the rails began to hum, and she knew the six-forty was upon her!

Out of the night came the rumble, the roar, the clatter of the onrushing train. She rounded the curve again, catching sight of the headlights; of the steam by the driving-wheels, floating backwards like pennants; of the scudding smoke overhead, illumined as it passed the cab by the ruby glow of the furnace.

She stood upon a rail, balancing herself, holding the lantern high above her head, waving it madly, screaming, though even then she knew her puny cries were swamped in the roar of the whirling wheels.

Suddenly the pennants died away. With a hideous, grating whir the brakes were put on. The engine glided on, and she slipped from the rail with it only a dozen feet away from her. Still the lantern waved, as a hoarse voice shouted to her and the train went by.

It began to draw up. Heads appeared at every window. The guard leaped down, lantern in hand. The fireman left his engine, groping his way back to the screaming woman at the rail-side.

"A fall—a fall in Archer's cutting!" she wailed, and toppled forward into the fireman's arms.

. . . . . .

"'Twas as she said," she heard a gruff voice saying as she came to. "The train must ha' been wrecked—several hundred tons—rock. She's saved the train and all of us!"

Sue opened her eyes. A man bent over her, and a pair of kindly, stern eyes looked into hers.

"All right—feeling fitter? I'm a doctor. You saved us all, we here. You're a brave woman—"

"A doctor?" she cried shrilly. "Then come—my baby—he's dying—at the cottage—not far back—come. Please come!"

"I'm afraid it's impossible. I've a very important operation—"

"You can't get on to-night, sir—at least, not yet awhile," announced the guard. "We shall have to run back and get down to clear the line. Will be several hours afore we're—"

"The train passes my cottage—on the way back. Won't you come, sir?"

The doctor nodded.

"If I can't get on I'll come," he said gently. "If it had not been that I could allow no one in the kingdom to delay me, I wouldn't have refused at first. Are you running back now, guard?"

He helped Sue into the first-class compartment he had left, and climbed in beside her. A word from him to the guard brought the train to a standstill at the little track-side cottage. Ben met them at the garden-end, his face white.

"He's nearly gone!" he whispered. "Dr. Kent, I— Why, Sue, couldn't you find the doctor?"

A few minutes afterwards Ben found himself driven from the cottage.

"Where's your nerve, man?" growled the doctor. "Oh, give me a woman when there's illness and something to be done!"

. . . . . .

Later on Ben brought Dr. Kent. The two medical men talked together in the garden till the train passed the cottage once more, picked up the stranger, and went on its journey through the cleared cutting.

Dr. Kent went into the cottage, where Ben and Sue stood hand-in-hand, the woman rosy, with tears of thanksgiving in her eyes, the man white and shaking.

"You were lucky, Mrs. Giles," he said. "The boy will recover. Never have I seen a more delicate or more skilful operation. Had it been delayed an hour, death must have ensued. Had the fall not taken place, had you come straight on to me, I should not have been prepared for an operation, and the child would have almost certainly perished before I could have sent home for my instruments. You don't know, I suppose, who attended you? You don't know the name of the man, so providentially equipped for the emergency you summoned him on?"

Sue shook her head. How near she had been to going straight on! How swift her punishment would have been!

"A royal personage lies ill at Devermouth; an operation was decided on yesterday. When you saved the train, Mrs. Giles, by your bravery, you also saved Sir Alexander Beaston-Bruce, C.B., Surgeon to his Majesty the King, and—incidentally—your baby's life!"

THE CAMERA "SNAPPER"

An insignificant little man in a snuff-colored suit stood penitently in the dock.

"What is he charged with?" said the magistrate.

"He's one of them camera fiends, your worship," replied the constable.

"But, goodness gracious, that's no reason for arresting him!" exclaimed the magistrate. "Camera fiends are as plentiful as—mosquitoes in holiday weather. Ha, ha!" (No one else said "Ha, ha!" however, so the magistrate frowned severely.) "Do you mean to tell me," he cried angrily, "that you've arrested this man for [illegible] merely because he's a mania for taking pictures?"

HALVES OF A WHOLE

Peggy Quite Unconsciously Proved Herself Competent as a Minister's Wife

By MARION OLIVIA GIBBON

Two Proposals

"I not at all the kind of a girl you ought to marry," said the girl decidedly, looking at the man in front of her with serious eyes.

"The consideration as to whether you are the kind of girl I ought to marry has never entered my mind. The fact that you are the girl I want to marry is never out of it," rejoined the man, gazing back at the girl with eyes as serious as her own.

"Do I look like a clergyman's wife—do I, John? Did you ever see one with hair like mine? Nothing on this earth will keep it tidy. Ah, it's all very well to laugh"—as a smile hovered round the man's clean-cut mouth—"but I'm not cut out for a clergyman's wife. Even my name is against it. Peggy! It ought to be Mary or Jane, or something solid."

"And all this means," said the man quietly, "that you don't care."

"I suppose it is that I don't care enough," said the girl gently. "I do care; you know that, John. I want to be your wife, but I don't want to be a clergyman's wife. Oh, I'm getting mixed! What am I saying?"

"Simply that you don't care enough," said the man, leaning forward and taking both the girl's hands in his. "I was mistaken, that's all; I imagined you did. What idiots men are! I thought I could make you happy, and I could, too!" he added hotly, holding the small hands so tightly that the girl almost screamed.

"That's not the point altogether. Could I make you happy? And the people, and the parish, and the bishop, and all of them? Oh, John, I couldn't; don't ask me!"

"But I'm not asking you to marry the people, and the parish, and the bishop, and all of them! Only me, Peggy!"

"Yes; but a clergyman's wife affects them all, and I couldn't be prim, and set a good example, and look after mothers' meetings and things. Don't say any more about it, John; I just couldn't do it! You don't mind very much, do you?" she added quickly, as the man's face suddenly set hard.

"Only so much that I shall never marry anybody else," he replied gravely.

And the look in his steady brown eyes haunted the girl for days.

"And I've spoiled your life?"

"No, not spoiled it; only left it incomplete. I'm just the half of a whole, Peggy, and you are the other. You don't feel it, so you will probably marry somebody else, and fit in quite well; but I couldn't. Ah, my dear, I feel like fighting for you, and making you mine! But it would be altering your whole life, and it wouldn't be fair, unless you cared for me in the same way."

"But we can go on being friends, John?"

"No, dear; you can never be friends when you've been [illegible] I must have the whole of you or none of you, so it's good-bye to me, Peggy."

"And what if I change my mind?"

"Then I'm always there, waiting to be made whole. Good-bye!"

Six months later the girl sat in the same room, wondering how she was going to answer this altogether different young man gazing at her with excited eyes.

"Do you feel that I am your other half?" she said suddenly; and there was a serious note in the musical tones.

"Half? Heavens, no! You're my whole, my everything! Peggy, you must—you shall say 'Yes'; I can't go on like this! I'm mad when I'm with you, and worse when I'm away from you! Say 'Yes' now!"

"But it would be silly to say 'Yes' if I don't mean it," said the girl, very gently. "What would be the good of that?"

"Ah, but you would in time."

"No; I never should!" And there was a note of finality in the girl's voice. "Tony, you will think I'm a perfect idiot; but some time ago—oh, months!—a man told me that he was one half of a whole and I was the other, and that I belonged to him. Wasn't it a weird idea? I laughed at the time, but—but—but—oh, I don't know! Anyhow, I can't marry anyone else; it would seem like bigamy, or something!"

"Confounded impudence!"

"Oh, no; it wasn't impudence!" said the girl sharply, as a vision of the other man's strong, serious face flashed across her mind. "It was just the greatest compliment he could pay me!"

"Peggy, I believe you're in love with the beggar!"

"No, I don't think I am; but it's the idea of the thing somehow, to belong to someone so absolutely as to be their other half. Not a toy, or a plaything, or a treasure, or an idol; but just a half, without which they can never be a whole!" added the girl softly, with a far-away look in her eyes.

"Then there is no hope for me?"

"No hope? You silly old boy; there's every hope! You must find your other half. You've got one somewhere, you know, and a much nicer one than I am, I expect!"

"Rot!" ejaculated the young man inelegantly, as he flung himself out of the room.

The Completed Whole

In the quiet weeks that followed the girl slowly realized how much she had missed the other man in the last six months. And then an energetic female of advanced years, and still more advanced ideas, came upon the scene, and enfolded the girl in a scheme for "brightening the lives of children in the slums."

"But I don't know anything about children or slums," said Peggy helplessly, as the other rapidly sketched out a plan of campaign.

"You soon will"—with something between a snort and a sniff.

"But what do I do?" persisted Peggy, feeling rather like a timid fly caught in the toils of a particularly energetic spider.

"Oh, talk to them!"

"The children?"

"Of course—and the mothers! Mothers first and the children afterwards; instruct parents in duty towards children, and vice versa."

"Oh!" said the girl vaguely, feeling a wild desire to laugh as the incongruity of it all forced itself upon her mind.

"We must start this week, no time to be lost," announced the other, planting her large feet squarely on the ground, as if whole regiments of children from Slumdom were even then in front of her, waiting to be acted on at once.

And thus it was that, two nights later, Peggy found herself seated in a dingy mission-room in a dingier street, confronted by a number of parents waiting in apathetic silence to hear "what the swanks had to say about rearing kids."

. . . . . .

A something seemed to tighten in the girl's throat as she glanced along the rows of tired, work-lined faces, and a wild longing surged into her heart to bring a little brightness into some of their sordid lives. And then her female friend, sitting at a little table near, began to speak, and Peggy found herself wondering if, in a scheme for making conditions brighter, it was necessary to wear a snuff-colored dress and flat-soled boots, to cultivate a formless figure, and drag one's hair into a tight little knob at the back.

And then her attention was arrested by a sudden sense of failure on the part of the speaker to strike the right note, a feeling of the utter futility of laying down laws and stringing fact upon fact of hygiene and psychological importance to people who were worn-out with the struggle of making both ends meet.

The girl's sensitive nature seemed to feel the apathy of those tired faces, and a sudden desire to talk to them heart to heart arose in her mind. Unconsciously she started to her feet, as the speaker paused and glanced in her direction.

"I'm not going to say anything about children," she said hurriedly, and there was a throbbing note in the fresh young voice, "because you all know more about them than I do. But shall I just tell you about my own childhood, and what I missed because I hadn't a mother? Perhaps it may help you a little bit, because you are all mothers, aren't you?"

And graphically, because lost to all sense of self-consciousness, the girl told those weary women of what she had lacked of a mother's love and care, although surrounded with every luxury.

Often at a loss for a word, occasionally repeating herself or breaking off in the midst of a sentence, there was a ring of sincerity about it all; and as she told them of a moral crisis she had been compelled to fight out alone, one woman at least out of the little throng resolved to have a tender talk with her eldest girl that very night.

It wasn't that there was anything new in the things the girl was saying. It was just that they were not in the habit of putting them into words, even to themselves, but many a resolve which had been hovering in the background, unformed, came to the surface and was crystallized as the girl talked from her sympathetic young heart straight into theirs. And then, vainly seeking for the right word, it was supplied by a well-known voice from behind; and with a little cry of "John!" she turned around, heated, became crimson, and unsteadily sat down on the nearest chair.

. . . . . .

The elderly female, seeing her opportunity, began to read the rules for the proposed club; and, almost before she knew it, the girl found herself outside, with the cool night air fanning her hot and quivering face.

"Oh"—with a gasp, clutching the man's arm with both hands—"what will you think of me? What was I saying? If I had only known you were there!"

"I'm glad you didn't"—and there was a low note of exultation in his voice—"that would have spoiled it all. Oh, Peggy, Peggy! and you said you weren't cut out for a clergyman's wife!"

"How could I have got up and talked like that!" went on the girl. "I must have been mad! But they looked so tired, and I felt so sorry. And, oh, John, I've missed you so!"

"If I could only believe that!" said the man quietly, coming to a step in the shadow of a tall old house, and taking the girl's hand in his.

"Believe it! Don't you believe it? But it's true! It's been true all along, only I didn't know! Why did you stay away so long? Oh, John, how could you?"

"Peggy, do you know what you are saying?"

And the man's voice sounded quite hoarse in the quiet night.

"Yes"—with a little hysterical cry—"I do now; I didn't before! I've known for ages, ever since another man wanted me to marry him, and I couldn't. You said I was your other half, and all along I knew I really belonged to you. Do you still want your other half, John? Because—because I want mine!"

"Whole at last!" murmured the man, as he gathered the girl into his arms in the shadowy doorway of the old house.

NOT MADE

A young man spending his holidays in the country, fell in love with a pretty milkmaid at a farm near by. Day after day he hovered about the farm, hoping to catch a glimpse of her, till one day the farmer caught him peering into the yard.

"What is your business here?" he shouted.

The poor chap was so surprised he could only stammer, "How's the milkmaid?"

"What?" roared the angry farmer. "Our milk isn't made; it comes from the cow."

C. DANA GIBSON.

CELEBRATED ARTIST WAS NOT MAKING PAINTINGS OF THE DUKE AND DUCHESS

Canadians Do Good Work—Are Quite as Clever in Art as Other Nations—Did Not Find any New "Type."

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Charles Dana Gibson, the eminent artist, left Rideau Hall for New York yesterday, after being the guest of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught for a few days.

In an interview before leaving he stated that young Canadians were quite as clever in art as other nations, and those whom he had met in the United States had proven their right to fellowship with those from other countries.

Mr. Gibson suggested that the national capital was the only logical place for the National Art School as well as for the National Art Gallery. Such a feature here would add greatly to the attractiveness of the seat of government for the Dominion, and would tend to emphasize the would tend to emphasize the work of beautifying Ottawa, which is becoming so popular. He had been specially struck with the rare beauty of the capital and its environment, and referred particularly to the commanding site of the Parliament Buildings.

He has not been making pictures of the Duke or the Duchess, he had not made any sketches on any subject for any American publication, he had not discovered any new "type" in Canada he had not drawn anything since he arrived in the city. The artist did admit, however, that he had had a really royal time, and that he feels quite at home here.

STANDARD OIL PRICES.

New York, Feb. 1.—Prices of oil have been going up steadily since the dissolution of the oil trust by the decree of the U.S. Supreme Court and a representative of the Standard Oil Co. said to-day that they will probably go higher. Three times this year the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey, has advanced the price for crude oil, and there have been corresponding increases in the wholesale and retail quotations for kerosene, gasoline and others of the refined products.

Gasoline has risen two cents a gallon in the New York market. Automobile dealers estimate the advance means an increase of more than $200,000 a month in the cost of running the autos in New York State.

Since the first of the year there has been an advance of 2 cents per gallon in the price of Standard Oil Company for petroleum delivered by wagon to consumers in this city. Not only in New York, but elsewhere throughout the country have prices been raised.

The increased cost of conducting the thirty-three companies into which the oil trust was divided as compared with the expense of the compact organization which existed under the old regime has been advanced as a reason for the rise in price. According to Mr. J. J. C. Clarke, the mouthpiece of the Standard Oil Co., this theory is not correct. Mr. Clarke said that the higher prices were due to economic conditions.

Seeking Damages.

John Bettes, who had the misfortune to lose a finger while at work in a local mill, is claiming unstated damages, and has appealed to the courts. Messrs. Bennett and Goodwill are acting for the plaintiff.

All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynett, 867 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that: I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

1—Pain in the back.
2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
3—Scanty supply of water.
4—Pain or burning in the bladder.

The funeral left Mr. Wright's and proceeded to Janetville cemetery on Monday, 29th inst.

A Painful Injury.

The many friends of Mr. T. Kinnear the well known wholesale grocer, who has a branch of his business in Peterborough, will regret to learn that he had the misfortune to slip and fall on the Toronto pavement, breaking his arm.

Family Deported.

Mrs. Whittaker, who was arrested at the home of a Smith farmer named Heard some time ago by County Constable Cochrane, was deported yesterday, along with her two little daughters. It will be remembered that Mrs. Whittaker was sent out of Lakefield for keeping a disreputable house, and leaving one of her children there, she went tramping about the country, finally winding up at Heard's. When arraigned before Magistrate Edmison, she asked to be deported and the necessary arrangements were made. She left the city on the noon C.P.R. train en route for England.

A GREAT EVENT

Teacher:—"What great event occurred in the year 1888?"

Small Boy (after a pause):—"Please, ma'am, I was born then."

WHERE IS THE LIGHTHOUSE?

A lady advertised for a girl "To do light housework."

Among the replies she received a letter from an applicant who said her health needed sea air, and asked if the lady would kindly inform her "where the lighthouse was situated."

TIRED ALREADY

Mr. Jorkins was wearing a very woebegone look when his friend Bobson met him the other day.

"Hello, Jorkins!" cried Bobson. "You look tired. What's the matter?"

"It's work!" replied Jorkins. "Work, work, work, from five in the morning till eight at night!"

"Poor chap!" sympathized Bobson. No wonder you look tired. How long have you had the job?"

"I start to-morrow."

A GOOD JUDGE OF MEN

When Carnegie had just begun to lay the foundations of prosperity, an overseer came to him with a very long face.

"The smartest man in my department says he's going to quit," he said. "I wish you'd see him, sir, and raise his salary. We simply can't do without him!"

"If he died to-morrow, then," snorted Carnegie, "the works would be held up, would they? You couldn't fill the gap yourself?"

"No, sir; he's a very skilled workman."

"H'm! Send him to me!"

Always a judge of men, Andrew cast a quick look at the indispensable one, and said:

"Say, supposing my overseer here died suddenly to-day, would you be able to fill his shoes?"

Without hesitation the man replied: "Easy!"

"Well, then," said Carnegie, "you needn't wait until he dies. Take his job now. He's fired!"

Mr. Chambers, of Creston, B.C., had three deer visiting his ranch on one day and persuaded two of them to remain with him.

TELEGRAM THAT SAVED INDIA.

In connection with the Durbar a museum of Mogul relics was arranged, which contains among other objects, the telegram which illustrates Montgomery's great saying, "The electric telegraph saved India." This is the famous telegram dispatched by Brendish on May 11th, 1857, which gave the news of the rebellion to the north of India, and enabled Lawrence and Edwardes and Nicholson to take steps for the disarmament of regiments on the verge of revolt, and to make those brilliant arrangements for the relief of Delhi by which — and probably by which alone — the Mutiny was crushed out and Delhi once more returned to her British allegiance.

LECTURER ON TEMPERANCE

Lecturer:—"I defy anyone to name a man who works better with his glass than without it."

Man in Rear:—"I know one."

Lecturer:—"Who is that?"

Man in Rear:—"A glazier."

THE WORST OF IT

Merchant:—"It seems to me that you ask high wages considering that you have had no experience in this business."

Clerk:—"Ah, but you forget that that's just what makes it all the harder for me."

BLUE OR RED?

Some years ago I took with me one Sunday morning a young friend of mine to service.

After the service the minister came and shook hands with my friend who, being an abstainer, wore the blue ribbon on his coat. "I am pleased to see that you have got the blue ribbon on your coat," said he.

"Yes," my friend made answer, "I would sooner wear a blue ribbon than have a red nose!"

THERE NOW!

Sister:—"If you aren't good I'll tell mamma, then she'll tell papa, and he'll whip you."

Freddy:—"Then I'll cry and grandfather will give me some candy and I won't give you any."

King had the misfortune to lose four handsome and valuable dogs during the past few weeks, two dying from poison and two having fought each other in their kennel until one was killed and the other died from the wounds received in the battle a week later. The four animals were Boston terriers, and were valued at $365.

Deaf Mutes Journal.

The Times is in receipt of a copy of the Deaf-Mutes' Journal, published in New York, by Mr. Edwin A. Hodgson, a deaf mute, and a former resident of Peterborough. Mr. Hodgson, who is a B.A., is a graduate of the Peterborough High School away back about 35 years ago. He has devoted his life to bettering the condition of deaf mutes, a work which he has been specially qualified to perform and in which he has been very successful.

Separate School Taxes.

It might be interesting to many in Peterborough to learn that a well-known Protestant lawyer of Toronto, Mr. E. T. Malone, having complained to the Board of Education that he had been assessed as a Separate school supporter, and that his taxes, therefore, for the current year go to the Separate schools, the Board has appointed an officer to look after the enrollment of ratepayers as Public school supporters, resisting the aggression of the Separate School Board along that line. We do not not know whether Protestants in Peterborough are paying for Separate schools or not, or vice versa, but the above will show how matters are in this connection in Toronto.

First County to Reforest.

Fenelon Falls Gazette: Hastings county has acquired several thousand acres of land and will begin reforestation. Hastings is the first county to commence reforestation of waste lands. Peterborough and Victoria Counties may follow before long, as Mr. Burnham is taking an active interest in the matter, a short time ago visiting the northern part of Peterborough in company with Prof. Fernow, who in his subsequent report laid stress on the importance of reforesting this waste area as a means of conserving the water supply, which is so necessary to the maintenance of water power. He also pointed out that the expense could be largely met by the sale of timber now on the land and by utilizing hunting and fishing privileges and tourist traffic.

Mock Marriage.

A very interesting event took place at Mr. and Mrs. Taylor's, at 226 London street, when Miss McGraw, of Lafayette avenue, and Mr. McFadden of Perry street were united in marriage. The bride was given away by Mr. W. Crow, of Ashburnham, the groom was assisted by Mr. J. MacCall, of south city. The Rev. Dr. Windsor, of Albert street, performed the ceremony, after which the orchestra struck up the wedding march and rolled off into the Lancers, and the dance. After a few hours of such enjoyment, refreshments were served. Then the happy couple went on their honeymoon, which took the form of a bob-sleigh drive by Mr. J. Fitzpatrick and Mr. W. Crow. Among the many guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. McCall, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Mr. and Mrs. Windsor.

Chronic Throat Trouble Permanently Cured

SEVEN DAYS' USE OF CATARRH-OZONE PERFORMED REGULAR MIRACLE.

Miss Counter's Case Proves the Wonderful Efficacy of Catarrhozone In All Throat and Nose Troubles.

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 17.—Miss Counter's case will prove of great interest to everyone troubled with sore throat bronchitis or weak lungs.

When asked for a statement, Miss Counter said: "About seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold that settled on my lungs and resisted a treatment. After I had tried several doctors here and specialists in Detroit without benefit, I went to my druggist and asked him for the best remedy he had for cold on the lungs. He recommended Catarrhozone, which cured my cold in one week. It brought back my voice, and I have been ever since free from my old trouble. For coughs, colds and lung trouble I am sure that Catarrhozone is the best remedy. It goes right to the sore spot, gives quick relief, and makes a lasting cure."

Catarrhozone cures because its healing vapor is inhaled to the very places that are sore and inflamed.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only, 50c. and $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PARENTS SHOULD KNOW

During the past week or two we have had a larger number of boys and girls (some usual brought to us to have their eyes examined for Glasses. Some were near sighted, some du'l at school because of eye strain. Some did not require Glasses. It is well that parents should know whether or not the child's eyes are both doing service equally and well. Immediate, timely attention saves your child much misery and yourself future regrets. Children require keen sight and easy eyes to compete with their companions in school life.

It is usually advisable to arrange appointment for examination a day or two in advance.

W. J. HENRY PERMANENT ASSESSOR, SALARY $1400

EXHIBITION DIRECTORS ASK COUNCIL FOR $1,000 GRANT.

The Dog By-law Amended—By-law Appointing W. J. Henry Permanent Assessor at a Salary of $1400 a Year Passes Council—By-law Increasing Firemen's Salary Adopted.

The Committee of the Whole City Council met last night at 7.30.

His Worship and all the City Fathers excepting Ald. Graham were present.

W. J. Henry was voted the appointment as permanent assessor at an annual salary of $1400.

Later in the evening this appointment was confirmed by Council in regular session, and a by-law governing the office passed.

The following applications with salaries expected were received:

W. H. Meldrum wrote suggesting the combining of the offices of Permanent Assessor and Industrial Commissioner and offering his services in this dual position at asalary of $1500 a year, he to pay for the necessary assistance, the city to supply office furniture.

From Thos. McKee at a salary of $1400.

From W. J. Henry at a salary of $1400 per annum.

From H. Carruth, at a salary of $1400, or to be one of two assessors for 1912 at a salary of $600 the year.

From W. H. Thompson at a salary of $1400, or to be one of two assessors should such a policy be continued

From Jas. Doody at $1.75 a day.

From Thos. McGrath at a salary of $1200 for 1912, or as one of two this year at the usual remuneration.

One application that did not come in until yesterday morning, ovet a day late, was not opened.

At this juncture Ald. Buller offered that the appointment of two assessors would be cheaper and more satisfactory. Two assessors could be found to do the work at $600. Other towns have reverted to the policy of two assessors in place of one permanent official. In the case of a permanent appointment, the salary would probably jump a hundred a year, as in the case of other officials.

Ald. Buller and Gordon moved that two assessors be appointed.—Lost on a vote of 8 to 2.

The committee here voted on the applications to hand as follows:

At this juncture Ald. Gordon proposed that the applicants be voted on as their names were read originally. This suggestion was not approved of.

Ald. Johnston favored the appointment of Thos. McKee as a capable man; he moved in this direction seconded by Ald. Buller—Lost on a vote of 8 to 2.

Ald. Duffus moved that Thos. McGrath be appointed, but secured no seconder.

Ald. Duncan and Brown moved that W. J. Henry be appointed permanent assessor at $1400 a year. Carried on a vote of 5 to 4.

PRIVILEGE CONTINUED.

Ald. Anderson here asked that the Peter Hamilton Co. be permitted to back vehicles on to the sidewalk, to load and unload material as has been customary heretofore. This is the only method by which they can get heavy goods to the hoist. This request was granted, thee company to be liable for any damages that may possibly be claimed.

CO-OPERATION OF BOARD OF TRADE.

It was decided that the policy of last year providing for the presence of three members of the Board of Trade at conferences of the city's manufacturers' committee be continued this year.

STREET WATERING.

Under the new Municipal Act street watering must in future be paid for by a frontage tax or taken out of the city's general revenue and not charged on the assessment as heretofore.

On motion of Ald. Gordon and Ald. Johnston, the City Engineer will be instructed to prepare frohtage measurements of property to be affected by street watering. This work to be done by April 1st next. The motion also included that the cost of street watering this year be charged against frontage on streets watered which principle was adopted

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents

THE BYERSVILLE POST OFFICE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The letters which are appearing from time to time in the local press, regarding the appointment of Mr. Saunders as postmaster of Byersville, are mostly fakes. I happen to know that Mr. Saunders' appointment is most satisfactory to the people of this locality. Therefore, the talk about holding an indignation meeting is pure rot.

One Who Knows.

A CALL TO PROTESTANTISM.

Editor Morning Times.

It is quite amusing to read of the slander and libel action threatened by the Roman Catholics against the Rev. C. O. Johnston, of Toronto, and the press, the one for reusing from his pulpit the oath subscribed to by the Jesuit order; and the other for publishing the same. The Jesuits of the Society of Jesus. Who could ever imagine for a moment that the Jesuits would seek and to save that which was lost would ever be associated with, or consent to become the leader of a dangerous secret conspiracy, which is the mildest term that can be applied to this notorious order. Even the oath sent to the press by Mr. E. V. O'Sullivan, barrister, and declared to be the correct oath, is nothing short of a gross slander and libel upon the glorious Gospel of Jesus Christ. And further, it is cruelly antagonistic to the teaching of the whole Bible, and contrary to all logic, reason, and common sense.

I feel sorry to think that in this twentieth century of Gospel light and education and culture, men like Father Vaughan, who, I understand, is a member of the Jesuit order, and who figured so prominently in the city of Toronto a few weeks ago, under the pretence of advocating Christianity—which, according to the Jesuit oath he has sworn to denounce and do all in his power to destroy even though in the attempt it may cost him his life—I repeat I am sorry to think that such men take the peculiar view of interpretation of scriptural truth which they do, and claim to know so much about, holding themselves up as the great leaders and teachers of Christendom.... It is high time that this deception be put a stop to.

I will defy any official or member of the Roman Church to point out one grain of Christianity in the oath Mr. E. V. O'Sullivan, barrister, sent to the press; and any person or persons who would deliberately subscribe to the oath the Rev. C. O. Johnson read from his pulpit on the 7th day of January, 1912, deserves to be placed in irons, and confined within the walls of His Majesty's prisons.

NO TRACE OF BODIES OF NIAGARA VICTIMS IN THE GRINDING ICE

Tragedy Preceded by Nearly an Hour of Terrible Suspense and Vain Endeavor

YOUTH DIED HELPING AN HEROIC HUSBAND

Cleveland Boy Stayed to Aid Eldridge Stanton Save His Wife

NAMES OF THE DEAD.

ELDRIDGE STANTON, junior member of the firm of Stanton and Wilson, stationers, at 50 Yonge street, Toronto.

MRS. ELDRIDGE STANTON, daughter of Nelson Butcher, Toronto.

BURRELL HECOCK, East 117th street, Cleveland, O.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Feb. 5.—The Niagara Falls have many a tale of death to tell, but none more thrilling or more awful than the death of Eldridge Stanton, of Toronto, and his wife, who perished when the ice bridge broke yesterday afternoon. The wonderful Niagara Gorge, with its high bleak sides formed the theatre of the tragedy. The banks and bridges above were lined with thousands of shrieking and sobbing people helpless to aid them as they rode forward to their death.

Distant chance of rescue was passed at the lower steel bridge, the Michigan Central bridge which has leaved Grand Trunk crosses. As they were rushed by there, with the strong current they knelt apparently in prayer their arms around each other. In a moment the hungry waves of the Whirlpool rapids had seized their craft of death. The crowds above held their breath and the ceaseless roar of the cataract dominated everything as the little cake of ice passed along the crest of the mighty waves.

SEEN IN THE RAPIDS.

For a moment the woman disappeared under the water and slush ice. The man was always visible. About a third way down the rapids Mrs. Stanton re-appeared, and again they threw their arms around each other. That was their last action, as they embraced, one wave larger than the others swallowed them up. They were gone.

Some twenty or thirty lives were imperilled when the huge mass of ice gave way. But fate fixed on these two and Burrell Hecock, a seventeen year old lad from Cleveland, as its victims.—That more did not perish seems almost a special intervention of Providence. This was one of the largest and strongest ice bridges that has ever formed below the falls. The huge floes from Lake Erie had piled themselves into an uneven mass six hundred feet from the side of the river to the other and three hundred feet wide. Its surface was broken with innumerable shaggy floes jutting up in every direction, but a fairly even path had been made leading from the American to the Canadian side.

KEPT PEOPLE OFF ICE.

In the intense cold of the last few days the spray from the falls had apparently solidified the ice into one solid mass, and everything indicated that the strange bridge would stay in place for at least several days. The sight always attracts thousands to the falls, and Sunday promised to be no exception. The intense cold, with the spray blowing right across the ice kept the majority of the people on shore and only the more hardy of the tourists ventured across.

When it came near noon the crowd thinned and about thirty people were left on the ice. Large floes had been crashing over the cataract all morning accompanied by a large quantity of small or slush ice. This collected towards the Canadian side and moved towards the bridge. There was an ominous cracking, followed in a moment by a terrible grinding sound, which could be heard above the roar of the falls.

SHOUTED WARNING AND FLED.

Two men, Hill and Bebloud, who had a shack about the middle of the river, were the first to realize the danger. Shouting to the others they ran towards the Canadian side. Most of those on the ice followed them and reached safety. Away from the beaten track on the side of the ice bridge furthest away from the falls and towards the upper bridge was a party of seven people, among whom were the victims. These seven did not hear the warning shouts from Bebloud and Hill, when the first noise of the break came they started towards the shore still talking and laughing as they picked their difficult way over the rough ice. Not until the ice began to rock under them did they realize their danger. By that time a large piece had broken away and was rapidly separating from the main bridge.

Emendorfer and Wendling were ahead. Making a quick dash and a long jump over the stretch of water they reached safety by a narrow margin. The others ran from one side to another, but every where the widening stream of water imprisoned them. As the floe passed under the upper bridge two got off, the Italian who jumped off at the American side and young Roth, who jumped to another floe still fast to the Canadian side. As he jumped he fell into the water, but hung to the ice and willing hands quickly rescued him. Hecock and Mr. and Mrs. Stanton ran towards the Canadian shore, but Mrs Stanton had become hysterical, and could not be brought to make a jump

FORESHADOWS POLICY OF LIBERALS

The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Ex-Postmaster-General, and the ablest, at any rate the most influential of Sir Wilfrid's lieutenants, and certainly his ultimate successor has unmasked the future policy of the Liberal party. At Montreal in a great set speech before the chief Liberal Club he said "Ne Temere put Borden in and it will put him out." It is well known that the Liberals are going to cling to Reciprocity. They are satisfied that it was Ne Temere that swamped them in Ontario, and as Ne Temere is built on the rock of St. Peter the only thing to do is to attack the "Orangiates," as all Protestants are now called. The die is cast. It is impossible to serve two masters. Rome will no longer permit any doubt as to obedience. Obey or be destroyed, and so Mr. Lemieux appears to think. The reference of the question of Church and State by Borden to Britain, instead of to Rome is too much for Rome. "Borden delendus est." Borden must be destroyed. It is a matter of general comment that the Liberal press is publishing more "presswork" calculated to mislead the electors than ever before. The Toronto Star's statements regarding Manitoba's boundaries and Separate Schools are absolutely false. The boundary question is settled, and so is the Separate School question—both to Manitoba's entire satisfaction.

ELOPERS ENTERED INTO A SUICIDE COMPACT

THOSE WHO FLOUT LAW AND RELIGION MUST SUFFER SAID MISGUIDED WOMAN.

Fair Fiancé Claims Man Sought Reconciliation With Her Former Husband—Left No Farewell Message.

New York, Feb. 5.—The suicide pact which caused Mrs. Louise Lawrence Suydam and Frederick Noble to end their lives yesterday by asphyxiation, is believed to have been entered into within a few days of their marriage a month ago. The couple were found dead in each other's arms in their apartment on West 12th street, lying on the floor, their heads in front of an open gas range and all jets turned on. They left no farewell note. Death had closed a romance which had its beginning five months ago when young Mrs. Suydam fled from her millionaire husband's home at Blue Point, L.I., with young Noble. Suydam got a divorce the eloping couple were then wedded.

WAGES OF SIN.

Close friends of Mrs. Suydam says they were not really happy together, and that in fact never really loved each other. Noble, too, showed that he was weary of it all and had become discouraged. Noble felt, her friends say, that she had never really loved anyone except her husband, Walter Lispenard Suydam, and that once Noble heard her say in the presence of callers "my friend, you and I sometimes do things like the law and religion may then think that the phrase was written for old fogies. But, my friend, there comes to all of us sometime the knowledge that the law and religion are right. What they say we shall not do—we cannot do without suffering. I have learned that. Also, the wages of sin is death. It's worse than death—it's a hell on earth."

SOUGHT RECONCILIATION.

The police say to-day that the young couple undoubtedly made a previous, but unsuccessful attempt at suicide last week by taking poison. A physician told the officers that he had been called in and found that Noble had taken some drug and that Mrs. Noble looked pale and ill herself.

Mrs. Noble is believed to have sought, even after her marriage with Noble, a reconciliation with her former husband, Walter Suydam, and to have told him of the fearful mistake she had made in running away with the young plumber.

Mrs. Noble will be buried in Philadelphia in the family plot of an Aunt. Noble's body will bt shipped to-day to Long Island, for burial.

THE WEATHER.

Not much change in temperature.

TRAGEDY AT NORTH BAY

North Bay, Feb. 5.—Fred Yearly is under arrest at Warren in connection with the death of his wife, which occurred at a Sudbury hospital yesterday.

On Saturday morning observing the reflection of fire from the windows, neighbors entered the house and found Mrs. Yearly unconscious on a blazing bed. Upon being rescued and cared for, she recovered consciousness and said that he husband had beaten her on the head with a hammer, poured coal oil on her bed, and set it on fire.

EQUAL RATE OF 52 CENTS FOOT FOR SEWER CONSTRUCTION

SYSTEM OF PAYING FOR STREET WATERING CHANGED.

Straight Frontage Tax to Be Charged—Continued Co-Operation of Board of Trade Invited—Committee of Whole City Council in Important Session.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night. There were present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, and Aldermen Morgan, Anderson Johnston, Brown, Duffus, Gordon Gillespie, Duncan and Buller.

A quantity of correspondence was referred to the respective committees

The Public Library Board submitted their demand for $4000 toward defraying the cost of maintenance during 1912. This is a jump of about a $1000 over the amaunt required last year. The matter was sent to the Finance Committee.

The Board of Health wrote endorsing the proposed garbage by-law.

GRANT FOR EXHIBITION.

President Garbutt of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, together with quite a number of his brother directors directors addressed Council with a view to getting their annual grant of $400 increased to $1000 the increase is badly needed to improve the exhibit building, grand stand and entrance.

His Worship promised that the matter will be dealt with seriously by the Finance Committee. Still, while recognizing the value of the exhibition to this city, it is a question of where the money is to come from. However, he would ask Finance Minister Ald. Anderson to deal as liberally as possible with the Association.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

Ald. Duncan's report of the Property Committee was adopted as read, as was also Ald. Johnston's report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Anderson's report of the Finance Committee was adopted as read.

Finance Committee as follows was adopted:

Your Finance Committee begs leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the demand of the Board of Education be paid in monthly instalments as requested by the Board.

2. That one copy of the Municipal World be ordered for the city offices and a cheque for subscription price be issued.

3. That the arrangement with the Bank of Toronto for carrying the City's account, be renewed on the same basis as last year, viz: the bank to allow on all credit balances 3% per cent, and to charge on debit balances up to amount of combined credit balance 4% per cent and to charge for all amounts in excess of the combined credit balances at the rate of 5 per cent.

4.—That an account from the Peterborough Light and Power Co., and one from Chipman and Power be referred to the Board of Works.

The report of last Thursday's meeting of the Committee of the Whole and that of last night was passed without amendment.

The report of the Property Committee re appointment of a sanitary inspector and enforcement of a garbage by-law was withheld until committee meets on applications for the position.

The business of these committees have been reported in these columns the morning following the several meetings.

BY-LAW TO APPOINT PERMANENT ASSESSOR.

Ald. Duncan here introduced the above by-law.

At this juncture Ald. Anderson contended that not one of the applicants for the position of permanent assessor are properly qualified to take the office single-handed. He therefore, moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that instead of W. J. Henry's name being inserted in the assessor's by-law as permanent assessor in accordance with the action of the Committee of the Whole, two assessors be appointed the appointees to be W. J. Henry and W. H. Thompson.

This motion was lost on a vote of 6 to 3, only the mover and seconder and Ald. Morgan voting for the measure.

The by-law appointing W. J. Henry permanent assessor at a salary of $1400 a year then passed its third reading.

MEMBER OF CITY TRUST.

A by-law re-appointing Mr. Richard Hall a member of the City Trust Commissioners for a term of five years passed its several readings. Mr. Richard Hall's previous term had recently expired and his re-appointment was unanimous.

52c A FOOT FOR SEWERS.

Ald. Anderson introduced a by-law to equalize the assessment for sewers. The by-law provides for an equal assessment of 52 cents per foot on all land abutting on streets on which sewers are constructed. This measure passed its several readings. It applies to sewers constructed last year as well as those to be built in future.

FIREMEN'S SALARIES.

The increase to firemen recommended by the Fire, Water and Light Committee was endorsed by Council and a by-law to that effect passed.

DOGS AGAIN!

Ald. Gillespie introduced an amendment to the dog by-law to prohibit the running at large of bitches. This amendment was adopted and will be strictly enforced.

SMALL BUSINESS.

The question of conveying to the C.P.R. one-tenth of an acre of water property adjoining the Wm. English property lately purchased by the C. P.R. again came up in Council. This matter has been hanging fire for several months now to a hindrance in construction work by the railway a[illegible] with their new grain route. It appears that the ownership of the water along the river front in question was conveyed by government patent to the town years ago, and the

THE DOMINION BANK

Record of a Prosperous Year's Business Presented at Annual Meeting.

A comparison of the business done by the Dominion Bank for the years 1911 and 1910 gives a very clear indication of its progress. The net profits for 1911 amounted to $704,045, as compared with $650,300 for the previous year. The bank's reserve fund now stands at $5,[illegible]2,000, as compared with $5,000,000 at the end of 1910. Its total deposits show a gain of over $4,200,000, and now stands at $53,547,000. The total assets at the end of 1911 stood at $70,179,000 as compared with $62,077,000 at the end of 1910.

The Dominion Bank is particularly strong in cash and other quickly available assets. These total over $25,000,000 out of the total assets of $70,179,000. Other evidences of the bank's increased usefulness are shown by the fact that the discounted bills and advance amount to almost $40,500,000, being a large increase over last year, this indicates that the bank is giving more and more assistance to the business needs of the communities where its branches are located. During the year it opened several new branches, erected buildings in a number of places and established a branch in London, Eng. It is planning to further extend the number of its branches during the coming year. The past year was undoubtedly the best in its history as every department of its business showed gains.

BUILDERS' PROFITS with Bankers' Security

100,000 SHARES AT $1.00

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has been organized recently with an authorised capital of $500,000, to do a general building, real estate, and insurance business, and is actively engaged in Vancouver and Victoria—two most promising fields. The profits from building houses for cash and selling on instalments is well known, and will be one of the principal channels from which profits will be derived. BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its own building department and architect, and does its own construction. In addition to building houses, BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS, LIMITED, has its real estate department, where it carries on a general real estate business, discounting agreements of Sale, subdividing and transacting a general insurance business.

BRITISH CANADIAN HOME BUILDERS LIMITED, is a new concern, having been in business less than two months in Vancouver, but is becoming well known as the Company without any promotion shares and with a strong board of directors, made up of well known Vancouver and Victoria business men.

Shareholders may conservatively look for a 10 per cent dividend the first year, increasing thereafter and a steady advance in the value of their shares caused by the substantial reserve it will always be the policy of the directors to build up.

Companies run on similar lines, notably the Los Angeles Investment Company and "Home Builders," both of Los Angeles, have proved phenominally successful, the former, which has been in business some sixteen years, having accumulated assets of over $6,000,000, and paying 28 per cent. dividends; and the latter, which started business three years ago, with only $1,250 capital, has assets to-day of over $1,089,600, a surplus of over $308,000, is paying 17 per cent. dividends, and its $1.00 shares are selling at $2.30.

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD

THE ORIGIN OF MAN

Recent Research is Held to Support Theory that the Human Race had Tail-Less Ape Ancestors.

Since Darwin first suggested the theory of evolution, scientists galore have been studying along the same lines, and man's origin is being gradually pushed further and further into the remote ages. Reviewing the remarkable discoveries of the last ten years in Western Europe, Professor McCurdy shows that it is being gradually proved that the human race is as old as any of the tailless apes, and probably had the same ancestors. The oldest undisputed flint implements date from the Upper Miocene period of geology; the oldest human bone, the jaw of "Homo heidelbergensis from near the beginning of the Quarternary. Primitive man, therefore, must have lived in Western Europe during the entire Glacial period, and developed into "Homo primigenius," low in stature and robust, with short, stout arms and legs — much like the Eskimo of today. A more intellectual race, probably from the East, appeared in the Upper Quarternary, or at least 30,000 years ago. This people, "Homo aurignacensis," sculptured and frescoed the walls of the caverns and their own implements, and their descendants, who must have flourished more than 10,000 years ago, introduced the rudiments of writing. The negroid people probably came into Western Europe soon after. Professor Klaatsch finds "Homo primigenius" to be closely related to the gorilla of Africa, and "Homo aurignacensis" to resemble more nearly the chimpansee of Asia.

Concrete Fence Posts

The increasing cost of timber has resulted in more spirited search for efficient substitutes. One inventor, realising the growing popularity of ferro-concrete, has turned his endeavours into this channel with a view to effecting the desired result, and has achieved distinct success. The posts made from this material are stated to be extremely durable and far superior to those of wood. The cost averages about forty cents per yard; but in this connection it is as well to point out that the cost is governed by geographical situation, inasmuch as the transportation charges for posts of this description, or for manufacturing them on the spot after the materials have been brought in, are heavier than for those of wood under certain conditions. At the same time, if the materials are obtainable on the spot the fence can be built exceedingly cheaply; and when it is pointed out that the durability of a ferro-concrete post is from five to ten times that of timber, according as the wood is preserved with creosote or otherwise, it will be seen that the former has overwhelming advantages in those districts where wood is not readily obtainable. Three of the great British railway companies have erected fence-posts of this material, and are stated to be eminently satisfied with the same; while it has also been used for gradient-posts and gate-posts to crossings.

Telotypographing

Great activity is being evinced by numerous inventors in the field of telegraphic science for the purpose of increasing the advantages of this system of communication, a result no doubt due to the powerful competition that has been offered by the widespread use of the telephone. A Continental inventor has perfected an appliance which he describes as the 'telotypograph.' The idea is to enable messages to be telegraphed to an addressee and immediately written down, a kind of typewriter being employed for the purpose. The inventor has submitted his apparatus to the French Government postal officials, who have expressed a desire to see the invention in actual operation, and who propose to introduce it on lines of lesser importance at first where the telegraph operators are not very expert in handling the Morse code. Should the system prove commercially successful under these conditions its application will be extended to first-class lines, and possibly adopted throughout the whole French telegraphic system.

THE COLOR OF ANIMALS

The Influence of Surroundings on the Coloring of Animals and Birds.

That colour may be influenced in some cases by the taking of special kinds of food is well known, but little is understood as yet of the extent to which pigmentary colour in animals is related to the particular kind of food they eat. Writing upon the subject of this question in his work upon "The Colour-Sense," Mr. Grant Allen draws attention to the fact, as of probable significance, that the two most beautiful classes of animals in the world, as far as colour is concerned — butterflies and humming-birds — are, perhaps, the most exclusively flower-hunting of all invertebrate or vertebrate creatures respectively, and the parrots and their allies, which possess equally beautiful colouring, are fruit-eaters. Indeed, a correspondence with, if not a direct relationship to, the colour and nature of food, as well as of habitual surroundings, may be traced, with few contradictions, and many of these but seeming; and the general rule emerges that animals that possess conspicuous colouring themselves are those, also, which live upon the essence of flowers, or fruits, and are guided, in the search for food, by their eye for colour." The inverse of this rule is found equally to correspond, on the whole, with facts, for the raptorial birds, which live mostly in the air, and whose senses are more attuned to discriminate sound and movement, are generally, themselves wanting in bright colours. The whiter-plumaged birds in a flock of pigeons, for instance, are nearly always the first to be destroyed by hawks on land, and on the coast where there are sea-eagles, black pigeons are at an equal disadvantage.

CHAPTER I.

A Martyr to Gout

"You quite understand, my dear," said Mr. Page, signing to his daughter to shift the cushions, so that his left foot should rest more easily. "You are to bring me a careful description of every member of this circus troupe. You are a keen observer, and it is essential that you should make the best use of your talent now. It won't be an easy task, because you will have to penetrate the paint and tinsel and describe the human being underneath."

"How am I to do that?" asked Elsa, and added, as she gave a caressing pat to the cushion which supported her father's gouty foot; "Is that more comfortable?"

"Yes, thank you, dear. How are you to do it? Why, observe them when they are performing. Speak to some of them, if you can. The members of a travelling circus are not generally exclusive and in a foreign country particularly they will welcome advances made by those who speak their own language."

"But, I can't go and begin a casual conversation with [illegible] in a foreign country, people would think that queer."

"You can't," said her father, "but young Scarborough can. Tell him you are interested in the people, that you think their life romantic, and that you would like to see it a little closer. He's not the man I take him for if he doesn't manage somehow to gratify your whim."

Mr. Page laughed, and his daughter flushed slightly.

"I will do my best," she said.

"Yes, my dear, I know you will, for your father's sake," said Mr. Page. "I leave the method to your own woman's wit, and to circumstances, which your woman's wit will tell you how to turn to profit. If, however, an introduction to Mr. Val B. Montague, the manager of the troupe, is one of the circumstances I should suggest that you give yourself the trouble to be charming to him. He is probably a cad."

"Then why am I to be charming to him?" demanded Elsa.

Mr. Page smiled.

"Because, my dear, if he is a cad—and his name suggests that he can hardly be anything else—he will be all the more impressed by your condescension, and will probably offer to show you over his schooner. If he doesn't—"

"If he doesn't," Elsa broke in quickly, "I am to give him a hint that I want to be asked, and to continue the process of being charming until he takes the hint! Are those my instructions?"

There was a note of scorn in her voice, and her father was quick to detect it. [illegible] with a sharp indrawing of the breath. A shooting pain in his gouty foot had cut his merriment short with a gasp. His daughter stood before him waiting for her answer, but the sight of that spasm of pain cooled her anger at the laugh.

"I want to know exactly what I am to do. Are those my instructions?" she asked again, but in a gentler tone.

"The spirit of them, yes. But don't hint; ask straight out. Or, get Scarborough to ask, and back him up in his request."

"I will ask myself," said Elsa quickly.

Mr. Page shot a glance at her, moving his eyes only, not his head. He made a habit of economy in movement; and besides, as Elsa was not looking at him at the moment, by not moving his head he concealed the fact that he was observing her.

"You don't like your errand?" he asked.

"No."

"And I don't like sending you upon it. The part of the spy is always an unpleasant one to play; but unfortunately it is sometimes necessary. You understand that it is necessary here?"

"I believe you when you say it is. But I don't understand."

Mr. Page hesitated. Then he held out a white, rather large, but beautifully shaped hand to her. She came to his side.

"Little girl," he said, "we have been through hard times together, you and I; but though the world has been against us, we have been happy, because we have fought it together. Hitherto there has been confidence between us. You have trusted me. Is that trust beginning to fail you?"

"No, father."

"Then why are you so reluctant now? Your task is an unpleasant one, I admit; but I have never known you shrink from a task because it was unpleasant. I would spare you the unpleasantness if I could, but—" he pointed to his left foot, swathed in bandages, and resting on a pile of cushions, "Someone must go to Ponta Delgada, to see this circus," he said, "and I can't!"

She knelt down beside him, and stroked the big white hand which he held out to her.

"Of course I will go," she said. "Mr. Scarborough will be here in ten minutes. He and I are going to ride over on our bicycles. Of course I will go."

"But reluctantly? You do it reluctantly?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

For a moment she did not answer. Part of her reluctance came from the fact that she was going in Scarborough's company. That would have been a pleasure to her a day or two ago, but now, when the part of the spy had to be played, there was pain to her in having to make use of him for such a purpose. Besides, though she did not yet admit the fact to herself, her trust in her father, absolute hitherto, was beginning to be subject to qualification.

"Father," she said at length, "how much longer is all this going on? When are we going to return to England and be known by our own name again?"

"When we can do so with perfect safety," said Mr. Page. "You can't imagine that I enjoy living in hiding, and that I have willingly separated myself from your mother all this time!"

"What is my mother doing? Has mother written to me?"

"And rarely to me," said her father. "Letters are not safe. But she is working for us, you may be sure, watching over the safety of her husband and child, and trying to atone, by devotion to us now, for her disappointment in the past and her fears for the future. Scarborough obediently talked; but after the first few sentences she did not hear what he said, or heard it vaguely, and answered without interest, mechanically, when his pauses seemed to demand an answer. Her brain was busy with speculation. What was the danger which threatened her father?

A man bicycling along the street towards them, took his hat off, jumped off beside them, and held out his hand.

"Going to the circus?" he asked. He was Scott, the man with the novel, who had been sharing Scarborough's watch yesterday.

"Yes," said Elsa. "Are you?"

"Sorry I can't. I have to get back to duty at the cable station. Montague has been showing me over the schooner—most interesting life the beggars lead, though I daresay it would pall a bit when the novelty wore off. By the way, Scarborough, one of them says he knows you."

"Oh? Which?" asked Scarborough, without interest.

"The man who does the fancy shooting. Says you and he went to the same crammer's, and were pilled for Sandhurst at the same exam."

"What's his name?" There was more interest in the question this time.

"He's Pampas Joe, the English Cowboy and Brother King, on the programme. I didn't catch his real name. Darnley, or something of that sort."

"By Jove! I wonder if it's Phil Varney!" cried Scarborough eagerly. For Philip Varney and he had been chums once.

"Yes, that's it, Varney," said Scott. "Hullo! what's Miss Page doing?"

They had been standing in front of a small general shop. Elsa had gone in and asked for writing paper and envelopes. She scribbled hastily: "Philip Varney is a member of the circus troupe," put the paper in an envelope, and fastened it up. Then she rejoined the young men.

"Are you going back to Ribeira Grande at once, Mr. Scott?" she asked.

"Yes," he said, and looking at his watch, added: "Time I was starting, too. Can I do anything for you?"

"Have you time to leave this note at the Chimelas? It's a message for father, which I forgot to give him before I started."

"Oh, yes, certainly. I shall have to hurry though, so good-bye."

"Good-bye, and thank you so much," said Elsa.

"See you to-night, Scarborough," said Scott, as he mounted. "Bring Pampas Joe back to supper with you."

"I will if he'll come," said Scarborough. "But he'll have to stay for the evening performance, won't he?"

"Isn't going to be one," said Scott. "There's been a row, and Val B. is tearing his hair about it. Pampas Joe will come right enough. By-bye for the present, old man. I'll see that your father has your note, Miss Page."

When Scott had gone, Scarborough turned to Elsa, saying:

"Phil Varney was my greatest chum a few years ago. Queer, isn't it?"

"What?" asked Elsa, laughing. "That he should have been your chum? or that, having been your chum, he should now be a circus man? or merely that you should meet him here?"

"Well, mostly the last," said Scarborough.

"Quite a romantic meeting!" cried Elsa. "Come, let's hurry to the circus, so that we shan't miss seeing your old chum in the ring," which made Scarborough glance at her sharply. Her languor of a few minutes ago was gone, and a feverish excitement seemed to have taken its place. There was a faint flush on the whiteness of her cheek. The porcelain was tinted with quick flowing blood, and her eyes were flashing. She was looking bewitchingly pretty.

But her excitement struck him as being somewhat feverish and unnatural. It had arisen too suddenly, and he had seen nothing to cause it. But then he remembered that he had not yet found out what it was that had made her ask him last night, as the first proof of the bond of friendship between them to take her to see the circus at Ponta Delgada.

"Do you know Phil Varney?" he asked, suddenly.

She turned to him quickly.

"Why do you ask that?" she demanded.

"I was endeavoring to account for the look in your eyes," said Scarborough, laughing. "Something has excited you."

"I don't know him."

"Then I'll introduce you. If Pampas Joe turns out to be he, that is."

"Thank you. I would rather not."

Again her manner had changed. She spoke coldly, almost as though he had suggested something improper in proposing to introduce a circus-rider to her.

"He's a gentleman," said Scarborough.

"I doubt it."

Scarborough again looked at her sharply, and there was a flash of anger in his look. She had made the retort rudely, and he was not gifted with the meekness of temper which takes a insult lying down. Besides, both the rebuff and the rudeness were surely gratuitous, since she admitted that she did not know the man.

"As you please," he said. "But I have mentioned the fact that he was my chum!"

Here was the foundation on which to build a lovers' quarrel!—as flimsy and unsubstantial as the foundation of that amazing erection usually is; but adequate, woefully adequate! The architects both had hot tempers! The building shewed every likelihood of advancing with the orthodox rapidity.

But Elsa's mood to-day was antagonistic to probabilities. Her excitement, whatever its cause might be, drove her in quick rushes from extreme to extreme. She was not consistent even in her burst of temper, for her mental vane veered round from stormy to dull in one quick swing, and her temper died at the first sign of the awakening of his.

Though in the wrong, she did not attempt to justify herself; and this is an omission which in itself indicates, in a woman, a sweet reasonableness, which is neither normal or healthy.

"I am sorry, Horace," she said. "I didn't mean to be horrid. I suppose I was."

Scarborough's reply was a laugh. He had not the mental adroitness to follow the suddenness of her changes of mood; and his temper, less easy to rouse than hers, was harder to calm. He was still inclined to be angry.

"I said that I did not know Mr. Varney," she went on; "and that is true. But I do know who he is, and though he is your chum, I won't be introduced to him."

"Do you know anything to his discredit?"

"N—no."

"That's a grudging 'no,'" said Scarborough. "Does it mean 'yes'?"

"No."

KINGS IN TRADE

Most of the Monarchs of Europe Have Made Fortunes by Shrewd Speculation in Business Undertakings.

Monarchs are not above making money. And perhaps the Kaiser should be given first place among reigning Sovereigns for shrewd commercialism. He makes a strong point of cultivating the friendship of financial magnates, not only in his own, but in other countries as well.

The Kaiser has some very large holdings in the Hamburg-American [illegible] interested in the [illegible] powers of German steel [illegible] connection with the vast forests comprised in the Crown domains and on his private estates, he carries on a large lumber business. His horse-breeding establishment in Western Prussia brings him in a handsome revenue. He is the principal stakeholder in the municipal lager-beer brewery at Hanover. And he carries on an extensive manufactory of pottery on his private estates at Cadinen.

GATHERING GOLDEN GRAIN

Gustavius, the present ruler of the Swedes, is a total abstainer. On coming to the throne, he disposed of his late father's extensive brewing interests. But he still retains many other profitable investments. He has money in mills and mines, and he seldom neglects to extol the virtues of the Grand Hotel at Stockholm, in which he is by far the largest shareholder.

He is a successful speculative builder. In this way: When property in the slum districts of the Swedish metropolis is going dirt cheap, along comes the King and buys it. And soon on the sites of the dilapidated buildings rise handsome houses and thoroughfares which increase the value of the property many times over.

Few monarchs have shown themselves cleverer managers of a wife's property than the King of Denmark. By shrewd investments he has already multiplied its value many times. In a large number of his enterprises he is associated with his Royal brother, King George of Greece, who possesses an immense fortune, which he owes in a great measure to undertaking certain operations in American grain about thirty-five years ago, which the closing of Odessa and other Southern Russian seaports to the export of grain, owing to the war with Turkey, rendered extremely profitable.

From the sale of beer, the Prince Regent of Bavaria draws immense sums. In Munich are grim, dirty taverns in which the Royal Court beer has been sold for the last three centuries. You never see a waiter or waitress. You must attend to your own wants, whether you be prince or peasant. Indeed, when the Kaiser visited Munich, he and the Bavarian Princes took their places in line, and awaited their turn for a stone mug, which they themselves rinsed out!

REASONABLE REQUEST

It was a cold night. The traveller inquired at the only hotel in the little town if he could be lodged for the night, but was informed that it was full up.

"But you must give me some sort of accommodation," said the stranger. "Surely you don't want me to sleep under the starry but chilly skies?"

"Well," said the proprietor, "the best we can do is to make you up a bed in the passage and curtain it off for you." And so it was arranged.

In the dark watches of the night the traveller awoke. A freezing draught chilled him, and the sheet which had been hung up as a partition was blowing merrily in the breeze. The traveller rose and shouted for the landlord.

"What is it?" queried a voice from the stairhead.

"Please," said the stranger, timidly, "may I have a piece of string to tack my bedroom door with?"

THIN, FRAIL WOMEN WITH PALE CHEEKS

HOW RAPIDLY LEARNING THE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR BY THE USE OF DR. HAMILTON'S PILLS.

Thousands of half-dead, emaciated, worn-out women are dragging out their weary lives simply because they don't know what ails them. Nine times in ten it's indigestion, which directly leads to anaemia, poor circulation, and eventually invalidism.

The first step towards relief is to flush out all wastes and unhealthy matter. Loosen the bowels—stir up the liver—stimulate the kidneys. Once this is done, Dr. Hamilton's Pills will quickly manifest their health-restoring qualities.

"The best way to correct impaired digestion, to cure constipation, headache, liver trouble, and other ailments of the stomach and bowels," writes Mrs. Uriah A. Dempsey, from Woodstock, "is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I didn't know what it was to enjoy a good meal for months. My stomach was sour, I belched gas, was thin, tired, pale, and nervous. I simply housecleaned my system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and have been robust and vigorous ever since."

To keep the machinery of the body in active working order, no remedy is so efficient, so mild, so curative as Dr. Hamilton's Pills—good for men, women and children, 25c. per box, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

PAMPERED CRIMINALS.

The new prison-hotel system which is being adopted in Europe for habitual offenders will do much to remove the charge that such members of society have been neglected. Under the new regime these prison-hotels are built in carefully selected and well wooded spots, which have also some advantages from a scenic point of view.

The habitual criminal gets the hospitality of the place for an indefinite period, which may not exceed ten years. Every facility is given for that social intercourse which does so much to make life endurable. The prisoners have meals together in an association hall. There will be a canteen, at which those who have not misbehaved themselves will be allowed to purchase what little luxuries are not provided on the ordinary menu of the establishment, and the long winter evenings will be beguiled with various recreations in the association hall. As for the bedroom accommodation, all has been done that the most solicitous care for the well-being of the inhabitants could dictate. It is well known that hotel patrons do not like to lodge in fourth or fifth storey rooms, so the prison blocks are handsome buildings of two storeys each. The cells are well lighted and carefully ventilated. Their internal arrangement is comfortable, and their decoration adequate, without being gaudy. The depressing square hole through which the ordinary prison cell receives its light is replaced by a charming cottage window frame, which the prisoners can open or close at their will. A steel grid is placed on the other side of each window in order that the seclusion of the convicts may not be destroyed by the envious honest outside trying to force their way into the prison. A large staff of servants, including a librarian, will be employed. In order that the prisoners may be able to obtain that reasonable amount of outdoor physical exercise that is necessary for health, a large area of the forest land will be cleared, and teachers will be provided from whom they may obtain knowledge of agriculture, horticulture and various skilled trades.

Thus, this new enterprise on the part of humane government provides for the happiest possible solution of the anxious problem: "What shall we do with our boys?" No calling offers such glorious prospects as the various branches of the criminal profession, in which failure, involving accommodation for an indefinite term in a prison-hotel, is only a trifle less desirable than success.

FOUL PLAY

'Twas the first night of that great drama, "The Clue of the Return Half; or, Did She Not Come Back?" at that home of the actor's art, the Thespian Theatre, Little Sloccombe. Little Sloccombe — and this should be noted before the curtain rises — is a great place, and is famed in several villages round about for its football. They are enthusiasts in Little Sloccombe.

But the curtain rises, and the play's the thing! Here comes the great detective, specially wired for, to inquire into the strange and enthralling mystery which envelops the mouted grange. Almost immediately he finds a clue. Four people have been shot. A bush falls upon the house as the great sleuthhound makes his momentous pronouncement.

"Ha, ha!" he cries, in dramatic tones. "There has been foul play here—foul play! Now, what next shall I do?"

From the gallery came a voice, clear and insistent, to the perplexed detective-actor:—

"Give 'em a free kick, guv'nor. That's the game!"

THEY ONLY LOOKED ON.

Johnny hasn't been to school long, but he already holds some peculiar views regarding the administration of his particular class.

The other day he came home with a singularly morose look on his usually smiling face.

"Why, Johnny," said his mother, "what's the matter?"

Johnny snorted

"I ain't going to that old school no more," he fiercely announced.

"Why, Johnny," said his mother, reproachfully, "you mustn't talk like that. What's wrong with the school?"

"I ain't goin' there no more," Johnny replied; "an' it's because all th' boys in my room is bloomin' old cowards!"

"Why, Johnny, Johnny!"

"Yes, they are. There was a boy whisperin' this mornin', an' teacher saw him an' bumped his head on th' desk ever an' ever so many times. An' those big cowards sat there an' didn't say give it up nor nothin'. They let that old teacher bang th' head off th' poor little boy, an they just sat there an' seen her do it!"

"And what did you do, Johnny?"

"I didn't do nothin' — I was the boy!"

REPRESENTING THE American Chemicals Corporation

wish to announce that the books of the Corporation will be open for the first public subscription of TREASURY STOCK AT PAR, ONE ($1.00) DOLLAR PER SHARE, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1912, AT 10 A.M. ALL shares common shares, fully-paid, non-assessable. Treasury Stock 500,000 shares, to be sold for the benefit of the Corporation. Only 100,000 shares will be sold at $1.00 per share at this offering. The subscription books of the Corporation will close promptly at NOON, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1912. 20 per cent. of each subscription must accompany same, balance due and payable in four equal monthly payments of 20c per share each. Subscriptions will be filled in the order received. Over-Subscriptions may be filled at $1.25 per share at the options of the subscriber for the next 50,000 shares. $1.50 for the next 50,000 shares, or any part thereof. The right is reserved to reject any or all subscriptions.

CAPITAL.

The American Chemicals Corporation is incorporated for $1,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares of the par. value of $1.00 each. All shares common shares, fully paid, non-assessable. 500,000 shares in Treasury, 500,000 shares issued for inventions, processes and trade secrets.

PURPOSE.

The American Chemicals Corporation owns and controls inventions, formulas and secret processes for the manufacture of nitro-cellulose products or plastic material, better known as Celluloid, Fiberloid, Viscaloid, etc., for use in the arts and trades.

REDUCED COSTS.

Exhaustive tests prove that the American Chemicals Corporation can manufacture this staple article of commerce for half the present cost of production.

CONTROL MARKETS.

The American Chemicals Corporation can control the world's markets of its industry by its superior product and low cost of production.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

No more profitable investment can be had than that in a corporation controlling the world's markets in any industry.

Plastic-material manufacture such as will be conducted by the American Chemicals Corporation has always been a very profitable industry.

100 PER CENT. SUCCESSFUL.

Every factory producing plastic material has been an immensely profitable enterprise. There has never been a failure.

PAST PROFITS.

Court records for State of Massachusetts show that $1,000.00 invested in this industry in 1885, paid 500 per cent. profit each year and in September, 1911, had a market value of $500,000.00 (the manager of the American Chemicals Corporation was Chief Chemist of this Company.)

American Chemicals Corporation should do as well, possibly better, as American Chemicals Corporation tests prove that it can manufacture a much superior article at less than half the present cost.

Mr. J. G. Jarvis, the first manufacturer of plastic material in America, has accepted the presidency of the American Chemicals Corporation. Mr. Jarvis began the manufacture of plastic material in 1871 and has been identified with its production ever since. He is now Manager of Parsons & Parsons and Parsons & Jackson, Manufacturers of Celluloid Products, with factories at Cleveland, Ohio and Hamilton, Ontario.

GENERAL MANAGER.

Professor O. W. Pickering, who was Professor of Chemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass., before actively engaged in plastic material manufacturing, has accepted the general managership of the American Chemicals Corporation. Professor Pickering has been identified with plastic material manufacture for the past twenty years, and is acknowledged the leading expert in plastic material chemistry. Very many of the improvements and cost saving devices of the industry are the result of Professor Pickering's invention and research.

OUTPUT.

The American Chemicals Corporation factory will have an initial production of 4000 pounds per day. This production should give a profit of more than 50 per cent. a year on the par value of its stock.

PRODUCTION AND PROFIT.

4000 lbs. daily selling at 90c lb.	$3,600.00
4000 lbs. daily cost at 30c lb.	1,200.00
Daily Profit	$2,400.00
Monthly Profit, 26 days	62,400.00
Yearly Profits	$748,800.00

More than 74 per cent. on the par value of entire capitalization.

Factory production should be doubled after first year.

DEMAND.

The demand and consumption of plastic material exceeds supply. The four factories in this industry in America output 60,000 lbs. daily. Increasing demand and new uses have required an increase of 100 per cent. yearly, for the past six years. New uses demand even a greater increase in the future.

PRODUCTS.

Professor Pickering has perfected an imitation of Ivory for Billiard Balls, Piano Keys, and the Arts, equal to real Ivory; a reproduction of Linen for Collars and Cuffs, almost impossible to detect; Sheets for Auto Windows and Wind Shields, as strong as metal and clear as glass.

NEW USES.

Mr. Jarvis has perfected a material with the tensile strength of metal and without its friction, for gears and bearings for Autos and other fine machinery.

BY-PRODUCT.

In addition to plastic material, Professor Pickering has perfected a lacquer for metal and wood that is superior to anything ever produced. Manufacturing cost less than 20 per cent. of present of inferior articles. Brass bed manufacturers, silversmiths and chandelier makers have been anxiously awaiting the perfection of such a lacquer for years.

MARKET.

The market for the products of the American Chemicals Corporation is assured by the association with it of Messrs. Jarvis and Pickering, who have grown up with the industry, and whose repute among the users of this material is such that already offers for the entire production of the plant could be booked at highly profitable prices from their immediate friends in the trade.

Having investigated every detail of the American Chemicals Corporation and its industry, we unhesitatingly advise the purchase of its securities, and fully believe investors will find it the most profitable investment on the market.

Respectfully,

JAMES F. GALLAGHER & COMPANY

ANNUAL MEETING OF PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD:

As my term of office as Chairman of the Board expires to-night, it is perhaps my duty to give a short statement of the affairs of the Library.

As you will learn from the Librarian's report, the number of books now in the Library is 10,249, of which 1,036 were purchased during the year 1911, and the number of books taken out by members from the 14th February, 1911, the day the Library was first opened, until the 31st December, 1911, was 42,737, which shows that it has been well patronized. The Reading Room has also been extensively used, and at times quite crowded, and more accommodation in the way of tables and chairs is required in it. The number of members on the 31st December last was 2,360; the cost of maintaining the Library and supplying new books, etc., was $4,646.81, distributed as follows:

Salaries	$1,925.72
Books and magazines	1,163.01
Lighting and heating	711.55
Furnishings, bookbinding, insurance, printing, etc.	846.53
	$4,646.81

The Librarian and his assistants have had their time fully occupied, not only in attending to the wants of those taking out books, but also in arranging, classifying and cataloguing the Library, and they have all taken a great interest in their work, and deserve the commendation of the Board. The question of instituting a children's department was left to a special committee, but owing to the fact that the Librarians were so fully occupied with arranging the books, it was thought well to let that matter stand in the meantime. In addition to the gifts of the books, etc., referred to in the Librarian's Report, the Library was fortunate in being presented with a valuable picture, now in the Reading Room, given by a donor whose name was not disclosed, and it is hoped that others may be induced to copy this good precedent and assist in making the rooms more attractive.

In the year 1854 the late John Langton, then Member of Parliament for this County, and afterwards Auditor-General, in the course of an address to the members of the Peterborough Library Association, said: "I have been most anxious that the Library Association which we have been forming in this town, should also embrace a Mechanics' Institute, because although a collection of books is an essential part of such an institution, a Library alone does not meet all the objects which I am desirous of promoting. A Public Library is designed to develop a taste for reading and to afford facilities for the cultivation of literature generally, without a special preference for any particular department. A Mechanics' Institute is designed to be in one sense be said to have a more confined object, being chiefly intended to promote the study of the physical sciences, but in other respects it embraces a larger field, by enabling its members to prosecute those studies, not from books alone, but by the gradual accumulation of a museum of philosophical apparatus and more especially by means of the delivery of lectures."

This, it appears to me, is as applicable to-day as when spoken 58 years ago at what I understand to have been the first meeting of a Society from which the former Mechanics' Institute had its start, and of which our present Library is the outcome. Our Library, although it has taken the place of the former Mechanics' Institute, has so far only been a place from which books can be obtained or where members can come to read. It should be more. Some effort should be made to increase its usefulness as an educational institution, and the Board might, if it approves of carrying out this idea, consider how this can be satisfactorily done.

I desire to express my appreciation of the interest every member of the Board has taken in the affairs of the Library and the time and attention each has given to its management, and also to say that to the Chairman and Members of the Property Committee of the City Council the Board is greatly indebted for the assistance received from them in making the Library what it is; but the Library is indebted for its existence, if not primarily, at any rate financially, to LIBRARY—TWO ... the munificence of Mr. Andrew Carnegie and the interest evinced in the institution by Mr. Richard Hall, the executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie gave the sum of $30,000 in cash for the erection and furnishing of a suitable building, and from the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls the Library is the recipient of income from an endowment of $10,000, as well as the proceeds of the sale of the building on Simcoe Street, amounting to $11,000.

Tablets testifying the appreciation of the public for these gifts are being prepared and will be placed in the building

F. H. D. HALL,
Chairman.

Peterborough,
February 1st, 1912.

The following reports were presented at the annual meeting of the Public Library Board held on Thursday night:

Librarian's Report.

Dear Sir,

I beg herewith to present my report on the work accomplished in the Library during the past year.

The building was thrown open to the public on Tuesday, 14th February, 1911, and the number of members who had joined up to 30th December inclusive was 2,456—Adults 2,144, Juveniles 315. Seventy-nine members, 72 adults, and 7 juveniles relinquished their tickets during the year owing to various causes, such as leaving the city or objecting to the payment of fines for overdue books. In this connection I may state that the overdue fines left unpaid during the year amount to $1.35, the largest unpaid fine being 30c.

Books in the Library.

The number of books in the Library at the present time is 10,249. These are classified as follow:

Juveniles	707
Refer. and Gen. Works	409
Philosophy	152
Religion	404
Sociology	362
Philology	18
Natural Science	356
Useful Arts	202
Fine Arts	159
Literature	770
History	938
Biography	797
Geography and Travel	834
Fiction	4117
Magazines	130
	10,249

Books Purchased.

The books purchased amounted to 1,036, and were classified as follow:

Geography and Travel	87
Biography	91
History	111
Literature	137
Natural Science	32
Useful Arts	35
Sociology	67
Fine Arts	2
Fiction	445
Religion	3
Reference Works	56
Total	1036

Number of Volumes Issued.

The number of volumes issued to 30th December inclusive was 42,737, fiction, of course, largely predominating:

Fiction	31535
Philosophy	100
Philology	30
Literature	742
History	1631
Natural Science	989
Sociology	4536
Useful Arts	451
Fine Arts	114
Magazines	108
Geography and Travel	1303
Biography	771
Religion	336
Total	42737

I am glad to report that the card system for the issue of books is working well. During the year only one volume was deliberately stolen. Its value was 70c. As the purloiner had removed from the city and the whereabouts of his family was unknown the book was lost to the Library.

Some seven or eight volumes which had been unfortunately taken to infected houses, or been in houses when an infectious disease broke out were also lost to circulation.

In four or five instances where books had been lost by borrowers or damaged in a material way a demand was made for reimbursement, which was in every instance cheerfully complied with.

It is impossible to state to what extent books may have been removed from the shelves without the formality of having them entered at the desk prior to borrowing them. I am fairly convinced, however, that loss—if there has been any loss—has been slight, as we have no record of ... astray during the year.

There has been a considerable amount of theft from the reading rooms, more especially in the early part of the year, and our magazine files are sadly depleted in consequence.

There was also a certain amount of mutilation of papers and periodicals, but nothing of this sort has been noticed since a notice to the effect that culprits would be severely dealt with if discovered was placed in the papers.

The Reading Room.

The Reading Rooms were extensively patronized during the whole year, the attendance, at a very conservative estimate of 30 a day, amounting for the ten and a half months to 6,230, exclusive of Sundays and holidays.

The Juvenile Section.

The Juvenile Section of the Library is the one that needs the most attention this year. Although many books were purchased to strengthen this department, the avidity with which the young people have fastened on what has been provided for their intellectual pabulum has reduced not only some of the new books, but very many of the old to a somewhat disreputable condition.

Book Circulation.

The circulation has kept at a lively and healthy pace throughout the whole time the Library has been in operation. There was, of course, a slight falling off in the summer months, but a very fair average was maintained.

The highest Saturday output was on 1st December, when 434 books were borrowed, and the lowest on 14th February, for which day the record shows an output of 116.

339 volumes had to be discarded during the year and upwards of $,000 were repaired and placed again in circulation.

In addition to the books already enumerated, there are stored in the basement some 152 volumes of a technical character, which are entirely obsolete and worthless for library purposes, and also some 50 books which, owing to the absence of first or second volumes, are rendered practically valueless.

Donations.

We have received some very welcome presents during the year from friends of the institution, chief among them being some valuable works from the estate of the late Mr. A. C. Dunlop, which were presented by his daughter, Miss Dunlop.

Other donors were:

Colonel Stevenson — Volumes of Hansard.

Ottawa Canadian Club—Transactions of the Club for 1910.

C. W. Ricketts, Toronto—The Gold and Silver Coinage of England to Reign of George III.

George Lennox—Poems.

The Examiner—Newspaper Annual.

Amer. Theos. Society—The Changing World (Mrs. Besan't).

Mr. D. Burritt—5 volumes of fiction.

Mr Bradley—1 volume of fiction.

Thomas Allen—Greek Lexicon.

Intern. Tax Association—Reports for 1909 and 1910.

British Government—2 vols. Life of Lord Durham

A Friend—3vols. Pier's Plowman.

We have also received from different departments of the Federal Government gifts of great value in the shape of maps, brochures, and pam-

In presenting the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank covering the year just closed your Directors have to report that there has been continued improvement in every respect. The Institution has shared fully in the widespread prosperity of the country, with a satisfactory increase in the net profits earned.

The following Branches were established during the period under review: Welland, Ont.; Granville Street, Vancouver, B.C.; Hillhurst, Calgary), Alberta; Norwood (Edmonton), Alberta; St. John's (Winnipeg), Manitoba.

In view of the steadily increasing volume of business between Canada and Great Britain, and to generally further the Bank's interests, a Branch was opened in London, England, in July last—the results already shown justify this action.

The new buildings at Calgary, Alberta; Saskatoon, Sask.; Brandon, Man., Dovercourt Road and Bloor Street, Toronto; Lee Avenue, Toronto and St. Clair Avenue and Vaughan Road, Toronto, referred to in the last Annual Report, have been completed, with the result that commodious and handsome premises have been provided at these points, which we anticipate will meet our requirements for many years to come.

It is the intention during 1912 to erect buildings for the following Branches in Toronto: Dufferin Street and St. Clair Avenue, and Deer Park—corner Yonge Street and St. Clair Avenue.

Arrangements are under way to establish new Offices at several important and growing Canadian points, during the year, and all available profits accruing will be utilized for the purpose by the Bank.

The Branches at Summerberry and Melville, Sask., were closed in 1911.

Owing to the general expansion of the Bank's business and to provide for increasing demands for Circulation, it was considered advisable to offer to the Shareholders in July, 1911, $1,000,000 of new Capital Stock at 200. Rights to subscribe for this issue expired on the 15th January, 1912, at which date $973,700 of the amount was subscribed, and $807,852.50 paid up. When full payment of the new issue has been made the Bank's paid-up Capital will be $5,000,000 and the Reserve Fund $6,000,000. The authorized Capital Stock is $10,000,000, and the unallotted balance, $5,000,000, will be issued from time to time as conditions warrant.

The Balance Sheet of the Bank, showing the various Assets and Liabilities at the close of business on the 30th December, 1911, has been verified by your Directors, who, in addition, have examined and found to be correct the Cash Assets and investments mentioned therein.

All Branches of the Bank have been inspected during the past twelve months.

E. B. OSLER,
President

Toronto, 31st January, 1912.

The report was adopted.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their services during the year, and to the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year: Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. R. Brock, James Carruthers, R. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.L.A., W. D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton and Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., was elected President, and Mr. W. D. Matthews Vice-President for the ensuing term.

The Natural Wealth Of The West

Get a Share of the Good Things on the Ground Floor Basis

In bringing before the public of Eastern Canada an idea of the natural wealth of the West we are only carrying out a business proposition, and in doing so are animated solely by the desire of offering you a share of the good things on a ground floor basis. With the assurance of a little of your money we can make some for ourselves and a great deal for you because we have the unexploited natural wealth.

The man who staked our oil land is a pioneer of British Columbia, and for some years past has been living with his family on Graham Island, the most northerly of Queen Charlotte Group, and was in a position to select with care and under experienced advice, the richest oil bearing land, as well as being on a deep water harbor.

The mining of petroleum has for the past forty years been the direct cause and means of making more multi-millionaires on this continent than any other industry into which the same amount of money has been invested. We own 3200 acres of land on which the surface's indications (oil seepages) and geologic conditions are such that it is as near as possible certain that at a comparatively shallow depth there is unlimited quantities of oil of a high grade, as is evidenced by the analysis of the samples collected from the seepage.

A new use is found for oil almost every day. The older fields are being superseded, by the new. Of the old fields none are more promising than Graham Island.

Many people would drink ale, in preference to all other malt beverages, if ale did not make them "bilious."

This O'K brew is brewed especially for those people. It is extra mild and extra light, and lets you enjoy the creamy deliciousness of real old English ale without the heaviness and excessive bitterness. Is easily—opened and stoppered bottles. No broken cork or tinfoil in the glass.

phlets, as well as the ordinary publications detailing the work of the various departments. For these, we are in large measure indebted to the kindness of our late member, Hon. J. R. Stratton, who always turned a ready ear to our requests for Government literature. Our present member, Mr. J. H. Burnham, is also proving assiduous in helping us, and through him we are indebted for many gifts of maps from the Geographical Department, as well as a magnificent panoramic view of the Rockies and two fine volumes on the Champlain Tercentenary, entitled, "The King's Book of Quebec." The panoramic view of the Rockies has not yet arrived, but it is expected shortly from the department.

The Staff.

We sustained a distinct loss at the beginning of the present year by the resignation of Miss Cahill, the first assistant. Miss Cahill, during her short tenure of the position, had proved herself admirably adapted to her duties, and her resignation was greatly regretted, not only by her co-workers, but by the public in general. Miss Aylmer, the former second assistant, who took Miss Cahill's place at her departure, is eminently fitted for the position, and I have no doubt will prove as acceptable to the public as was her predecessor. Miss Sullivan, our second assistant, is doing excellent work and proving unremitting in her duties.

The janitor, Mr. Mathieson, has been a very efficient and faithful guardian of the library, and has striven in every way possible to discharge his duties properly.

Work Accomplished.

We were unable to obtain the services of the Government cataloguer till July, but notwithstanding the serious delay we have made fairly satisfactory headway with the classifying and cataloguing, and have been enabled to carry on the work without inconvenience to the public. At the present time about two-thirds of the volumes in the Library are shelf-listed, about one-half catalogued, and the whole of them classified. We are enabled, therefore, to lay our hands on any book without much trouble, as they are placed in their proper sections on the shelves. The work of cataloguing and classifying has devolved largely on the assistants, and it gives me pleasure to pay a tribute to Miss Cahill and Miss Aylmer for the really excellent work that they have done in this department.

The record of what has been accomplished shows much that will never need to be done again. The whole system has had to be re-built on a different foundation, and this has, of course, meant the practical establishment of a new library. The re-painting, re-classifying, accessioning, equipping with card pockets and cards and looking after the repairing of a library of over ten thousand volumes has kept the staff busy, and much has been left undone which, it is to be hoped, the present year will see brought to fruition. It will take [illegible] cataloguing of the maps, pamphlets, and other literary matter will be completed, but the library now stands in solid favour with the public, and as they see it gradually emerging into greater and greater usefulness, there can be no doubt but that that interest will become intensified.

One extremely gratifying feature of the work has been the warm interest evinced by the boys and girls from our public schools and from the Collegiate Institute. They have made splendid use of our reference and reading rooms, and in common with the older users of the Library have comported themselves in a manner that has added zest to the work. The anxiety that everyone, old or young, has shown to conform to the rules laid down by the Board has been one of the most pleasant and conspicuous traits of our Library patrons.

All of which is respectfully submitted. F. M. Delafosse, Librarian.

Artificial Resuscitation

The resuscitation of a drowning person by means of artificial breathing is not only a laborious undertaking, but the motions must be correctly executed or the attempt will prove unsuccessful. A Swedish physician has constructed an exceptionally simple and effective apparatus, which lightens the task materially and adds immensely to the chances of success. It consists of a short board on which the patient is placed, two levers to which the arms are fastened, attached to the board, and a wide belt or girdle fastened to the levers and passing over the patient's breast. When the levers are pushed backward, the arms follow and the chest is inflated; and when the levers are pushed forward and down the girdle presses the air out of the lungs.

The Plumb-line in Porto Rico.

Among the various discoveries made by men of science in their innumerable efforts to measure and map the earth with the least possible error are places where the direction of a plumb line is not vertical. Irregularities of density in the crust of the globe may produce this phenomenon. A remarkable instance in point was found in the island of Porto Rico, where the deviation from the vertical is so great that, in mapping the island, the northern and southern coast lines, as shown in the older maps, had each to be moved inward half a mile.

town agreed to convey the same to the Wm. English estate. This, however, had not been done. The C.P.R. has purchased the Wm. English property for purposes in connection with their new Georgian Bay-Seaboard grain route and last year discovered that they require one-tenth of an acre of "water" directly east of the property purchased from the English estate in order to straighten out their line, which position had been overlooked by their engineer. Subsequent enquiry revealed the fact that this small water lot, in the letter of the law, should have been included in the Wm. English estate, although the estate had not demanded from the town a fulfillment of their agreement to legally convey it to them at the time similar conveyances were made to other water front owners, for the obvious reason that this little piece of "water" was of no use to the Wm. English people, or any person else, unless prepared to fill it in at considerable expense, as the C.P.R. proposes doing. And the latter company has been five months endeavoring to get the Council to fulfill the agreement made by the town years ago in conveying to them directly or through the Wm. English estate the one-tenth of submerged land in question.

Ald. Morgan wanted to hold the C.P.R. up to the tune of $500 for this useless water lot.

Ald. Johnston wanted Council to visit the spot in question and investigate the water's value to the city.

Ald. Buller contended that it was ridiculous to waste time arguing the matter. The property is of no value to the city anyway. Were it so he might see cause for further delay.

His Worship thought the C.P.R. within their rights, and he could not see that the little piece of water in question would ever be of any use to the city. He urged a definite decision without further delay.

Ald. Gordon advised that the C.P.R. could get the lot in spite of the Council. According to previous agreement between the town and the Wm. English estate, they could demand that the former convey the "property" to the latter and the latter to the railway in accordance with their terms of purchase from the Wm English estate.

Resolutions and amendments to the number of at least five, were here in order, resulting in the matter being again side-tracked for two weeks. The Council will visit the spot this morning on a voyage of discovery, and enquire thoroughly into the legal status of the case, with a view to settlement at its next special meeting.

MILK INSPECTION REPORTS

Moved by Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Brown,—That the Medical Health Officer deposit with the City Clerk fortnightly a report of his analysis of milk, showing amount of butter fat contained in milk inspected, the names of vendors and dates of examinations. And that these reports be open to inspection by the press or any ratepayer.—Carried.

Ald. Brown asked that in the estimates a park for West City be provided for. This was referred to the manufacturers' and Parks Committee.

DEPUTATIONS.

Moved by Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That the Mayor be authorized to send deputations to other places, at the city's expense, when his worship deems it necessary.—Carried.

First Railroad Signalling

It was not until the year 1846 that the present system of signalling was first thought of. Up to that date the pointsman used to have to sit in a hut near the switch for which he was responsible, and, at a given signal, get up and alter it by hand. It is to the laziness of one of these old-time pointsmen that we have to look for the present-day system of signalling. He had to attend to two sets of switches some distance from each other, and in order to save himself the trouble and exertion of walking to and fro between them he fastened the levers together by a long piece of wire. A broken iron chair served as a counter-weight. The wire ran on into his hut, and there he sat nightly and worked the two signals without setting a foot outside. This went on for several months, but one day the old signalman was discovered, severely reprimanded, and afterwards promoted.

Queen Ant and Queen Bee

It is claimed that the queen ant has not had justice done her by naturalists. As compared with the famous queen bee, she is regarded by Dr. W. M. Wheeler as a far more admirable creature. In fact, they are, in many important respects, diametrical opposites. The queen bee is, it is pointed out, a degenerate creature, unable to nourish either herself or her young, to visit flowers, to build combs or to store them with honey. With the queen ant quite the reverse is true. She is held to be a perfect examplar and embodiment of her species, and the worker ant [illegible] from incomplete and retarded [illegible]. The queen ant is a very industrious and intelligent worker, and, in the opinion of the authority mentioned, she forms an exceedingly interesting subject for study, and has not hitherto been well understood.

THE TRUCE

By Thomas Spratt

The sun rose slowly over the edge of the wood, while a lovely slip of a girl, rich in the promise of glorious womanhood, sat watching the coming day. The birds carolled around her, the wild flowers opened their sleepy eyes and nodded brightly, the fragrant honeysuckle under which she sat sent showers of its soft white petals to greet her, but the little messengers fell on and around her unheeded and unseen.

Over beyond the eastern horizon her father was fighting.

Down in the tree shaded valley where the violets grew her mother had slept for nineteen years, while back in the shuttered house in his own room lay the soldier son and lover nearing his journey's end.

The small squad of union officers which had surprised a party of confederate scouts the night before, while not able to capture the trespassers had succeeded in mortally wounding William Bickerton, the youngest of the three.

It was a nearly unconscious comrade they assisted from his horse, and that hastily aroused the only occupants — his sister, Alice, and old "Aunt Linda," who had nursed them both.

The sun was well over the tree tops when the girl arose and walked slowly back to the house and passed through the empty hall and up the carpeted stairs. She tapped softly on the bed-room door, to be admitted by the old caretaker, who was waiting for the young soldier's life.

"Did yuh lock de outside do', honey?" she asked in a whisper.

"Yes, Aunt Linda. Are the men asleep?"

"Sh-h-h, not so loud, but ah low dey is. Dey 'spects tuh leave at dawk an' tak Mawse Willie's hawse 'long."

"Will he live, Aunt Linda?" And the blue eyes searched the dark ones.

"Sho, chile, ah reckon, if de good Lawd's willin', Mawse Willie'll be heah fo' a long time. Now, you sit heah while ah fetch some fresh watah an' min' yuh keep changin' dem cloths on his hade."

Miss Bickerton's position with the southern army had so far assured protection for his daughter and her nurse, both of whom had begged to stay as long as possible in the old home. To be sure, practically everything useable about the place had been seized in the name of the government and the slaves had been liberated, but the dear old house was still a shelter and outside protection was theirs, albeit from union men — protection which had been scornfully rejected by Alice, to be as wisely accepted by Aunt Linda, who realized that protection, even from an enemy, was sometimes a boon.

The days lengthened into a week and the life spark of the fever racked man was growing fainter. His companions had thought the union camp — a mile and a half north of the Bickerton home — would soon be broken by their men and had promised the first medical men and had promised the first medical aid possible, but the days had passed and no relief had come.

Silently, fiercely, the two women fought for the life so dear to them, deaf to the continued rappings of the messenger who was waiting outside. But at daylight of the seventh day, when the red of the enemy's fires was paling in the dawn, he opened the door unannounced and, gently brushing the two watchers aside, commanded the soldier soul to follow him. Together they passed out into the early morning.

The union camp was astir with the sun and a group of officers gathered around the general's tent [illegible] started to greet a slender, bareheaded girl figure before them.

After the first outburst of grief Aunt Linda and she had faced each other the necessity of securing help to bury their beloved dead. None of [illegible] could be found on the place, most [illegible] of the neighboring negroes [illegible] few hours in search of safer quarters. Help to be assured for many miles was scarce like themselves. The nearest from the union men. It was with reluctance the girl was persuaded to seek aid from the only possible source. Aunt Linda had quickly brushed and coaxed the girl's thick chestnut hair and laid out the best of what was left of her wardrobe and made her ready to face the bitterest moment of her life.

Like a flower of truce she stood before the general and his men. Simply and directly she told her story, omitting as much as possible any conflicting details, stating that her brother had been wounded while trying to reach home for a few hours' stay and that his two companions had returned that night.

Gently the general questioned her and, satisfied that his attempt to gain information was fruitless, ordered two of his men to return with her to her home, himself promising to go over in the afternoon.

It was nearly the close of day that a little group of union men went up the broad steps of the Bickerton home. Led by the general, the party mounted the stairs to find Alice waiting at the top, a confederate flag folded across her arm. Silently she led the way to the boy's room, where he still lay, dressed by Aunt Linda in the old gray uniform he had worn home, an early white rose in his hand.

The general looked long at the boyish face, then turned to the girl who stood like a statue beside him.

"I thank you, Miss Bickerton," he said, "for the trust and the honor you have conferred upon me in coming to me as you did. You women of the south are not less fine than your men and I shall cherish the memory of your trust always."

With touching solemnity he assisted her in wrapping the dead soldier in the folds of his flag, then tenderly the blue-coated men carried the body through the old house and garden down to the valley where the mother had waited so long.

"Are you a friend to William Biggins? That ne'er-do-well?"

"I should think not, indeed!"

"Then you'll hardly be interested to hear that he has inherited a hundred thousand pounds."

"What? Dear old Bill!"

Asker: "How do you excuse those mother-in-law jokes of yours to your wife?"

Fuminan: "I tell her they refer to her mother-in-law, and she says they are not half bad enough." 42

Sir Thomas Lipton at a dinner in Chicago praised Canada's bigness.

"I once heard," he said, "a Saskatchewan farmer talk about the big farms they have up there.

"'We have some sizable farms,' he said, thoughtfully. 'Yes, sir; pretty sizable. I've seen a man on one of our big farms start out in the spring and plow a straight furrow till fall. Then he turned around and harvested back.'

"'Wonderful,' said I.

"'On our Saskatchewan farms,' he went on, 'it's the usual thing to send young married couples out to milk the cows. Their children bring home the milk.'

"'Wonderful,' I repeated.

"'Once,' he said, 'I saw a Saskatchewan farmer's family prostrated with grief. The women were weeping, the dogs were barking, the children were squalling, and the tears streamed down the man's face as he got into his twenty-mule team and drove off.'

"'Where was he going?' said I.

"'He was going half way across his farm to feed the pigs,' said the Saskatchewan farmer.

"'Did he ever get back?' I asked.

"'It ain't time for him yet,' was the reply.'"

OXFORD SLANG

Some Queer Words Used by Undergraduates Which are Bewildering to the Freshman When He First "Goes Up".

Oxford University has a jargon of its own, which is partly culled from the same kind of thing used in the public schools of England. Some of the expressions are rather bewildering to the freshman when he first "goes up" to the University.

Study, social life, and sport each have their peculiar expressions.

The first examination to be passed is Responsions, called "Smalls." The examinations are called "Schools" because they take place in the Examination Schools. After "Smalls" comes the Divinity examination, which all must pass. The undergraduate calls it "divvers." Then comes Moderations — called "Mods," and the final examination for the B.A. degree called "Greats." Lectures in preparation for these examinations are called "lekkers." If at the end of any term a student is not taking a public examination he has a college examination. Collections, or "Collekers."

A man who is reading Chemistry is called a "Stinks" man. If he is attending Mathematics lectures he will be a "Maths" man. The tutors are called "Pons."

In his social life, too, the Oxford man has his pet expressions. Breakfast is a favourite meal for the display of hospitality. "Come to 'brekker' with me," a "second year" man will say to the "fresher." The meal, which in a man's rooms, dinner is taken in "Hall." The bill for dinners is called "battels."

An average man's day put into Oxford jargon would run something like this:—

Get up and "keep a chapel," services being held every morning and evening. After "brekker" go to "lekkers." In the afternoon go and be "rotted" or take part in a football "squash." He will, perhaps, take tea in the college Junior Common Room, or familiarly, "J. C. R." At seven "Hall," after which he will read, having first, perhaps, "sported his oak" or closed his outer door to keep away intruders.

COSTLY SPITE.

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $675,000.

KING A FARMER

King George is a monarch who does not scorn to make money by sidelines. From his model farms at Windsor, Balmoral, and Sandringham he derives a handsome revenue, and maintains a herd of several hundred superb cattle, which take prizes at agricultural shows all over the country. His Majesty is also keeping up the late King Edward's horse-breeding establishment of Sandringham, where, in addition to racehorses, he raised hackneys, coach-horses carriage-horses, and hunters.

MONEY FROM INVENTIONS

Many of the scions of Europe's reigning houses are in receipt of big sums from inventions for which they have been responsible.

The reigning Grand Duke of Oldenburg, for example, has invented a form of propeller which most of the German warships and liners use. A collar-stud, which is selling in hundreds of thousands, has been invented by the German Crown Prince. And one of the most up-to-date aeroplanes is the invention of the Grand Duke of ...

Mr. H. A. Fike, who has been foreman of the company, was appointed superintendent of both the Radial Railway and the lighting department of the company, and directly under Mr. J. H. A STRANGE PETITION

By Agnes Thomas

Once upon a time there lived, in Denmark, a little boy whose name was Hans. His father, who was dead, had been one of the King's foresters, and his mother still lived in the cottage on the edge of the forest where Hans and his two little sisters had been born. They were very poor, for their mother could only make a little money by knitting stockings, which were sold in the town of Z——, about four miles off. Hans, who was ten years old, was glad to get odd jobs to do for a neighbouring farmer, such as leading the cows to and from the pasture, carrying water from the spring to the house, or frightening the birds from the farmer's grain. He was a bright, industrious little fellow who loved to be useful, but his great desire was to go to school, so as to become a schoolmaster when he was grown up.

In the winter his mother fell ill, and for several weeks could earn no money. Hans did what he could, but if it had not been for the kindness of the farmer's wife the little family in the forest but would well-nigh have starved to death. Many a time the boy asked the good woman what he could do to earn more money, but she seemed to think he was too young to leave home, and told him to wait till he was older.

One day the farmer brought home great news from Z——. A fine new bridge was to be finished next month, and the King himself was coming to open it. There were no railways in those days, and the King would drive from Copenhagen to Z—— in his own carriage. The road ran through the farm, and all the people, the farmer said, must be prepared to salute His Majesty as he passed.

Hans ran off at once to tell the great news to his mother, and just as he came in sight of the hut a sudden thought jumped into his mind, and it was such a great and surprising thought that he gave a little leap in the air, and burst out laughing. The thought was this, "Why should I not ask the King to help mother?"

Now, Hans had never seen the King but he had often heard that he was a very kind and good man. He was always thinking of what he could do to make his people better and happier, and he was very charitable to the poor. So our little boy, as he skipped along the forest path, was quite sure that if His Majesty knew his troubles he would help him.

He took a week to think it over, for he felt it would be wiser not to tell his plan to anyone, lest he should be forbidden to carry it out. He decided that the proper thing to do was to present a petition to the King as he drove past the farm. And, as he was a very small boy, he thought it would be wise to make the petition as large as possible. He had neither paper, nor pens, nor ink, and he knew that he could not borrow any without saying why he wanted them. After a great deal of thought he slipped into his mother's room one day when she was asleep, and, opening the chest where the house linen was kept, he took out a pillowslip. It was of coarse linen, but very white from many bleachings in the sun. Upon this Hans wrote in large letters with a piece of burned wood, — "Please, Your Majesty, Help Mother."

On the morning of the great day he ran across the fields to a part of the road where he knew no one else would be, and, sitting down under the hedge, he waited.

By-and-by he heard a sound of cheering, and knew that the cavalcade was passing the farm. Then he heard the trampling of horses' feet and the rumbling of wheels, and suddenly round the bend of the road came the gleam of bright harness and the colours of brilliant uniforms. A company of soldiers came first, and behind them the King's carriage drawn by four horses, with officers riding on each side. Hans waited till the soldiers had passed, then he sprang up and running into the road, held up his petition with both hands, in full sight of the King, quite hiding himself from view.

His Majesty stared for a moment, and then cried—"Halt! What's this?" An officer with a long grey moustache pulled up his horse, and saluted.

"May it please Your Majesty, I think it's a pillow-slip."

The King lay back in his carriage and laughed heartily.

"A pillow-slip, General? But what's on it?"

Now, the General was a kind old gentleman who had grandchildren of his own, and he had caught sight of little Hans's face. The tears were running down it from pure excitement. So the General said:—

"May it please Your Majesty, there's a boy behind it, and I think he's in distress."

"Dear, dear!" said the King; "that is serious. Let me see him."

So the General took the petition from Hans, and the little fellow clasped his hands and gazed anxiously at the King.

"What's your name, boy?" said the latter.

"Hans Petersen, Your Majesty."

"I had a forester of that name," said the King, "who was killed by the fall of a tree."

"It was my father, sire," said Hans, "and my mother's ill and we've no money, and I want to go to school, and the farmer's wife is very kind to us."

"This should have been seen to before," said the King, "but I'll attend to it when I pass this way to-morrow, boy."

And, as you may believe, he saw to it very well, for he gave the poor woman a pension and a house in Z—— to live in, so that Hans and his sisters, could go to school. The boy grew up good and clever, and in time became a learned professor in the great University of Copenhagen.

"If it wasn't for me my class in school would not have any standing at all," said Hubert.

"Nonsense," said his aunt. "Your mother says you are at the foot of it."

"I am," said Hubert. "How could it stand if it didn't have a foot?"

THE SOLDIER'S PRAYER BOOK

By John Marr

Showing how one Richard Middleton was taken before the Mayor of the city he was in for using cards in church during divine service, being on account of an odd affair that happened to a private soldier in a British regiment.

The sergeant commanded his party to church, and when the parson had ended his prayer he took his text; but this soldier pulled out a pack of cards, and spread them before him. As he sat, while the parson was preaching, he first kept looking at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him, and said, "Richard, put up your cards, for this is no place for them." "Never mind that," said the soldier, "for you have no business with me here."

The Arraignment

When the parson had ended his sermon and all was over the soldiers repaired to the churchyard, and the commanding officer gave the word of command to fall in. The sergeant of the city came and took the man prisoner. "Man, you are my prisoner," said he. "You have played a game of cards in the church." "No," said the soldier, "I have not played a game for I only looked at a pack." "No matter for that, you are my prisoner."

So he took him before the Mayor. "Well soldier, what have you to say for yourself?" "Sir," said the soldier, "I have been two weeks on the march, and have but little to subsist on, and have nothing but a pack of cards. I hope to satisfy your honour of the purity of my intention."

The Explanation

Then the soldier pulled out of his pocket the pack of cards, and began with the ace. "When I see the ace," said he, "it puts me in mind that there is one God only. When I see the deuce it puts me in mind of the Father and Son. When I see the three it puts me in mind of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. When I see the four, it puts me in mind of the four Evangelists that preached the Gospel — Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. When I see the five it puts me in mind of the five wise virgins, who trimmed their lamps; there were ten, but five were foolish, and were shut out. When I see the six, it puts me in mind that in six days the Lord made Heaven and earth. When I see the seven it puts me in mind that on the seventh day God rested from all his works which he had created and made; wherefore the Lord blessed the seventh day and hallowed it. When I see the eight it puts me in mind of the eight righteous persons who were saved when God drowned the world—Noah, his wife, three sons, and their wives. When I see the nine, it puts me in mind of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour; there were ten, but nine never returned God thanks. When I see the ten it puts me in mind of the ten Commandments that God gave Moses on Mount Sinai on the two tables of stone."

He took the knave and put it aside. "When I see the queen it puts me in mind of the Queen of Sheba — who came from the furthermost parts of the world to hear the wisdom of King Solomon, and who was as wise a woman as he was a man, for she brought fifty boys and fifty girls all dressed in clothes alike to show before King Solomon for him to tell which were boys and which were girls; but he could not until he called for water for them to wash themselves; the girls washed up to their elbows, but the boys only up to their wrists, so King Solomon told by that—and also of Queen Victoria, to pray for her. And when I see the king it puts me in mind of the great King of Heaven and Earth, which is God Almighty.

The Palliation

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have given a very good description of all the cards except one, which is lacking."

"Which is that?" said the soldier.

"The knave," said the Mayor.

"Oh! I can give your honour a good description of that, if your honour won't be angry."

"No, I will not," said the Mayor, "if you will not term me the knave."

"Well," said the soldier, "the greatest that I know of is the sergeant of the city who brought me here."

"I don't know," said the Mayor, "that he is the greatest knave, but I am sure he is the greatest fool."

"I shall now show your honour," said the soldier, "How I use the cards as an almanack."

"You certainly are a clever fellow," said the Mayor, "but I think you'll have a hard job to make that appear."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find there are three hundred and sixty-five; there are so many days in the year."

"Stop!" said the Mayor, "that's a mistake."

"I grant it," said the soldier, "but as I have never yet seen an almanack that was thoroughly correct in all points, it would have been impossible for me to imitate an almanack exactly, without a mistake."

"Your observations are very correct," said the Mayor. "Go on."

"When I count how many cards there are in a pack, I find there are fifty-two; there are so many weeks in the year. When I count how many tricks there are in a pack, I find there are thirteen; there are so many months in the year. You see, sir, that this pack of cards is a Bible, Almanack, and Common Prayer-Book and a pack of cards to me."

Then the Mayor called for a loaf of bread, a piece of cheese, and gave to the soldier a piece of money, bidding him go about his business, saying he was the cleverest man he had ever seen.

The Real Trouble.

The real trouble with Britain is thus stated by a writer: "We cannot repeal the food taxes, nor adequately finance our schemes of relief because the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts, and the money is mortgaged to Dreadnoughts because we are entangled in the schemes of alliances which divide Europe into two camps."

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10.00 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

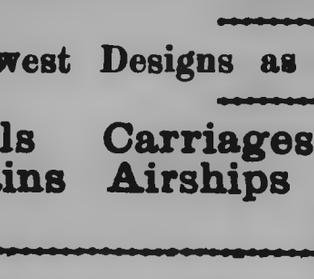
I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the ills and sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backache, for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there be thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a diagnosis for which the medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, and which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr., I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 357 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU honor no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.



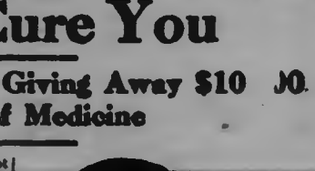
DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT
who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cure of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:



OUR NEW STORY.

The Times has secured the right to publish the thrilling romance, entitled "The Cableman", the opening chapter of which will begin on Saturday next, Feb. 3rd. This splendid story is written by Weatherby Chesney, which is sufficient to mark it as first-class. Do not miss it.

Separate School Taxes.

It might be interesting to many in Peterborough to learn that a well-known Protestant lawyer of Toronto, Mr. E. T. Malone, having complained to the Board of Education that he had been assessed as a Separate school supporter, and that his taxes, therefore, for the current year go to the Separate schools, the Board has appointed an officer to look after the enrollment of ratepayers as Public school supporters, reuniting the aggression of the Separate School Board along that line. We do not not know whether Protestants in Peterborough are paying for Separate schools or not, or vice versa, but the above will show how matters are in this connection in Toronto.

BIG GUN DUEL

During Crimean War to Test Merits of Big Guns a Duel Was Decided Upon Between British and Russian Gunners.

Even war, with all its grim horror, has now and then a bit of fun, and enemies, pitted against each other in deadly struggle, can relax into friendly controversy. A general relates a curious incident of the Crimean War. While the British Army lay before Sebastopol much speculation went on in regard to the relative merits of certain Russian and certain British guns.

One day, during an armistice, a Russian officer of artillery came to the British lines and asked to see the commander of the British artillery.

"Your sixty-eight pounder that your people call 'Jenny' is a beautiful gun," said the Russian; "but we have one as good in the embrasure, and we should like a fair duel with her."

Arrangements were made that, at twelve the next day all other firing should cease, and that the two guns should be put to the test.

At the appointed time a large number of officers were assembled to view the contest. The British sailors of the gun detachment took off their caps and saluted the Russians, who returned the compliment. The British gun, as the senior, was allowed to fire first. It struck the side of the Russian embrasure. Then the Russians returned a good shot.

The third shot from "Jenny" went clear through the enemy's embrasure. The bluejackets, thinking the victory was theirs, jumped upon the parapets and cheered. But they were mistaken. In a minute out came the Russian gun again and delivered several accurate shots. "Jenny" got a bad thump on her side, but it did no material harm.

At the seventh shot from the British side the Russian gun was knocked clean over. The British fellows cheered vociferously, and the Russians mounted the parapet and took off their hats in acknowledgment of defeat. This ended the great gun duel, and more serious hostilities were resumed.

BRITAIN'S BRICK

Of the many relics of Nelson, few appear so interesting as a humble little object in an obscure English town. At the Paston Grammar School, in Norfolk, Lord Nelson was numbered amongst the pupils, and one summer evening he spent some time in carving the initials H. N. on the wall that surrounds the school.

Years afterwards, when he became the people's idol, visitors made a point of viewing his handiwork on the wall, and precautions were taken to guard zealously this memento of the famous Admiral. But in 1841 a great storm blew down a tree, which in its fall partly demolished the sacred masonry. On the following morning, Mr. Rider Haggard (recently created a baronet), who was visiting the head master, spent some time in endeavoring to find the magic letters, and it was reserved for the celebrated novelist to discover the identical brick [illegible]

[illegible] handed it over to the principal of the school, and to-day the brick rests enclosed in a shade bearing a suitable inscription, in the most prominent position in the school. Small wonder, therefore, that when a Norfolk scholar was asked the question, "Who was Nelson?" he replied, "He was a brick!"

NO DITKS FOR HER

"Why is it, that in the spring a young woman's fancy is so apt to turn to clucking hens? Last year one of my best friends abandoned the footlights and sought the actor's oft-dreamed-of paradise, a little home in the country.

"As a recreation she decided to start a poultry farm, which she did with a barn-yard hen and thirteen eggs from the village store. Not having even the most elementary knowledge of poultry, she inquired of a neighbor how long eggs generally took to hatch. She received the reply:

"'Three weeks for chickens and four for ducks.'

"The neighbor met her some time afterward, and, on being asked how the poultry farming was going on, she replied, with a lowering countenance:

"'Oh, I've finished with it. At the end of three weeks there were no chickens, so I took the hen off, as I didn't want ducks.'"

EVIDENTLY A MISTAKE

"Twas at the skating rink, and the young man was but a beginner. Wherefore he lost his balance!

He made a wild effort to grab anything in the way of support. And, as it happened, the nearest thing was a fashionably-dressed lady, also on skates. She promptly turned on him.

"You contemptible cur!" she shrieked. "Do you think I am a lamp post, or a piece of furniture, or what? You ought not to be allowed in here, you clumsy lout! What right have you to fear other people's clothes to rags, and claw them in that mad way? You are not fit——"

But the young man had now recovered his composure.

"Pardon me, madam," he remarked, "but haven't you made a mistake?"

"A mistake?" gasped the lady. "What do you mean?"

"Simply this, madam," came the calm retort, "I am not your husband!"

"Accused of begging!" exclaimed a magistrate. "Why, you are the very man who was begging at my door yesterday!"

"Yes," assented the ragrant, with a sneer, "and you didn't give me anything."

"Well, I'll give you something now. Fourteen days!"

THE SILENT JAP

The Japanese, alone of all races, utter no sound when engaged in combat. From this national trait springs the curious regulation which prevents Japanese regiments from possessing bands, bugles, or drums. Orders are given verbally, or by means of signals with the hand or sword. No trumpets sound the charge, no drums beat the tattoo, and no bugles wake the troops with their [illegible]

EXPENSIVE ALBUM

$200,000 For An Autograph Album With 868 Signatures of World Renowned Celebrities and Their Remarks.

Seven years ago Councillor Louis Barth, of Arad, in Hungary, commenced to collect autographs, and today can boast of possessing one of the finest collections in the world. Indeed, he recently refused an offer of no less than $200,000 for his album, which contains the names of 868 world-renowned celebrities, whose remarks have been written in forty-three languages. Already ninety-three of them are dead.

Recently he visited Marlborough House to obtain the signature of Queen Alexandra, and at Her Majesty's request left his priceless volume there for twenty-four hours, in order that she might examine at leisure his wonderful array of signatures of Kings, Queens, Emperors, Ministers, scientists, artists, and writers. Herr Barth has gone all over the world to add to his book, and has spent between $45,000 and $50,000 in travelling expenses. The Emperor Francis Joseph, who favoured him with an autograph, told him he was the only person, not a Minister, who had ever received his signature.

"I was at Biarritz one year," says Herr Barth, "at the same time as King Edward. I showed him my volume, and, in giving me his signature, he said: 'Your book is an extraordinary treasure. It has only one defect — it is not mine.'"

Herr Barth is preparing a history of how his autographs have been obtained. This book will contain in facsimile every autograph he possesses. It is to be issued in an edition of 100,000 copies, and the proceeds of its sale will be devoted to international charities.

A FAIR OFFER

It was a political meeting in the East during the last recess, and the M. P., an exceptionally popular man, was addressing his constituents. The politician in question rejoices in a luxuriant crop of hair. The audience was sympathetic for the most part; but there was one man in the front row of the audience who made numerous interruptions. He was a coal-heaver, apparently, and had but recently been heaving coals.

"Get your hair cut!" he shouted during a most pathetic passage in the candidate's speech. The well-known catch phrase seemed particularly applicable, so a good many of the audience laughed.

But the M.P. was equal to the occasion.

"I will make a bargain with that gentleman," he said. "I will get my hair cut if he will get his face washed."

There were no more interruptions.

Brown (at the match): "What's the matter, Willikin?"

Willikin: "Matter enough. You know some time ago I assigned all my property to my wife to — to keep it out of the hands of — of people I owe money, you know?"

"Yes."

"Well, she's taken the money and gone off — says she won't live with me because I swindled my creditors."

WONDERFUL GOWNS

Dresses Rich and Wonderful That Make Women Gasp and Men Sit Up and Wonder If It Is Worth the Candle.

One of the most beautiful costumes ever turned out was that worn by Queen Mary at the Coronation Durbar, and there are no fewer than 3,250,000 stitches in the train, which is of Irish point lace.

The train had been presented as a gift by the ladies of Belfast to her Majesty, and was made by the Presentation Sisters of Youghal. It has been estimated that it would have taken over a quarter of a century for a single lace worker to complete the train, but sixty workers, working regularly, finished it in 98,020 hours.

This reminds one that at the Plantagenet Ball, held at Buckingham Palace in 1842, the late Queen Victoria impersonated Queen Philippa, in a silken dress made entirely in Spitalfields.

The dress, which was on view for several days at Hanover Square, cost, in materials alone, nearly $1250 while the gems that decorated it, exclusive of the Royal pearl-necklace, headdress, and other jewels, were valued at over $300,000.

The fur that trimmed her outer robe was minever, the skin of the Siberian squirrel, the same kind of fur that Queen Philippa wore on her Court costumes in the days of long ago.

Perhaps the most extensive dress ever worn by Queen Alexandra was that in which she appeared at the famous ball at Devonshire House in honour of the late Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. She took the character of Marguerite de Valois, commonly called La Reine Margot, her train being carried by the daughter of Sir Francis Knollys.

Her Majesty's costumes is said to have cost $1250 to make. It was of rich white satin, embroidered in gold and silver, with a high collar from which hung the train — a glorious affair of cloth-of-gold lined with silver brocade.

The Dowager Empress of Russia has always dressed exquisitely, and in the richest and most expensive materials. She received on the occasion of her silver wedding an ermine mantle which cost $40,000. It was presented to her by the nobility of the province of Kherson.

Gold-and-silver dresses are by no means uncommon. The metals, after being formed into very fine wire, are woven into cloth, and afterwards made into dresses. The women of Sumatra were the first to attire themselves in this expensive material.

Countess Palovolovetsch wore a firefly dress at a garden-party given at Benares some years ago. This unique gown had the appearance of being constructed of tongues of blue flame resting on a bed of light liquid.

The material of the dress itself was rich brocaded silk, and attached to the gown were exactly 36 fireflies. These little creatures glowed until the countess left the grounds, and caused the strangest gown ever worn at a society gathering in India or elsewhere.

The Countess de Villeneuve once had a dress made from beetle backs. [illegible] each carried a [illegible] beetle on her neck attached to a collar by a slender gold chain, which allowed it to roam about the lady's chest and shoulders.

A wedding ceremony had come to a close. The mother sniffed convulsively, and the bride dabbed her pretty eyes with handkerchief. One of the bridesmaids was also affected to tears.

"Why do you weep?" asked a groomsman of the bridesmaid. "It's not your wedding."

The girl looked at him scornfully. "That's the reason, you stupid." And she sighed.

There is many a man who isn't worth what it costs him to live.

Shaw told a degrading story under which he and the Parks girl had been living since October last.
